71ST CONGRESS MEETS MONDAY

'TAX REDUCTION BY CHRISTMAS' SOLONS' SLOGAN

Lawmakers Gathering in Capital to Tackle Enormous Amount of Legislation, Which Will Require Four to Six Months of Steady Work—House Hopes to Pass Tax Slash Resolution by Thursday—Senate Starts Off With Long Standing and Colorful Battle Over Seating of Vare.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.) — A congress, theoretically fresh, but actually pretty well battered and bruised by the rough voyage through the Hoover "Honeymoon session," assembled in the capital tonight to undertake an enormous amount of legislation, beginning on Monday. It is the first regular session of the Seventy-first congress.

Ahead lies four months, possibly six, of steady grind. The flowers will be blooming in the spring before President Hoover will be rid of the blocs, the coalitions and the insurgents, who have already caused his administration considerable embarrassment.

The grist of legislation embraces everything from tax reduction to prohibition reform, from tariff revision to a fight over the World court, from the right of a senator to his seat to the appropriation of some $4,000,000,000 with which to run the vast machinery of government another year.

And there will be politics too, for just ahead are the congressional elections of next year, when the entire house membership of 345 and one-third of the senate face the voters again. Primaries begin early in the spring.

The one piece of legislation that seems assured of snappy action is the administration's proposal to cut $160,000,000 off the nation's tax bill, benefiting the "little fellow" and the big corporation alike with a reduction of one per cent.

Prompt Action Assured.

"Tax reduction by Christmas" was the slogan of the gathering legislators today. It is an administration measure, but the democrats willingly have gone along, the insurgents are for it and it appeared

DENSE FOG CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Air Mail Pilot Seriously Injured When Wing Hits Bridge.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 30 — (UP)—C. C. Price, pilot of a Varney air mail plane, was believed fatally injured when his plane crashed into a tower of the Interstate Bridge, between Portland and Vancouver this afternoon. The Columbia river was covered with a fog impenetrably thick and the flier was following the river on his course toward the Swan Island airport at Portland.

Price, who had been with the Varney lines since 1926 and had between 3,000 and 4,000 hours experience, had once gone on to the approximate position on Swan Island, but the fog was so thick he could not land so he headed back toward the Army field at Vancouver barracks.

One wing of the plane hit the north lift tower of the bridge and sent the ship into a spin. It struck a lumber pile on the north bank about 100 feet from the tower, fell off and burst into flames. The plane and mail were burned.

Price was unconscious when pulled from the wreckage and rushed to Clark General hospital here. Hospital attendants said his condition appeared to be serious.

Oil Seeping From Well In Heart Of Bellingham, Wash.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Nov. 30 — (UP) — With oil coming straight up, a temporary derrick was being erected today at the busy intersection of Alabama and Orleans streets.

W. S. Quimby and associates were having the derrick installed further to explore a "well" which was developed while city workmen were excavating for a water main.

Seepage from the hole has mysteriously continued for weeks.

Quimby said it was planned to drill to a depth of seventy-five feet with an augur in an attempt to locate the source of seepage.

Work is progressing in one hole through blue clay at a distance of thirty-two feet, Quimby said.

Work on the well was being carried on by private enterprise after the city council refused to spend more money in solving the mystery of the seepage.

Florence Rockefeller, Divorcee, and George Sloan, To Be Married

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—A marriage license was issued today at the municipal building to Mrs. Florence Lincoln Rockefeller, former wife of William A. Rockefeller, grand-nephew of John D. Rockefeller, sr., and George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute and a native of Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Rockefeller's marriage to the grand-nephew of the oil magnate was the outcome of one of the society war romances of 1917.

After a hectic married life, the Rockefellers were divorced in Connecticut, the wife charging the husband with habitual intemperance. They had three children, who at the time of the divorce were given into the custody of the mother.

MATRON CAUSES 'DEPORTATION' OF SWAIN FROM EAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Thomas Whitridge, 28, son of a prominent Baltimore family, was today ordered deported from the state of California under a six months' suspended sentence for alarming and disturbing a San Francisco society matron.

His deportation and suspended sentence was alleged to have been arranged through the intervention of a group of prominent San Franciscans. He was arrested Thursday night following an unwelcomed visit to the home of Mrs. Mosley Taylor. His real identity at the time was hidden behind the name of Tom White.

Engineer Killed In Indiana Train Crash

LONDON, Ind., Nov. 30—(U P.)—George Kern, Indianapolis veteran railroad engineer, was killed near here tonight and eight persons suffered minor injuries when a Big Four passenger train crashed into an engine standing idle.

PIPE LINE FIRM MAY SELL STOCK

Rail Commission Refuses To Exercise Control Over Issue.

The state railway commission found Saturday that it has no authority to exercise any control over the proposed $2,500,000 issue of stock and bonds by the Nebraska Pipe Line Co.

As a matter of legal procedure, the company recently applied to the commission for authority to issue its securities, but at the same time questioned the commission's jurisdiction on the grounds that it is to operate neither as a public service corporation nor a common carrier. The company is now building a pipe line, beginning at the state line near Chester, through which it will transport natural gas from Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas fields, to a number of Nebraska towns. The company will purchase the gas at the state line and will sell it to other companies, particularly the Nebraska Natural Gas Co., which in turn will distribute it to the consumers.

In its order issued Saturday, the commission holds that "since the company does not hold itself out to carry gas for other persons, and as it does not operate for a consideration, or for hire, it cannot be considered a common carrier," within the meaning of the law.

Numerous previous court decisions are cited as a basis for the commission's decision that the company is not a public utility.

This leaves the company free to issue its securities as it sees fit.

MORROW TO BE NAMED SENATOR IN EDGE'S PLACE

Ambassador to Mexico to Take Seat After London Conference.

BAIRD WILL SERVE IN THE MEANTIME

Envoy Consents to Be Candidate at Election Next November.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, will be appointed United States senator from New Jersey in place of Senator Walter E. Edge, the new American ambassador to France.

Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey tonight announced he will make the appointment. Ambassador Morrow will take up his duties upon his return from the naval disarmament conference in London, which he will attend as a deelgate.

In the meantime, David A. Baird, jr., of Camden, republican leader, will fill the senatorial vacancy, withdrawing upon Morrow's return from abroad.

Governor Larson told the 1,000 republican leaders gathered at a dinner that Ambassador Morrow had agreed to accept the appointment. Furthermore, the governor said that in a long distance telephone conversation with Mr. Morrow in Mexico City, the ambassador had agreed to enter the republican primaries at the next election in the candidacy to succeed himself in the senate.

Governor Larson made his announcement on his arrival here to attend a testimonal dinner to Ambassador Edge, who sails for France on December 6.

Friendly To Hoover Policies.

The governor said that his decision to appoint Ambassador Morrow to the New Jersey senatorial post was largely at the urging of Baird, who suggested that Ambassador Morrow would be the best New Jer-

CONTROL STAYS IN STATE COURT

Woodrough Declines To Name Receiver For Peters Trust.

Says Affairs Can Be Handled By Trade Department.

OMAHA, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Declaring the state department of trade and commerce was competent to handle the affairs of the closed Peters Trust company of Omaha, Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough this afternoon denied the application of Arthur F. Mullen for a federal receiver for the company.

"Appointment of a receiver for the company is not necessary at this time and the affairs can be well handled by the state department of trade and commerce," Judge Woodrough said in ruling against Mullen. "The company does not appear to be bankrupt but is a case of insolvency and therefore subject to the restriction of the state department."

Mullen filed the application for the appointment of a receiver in the interest of three creditors of the company for whom he served as attorney. He had suggested that George H. Pratt of Omaha be appointed as the receiver.

"Our only purpose in fighting for control of the company is to save money for stockholders and creditors," Attorney General Sorensen said. "We came into this case with the sole purpose of setting a new record for economical adjustment of affairs of the trust company. We believe the company should come under jurisdiction of the state department which has been inspecting it for years in the same manner banks are inspected."

The state department took over the trust company early this week because the company's funds were tied up so heavily in farm lands that it could not meet its cash liabilities. If a receiver was appointed by the Federal court the costs of handling the affairs of the company would be $25,000, Sorensen said.

Mullen had argued for a federal receiver on the ground that the company was not a bank, and he said that congress in 1909 and the state legislature in 1911, had held in acts that trust companies are not banks.

Sorensen had filed in Federal court an answer denying that the Peters Trust company had been declared bankrupt and he had challenged the jurisdiction of the Federal court until such action is taken.

Judge Woodrough set December 17 as the date for a further hearing on the question as to whether the company shall be adjudged bankrupt.

MORROW CHOSEN FOR SENATE POST

Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, has been selected to succeed Walter E. Edge as senator from New Jersey.

EVANS TALKS ON ORIENT PROBLEM

Sioux City Lawyer Sees Need of Controlling Immigration.

Friendly Relations With China Forecast By Speaker.

"It must be the hope of every loyal American citizen that the number of orientals in this country will never increase to the pcint where they will constitute an economic and cultural menace to our native population," declared H. A. Evans of Sioux City, Ia., before the Lancaster County Bar association Saturday evening. About seventy-five attended the dinner at the Lincoln hotel. Clinton J. Campbell, president of the association, presided and introduced Mr. Evans.

Mr. Evans, who is president of the Iowa bar association, spent a period of over eight months in the orient and has made a study of this country's relations with China and Japan. In the paper which he read, he reviewed in detail the

FIND INTERRUPTER OF PROCESSION TO BE BOOTLEGGER

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Lack of respect for the dead caused the arrest here of James Salmon, St. Louis, credited by police as being one of the sources from which University of Missouri students were supplied with liquor.

Salmon, his car loaded with twenty-seven quarts of gin, broke through a funeral procession here yesterday and attracted attention of motorcycle patrolmen, who pursued him as a reckless driver.

When the St. Louis man finally was overhauled after a chase up paved roads and down side lanes, the officers recognized Salmon as a suspected bootlegger who had been under observation for several days.

Switchman Suffers Badly Sprained Leg

Roy Koohn, Burlington switchman, suffered a badly sprained leg when he slipped as he stepped off a moving car in the yards Saturday night. Dr. F. B. Hollenbeck attended him and he was taken to his home in College View in Wadlow's ambulance.

Streetcars Collide; Twenty Are Injured

ATLANTA, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Twenty persons were injured, one seriously, today when two streetcars crashed headon in a residential section here.

Eight white persons were treated for injuries, none serious. Twelve negroes were hurt.

Rumor Pola Negri to Wed Frimi, Composer

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Following filing of divorce proceedings by Pola Negri against her husband, Prince Sergi Mdivani, at Paris, the film colony today discussed rumors that the Polish film star would marry Rudolph Frimi, noted composer.

The composer is said to be enroute to Hollywood to compose the music for a picture to be produced by United Artists.

Easterner Victim Gangland Bullets

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The body of David Altshuler, apparently the victim of gangland bullets, was found today two miles from the city, lying in a ditch. Police declared he had been "taken for a ride" by bootleggers.

BYRD HAS AIDED CLAIMS OF U. S. IN ANTARCTICA

Britain Also Claiming Region as Result of 1912 Discoveries.

CONTINENT MAY BE OF FUTURE VALUE

Seen as New Trade Route, Whaling Center and Mining Area.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Com. Byrd's flight over the South Pole and the great ice-capped Antarctic continent strengthens the United States' claim on this tremendous land of desolation, which may in the future be of great value to the world's people.

Diplomatic discussions with Great Britain over disputed sovereignty of the continent, believed to be larger than all Europe, have been postponed after an exchange of notes, but with the critical question of sovereignty unsettled.

Byrd's detailed survey of the region is expected to make available a greater store of knowledge of the South Polar regions than any previous exploration, and inasmuch as sovereignty claims in such cases rest largely on the extent of exploration, the American claims, according to experts, may be considerably enhanced.

Short Aerial Route.

The great continent is of potential importance as the shortest route of air commerce between South America, Africa and Australia, because it now shelters a large number of the dwindling whale supply of the world, and because large deposits of coal and possibly other minerals are believed hidden far under the ice which covers nearly all of the land. Neither man nor beast has been able to subsist on this desolate wasteland, as far as known.

HALL CASHIER OF LINCOLN BANK

Former Head of State Bankers Joins Local Institution.

To Immediately Assume Duties; Retains Interest at Greenwood.

Phil L. Hall, well known banker of Greenwood, who served during the past year as president of the Nebraska bankers' association, has been elected cashier of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. and will immediately assume the duties of that position. For the present he will continue to reside at Greenwood, giving part of his time and attention to the bank there, but will spend several days each week in Lincoln.

The place which Mr. Hall is taking in the executive organization of the Lincoln National is the one formerly held by State Bank Commissioner George W. Woods, who resigned it several months ago to take up his work as head of the Nebraska banking bureau.

Began Banking Career Here.

The new cashier is by no means a stranger to Lincoln, this city having been his home up to ten years ago. He is a son of the late Dr. P. L. Hall, who until his death was president of the Central National bank. It was under his father's guidance and training that Mr. Hall learned the banking business.

Officers and directors of the Lincoln National have for some time been looking the field over for an experienced banker to take over the cashier's work. From among a number of men who were considered they chose Mr. Hall, because of his experience and wide acquaintance among the business people of Lincoln and Nebraska.

With this addition the official personnel of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. will stand as follows:

President, W. A. Selleck; vice-presidents, Don L. Love, James R. Dougan and E. H. Lulkart; cashier, Phil L. Hall; assistant cashier, H. E. Leinberger.

Mr. Hall is 41 years old and a native of Nebraska, born at Mead in 1888. Dr. Hall, his father, who was in the banking business there, removed to Lincoln in the '90s upon being appointed secretary of the state banking board, which post he held for six years, and the family remained here permanently. Philip, jr., was educated in the Lincoln schools and at the university of Nebraska, being graduated from the state college of agriculture in 1909. He helped to earn his way through the schools by working first as a newspaper carrier and later for the local firms of Henkle & Joyce, Hardy Furniture Co., and Harpham Bros. In

RICE TRIAL SET FOR DECEMBER

Six Criminal Cases On Docket Of District Court Term.

Suit Over Appropriation For Paying Depositors Will Be Tried.

Six criminal and thirty civil cases were set for hearing in District court before the December jury at the call of the law docket in District Judge Shepherd's court Saturday morning. The term will open December 9.

Action of the state aaginst John M. Rice on a charge of performing an illegal operation is the major criminal action set for trial.

Among the more important civil cases is Governor Weaver's test case to settle knotty legal issues over the distribution of the $260,111 appropriated by the last legislature for the payment of depositors in the failed banks while the institutions were being operated by the guaranty fund commission. The case has been set for Thursday December 12.

Two actions against the county for alleged property damage in construction of county highways also are set for hearing. One was brought

TWO BADLY HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 30—Mrs. H. H. Castor of this city suffered three broken ribs and severe bruises, and Cornelius Vermaas a broken knee and cuts about the body when the cars driven by H. H. Castor and Alex Reed collided on North Thirteenth street Saturday afternoon. Vermaas was riding in the Reed car. Castor and Reed escaped with a severe shaking up. Both cars were badly wrecked.

Safebreakers Caught After a Gun Battle

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 30—(UP)—A gang of safebreakers was believed to have been broken up today when police captured two men, wounding one of them, during a running gun battle through the streets of Denton, near here.

A third man escaped. The battle followed an alleged attempt of the men to cart away a safe from a Denton garage. One man was wounded in both legs. The pair is being held for investigation concerning several safecrackings here within the last two weeks.

PITT EMPLOYES 'WAITING'.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—More than 5,000 city employes were wondering when their pay checks, due today, were to be forthcoming. The resignation of Henry Oliver Evans, city controller, yesterday, left the city without an authority to pay the employes.

$250,000 Stolen Gems Recovered

BUFFALO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Jewels valued at $250,000 which were stripped from party guests by holdup men several weeks ago were recovered here today, according to Fred J. Healy, head of the Buffalo office detective agency.

A $200,000 necklace torn from Mrs. Ray Allen VanClief was not recovered.

Healey announced that four of the seven men held in suburban police cells have been identified as participants in the holdup.

Bernice Frank was arrested in a hotel with Clinton Duke, alleged leader of the gang. Others held are Edward Rogacki and Stanley Stenlick. The names of the others were not revealed by the police, nor where the suspects are being held.

FRENCH ARMY OF OCCUPATION QUITS RHINELAND ZONE

Tri-Color of France Over Ehrenbreitstein Fortress Lowered and Troops Depart in Silence — Church Bells Tolled and Joyous Ceremonies Are Held in All the 2,500 Square Miles of Once Occupied Territory — 1,500,000 Will Live Under "Protection" of Own Flag for the First Time in Years.

BERLIN, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—One of the most enthusiastic celebrations in the history of post-war Germany took place at midnight tonight in commemoration of the evacuation of the Second occupied Rhineland zone by the former allied troops.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30—Weather outlook for the period December 2 to December 7, inclusive: Northern and Great Plains region—Generally fair and cold first of week, followed by rising temperature and rain and snow middle of week; generally fair and colder again at close. Nebraska—Snow and colder Sunday; cold wave in northwest portion; Monday generally fair, colder in east and south portions. Kansas—Rain in southeast and rain turning to snow in west and central portions; Monday generally fair and colder.

Starting with the tolling of church bells on the stroke of midnight, the event was signalized throughout the entire German nation by various patriotic meetings, radio speeches and general joviality, as the black, red and gold colors of Germany mounted the flagstaffs throughout the Rhineland zone where until today the tri-color of France and the emblem of Belgium had floated.

The French flag was hauled down during the day from the ancient fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, headquarters of the occupied zone, in a colorful ceremony participated in by the departing French troops and the joyous populace.

Evacuation Complete.

Hauling down of the flag marked the end of eleven years of foreign occupation that began when American troops entered Coblenz on December 12, 1918. It also signified that evacuation of the Second Rhineland zone is now complete.

As the church bells tolled out a paean of thanksgiving for Germany's freedom from allied military control, the German flag was raised in its stead over the ancient fortress, and similar ceremonies were enacted in all the 2,500 square miles of Germany territory included in the occupied zone.

For some 1,500,000 Germans this was the first time they had lived under the "protection" of the Ger-

TEXAN KILLS WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

PILOT POINT, Tex., Nov. 30—(UP)—Mute testimony of the killing of his wife followed by his suicide was revealed today when the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bowman were found in the kitchen of their farm home near here.

Mrs. Bowman's head was crushed. Her husband's throat was slashed. The bodies were found by their three daughters and Rev. T. C. Harris upon their return from Fort Worth, where they attended a Thanksgiving day program.

Hunt Escaped Convict On Rockefeller Estate

EAST VIEW, N. Y., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—A detachment of keepers from East View penitentiary were searching the Ponantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller, sr., tonight for John Dean, 38, escaped convict.

Dean, holder of a long criminal record, was serving a one year sentence for safe robbery. The bars of the prison library where Dean usually worked under heavy guard were found spread open.

NEW TYPHOID VICTIM.

CLINTON, Ia., Nov. 30—(U.P.)—Clinton's typhoid fever epidemic claimed its eighth victim today when M. E. Albaugh, 52, succumbed to the malady. Seventy-four persons were reported afflicted with the disease by city health officials today, but only a few of the cases are considered serious.

SNOW FALLS AS MERCURY RISES

Precipitation Here Light But Heavy In Other Nebraska Areas.

Light, wet snow which began falling in Lincoln early Saturday evening melted nearly as fast as it came down, but a thin blanket of white flakes had accumulated on the ground by midnight. At that hour the temperature here was just about at the freezing point.

Reports to the Burlingon's chief dispatcher here indicated that light snow had fallen throughout the evening rather generally over the four divisions under the Lincoln offices. An average temperature of 35 degrees over this territory prevented much snow from piling up on the ground and was also the cause of some rain being interspersed with the snow at certain points.

The Burlington's reports cover practically all parts of the state except the northwest section.

Agents of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported about 10 o'clock Saturday evening as follows: Hastings—wet, heavy snow falling, with a temperature of 35; Plattsmouth—2 inches of snow on the ground but not snowing at time report made, temperature about freezing; Wahoo—3 inches of snow and still snowing, temperature about freezing; Grand Island—rain and snow falling alternately, temperature 32; Superior — rain falling, temperature 35.

Light southeasterly winds prevailed over the southeastern portion of the state, the reports indicated.

BOY WOUNDED, KEEPS SILENT

Edward Krepps, 14, Shot Accidentally While On Hunting Trip.

Suffers For Over Three Hours Before Tells Of Injury.

Fearing to tell his mother that he had been accidentally wounded while hunting with two companions Saturday afternoon, Edward Krepps, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Krepps, 1718 South Twenty-second street, suffered in Spartan silence waiting for his father to return home for dinner, when he confided details of the accident.

He was rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where Dr. Czar Johnson removed the .22 calibre bullet from the lad's right shoulder joint. The bullet entered the shoulder from the front, coursed along the shoulder blade and lodged in the rear of the joint, according to Dr. Johnson. The bone was not injured, Dr. Johnson said, and except for a slight danger of infection, the wound is not expected to prove serious.

Edward, together with Earl Brown, 14, son of Dr. and Mrs. Corol E. Brown, 1725 South Twenty-third street, and George Hodge, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hodge, 2315 Bradfield drive, all students in the Irving junior high school, left early Saturday afternoon on a hunting expedition south of the city, according to Mrs. Krepps. While the trio was in the vicinity of the Rock Island bridge spanning South Twenty-

Hoover 'Medicine Ball Cabinet' Works Out In 10 Above Zero Weather

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover and his "medicine ball cabinet" gave the old ball some rough treatment this morning. It was 10 degrees above zero and fast action was the result.

While they exercised on the white house lawn, early workers were stamping their feet and beating their chest for warmth and probably thinking, if they were president of the country they would remain indoors in such weather.

The players wore thick sweaters and leather windbreakers.

SAFE INVESTMENTS

CONSIDER SAFETY OF PRINCIPAL AND YOUR INTEREST WILL FOLLOW

The following EDITORIAL appeared in The Lincoln Star, Thursday, Nov. 7th, and should be read and studied by all who have money to INVEST:

WHAT COMES FROM "TAKING A CHANCE?"

One of the financial advertisements in The Star last Sunday carried this incisive heading:

"Safe and profitable investments will not call for margin."

There is a thought that should find lodgment in the mind of every man and woman who is trying to get ahead in the world. It is merely another way of saying that in order to build up an estate one must lay a solid foundation, just as he would do if he were constructing a house.

The steady shrinkage of quoted values in the stock market during the past several weeks, culminating in the series of crashes which knocked the bottom out of it in the last few days of October, did not touch many kinds of investments.

If, for instance, you happened to own shares in some well established business enterprise here in Lincoln, your holdings are worth as much today as they were a month or two ago. Your stock has not been boomed and sent up to dizzy heights by an artificial inflation process, and so it did not come down with Wall street securities. It is right on the same basis where it was, and in all probability will continue to bring the same returns as heretofore.

Perhaps you hold a life insurance policy in some reliable company whose stock is not listed on any of the speculative exchanges. If so, your investment has not depreciated one cent; on the contrary it has increased in value, because such a policy gains in worth from day to day, measured by its cash surrender, loan, or paid-up insurance rating.

But if you had put your savings into Wall street stocks "on margin," before the speculative upset came, you received a hurry-up summons from your broker to come through with some more money; and if you failed to do so you lost all that you had put in before [illegible] you did respond by ponying up the additional [illegible] you found [illegible] only in the [illegible]

WILL NOT CALL FOR MARGIN

A great many folks have learned, to their sorrow, that getting rich quickly is not so easy as it looked. Compared with the few who have played the market profitably, the number who have come out losers is legion.

Through sad experience we learn that the best method of acquiring a competence is by earning, saving, and wise investing, and the last element of this trio is as important as the others. One gets nowhere if the money earned and saved is afterward lost by "taking a chance" on uncertain investments. It is much better to buy something that assures a steady income, though a moderate one, than to gamble with speculative securities which are just as likely to go the wrong way as not.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR IN 'SHORT WEEK'

Volume Of Sales Greatly Curtailed During 3 Trading Days.

A Further Recession In Business Activity Is Noted.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Business activity, despite constructive developments in Washington, appears to be declining at about the same rate as in the past five weeks, with present indications pointing to continued recession of a character and duration which is largely a matter of guesswork.

The president's conferences have unquestionably had some reassuring effect, and it is to be hoped that they have corrected a certain inclination to panic apprehension which clearly existed in the first days after the stock market crash. An excess of pessimism is particularly to be avoided when the actual situation of business had become unfavorable, and insofar as the president has restored a saner point of view in the minds of business men, his conferences have succeeded.

In the three days of trading this week on the exchange, the stock market has turned irregular, with price movements extremely narrow. Volume of sales has been greatly curtailed, with the average sales per day for the full five hour session, the smallest since midsummer. A few important issues were under heavy pressure, but the general list moved downward at only a leisurely pace. Market followers, however, have looked upon the mildly reactionary tone of this week as the familiar secondary decline and have therefore regarded the movements of the week with passing significance.

Smaller Steel Orders.

From the steel industry, The Iron Age reports further reduction in output, producers of both steel and pig iron curtailing production to keep pace with smaller specifications against contracts, and smaller orders. The average rate for the Pittsburgh district has declined to 65 per cent of capacity, and the Chicago rate, in spite of expanding rail production, has dropped to 70 per cent. The Steel corporation's subsidiaries have dropped their rate to 68 per cent as against 72 to 74 per cent a week ago, while the average for Bethlehem is 70 per cent. The marked influence of the small demand from the automotive industries is shown in the 35 per cent rate for the independent Cleveland mills, which depend mainly upon automotive orders.

Curtailment continues in automotive production, although some of the reduction is attributed to preparations for new models. Various leaders in the automobile industry have expressed their belief that sales will pick up after the annual show in January.

Building contracts as reported by the F. W. Dodge corporation continue their downward movement of the past few months. The daily average for the six business days ended November 22 is about $2,000,000 higher, at $12,704,400; but the total for the first nineteen business days is 27 per cent below the contract total for the same period a year ago. The cumulative total of awards through November 22 is 12.2 per cent below the similar total for last year.

Freight Loadings Less.

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended November 16 showed a further decline. Total car loadings of 983,323 marked a decrease of 66,152 cars from the preceding week, and was 72,797 below the total of the corresponding week of last year.

The commodity price level is lower this week, the annalist index of wholesale prices having moved downward to 140.9 from last week's index of 141.5. This is the lowest point since April, 1927, and with one exception the lowest in the last five years.

The decline in short term rates continues. During the week time money fell to 4¾ per cent, as compared wtih 9 per cent only a few months ago. Commercial paper rates have also declined, and call money has been available in the outside market as low as 3 per cent. The reduction in the Chicago Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate indicates an early return of the entire system to the 4½ per cent level and suggests that a 4 per cent rate within the next few months is by no means an impossibility.

Bank clearings are somewhat reduced this week, the total at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review being 5.9 per cent smaller than the amount shown for the corresponding week last year.

Wheat Closes Higher.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Active buying and short covering enabled wheat prices to close 2⅛ to 2⅝c higher today. Sensationally bullish Argentine crop news, firmness in outside markets and the slowing up of December liquidation affected the market. Corn closed ¾ to 1⅛c up and oats ⅝ to ⅞c higher in sympathy with the leading cereal.

For the week wheat was up 4¼ to 4½c, corn 1½c higher to ⅛c lower and oats ¼c off to ⅞c up.

Wheat was strong most of the week, with Argentine news the outstanding bullish factor. Weather continues unfavorably hot in the south, while too much rain was reported in the north. Conservative estimates reaching here late in the week placed the Argentine exportable surplus at 100,000,000 bushels. Deterioration was reported spreading into some of the best sections of Buenos Aires province.

Heavy liquidation of December wheat featured trade in that commodity early in the week. Export demand for wheat continues fairly active. The further drop in temperatures caused some regard to the winter wheat crop in this country.

Corn moved within a narrow range during the week. Trade was light, the majority inclined to go slow until developments in December corn are realized. Receipts continue liberal. The cash market displayed easiness. Weather conditions were generally favorable over the belt.

Hog Trade Light.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Hogs closed on a par with last week. Trade was generally light, due to the Thanksgiving holiday, when a considerable amount of fowl and wild game are substituted for pork by many. From a top of $9.40 on Friday of last week a new low for the season was established on Tuesday of the current week when the best obtainable price was $9.10. This was the lowest since January of this year.

The best hogs available today sold at $9.40, with bulk at $9 to $9.35. Receipts for the week were 187,000 against 196,000 last week and 129,000 a year ago.

A drop of 50 to 75c in heavy steers featured trade in cattle. Top for heavy was around $14.50, lowest since last March. Demand during the week largely centered on choice yearling steers that sold steady at $15.50 to $16.50. Arrivals for the week were 55,000 against 47,000 last week and 46,000 a year ago.

Cows and heifers were plentiful and demand slack. Prices eased off 50c on the bulk. Most cows sold at $5.75 to $8.50 and heifers at $7 to $10.

An improvement in the dressed trade and lighter receipts figured in an advance of 25c in lamb values. Week's receipts totalled 58,000 against 72,000 a week ago and 60,000 a year ago. Choice lambs topped at $13.50.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Trade in cotton was light today with final prices 5 points up to 5 down. Prices were: Dec. 17.25; Jan. 17.36; March 17.65; May 17.88; July 18.01; Oct. 18.05.

For the week prices are 24 to 39 points lower.

The market was erratic during the week. Prices were sharply lower early on December liquidation and moderate easiness in stocks and grains. Weakness in outside markets and unfavorable reports from dry goods circles also affected trading here. Later, however, favorable cables and strength in outside markets as well as unfavorable weather conditions over the belt, resulted in a slight price recovery.

PHIL HALL JOINS A LINCOLN BANK

PHIL L. HALL.
Former president of the Nebraska Bankers association who becomes cashier of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. of Lincoln. He is president of the bank of Greenwood and also head of the regional clearing house association.

1907-8 he was employed by a large cattle company in Montana and also worked with a government surveying party there. From 1909 to 1913 he was in the employ of the Central National bank here and worked up to the position of assistant cashier.

Former Adjutant General.

At the age of 25 young Hall was appointed adjutant general of the Nebraska national guard by Governor John H. Morehead in 1913. During the same year he was in command of the state troops on special duty at Omaha following the Easter tornado which devastated a section of that city. He was re-appointed by Governor Neville in 1917. It was under Colonel Hall's command that the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Nebraska regiments were mobilized for war service, he himself resigning as adjutant general to become colonel of the Sixth Nebraska infantry. Later he was made commander of the 127th Field Artillery and was finally placed in charge of the army training camp at Camp Funston, Kansas, with General Leonard Wood as his immediate superior.

Colonel Hall's ability in financial matters was recognized while he was in serve at Camp Cody, where he acted as liberty loan officer and had charge of the drive for subscriptions among the men of the 34th Division stationed there. Under his direction several million dollars was rased for the second liberty loan.

Colonel In Reserve Corps.

After the armistice he was transferred in 1919 to the United States Reserve as colonel of the 355th Infantry, which position he still holds. At the annual training camps, held at Ft. Des Moines and Ft. Crook, he commands this organization, whose regimental headquarters are maintained the year 'round at the Lincoln federal building in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Overholster. In 1928 Colonel all served as president of the Nebraska division of the reserve officers' association of the United States. He organized the American Legion post at Greenwood in 1919 and was its first commander. He is now county commander of the American Legion in Cass county.

Mr. Hall became connected with the bank at Greenwood in 1919 as its cashier and five years ago he was made the president of the bank. In 1924 he was president of the Cass county bankers' association. In 1928 he was made chairman of the executive council of the Nebraska bankers' association and in the following year was elected president of that organization. He is now president of the second Nebraska regional clearing house association organized a few weeks ago by the banks of Lancaster, Cass, Otoe, and Seward counties.

Colonel Hall married Miss Vedah Wiedeman of Greenwood ten years ago. She was vice-president of the bank in which he had become interested. She was born and reared at Greenwood and is a graduate of the University School of Music at Lincoln.

"I am very much pleased to get back into the banking field in which my father was so long engaged," said Mr. Hall, "and I am glad to be associated with such a strong group of men as those in the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co."

Highway Builder Drops Dead During Dedication Program

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—His dream of a first class transcontinental highway realized, George B. Dickerson, dropped dead today, as thousands of persons gathered to do him honor, at ceremonies celebrating completion of the last lap of a road from here to Chicago.

Dickerson, 64, conceived the idea of the highway five years ago. It became U. S. highway No. 66 after he had devoted all of his time to making the dream a reality.

A half thousand automobiles, loaded with officials and citizens from San Bernardino and other points along the last lap of the road ending here, were enroute here to render tribute to the highway's founder when sudden death came to Dickerson.

Dickerson, counselor in the highway construction, was credited with having secured government aid in its completion.

M'MANUS TRIAL WITNESS IN FOR SEVERE GRILLING

Mrs. Marian Putnam Will Return to Stand Monday.

Denies She Was Ever Charged With Theft At Asheville.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Mrs. Marian A. Putnam, attractive widow of Asheville, N. C., will be subjected to a merciless grilling when she resumes the stand Monday in Broadway's celebrated murder case—the McManus trial. For wholly against her will, she has achieved the distinction of being the most formidable witness so far produced against the debonair cefendant, George McManus.

McManus, a race track bookmaker, is on trial for the mysterious murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway's "big shot" gambler and "man of mystery." He is charged with having plugged "A. R." with a .38 in Room 349 of the Park Central on the night of Nov. 4, 1928.

Until Mrs. Putnam took the stand and told what she saw and heard in the Park Central on the night of the crime, the betting along the gay white way had been 50 to 1 that McManus would not be convicted, but in the last twenty-four hours the odds have come down. Even so, the defense contends nothing incriminating has yet been pinned on McManus.

McManus Engages Room.

Mrs. Putnam testified that about on the night Rothstein was mortally wounded. Room 349 had been engaged by McManus under the name of "George Richards."

The defense has been trying to show that Rothstein was not shot in this room. He was found, staggering from a bullet wound, near the servant's entrance on the main floor.

Mrs. Putnam testified that tbout ten minutes to 11 p. m., on the night of November 4, 1928, she left her room in the Park Central intending to take an elevator to the main floor to buy some magazines. As she neared the elevator, she heard loud voices— the voices of three or four men, at least—an oath, and then a "crash." The "crash" sounded like the smashing of a bottle against a wall. She could not say whether it was a shot.

Maintains Silence.

And then, staggering down the carpeted corridor, she saw a man whose face was distorted by anger or agony, his hands clasped to his abdomen. She was alarmed by what had happened so she went to bed shortly and said nothing about it, even when she learned of the shooting of Rothstein next day.

Later, back home in Asheville, she even denied she had left her room that night, claiming she "knew nothing about the Rothstein case."

Her explanation on the stand Friday afternoon was that she "didn't want to get mixed up in it."

Mrs. Putnam could not say "definitely" in what room the quarrel took place. She admitted she was unable to identify a photograph of Rothstein as a likeness of the man she had seen in the corridor.

Denies Theft Charge.

On cross examination, Mrs. Putnam spent an uncomfortable and rather embarrassing hour but she maintained her poise. She blushed when she admitted she had registered at the hotel with a man she was engaged to marry. Her husband died in 1913. She denied she had ever been charged with stealing dresses from an Asheville department store. She manages the Putnam Grill, a restaurant in Asheville. She denied liquor was sold there.

Tonight, James D. C. Murray, attorney for the defense, was mapping out questions he proposes to propound when Mrs. Putnam resumes the stand Monday. He told Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., who is presiding at the trial, that he expected affidavits from North Carolina and would examine Mrs. Putnam on them. A number of residents of Asheville are understood to be in New York waiting to be called later by the defense in an attempt to impeach Mrs. Putnam's testimony. The trial will enter its third week Monday.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 30—Mr. and Mrs. John Penner, early residents of Beatrice, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in West Beatrice, Wednesday. A large number of neighbors and friends called to congratulate them and left valuable gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Penner have resided in Beatrice fifty-two years. They were born in Germany.

VIOLENT DEATHS SHOW INCREASE

Suicides, Murders And Accidents In State More Numerous.

Suicides, murders, and accidental deaths in Nebraska increased during the first six months of 1929, in comparison with the corresponding period of 1928, it is revealed in a compilation made up in the vital statistics division of the state health bureau. The record as to each follows:

Suicides, 119, an increase of 23.

Homicides, 18, an increase of 1.

Fatal accidents, 379, an increase of 48.

No detailed tabulation is made showing how the victims of these three classes lost their lives. The various means by which death was inflicted will be catalogued and classified later for the entire year.

Most of the principal diseases in the mortality table also took a greater toll in the first half of this year than in the like portion of 1928.

Total deaths from the different causes thus listed were 7,331 in the six months' period of 1929, against 6,785 the year before—an increase of 546. Herewith is the comparative summary in the disease column:

Typhoid and paratyphoid fever	7	10
Malaria	0	2
Smallpox	0	5
Measles	9	21
Scarlet fever	28	45
Whooping cough	19	27

Chicago Night Clubs Facing Dry Padlocks

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U.P.)—Temporary injunctions restraining three of Chicago's gayest night clubs from violating the prohibition law were issued by Federal court today.

The clubs include Texas Guinan's Club Royale, where Texas has been inviting prohibition agents all autumn only to poke fun at them in song; Kelly's Stables, where the cooks dance and the waiters sing; and the Beau Monde, which is managed by Frankie Pope, the millionaire newsboy.

Under the terms of the restraining orders, any violation of the prohibition laws will result in padlocking.

Families of Polar Explorers Rejoice At Byrd's Success

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—"All members of the Byrd family are extremely happy," read a message issued at the executive offices of Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia here today commenting on the feat of his brother, Commander Richard E. Byrd, in flying over the South Pole.

The governor left on a hunting trip in celebration of the accomplishment. Two weeks ago Governor Byrd and the commander's mother, Mrs. Elinor Bolling Byrd, talked by radio direct from here to him at Little America, and members of the explorers' own family also sent him greetings.

Captain's Brother Rejoices.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Being younger brother to a man who winged his way over the South Pole with Commander Richard E. Byrd has its disadvantages, W. Kennet McKinley of Kansas City has come to realize.

His brother is Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, aerial photographer, with the Byrd expedition and the night "Ash" was on the flight Kennet said he could not sleep.

"Ash did what you could expect him to do," his brother remarked. "He has always sought out something different. That was why he enlisted in the aerial corps in 1917."

The older brother was a captain at 21 and with him overseas in 1918 was Kennet, 16, a member of the ground crew taking care of planes used by his brother and other fliers. Now Kennet climbs poles for the telephone company. He has lived in Kansas City for the past two years.

Among his relics of the Byrd trip to the South Pole are two radiograms from Little America from his brother. His brother, he said, on returning to this country expects to start an aerial mapping company.

Kansas Youth to Trial For Murdering Family

Repudiates Confession After Starting Life Sentence For Killing Seven.

ELDORADO, Kas., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Women will hurry through their household duties here Monday, merchants will "knock off a little early" and not a few farmers and oil field workers will stop work to enter the cement courthouse where 18-year-old Owen Oberst goes to trial on a charge of murder in the killing of his whole family.

After a year in the state penitentiary, where he had been sent after confessing to slaying his parents and five brothers and sisters, Oberst repudiated the admission and won the unusual privilege to come from prison for a new trial.

Once a stout farm youth, young Oberst returns pallid and soft, the horror of the tragedy weighing upon his youthful shoulders.

On the evening of April 21, 1928, the farm home of his parents was consumed by flames. In the ashes were the charred remains of Oberst's mother, father, sisters and brothers. Oberst said ht discovered the home in flames, his loved ones having died while he slept.

Authorities exhumed the bodies and found each had been slain with a bullet.

The surviving youth suddenly blurted out, "I did it because the old man would not let me have his car."

Later he faced Judge George J. Benson to hear life sentence pronounced against him and repudiated his confession.

TOUGH ON THE CIVILIAN.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Hungarian officers who feel themselves insulted by a mere civilian have the right to run their sword through the offender, according to a law just passed by the Hungarian parliament. The law permits officers to avenge civilian "insults to their honor" by this means.

ARNOLD DEFENDS TRAFFIC PLAN

Auto Club Sticking To Proposal for Driving Against Signals.

Reiteration of its belief in the feasibility of permitting right-hand turns of automobiles against red stop and go signals was expressed in a letter written Saturday by Charles H. Arnold, president of the Lincoln Automobile club, to the city council.

Acknowledging that the automobile club's suggestion had not met with approval that had been anticipated, Dr. Arnold wrote that after additional study, members of the club felt the necessity of further expression on the subject.

The suggestion, Dr. Arnold writes, was not made with any thought of creating further hazards, but in an attempt to solve the problem of congestion.

It would not increase the hazard to pedestrians, he claims, "but most likely would be of greater protection, due to the fact that those turning to the right would come to a complete stop, change gear ratio, and then proceed on their way."

Automobile clubs have worked with the view of protecting pedestrians as well as automobile owners, it was also said in the letter. "This council," writes Dr. Arnold, "has at all times given importance more to the protection of the pedestrian than any other factor."

The letter closed with assurance of the club's entire co-operation in an effort to relieve questions confronting all cities of the class of Lincoln.

The automobile club's first recommendation to permit vehicles to turn against the red light was vigorously assailed when presented to the city council.

Girl Fliers Will Try Sixth Time for Record

LOS ANGELES, Cal., No. 30—(I. N. S.)—Declaring themselves undaunted by five failures, Bobbie Trout, 23, of Los Angeles, and Elinor Smith, 18, of Freeport, L. I., New York, today mapped their sixth assault on the refueling airplane record of the St. Louis Robin.

The sixth take off was tentatively fixed for Monday.

Petroleum Institute Meets in Windy City

Marketing and Conservation Problems To Be Discussed at Annual Gathering.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(AP)—Marketing problems and plans for the conservation of crude oil are expected to predominate discussions at the tenth annual meeting of the American Petroleum institute, according to the vanguard of the 2,500 representatives arriving here today.

The formal program does not begin until December 3, when Sir Henry Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch-Shell companies will address the meeting, but informal meetings begin tomorrow.

KUSHNER DENIES HIDING IDENTITY

Claims Gave His Name to Driver Following Auto Accident.

Says Iowan Demanded $700 Under Threat of Prosecution.

Governor Weaver heard the other side of the story Saturday afternoon in regard to an automobile collision that took place on the evening of November 9 on the Lincoln highway north of Council Bluffs, in connection with which a writ of extradition is being sought to have Ben Kushner of Omaha returned to the city on the Iowa side of the Missouri river on the charge of failing to report the accident.

Kushner appeared before the governor with two attorneys, Sam J. Leon of Omaha and R. W. Devoe of Lincoln, and flatly denied that he left the scene of the crash without disclosing his identity or place of residence. On the contrary, he said, he gave that information to Ira Hiers, driver of the other car and also took pains to inquire whether anyone in it had been hurt, and was told that nobody had.

In an affidavit by Mrs. Hires, previously filed with the governor, she asserted that her husband's skull was fractured and she herself was slightly injured. She also claimed that Kushner departed without making known who he was or where he lived.

Officials Not Present.

The sheriff and county attorney from Council Bluffs, who had been here on Friday to present the extradition application, did not appear Saturday.

The matter was taken under advisement by the governor, and as habeas corpus proceedings brought by Kushner in resistance to the application are pending in district court at Omaha, it is possible that a decision there will render gubernatorial action unnecessary.

After the Saturday hearing, an affidavit giving Kushner's version of the affair was made out to be filed with Governor Weaver. Its recital was as follows:

While driving slowly, because of a misty rain that made it hard to see ahead, Kushner ran into the Hires car standing on the road without lights, about 9 p. m. Hires at the time was outside of his car. The only contact beween the cars was their fenders, which were crumpled up against the tires. Kushner and two other men riding with him got out and inquired of the other people if any of them were hurt, receiving a negative reply.

Claims Revealed Identity.

The accident left both cars unfit for further travel, and a considerable time elapsed before an automobile came along with enough room inside it to take the Hires family to Council Bluffs. While the stranded tourists were waiting, Kushner gave Hires his name and address. Ed Simon, one of the men with Kushner, also a resident of Omaha, knew Hires and told him if he lost the address he could get it again from Simon.

Kushner's party was picked up by a car going back to Council Bluffs. Kushner heard nothing more about the matter until nearly a week later when, as he said, he was arrested in Omaha on a complaint from Council Bluffs. On November 22, he deposed, Hires called on him in Omaha and demanded $700, threatening to have Kushner prosecuted if the money were not paid.

An affidavit by Attorney Leon corroborated Kushner's statement about the demand for money and the threat to prosecute, which Leon says were repeated in his presence.

FIVE SAVED BY CUTTER UNALGA

Survivors of Schooner Sea Bird Returned To Juneau.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The coast guard cutter Unalga arrived here this afternoon with five survivors of the wrecked halibut schooner Sea Bird.

The five survivors were Capt. Holton Reitan, Ivan Horn, Martin Carlson, Olaf Kersnas and Alfred Dyb. Dyb, engineer, is suffering from a broken back, received while bailing water from the engine room.

Captain Reitan said a heavy wind off Cape Steiland on November 11 washed two wheelmen and the Sea Bird's wheel house from the craft. It was when he returned to the engine room to bail water that Dyb was injured. He is expected to recover.

The Sea Bird grounded on the rocks of Cape Suckling, but a shifting wind and heavy tide put them off the rocks. The vessel was washed ashore on Wighman Island, November 14.

A fox farmer took care of the shipwrecked men until the Unalga sighted a smoke signal on November 28 and hove off the island. Louis Dyb and Elias Dyb, wheelmen, were not seen after the heavy waves dashed them overboard from their positions at the wheel.

Society of Radio Fans Plans Series Winter Meetings

Thirty members of the Cornhusker Amateur Radio association, an organization of local radio fans will open their winter program Wednesday with one of a series of biweekly meetings, C. O. Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the group, announced Saturday.

Organized in April, the amateur wireless fans plan to hold hour and a half meetings every other Wednesday night during the winter. The meeting Wednesday will be held in room No. 145 at the Lincoln high school. One-half hour code practice beginning at 7:30 o'clock will open the meeting after which Fred Daniels will give a talk on how to make QSL cards, which amateur operators exchange as proof of reception.

Persons interested in radio are welcome to attend the meetings, Mr. Morrison stated. Other officers of the association are H. W. Hurst, president, and Louis Leuck, vice president. The group will meet the first and third Wednesdays of each month. A high school radio group known at the "Radiolinks" with sixteen members will meet on the alternate Wednesdays.

BANDITS ATTACK NATIONAL TROOPS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—A bandit gang of about 30 men attacked a detachment of ten Nicaraguan national guardsmen at a Colonia, north of Magapa, Thursday, and killed three of the guardsmen.

The bandits, who were believed to be under command of Pedro Altamirano, used machine guns, rifles and hand grenades in the attack. The casualties, which included two seriously wounded, were sustained in the first fierce rush of the bandits.

The guardsmen attempted to use a machine gun on the bandits, but it jammed and was lost when they fled towards Corinto. The bandits' attack was a complete surprise. The outlaws later fled to the mountains where a national guard detachment was sent after them. There were no United States marines in the ambushed detachment.

Specialists to Discuss Various Nebraska Water Problems.

(Special to The Star.)

LEXINGTON, Neb., Nov. 30—One of the principal addresses of the nineteenth annual convention of the Nebraska State Irrigation association, to be held here Tuesday and Wednesday, December 10 and 11, will be delivered by Alvah Hecht of the Buffalo county extension division on "Pump Irrigation." W. A. Crandall, mayor, and R. W. Lape, president of the Lexington chamber of commerce, will welcome the association members and R. O. Canaday, president of the group, will respond.

Crop rotation and orderly distribution of water supply will be stressed in Tuesday's session. State Treasurer W. W. Stebbins will speak on "Irrigation and Present State Finances." "Irrigation in Pioneer Days" is the subject of an afternoon talk by District Judge Fred A. Wright of Omaha.

Dr. George Condra of the University of Nebraska conservation and survey department is scheduled to deliver the main address of the Wednesday morning meeting. Geologic control of the depth, volume, quality and direction of movement of ground water in the Platte valley area will be the subject of his speech. State Engineer R. L. Cochran will talk on "Irrigation and its Relation to Highways" and C. E. Mickey of the state university will speak on "Water Resources of Nebraska."

Gov. A. J. Weaver has been obtained to give the principal address of the afternoon meeting. Attorney General C. A. Sorensen and his assistant, T. F. Neighbors, will explain laws pertaining to irrigation. A report of the treasurer and election of officers will close the assembly.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 30—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Blatchart of Fairbury were at home to their many friends at their residence here Thursday afternoon, the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary. They were married fifty years ago Thanksgiving day at Adams. The celebration Thursday was very informal owing to the recent serious illness of Mr. Blatchart. Friends called in small groups during the afternoon and Mr. and Mrs. Blatchart received many beautiful flowers and other remembrances. Their daughter, Mrs. M. C. Whitaker of Lexington, and Mrs. C. S. Voorhees of Omaha, sister of Mrs Blatchart, were present for the day.

MODEL AIRPLANE CONTEST DEC. 7

Recreation Board Is Sponsoring Event At Coliseum.

Embryo Lindys of the city will match model airplanes in the third annual contest of the Lincoln recreation board at 2:30 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 7, at the university coliseum. The competition is open to all boys and girls in the city.

Interest in model airplane building has been stimulated by several organizations which have promoted instruction classes. Among these are the Y. M. C. A., the recreation board, and several of the junior high schools. Such classes have been heartily endorsed by many of the outstanding men in aviation because of the elementary knowledge of the field that is thus disseminated.

The rules for the contest are as follows:

Eligibility.

Boys and girls who are residents of Lincoln are eligible to compete in the contest. The three classes are:

1. Senior—those 16 or over.
2. Junior—those under 16 years of age.
3. Beginners—12 or under and first time in competition.

Events.

The four evenis in each class are:

1. Duration of flight, hand launched open model.
2. Duration of flight, hand launched fuselage models.
3. Duration of flight, R. O. G. open model.
4. Duration of flight R. O. G. fuselage model.

Scoring.

All entries will be judged for excellence of design, neatness and skill of workmanship.

Points in each class will be awarded on the basis of five points for first place, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth. The contestant winning the most points in his class will be declared the all-round Lincoln champion.

Rules.

All entries must be made between 2:00 and 2:30 o'clock at the place of the contest.

Planes must be made and flown by one boy, who may have one assistant. No plane over thirty inches wing spread will be allowed to fly. Contestants in each event will draw for order of flight and each contestant must be ready to launch his plane within three minutes after called or forfeit his turn.

Two flights will be allowed each contestant in each event.

Time will be counted from the beginning of flight until the plane touches the floor or is stopped by some obstruction. Planes which strike beams, girders, etc., but continue to fly will not be considered as stopped.

The contest is under the direction of Earl Johnson, director of the Lincoln recreation board and Frances H. Ash, assistant. Officials of the contest will be announced later.

Doane College Notes

Dr. Olga Stastny of Omaha who is a member of the board of trustees of the college gave a most interesting and forceful address at chapel Monday morning on her experiences in connection with her trip to Europe last cummer in contrast to her experiences in a similar trip in 1918. Dr. Stastny held her audience at close attention during the entire period as she drew concrete pictures from her experiences. The serious purpose of her address was to emphasize the value of peace and international understanding and the responsibility and opportunity of the United States in taking the lead in its realization.

Among the out-of-town alumni visitors at the Doane-Cotner game Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. King, '14 (Helen Buck, '16e) Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Ross, '22 (Ruth Kinney, '23), Fremont; Rev. F. W. Leavitt, '95, Lincoln; L. L. Coleman, '22 ,Belleville, Kan.; and Miss Ruth Sweney, '27, St. Paul, Minn. Among the non-alumni visitors were Rev. William Richards, David City; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Nash, Palmyra; and Trustee G. E. Simon, Cambridge.

The local Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. goupsr met in joint session Sunday evening, Nov. 24, to hear a report from Miss Evelyn Adler of the University Y. W. C. A. on her experience in an industrial experiment which was carried out in Chicago under the auspices of the National Y. W. C. A.

To Introduce New Prayer Book Today

The new or revised Book of Common Prayer, the result of fifteen years of work by liturgical scholars, will be introduced into all Episcopal churches in the Nebraska diocese, and throughout the country, Sunday.

The date for the book's introduction was designated in the last official document of the Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, late presiding bishop of the church, who just before his death October 3, decided that the new prayer book should be introduced the first Sunday in Advent with a service of thanksgiving.

Special collects, epistles and gospels for July 4, Thanksgiving day and other holidays, and many beautiful new prayers have greatly enriched the book.

CLEMENCEAU'S WILL FORBADE ANY DISSECTION

Fearless Statesman Made Sure Body Would Not Be Ransacked.

NIGHT FUNERAL TRIP EXPLAINED

Directed Book From "My Dear Mama" Be Placed in Casket.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

PARIS, Nov. 30—Georges Clemenceau, who fought almost everything and everybody without a tremor of fear during a stormy political career spanning three-quarters of a century, went to his death fearful that his body would be ransacked by the curious after life had departed from him.

Details of the aged statesman's will, which will be published for the first time two weeks hence by the magazine, L'Illustration, were learned exclusively by International News Service tonight. Among other things, they reveal Clemenceau's fears that his body would be tampered with by scientists wishing to learn his secret of longevity and to probe his versatile genius by examination of his brain.

In a holograph testament written in a strong, virile hand in pen and ink, France's war-time premier stipulated that his body remain absolutely untouched after death. He forbade any attempts to remove his heart, dissect his brain, or perform postmortem examinations of any sort.

Body Moved at Night.

It was this order that resulted in the aged statesman's body being rushed to its modest burial place in the south of France in the dead of night a few hours after he had passed away.

Clemenceau had known and read of brilliant men like himself who donated their bodies to science after death, and such treatment apparently held terrors for him.

He knew that his amazing virility and mental genius through his long life had been a marvel to the world, and whether his fears were justified or not, he was afraid the inquisitive might attempt to experiment upon him.

Thus his body went to a humble grave, unembalmed and untouched.

In addition, the testament confirmed Clemenceau's now well known and gratified wishes for the simplest possible burial, and stipulated the articles he wished placed in side his coffin.

Cane Placed In Casket.

One was the cane of lignum-vitae he had carried in his youth. Another was a simple souvenir of the world war—a vase wrought from an exploded German shell, filled with withered flowers plucked from a spot on the battlefield which had escaped bullet and shrapnel. It was given to Clemenceau by a poilu on one of his many visits to the trenches during the war.

There was another touch of tender sentiment. The will revealed Clemenceau's hitherto unmentioned desire for the inhumation of "a little goatskin box containing a book from my dear mama." The will directed that the box would be found "on the upper shelf of my wardrobe."

Clemenceau was determined that no alterations should be made in the way he scratched out his testament on coarse paper with a sputtering pen. Around each handwritten page he inscribed a rough circle, indicating that it was complete and satisfactory, and that he desired no deletions or additions.

The testament devoted considerable space to the disposition of his property and the royalties accruing from his published works.

'TAX REDUCTION BY CHRISTMAS' SOLONS' SLOGAN

likely tonight that the lumbering machinery of congress actually will rush the legislation through in the next three or four weeks. Politically it isn't very healthy to oppose tax reduction, anyway.

The tax measure will receive immediate consideration in the house. The house is well disciplined and can act fast when the leaders give the word. The resolution will be introduced on Monday and the leaders hope to pass it by Thursday.

The senate starts off with a colorful battle that has alternately flared and smoldered for two years—the fight over the seating of Senator-elect William S. Vare, republican of Pennsylvania. Vare has knocked vainly on the senate doors ever since presenting his credentials.

This time the senate gives promise of disposing of the issue once and for all—by simply not seating the Philadelphia machine leader. The republican leadership hopes to declare his seat "vacant," which will permit the governor of Pennsylvania to name a successor, thus shutting the door on William B. Wilson, Vare's democratic opponent, who also has been vainly knocking at the door for admission. There will be a real fight on this, however with a week's debate.

Conference Fight Ahead.

The fate of the battle-scarred tariff bill is in doubt, although the leaders were talking hopefully tonight of passing it too by the first of the year. But even if that can be accomplished, it is only the beginning of another fight for the bill must go to conference, and there is about as much similarity between the senate and house bills as there is between a republican from Wisconsin and one from Pennsylvania.

A good deal in the tariff situation depends upon what President Hoover has to say about it in his annual message, which probably will be delivered on Tuesday. Mr. Hoover has steadily withstood all kinds of pressure to make known his position on the rates as written by the house and rewritten by the senate. There is a vast amount of speculation on Capitol hill as to what he is to say on Tuesday concerning the way the senate has manhandled the original bill.

Behind these matters looms a vast array of other legislation that will receive more or less consideration—railroad consolidation, kicking around the halls of congress for eight years; radio regulation; a rivers and harbors bill; reforms in the Indian administration, the result of an investigation during the special session; posibly ome anti-lobbying legislation as a result of the disclosures by the Caraway committee; odds and ends of farm legislation; confirmations of appointments, etc.

And interspersed between these come the great supply bills which will aggregate some $4,000,000,000.

Fireworks Promised.

It promises to be a session loaded with much work—and quite probably considerable fireworks.

The coalition of democrats and western republicans that functioned so well in the emasculation of the house tariff bill can continue control of the senate if it desires to do so.

Moreover, the democrats are militant and alert, in contrast to their attitude a year ago following the great defeat in the 1928 campaign. They now believe that their party fortunes are on the mend, as evidenced by the off-year elections a few weeks ago. They have a militant and aggressive national headquarters, operating on a permanent basis, in Washington.

It is the republicans who now are split. The schism between the republicans of the industrial east and the republicans of the prairies, widened during the tariff fight, is very real and very deep.

Both houses will meet Monday at noon and adjourn for the day after appointing committees to tell President Hoover that congress awaits his message. Mr. Hoover probably will send up his message to be read on Tuesday, and this will be followed on Wednesday by the budget message. Then congress can settle down to the long grind.

Vare's Fate Sealed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The fate of Senator-elect William S. Vare, (republican) of Pennsylvania—a fate that will bar him from the senate despite his 200,000 majority in the 1926 election — was sealed today with an announcement that "Vare's friends" would sponsor a resolution declaring his seat vacant.

This announcement, made by Senator Watson of Indiana, republican floor leader, indicated that Vare's senatorial defenders had given up all hope of seating him. The resolution, declaring a vacancy, would represent an effort to end further action on the contest, filed against Vare by William B. Wilson, democrat, at the same time as Vare is denied his seat.

The democratic-insurgent coalition, which has fought Vare's entry to the senate for the last two years, probably will oppose the substtiute resolution while rallying behind the Norris resolution, which simply declares Vare not entitled to a seat in the senate.

The Norris plan would allow a separate decision later on the contest between Vare and Wilson and it is no secret that Senator Norris, the insurgent leader, hopes to put a democrat in the senate from the standpat republican bailiwick of Pennsylvania.

The strategy behind the move to declare Vare's seat vacant would be to terminate the Wilson contest at one smash and enable the republican governor of Pennsylvania to appoint another republican to the vacancy. Unless such a resolution is adopted, Vare may be denied his seat and Pennsylvania kept without two senators for another year, pending a final decision on the Wilson contest.

Byrnes Hits G. O. P.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Adjournment of the special session of congress without action on the tariff bill, was "a confession of impotence" on the part of the Hoover administration, said Representatives Byrnes, Tennessee, chairman of the national congressional committee, in a statement today.

The senate revolt which prevented passage of the bill, however, "helped keep from adding batween $600,000,000 and $800,000,000 to the annual living costs of American people," he said.

Democrats and progressive republicans ought to be praised, not blamed, for stopping the bill, he said.

WYOMING, Ill., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Harry Jones and his wife and Martha Johnson, housekeeper, were burned to death when the home of A. R. Mannon was destroyed by fire here today.

The flames spread so rapidly that other occupants were rescued with difficulty.

The fire is believed to have started from an explosion of kerosene poured into a coal stove fire to accelerate it.

MORROW TO BE NAMED SENATOR IN EDGE'S PLACE

sey man to be appointed who could aid President Hoover.

New Jersey republican leaders are understood to desire a man who would be willing to run for re-election next year for the six-year senatorial term. Baird is reported as not desiring to become a candidate at the next election, although willing to serve in the interim.

The announcement of the senatorial appointment of Ambassador Morrow came as a distinct surprise as it was understood the distinguished statesman wished to remain in Mexico until he had completed his efforts there to affect better relations between the southern republic and the United States.

When Ambassador Morrow goes to Washington as the New Jersey representative in the upper house, the administration will have a strong advocate of the Hoover policies. The president is known to have the highest regard for Morrow's abilities and their relationships have always been on the friendliest. At the election of Hoover, Morrow was prominently mentioned for a cabinet position.

Ambasador Morrow will arrive in Washington about December 10 from Mexico City. He will sail for London shortly afterward with Secretary of State Stimson to attend the disarmament conference which assembles in January.

Baird will go to Washington within the next week or so to be sworn in as New Jersey senator. When Morrow returns from London probably the first part of February, Baird will resign and Ambassador Morrow will be named for the unexpired term.

Governor Larson revealed his intention to appoint Morrow in a letter to Baird who had stated his inwish that a man be named "who in every degree measures up to the highest tradition of the state of New Jersey."

"I have accepted this view," Governor Larson said in his letter to Baird, "and consider myself fortunate in being able to state to the public my intention to name as your successor in due course and at a time when his duties to the government at Washington will permit, Dwight W. Morrow, at present ambassador to Mexico."

"Meantime, it is most gratifying to me that during the ensuing week of active session New Jersey will be represented in the senate by one like yourself, who so thoroughly commands my own and public confidence," continued Governor Larson.

Praise for Envoy.

. . . and I thank you for having used your own influence in assisting me to persuade Mr. Morrow, after distinguished and effective service to the government, to enter another line of service where we all have reason to believe that his singular talents will be of even greater usefulness to his state and nation.

"The reasons which have led me to secure Mr. Morrow's consent to accept appointment are clear. The situation at Washington calls for the best thought of our wisest men, acting under the inspiring leadership of President Hoover. We are having to assume a large part in problems affecting world development. We must shortly help to carry through the practical details of the declarations of the forthcoming London naval conference.

"Business conditions have recently received a shock, the administration has already taken notable measures to minimize the effects of this; calling for most intelligent co-operation by both business men and legislators.

"Mr. Morrow has had a fine training. He was first an able lawyer and then an able financier. He saw service abroad during the World war, receiving the distinguished service medal for his work.

"The life-long friend and companion of Calvin Coolidge, he was drafted by the president to reconcile the conflicting views in government aircraft development. His power of analysis, art of persuasion and spirit of fairness were displayed to such advantage that the president was eager to draft him for what was perhaps the most delicate diplomatic task of his administration—the mission to Mexico. He quickly became an exceptionally well informed diplomatic adviser. He was instrumental in changing the attitude in Mexico from suspicion to confidence and trust. He has been acclaimed by the Mexican government and people as their friend. His service has gone far to join Mexico and the United States in a new unity of loyalty.

"During the conference at London on naval matters, he will serve as one of President Hoover's commission, which will have a most important part in that great attempt to satisfy the aspirations of mankind in lessening the provocative causes and likelihood of war.

"Mr. Morrow is for progress and for practical measures. He is in step with America and the world of today. He is an admirer and warm supporter of President Hoover and his policies. With his versatility and vigorous personality he has become a vital figure in American politics."

Senator Moses of New Hampshire was the principal speaker at the dinner to Ambassador Edge. Senator Moses reviewed the life of Edge "from newsboy to diplomat."

Ambassador Edge was born in Philadelphia and moved to Pleasantville, N. J., when he was a child.

Washington Surprised.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.) — Political circles greeted with surprise tonight the announcement of Governor Larson of New Jersey that he would appoint Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, senator from New Jersey to fill the unexpired term of Senator Walter Edge, republican, recently named ambassador to Paris.

While comment was generally withheld pending full digestion of the significance, if any, of the Larson appointment, it had been generally conceded the appointment would go to David A. Baird, jr., of Camden and that Baird would remain in office until the term expires, after next year's elections. After that, it was believed Representative Franklin Fort republican, would enter the fall elections for the senate berth.

Fort was regarded as the almost certain choice of the New Jersey political chiefs, and in view of his acceptance by President Hoover as secretary of the republican national committee was believed to be in favor for the senate position. However, it was indicated here officials of the party had come to the conclusion Fort could best serve the party in his present place, and that he would again run for the house next year, inasmuch as Morrow was believed to have been prevailed upon to enter the lists for the senate again when his term expires.

FORD PAYS ONLY $6.25 FOR SHOES

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Henry Ford, the country's wealthiest man, wears $6.25 shoes.

This was disclosed today following a visit to a local shoe factory, where he has been buying his shoes.

The visit to the factory was to make sure that hereafter when black oxfords are sent the motor magnate by mail that they will be made a trifle wider than the regular width, size 8.

BYRD HAS AIDED CLAIMS OF U. S. IN ANTARCTICA

of the equator comes from there, just as the United States weather come from northern Canada and Alaska.

The Geographic society, which contributed $50,000 to Byrd's expedition, the rest being provided by private backers and newspapers, issued a statement today explaining the importance of the flight from a standpoint of weather prediction, aerial navigation and map making. North Polar experience is useless there, it was pointed out, because Antarctica is surrounded by seas, whereas the North Pole regions are surrounded by land.

The southern land mass, with its accumulated ice and snow of centuries, is a great reservoir of cold, and the ice covering makes it difficult to know anything of the geological makeup except in a few mountainous regions, the bulletin said.

Ice Covered Plateau.

The vast ice covered plateau at the pole itself is more than 9,000 feet above sea level.

The British claims to the continent are based on discoveries of an Australian expedition in 1912, and first were ascribed to the British imperial conference in 1926. The claim of the United States has been based partly on previous discoveries by Americans, including that of Capt. Charles Wilkes, who found land on the edge of the continent which was named after him in 1840.

Byrd's flight was followed from Washington as a glorious adventure and an important event in aviation and science, as well as an attempt to conquer new lands for America.

President Hoover and Assistant Navy Secretary Jahncke sent messages of congratulation, and Assistant Navy Secretary Ingalls and Admiral Moffatt, who together direct the navy's aviation activities, expressed enthusiastic praise.

Resting At Base.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—To the glory of his country and the world of science, Comm. Richard E. Byrd tonight rested at his ice-jacketed base in the Antarctica after planting the American flag at the South Pole even as he had done at the North Pole.

The safe return of the famous aerial explorer following a 1,600-mile flight to the South Pole and back was announced by the New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and newspapers affiliated with them.

The commander was accompanied in his historic air trial by Pilot Bernt Balchen, aerial surveyor Capt. Ashley C. McKinley and Harold June, navy radio expert. The round trip was accomplished in eighteen hours and fifty-nine minutes. The Byrd flight over the North Pole took fifteen hours and thirty minutes.

In the Byrd flying saga over the heel of the world, land never before seen by man was surveyed from the air. Scientists predicted that the photographic and geologic data gathered would contribute important facts to the knowledge of humankind.

In addition, the measurement of the South Polar winds and temperatures by the Byrd expedition may add vital statistics to the science of meteorology and the every day science of the man in the street—the weather.

The flight was made in the Antarctic summer (which still means plenty below zero). It is the time when the blanket of fog hanging over the ice-packs is wafted away by cold southwestern winds and the most favorable opportunity for the great aerial adventure.

Dangers Were Great.

The dangers from a possible forced landing were considered worse in the Antarctic than in the Arctic. In the latter there is some animal life, and in certain regions villages of Eskimos. But at the subway of the world there are no human beings nor, as far as is known, any vegetation.

Whether any open water was discovered by the Byrd party was a scientific question furnishing much interest to geologists.

The grim hazard of a forced landing by the Byrd plane can be imagined from recalling the fate of Captain Robert F. Scott, British explorer, when Scott and his comrades were frozen to death in a blizzard in 1912 after reaching the South Pole on foot.

The ill-fated Scott expedition followed the successful feat of Captain Raold Amundsen, who a few weeks before had been the first man to reach the South Pole.

The new land surveyed by Commander Byrd may ultimately furnish diplomatic exchanges between the United States and Great Britain. Great Britain claims considerable territory in the Antarctica through exploration by their country's representatives. It is known that British statesmen have watched the progress of the Byrd expendition with keen interest.

Mother Proud of Dick.

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—"I am awfully proud of Dick."

This was the comment today of the mother of the only man who ever flew over the South Pole.

Mrs. Elinor Bolling Byrd read to friends who called to congratulate her in the little town where Richard Byrd spent his boyhood a radio message "Dick" sent after completing his flight.

"Back from the fine flight," Byrd's radio said. "It was full of thrills. A world of love to you all. DICK."

"He always remembers me," Mrs. Byrd said.

"I was more anxious during this flight, though, than during any other he ever made. I believe it was more dangerous than the rest."

Norway Praises Byrd.

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The successful flight of Com. Richard E. Byrd and his companions to the South Pole prompted nationwide expressions of satisfaction and congratulation.

The press praised Byrd and his men for their venture.

WALTON YOUTH WINS 4-H PRIZE

Theodore Anderson Gets $100 Scholarship Given By Union Pacific.

Theodore Anderson, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson of Walton, was announced Saturday by County Extension Agent Purbaugh as winner of the Union Pacific $100 cholarship from Lancaster county for attendance at the college of agriculture.

The winner was selected for his general all-around club work, not only for this year, but for a period of years accordinging to Purbaugh, who certified his selection to the railroad. Similar winners are selected in thirty-nine counties in the state.

Young Anderson has a record of having won thirteen achievement certificates while in 4-H club work. These represent the satisfactory completion of thirteen distinct club projects. He was this year a member of three clubs, the Walton pig club, the Walton dairy club, and the Waltonian agricultural engineering club. Previously he had put in several years as a corn club member.

He is a freshman at the college of agriculture. The cholarship will probably be made available to him for the second semester, according to Mr. Purbaugh.

FRENCH ARMY OF OCCUPATION LEAVES RHINE

man flag since the republic was founded. For the first time in eleven years, the brilliant emblem floated from schools and public buildings.

Signal for Celebrations.

Official notification from the allied ambassadors' council that the Rhineland had been liberated came through shortly before midnight, and the German commissioner in the occupied territories immediately informed the various burgomeisters that military control had been lifted. This notification was the signal for the stort of the celebrations.

The last of the 16,000 French troops which had been quartered in and about Coblenz for more than a decade took their leave this afternoon when a small color guard reverently furled the tri-color which had flown from the Ehrenbreitstein mast, loaded it aboard a military truck, and departed for France.

Depart in Silence.

COBLENZ, Germany, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The tri-color of France over the once famous Ehrenbreitstein fortress—an ever present symbol of the presence of French soldiers on German soil—was lowered today and the army of occupation departed in silence from the Second zone of the Rhineland.

Tonight the cities of Coblenz, Aachen and Duren were filled with rejoicing crowds as thousands of persons from the entire area celebrated the departure of the blue-coated poilus and the Belgians who had occupied the Second zone almost since the war.

There was but one incident to dampen the spirit of the celebration. The French military commission announced that only the military was being evacuated and that the French would retain judicial and political control pending decision of the ambassadors conference at Paris. After a hurried conference, municipal authorities decided to proceed with the jubilation program tonight and tomorrow despite the announcement.

The tri-color was lowered at 11:15 a. m. There was no cheering and no demonstration. Thousands of persons watched in silence as the flag came down.

BOY WOUNDED, KEEPS SILENT

seventh street, the weapon, belonging to the Brown boy, was accidentally discharged, Mrs. Krepps stated, sending the missle into the boy's shoulder about 2:30 o'clock.

Although suffering intense pain, Edward walked back to his home. Believing that "Dad" would prove more sympathetic than mother, who did not approve of the hunting trip, the boy maintained a stoical silence until the father came home about 6 o'clock.

Edward was recovering nicely from the operation, hospital attaches reported late Saturday night.

THIEVES RANSACK LUMBER OFFICE BUT GET NOTHING

After two previous unsuccessful attempts to enter the office of the Independent Lumber Co., 943 North Twenty-seventh street, thieves finally got a break Saturday evening, forced their way in, and ransacked the office and safe, but left without getting a thing. O. E. Skold, manager, discovered the break-in about 8:30 o'clock. The office was closed at 6 o'clock.

Lieutenant Davis investigated and found that the intruders had jimmied a side window after making their way into the grounds by by forcing a gate. Nothing was taken and the safe, which had been left open, was not damaged. The two other attempts to enter the office were made sometime Wednesday or Thursday, Lieutenant Davis declared.

legislation and treaties regulating and prohibiting immigration and citizenship of orientals in the United States. These culminated in the complete exclusion under the immigration act of 1924, as well as disbarment from privileges such as land-owning in California.

Japan's Progress Remarkable.

The oriental nation which has constituted the greatest problem, said Mr. Evans, has been the Japanese. He characterized this people as the most remarkable of any in the world in point of progress, showing the rapidity with which Japan has in little over half a century risen from obscurity to the position of a real world power.

Mr. Evans pointed out that the number of Japanese in the United States has increased from about 2,000 in 1890 to about 150,000. These, because of their low standards of living, extraordinary thrift, and willingness to work any number of hours per day, afford economic competition to the native whites which the later cannot meet. Before the most stringent of the California laws was passed, the truck-farming industry in that state was practically monoplized by Japanese, and in other fields they were rapidly displacing white labor, according to Mr. Evans.

The Chinese, on the other hand, were not classed in the same category. According to Mr. Evans, the Chinese population in the United States has decreased from 107,000 in 1890 to about 50,000. In view of prohibited immigration and the excessive death rate over the birth rate of the Chinese in this country, their number will probably never constitute a serious problem, he said.

Opposes Interference.

Declaring that relatively little protection is afforded Americans living in China by the United States government, Mr. Evans said that the disinclination to interfere was justifiable in view of the fact that the United States had no imperial prestige to maintain as does England because of her dependence upon foreign trade. He prophesied that the relations between the United States and China would always be friendly because of America's leadership in restoring China's sovereignty in the matter of withdrawing extra-territorial rights and armies.

Missionaries are the greatest menace to Chinese friendship, according to Mr. Evans. Resentment over the implied superiority of missionaries and over the real estate which missionaries acquire for their work constantly threatens trouble. Evans admitted, however, that missionaries had done considerable good through the establishment of schools and in aiding the people in other ways. Education, he said, will remove the danger arising from this source.

Girl Sues Doctor After Her Nose Is Remodel

CHICAGO Nov. 30—(INS)—Dr. Henry J. Schireson, self-styled plastic surgeon, who has faced more suits than a busy tailor, today found himself defendant in another one—this time for $25,000, filed by Miss Yvonne Harmon of Madison, Wis.

The young woman claimed in her suit that she applied to Dr. Schireson to remodel her nose and that the physician injected "plastine" in her face which raised large lumps upon her forehead.

Her nose was not improved, she said.

May Become Premier

Arabella Susan Lawrence, appointed chairman of the executive committee of the British labor party, may become the first woman prime minister. At least that's a remote possibility, as she stands in line for the position, and who can tell what the years will bring.

NEW COLD WAVE IS SWEEPING ON WEST NEBRASKA

Rising Temperature In Wake of Storm Over Rest of Midwest.

Death List Totals 21; Lake Ships Held Up; Many Fires Occur.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Close behind the cold wave which broke November temperature records throughout the middlewest, another blizzard was booming southward out of Saskatchewan tonight.

According to the United States weather bureau, the new wave will break over the Dakotas and in western portions of Nebraska and Kansas by Sunday and leave a new trail of zero temperatures. The storm which paralyzed the west yesterday was sweeping into the St. Lawrence valley today with temperatures rising in its wake. Chicago, which shivered in zero weather this morning, was promised a rise to 14 degrees above on Sunday.

The few days of warm weather will give residents and transportation companies a chance to repair the damage of the last forty-eight hours. Fires originating from overheated furnaces kept firemen busy. Indianapolis reported forty-seven within the last twenty-four hours. Chicago and Cleveland also had unusually large numbers of alarms.

Lake Traffic Paralyzed.

Lake shippers stand to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars if they do not get their vessels into the lower lakes before the next blizzard. The "gambling season" for shippers begins at midnight tonight when regular insurance on lake shipping cargoes expires.

Authorities still were checking the death list today. At last reports it stood at eleven in the United States and at least ten more in Canada. Most of those frozen were fishermen, trappers or vagrants.

Suffering was intense in the slum districts of cities. In Chicago police stations provided shelter for hundreds of homeless who usually prefer to "batter back doors" rather than accept municipal aid. The biting northwest wind was too much for their courage and the city's lodging house was crowded with 600 men.

Cheap Meals in Demand.

In other cities the same conditions prevailed. Groups of scantily clad men shivered on furnace ventilator gratings and in front of employment bureaus in New York's bowery, while some restaurants sold more cheap meals at 5 cents each than ever before.

Snow drifts impeded rail traffic in some parts of the country. A greater part of Colorado was blanketed under one to five inches, while Cleveland, O., and Cheyenne, Wyo., reported heavy falls. The drifts may be augmented throughout the upper Mississippi valley when the thermometers begin to rise tonight, according to the weather bureau. A few of the November cold records broken were:

Chicago, zero; a low mark for fifty-four years; Terre Haute, Ind., zero, lowest in sixty years; Harrisburg, Ill., three below, an all-time mark, and Mexico, Mo., and Cleveland, O., one above, lowest in more than a decade.

Ten Dead in Canada.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 30—(U. P.)—Arctic weather that has taken ten lives in the Canadian northwest this week hung over Winnipeg and Manitoba province today with temperatures of from 16 to 18 degrees below zero.

The official recording here was 16 below, while Minnesota had 18 below. Rising temperatures were predicted for Sunday.

Storm Strikes In East.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Long delayed winter had penetrated through the east today, and although the ground still was bare of snow thermometers registered subfreezing temperatures and established a new low mark for the season. New York's minimum was 11 above zero, only 4 degrees above the lowest on record for the date. It was a drop of more than 10 points since yesterday.

One death was attributed to the cold here. Mrs. Gladys Todd, 53, fainted in the back yard of her Staten Island home and froze before she was found, two or three hours later. Several subway delays were caused by cold weather.

Pays Dime; Ends Life

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—A well dressed unidentified man walked into a shooting gallery here this afternoon, handed the attendant a dime, seized a revolver and shot himself. He died instantly.

YOUTH'S DEATH STILL UNSOLVED

Physicians Find Poison In Stomach Pajama Clad Student.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The mystery of how Paul Ott, 19-year-old Baltimore student at Carnegie Institute of Technology, met his death in the bitter cold winds that swept the campus early today, remained unsolved tonight after homicide detectives spent a tedious day in checking and in rechecking a few meager clues.

Evidence of a slaying or suicide was revealed in a postmortem examination of the student's body. City physicians said that poison had been found in Ott's stomach, but Dr. J. W. McMeans, who performed the postmortem, was unable to determine its nature. Chemists were to make an analysis.

No important clues were found in the youth's room at Welch hall, a dormitory. All that police knew was that Ott's body was found lying face downward on the steps leading into Welch hall. He was clad only in pajamas in spite of the near zero weather.

Police were told by a student who entered the dormitory at 2:45 a. m., that Ott's body was not at the entrance at that time. Fifteen minutes later Matthew Fairchild, 19, of Monterey, Mexico, visiting another student, found Ott sprawled over the steps.

Fairchild summoned his friend and they carried Ott's still warm body indoors. A neighborhood physician was summoned and pronounced the youth dead.

FLEAGLE TRIES TO BRIBE JAILER

Lamar Robber Offers Chef $10,000 For Aid to Escape.

DENVER Colo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Denver police today made public details of an attempt by Ralph Fleagle, Lamar bank bandit, to escape from jail by a $10,000 attempted bribe.

The honesty of Orville Newman, a jail chef, who once was a prisoner in the same jail, prevented development of Fleagle's plans. Newman turned over to Warden Thomas C. Lennan notes that Fleagle left for him in dishes and the warden carried on a correspondence with Fleagle who thought he was writing to Newman.

Fleagle was hurried out of the Denver jail yesterday after the plot was unfolded. Sheriff Alderman took Fleagle to Lamar and placed him in jail there.

In his notes, Fleagle proposed to pay $10,000 to guards if they would arrange to permit him to escape from the jail at night, provide him with a hiding place for a few days and an automobile to transport him after the escape "blew over."

A jury already has decreed that Fleagle shall hang for the murder of A. N. Parrish, president of the bank. His arguments for new trial will be heard in Lamar December 10.

TEXAS POLITICS WILL BE AIRED

Creager, G. O. P. Chief, Ready for Libel Trial Against Collier's.

Case is Outgrowth of Patronage Probe By Senate Committee.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Modern politics as practised in the southernmost section of the United States may be dissected and analyzed beginning here next Monday in a court trial that involves $1,000,000 and several reputations.

Whether the practical politician in this instance has been innocent and virtuous, or the subject of selfish motives is the question at issue in two suits for $500,000 each which R. B. Creager of Brownsville, nationally prominent republican and national committeeman of Texas, has filed against P. F. Collier and Son, publishers of Collier's Weekly, and A. P. Collier and son, a distributing company. Creager's suits are for libel. He charges that two articles in Collier's injured his reputation.

The suits are to be tried in Federal court, but Federal Judge Hutcheson has disqualified himself for the main hearing, explaining he has great confidence in Creager's integrity. As his successor has not been named, only preliminary motions are expected Monday, when a date may be set for the main hearing.

Charged Wholesale Patronage.

The petition of the plaintiff related Collier's article, "Jobs for Jack," by Owen P. White, falsely charged wholesale dealing in federal appointments, and that "High Handed and Hell Bent," by the same author, alleging dishonorable practices in Hidalgo county, "did defame and injure" Creager's reputation.

"Jobs for Jack" was published during the time that the Brookhart senate patronage committee was inquiring into conditions in the south. The hearings on the libel suits are expected to deal with many of the charges made by Senator Brookhart and others.

Collier's attorneys have filed motions to quash service against men in Dallas and Houston, saying they are not agents for the company.

Depositions have been taken by Creager from a dozen prominent Texas democrats, testifying to his good reputation. It is planned to use these statements at the hearings.

In the article, "Jobs for Jack," the plaintiff's petition showed it was charged that the "pay as you earn plan has been extended to federal office seekers in the south," and that congressional investigators are studying in an effort to locate and punish the job merchants.

(The Brookhart patronage investigating committee is subject to call, and may reopen the probe at any time.)

Creager's Complaints.

Creager's petition asserted among other things:

In the article, "Jobs for Jack," Creager was called the "republican referee," and that it charged in Texas that patronage is dispensed through "Craeger's republican organization."

In the article, "High Handed and Hell Bent," "a partnership of Baker, (Sheriff A. Y. Baker of Hidalgo county,) Creager and company," was charged falsely, the plaintiff said.

"An advanced course is vote switching, jail dodging, plain and fancy grafting" was allegedly conducted in Hidalgo county, in the Rio Grande valley, the article set forth, according to the plaintiff. Hidalgo adjoins Cameron county, of which Brownsville, Creager's home, is the county seat.

The plaintiff said the article falsely charged that "in Hidalgo county, graft and grapefruit have been brought to their very highest and juiciest state of perfection. The Texas Tammany boys not only tell the taxpayers to go to hell, but provide a handy, heavily bonded highway and an expressive toll that lands them at the very door of the place."

Doane College Notes

Regular class work at Doane closed Wednesday afternoon for the short Thanksgiving recess. Regular work will be resumed Monday morning.

Miss Alice Anderson, '23, who has been taking a course in nurse's training at the General hospital of Lincoln is now herself a patient in the hospital recovering from an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Doane college is to be host to the Nebraska College Forensic association for its annual state oratorical contest which will be held in Lee Memorial chapel Friday evening, Dec. 13. Doane's orator is Kenneth W. Heyhoe, '31 of Crete.

A group of Doane people including Mr. Byler, Mr. Burlingame and Mr. and Mrs. Hunt attended the concert recital given at Omaha Wednesday evening, Nov. 27, by Horowitz, a noted pianist.

PLAN A LARGE LOAN.

MADRID, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Continuing the movement to establish Spanish currency on a sound basis, the banks have notified the government they are contemplating flotation of an internal loan of 450,000,000 pesetas.

Grateful

Mrs. Thomas Spence of Milwaukee, first national president of the American war Mothers (above), presented Frank Hering of South Bend, Ind., editor of the Eagles magazine (below), a Gold Mother's thanks for Mr. Hering's original sponsorship of Mother's day, now a nationally recognized event.

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt will conduct the juvenile program at 2:45 o'clock.

Assessor Still Checking.—Checking of automobiles which have not been recorded for assessment is still going on, O. C. Bell, county assessor, announced Saturday. He estimates that more than 2,000 automobile owners failed to record their cars for assessment. Half of the alphabet has been completed with the work moving steadily forward. A careful but not harsh investigation will continue, according to the assessor, to round up for assessment machines not previously noted.

To Settle Road Case — District Judge Chappell expects to have a decision ready during the coming week on the $96,000 road case brought against the state by Peterson, Shirley & Guntner. The case was heard early in the fall, requiring more than two weeks to take testimony. Following arguments of opposing counsel, written briefs were filed over a period of nearly six weeks. With the November jury dismissed, Judge Chappell expects to complete examination of the case and have a verdict before the end of the week.

Demurs to Bank Action.—Guy O. Seaton filed a demurrer in District court Saturday to a suit brought against himself and E. S. Rasmussen, by Van E. Peterson, as receiver of the Republican Valley bank at Riverton, Neb. Peterson's suit was an attempt to force the two men to pay sums equal to the amount of stock they owned in the Riverton bank at the time it went into the receiver's hands. Peterson charged that Seaton had $5,000 and Rasmussen $2,500 in stock at that time and that they had not paid equivalent amounts as required by law.

Case Under Advisement. — After hearing testimony and arguments Saturday in an automobile damage suit appealed from Municipal court, District Judge Shepherd took the case under advisement. Phillip T. Smith was suing Harry Williams and William Gruenig, doing business as the Harry Williams Cadillac Co., and H. J. Phillips for $280 for alleged damages to his car and $10 a day alleged damages while it was in the garage for repairs as the result of an accident June 26, 1928, at Thirty-fifth and D streets. He was given an award of $204.30 in Municipal court but the defendants appealed.

Home Economics News Letter.—News of women's project clubs, recipes and gift suggestions for children are included in the monthly home economics news letter prepared by Mrs. W. Blanche Hill, county extension agent. The Rainbow Art club near Bennet has organized a harmonica band. Extra time for practice is given after the project meetings every two weeks. The Cheney Community club has been divided into two groups for an attendance competition. The result was that 23 out of the 28 members were at the November meeting, despite bad roads, Mrs. Hill reports.

TAX REFUND ON CATTLE SMALL

Heaviest Expense to the County Will Be In Changing Records.

Computation of tax refunds because of the Supreme court's reversal of the 10 per cent increase in tax on cattle allowed by the state board of equalization has been completed, O. C. Bell, county assessor, announced Saturday afternoon.

The chief loss to the county as the result of the court's decision, according to Mr. Bell, does not rest in the amount of the refunds. Instead it will lie in the expense of changing valuations, tax lists, and machinery for paying the rebate to those who had paid the tax before the high court's action.

Figures on rebates on taxes already paid for half the county showed that only $43.24 would have to be paid back by the county. As this is distributed among eighty-six cattle owners, it is believed that only a small proportion of the excess tax will ever be claimed.

The amounts which could be claimed in the half of the county computed Saturday by Assessor Bell range from 10 cents to $7.90 The latter is by far the highest figure, the next being $2.33. The $7.90 rebate is in favor of George Bainbridge, 89-year-old Lancaster county pioneer.

Possible rebates will total less than $100, it is estimated, on the basis of the figures for half the county. The county, of course, will also lose some additional tax from those whose assessments were changed after the Supreme court action but who had not paid their tax.

Candy Merchant No Sugar Daddy

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—"I may be in the candy business, but I'm no sugar daddy," said William N. Telgman, wealthy candy manufacturer, when informed today that Patricia Moore of the "Follow Thru" company had sued him for $100,000 for breach of promise.

"Just a Broadway shakedown," said Telgman.

Miss Moore, who is Genevieve O'Connor, 21, and blonde, stated in the suit she had met the candy merchant in a New York night club in Jnue, 1928, and that four months later he proposed to her. When she learned he was married, the suit says, Telgman declared he would divorce his wife and marry her. He failed to carry out his promise, Miss Moore said, and last January she returned gifts he had given her.

"I'm in the right. All my life I have worked hard. This is just a shakedown," said Telgman.

About People

Robert R. Moody, county attorney at West Point, was a visitor at the county court house Saturday, where he called upon Max G. Towle, Lancaster county attorney, and his deputy, Farley Young.

Y. M. C. A. Y's Men's gospel team will hold a meeting and program at Raymond Sunday evening, December 1, at 7:45 o'clock. The subject for discussion is "The Nineteenth Centenary of Christian Missionary and What it Means." The meeting will be directed by Philip Scott. Elmer Curtis, Leslie Cadwallader, Charles Paine, and L. J. Davis will assist.

The Y's Men's quartet composed of Wendell Hughes, first tenor; Carl Strumer, second tenor; O. H. Fee, baritone; H. Gammill, bass, will sing. Miss Helen Aura will accompany them at the piano.

Music and expression pupils of the Sisters of St. Dominic, Havelock, were entertained at a taffy pull Friday afternoon, November 22, in honor of the patrons of the patroness of music, Saint Cecelia, whose feast day was celebrated. After a short program by the pupils, games were played. Lorene Fogarty and Max Hulbert won first prizes.

SUIT FOR STOCK IS UP ON APPEAL

Former Employe Claims Fairmont Creamery Owes Him $100,000.

Reed Claims Based On Purported Agreement Made In 1893.

A suit involving the claim of a former employe of the Fairmont Creamery Co. to $100,000 of the capital stock of that corporation, under an agreement made with its superintendent nearly 37 years ago, is to come before the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Louis, Monday. Some time ago the proceeding was dismissed by Federal Judge Woodrough at Omaha, and it is now pending on appeal from his decision in favor of the company.

George L. Reed of Denver is the plaintiff in the case. He alleges that in 1893, while he was employed in the Crete plant of the Fairmont Creamery Co., he and four other employes there were promised by the superintendent, E. F. Howe, that if they would remain with the company five years it would give each $1,000 of its stock. This was to be in lieu of increases in their salaries which the men were asking.

Letter Introduced.

A letter written by Howe at Fairmont on February 4, 1893, to C. C. Dempsey, one of the five employes at Crete, was introduced in the trial of the case. It contained this paragraph:

"The proposition is that we put $5,000 of the capital stock, which is $100,000 in the safe at the office —$1,000 each for you, Reed Green, Stuart, and Hapgood—and as soon as it earns dividends and pays for itself it is turned over to you. The earnings ought to be 20 per cent a year, at which rate the stock would pay for itself in five years, or in other words it is $200 a year increase in your salary, in the shape of stock that in all probability will earn that much more thereafter and will be worth more than $1,000 at the end of the five years, while we get the energy and care you each can add to the business and the surety that you will stay with us."

Reed claims he stayed with the company more than five years, but never received his $1,000 of stock; and that Dempsey also remained the full period and longer, but he likewise failed to get his quota.

Demand Made by Dempsey.

In 1911 a formal demand was made by Dempsey for the stock he claimed was due him in 1898, and the accretions thereon from subsequent stock dividends. He was unable at that time to find the letter from Howe, and the company declined to recognize an oral contract.

Dempsey died in 1923, having never succeeded in locating the letter. Some years afterward, however, his widow came across it in going through the contents of an old trunk. She communicated with Reed and he filed suit in his own behalf, introducing the letter as evidence. Mrs. Dempsey will press a similar claim against the company if Reed should win.

Claim Case Outlawed.

In the trial before Judge Woodrough, the case hinged largely upon whether the statute of limitations—four years under the laws of Nebraska—had run against the claim. A rule of equity is that this statute cannot be invoked as against a specific trust. Reed's contention was that the creamery company has held the stock and its accumulations as trustee for himself and his fellow employes, ever since the agreement was made in 1893.

Opposing that theory, the company maintained that when it refused Dempsey's demand for a settlement in 1911 its action was equivalent to a disavowal and repudiation of the trust, and that the statute of limitations began to run from that time. Since no suit was filed within four years, the claimants are without recourse now, it insisted.

The latter view was upheld by Federal Judge Woodrough, who sustained the company's motion to dismiss the suit.

Company's Growth Rapid.

The Fairmont Creamery Co., has grown since 1893 from a comparatively small corporation operating within a local area to one which covers a number of states and whose products annually run into hundreds of millions of dollars. Its $100,000 of capital stock in the '90's has increased to $10,000,000.

If the former Crete employes, or their heirs, should be able to prove ownership of the original $1,000 shares that were supposed to have been "put into the safe for you, Reed, Green, Stuart, and Hapgood," each of those shares would today be worth $100,000 of the present stock, figuring the same ratio of increase as the total amount.

Attorney Leonard A. Flansburg of Lincoln will represent the Fairmont Creamery Co. in the St. Louis court of appeals. Several Omaha lawyers are in the case for the claimants.

EX-OFFICIALS OF BORGER HELD

Nine Citizens of Texas Town Arrested On Liquor Charges.

STINNETT, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Former Mayor Glenn A. Pace of Borger, oil boom town shorn of bright lights after a siege of martial law, three former peace officers and five Borger citizens were held in the county jail here tonight on federal charges of conspiracy to violate liquor laws. The group was arrested on charges issued in Amarillo.

The former peace officers arrested were Jim Crane and Cal Beard, deposed deputy sheriffs, and C. A. Mitchell, ex-constable. The mayor and officers were ousted after the recent "clean-up" of Borger in the wake of the assassination of John A. Holes, United States district attorney.

The Borger citizens arrested were Jack Payne, E. L. Lantron, H. O. Taylor, Louis Crim and Louis Wietzman. Lantron, Taylor and Crim are now under indictment in District court here for violations of the Texas liquor laws.

Although Sam Jones, former Borger constable charged in the death of Holmes, had bond approved he is still being held on federal warrants on the same charge as the others.

EIELSON SEARCH TO START SOON

Weather Hinders Aerial Hunt for Flier in Siberian Wastes.

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.) Weather permitting, an aerial hunt for Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, missing since Nov. 9 in the Siberian wastes, will get under way tomorrow.

Joe Crosson, well known Alaskan flier, arrived here today from Fairbanks in his Waco plane enroute to Teller to join Frank Dorbandt, who has been weatherbound.

Strong northeast winds and poor visibility still prevail on the route from Teller to North Cape, where the fur trading ship Nanuk, to whose rescue Eielson was flying, is icebound.

Russian Flier Quits.

A radio message today from Captain Dublitsky of the Russian icebreaker at Emil Harbor, Siberia, announced that owing to the lateness of the season he is returning at once to Vladivostok and will be unable to participate further in the search for Eielson. One Russian plane on a trial flight developed engine trouble and it was decided to abandon flights to North Cape.

A searching party with dog teams from the Nanuk has returned to the ship after covering a range of fifty miles. They reported no trace of Eielson or his plane.

A Russian trapper reported seeing Eielson seventy miles east of North Cape on the day he left Teller. The trapper said the plane was heading towards shore in a northwest direction.

Obituary

AMENZO SETH VEDDER.

Amenzo Seth Vedder was born December 7, 1859 in Little Falls, Ia. He was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Vedder who preceded him in death. On January 22, 1890 he was married to Berniece C. Stricker of Bennet. She died January 8, 1920.

Mr. Vedder was a well-known veterinarian in Lancaster county, having followed this vocation for many years. He had served as mayor of Bennet for several years. He was also one of the oldest members of the Knights of Pythias lodge in Hickman.

He suffered a stroke of paralysis a year ago and this, combined with another illness, caused his death at the Bryan Memorial hospital, November 20, 1929.

He leaves three children, H. D. Vedder of Hickman, Darrel L. Vedder of Walton and Mrs. Alice E. Kenney of Milford and eight grandchildren. He was 70 years, 10 months and 20 days old at the time of his death.

COMPENSATION CASE TO COURT

Earl Marler Appeals From Decision of the State Bureau.

Orders Issued in Number of Cases Involving Lincoln Men.

When doctors disagree as they did in the compensation case of Earl Marler of Lincoln vs. Grainger Bros., it takes the lawyers to decide; so the question whether Marler is suffering from hernia as the result of an accident has been taken to the District court of Lancaster county.

In September a year ago he claimed to have injured the muscles and ligaments of his groin, and several doctors gave affidavits to the effect that he had sustained a rupture. Compensation was paid him for 8½ weeks, but further payments were refused. When the matter came before the state compensation bureau recently it was referred to the new medical advisory board, comprising several Lincoln physicians, who made two clinical examinations and declared emphatically that no such injury existed. Accordingly, the claim was turned down, whereupon Marler appealed to the District court.

Other Lincoln Cases.

In another Lincoln case, where Neal Wash, a minor, employed as an elevator operator at the Lindell hotel, had his hand cut on a broken window pane, a bill of $12 presented by the doctor who treated him was cut to $3.50. The youth was not disabled by the accident and kept on working.

Orders have also been issued in these cases from Lincoln:

Frank Smith vs. George Strasheim (Strasheim Coal Co.); injury due to falling on icy pavement while unloading coal; temporary compensation amounting to $460 heretofore paid; additional allowance of $1,081, at the rate of $4 per week, for 25 per cent permanent disability to back.

Charle H. Pate vs. W. J. Assenmacher Co.; injured by nail piercing foot while working on state fair grandstand; $120 already paid as compensation; two weeks' additional allowance, at $15 per week, ordered.

Claim Is Denied.

Henry Kolb vs. W. J. Assemacher Co. and surety; back injury suffered in accident last April and $105 compensation paid therefor; request for additional compensation on account of permanent partial disability denied, subject to renewal of application should it develop in future. Case appealed.

Archie M. Crone vs. Nebraska Lumber & Millwork Co. and surety; injury received in a fall a year ago when a railing in the lumber yard gave way; disability of left knee now claimed as an after-effect of the accident; compensation allowed at $14.40 per week from September 7, last; surgical treatment ordered.

George Kubetzki vs. A. N. Robertson; claim dismissed on finding that disability is due to disease and not to an accident.

TRAIN SCHEDULE ISSUE IN SUIT

Plaintiff In Action For Damages Wants Railway to Show Records.

Petition of Magnus Martinson to require the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co. to produce its schedule of trains at the time of an alleged accident to Martinson was taken under advisement by District Judge Chappell Saturday after hearing the arguments of opposing counsel.

The issue was submitted on the pleadings and statement of counsel. The parties were given a week in which to file written briefs on the matter.

Martinson is asking damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered in a fall from an engine while in the railroad's employ. He is asking damages under a statute which requires proof tha tthe injury happened in employment relative to a train engaged in inter-state commerce.

He is unable to remember the number of the engine from which he fell. His counsel, W. B. Comstock, asked for production of the schedules to assist in establishing his claim that he fell from an engine running from Missouri Valley to Omaha. Defense counsel offered to permit him to take depositions.

Indiana colleges wind up their football schedules early to get ready for basketball, the big sport in that state.

National Magazines Give Space to Symphony Orchestra and Capital

Articles in three national magazines concerning the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra have appeared recently, commenting favorably upon the financial condition of the orchestra. The November 18 issue of Time devotes three inches of space to the state capitol and the symphony orchestra.

Musical Digest, a recognized authority on all things musical, congratulated Lincoln for maintaining "such a splendid orchestra." In Musical America for October 25 is found the headline "Lincoln, Nebraska, Runs Orchestra At a Profit." A quotation from the article follows:

Starts Fourth Series.

"The Lincoln Symphony orchestra, starting its fourth season, takes pride in the fact that among orchestras, it is distinctive in its business organization. Here is an organization of forty-five men giving four concerts with nine rehearsals each for the sum of $6,500. Each musician is paid the union scale, and the conductor is a graduate of the Vienna Conservatory and former first oboe player of the Minneapolis Symphony.

"In organization, it is a municipal orchestra defined by city ordinance, but not supported by city funds. It is sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce, a board of directors and a symphony association of several hundred members, all of whom are boosters for the orchestra. The symphony association consists of members who contribute $25 a year, and half of the orchestra players are such patrons and guarantors to the extent of $25. There is no deficit; there never was one, and this past year the season ended with a $500 profit.

All Lincoln Musicians.

"Members of the orchestra are all local musicians, theater players and music teachers. They play for the love of it, and as rehearsals and concerts are on Sunday it does not interfere with their regular activities. The soloists are local musicians. In fact every point is considered that will make the orchestra a self-supporting organization. It is improving rapidly as an artistic body, and this city believes it can tell the world haw to manage a symphony orchestra that is not costly and which does not have deficits for a few individuals to make up. It may some day be known as the Lincoln method."

In commenting upon the article appearing in Time, Walter S. Whitten, secretary of the chamber of comemrce said, "When Time, with a million and a quarter circulation and a class of readers that includes both the commercial and the cultural worlds, remarks on the virtues of such achievements as are represented by the capitol and the orchestra, we may feel that we are building, and building well. The capitol, representative of Nebraska as a whole, is a fit symbol for the state that ranks second in low illiteracy. The Lincoln Symphony orchestra, with a financial organization that marks a milestone in musical circles, is a worthy subject for national publicity."

FIVE HELD FOR TORCH MURDER

Ignorant Hill Folk to Be Called as Witnesses to Solve Crime.

War Veteran Is Burned Alive by Alleged Clan in Arkansas Ozarks.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Women who can't count the number of their own children and others who can't reckon time of day will be called to solve the Ozark country's most atrocious crime—the burning alive of Connie Franklin, war veteran.

This illiteracy, coupled with alleged clan rule which has gripped the cabin homes of St. James, Ark., will, according to copyrighted reports of the Kansas City Journal-Post, hinder the prosecution of five men held for Franklin's flaming death in the hills last March.

Although Arkansas state officials deny knowledge of such conditions, The Journal-Post investigator sent into the hill country of northern Arkansas reported "clan rule" and the belief that Franklin, a newcomer, "was too smart," resulted in his murder.

Alleged Clan Leader Held.

The men held, including Alec Fulk, alleged leader of the Cabin and Cagin creek gangs supposed to have inflicted a life of terrorism upon the ignorant folk of the hills, will be tried in Mountain View, Ark., December 16.

According to the investigator, threats of clan violence have been made against Sheriff Sam Johnson, who, aided by the gossiping tongue of Bertha Burns, herself a victim of the floggers, traced Franklin's disappearance to a pile of charred bones in a thicket at the end of a deer trail.

Mrs. Burns, flogged by the raiders and warned to be silent when they discovered she had heard the screams of Franklin, began a campaign of gossip about "that awful happening last March," which led the sheriff to the scene.

Franklin was killed as he started with Tiller Ruminer, 16, his fiance, to be wed by the justice of the peace.

Sheriff Threatened.

The sheriff fears, according to the article, that the silence which clothed the crime for months may be imposed by other alleged clan leaders. Johnson has been threatened to quit "monkeying" in these parts.

He is dubious of the effectiveness of the hill folk as witnesses when the trials are called.

These people, living from generation to generation in wooded glens untouched by railroads and roads, compute time by "sun-up and sun-down." It was "right smart after sun-down" that "Uncle Lou" Saunchisee, a hermit, revealed he witnessed the band's mutilation of Franklin.

Tiller, the girl and main witness, has never been to school and in her hill country life had never known of Thanksgiving day.

Her mother, Mrs. Charles Rumlner, cannot count her own children. "Thar's Floyd and Hoyd and Lloyd," she began, while visitors counted out seven as they stepped up. The mother is now 30.

SHIP EXPLOSION KILLS SCIENTIST

Captain Ault Loses Life Aboard the Carnegie at Samoa Island.

Craft on 4-Year Cruise of Oceanography; Blast is Mystery.

APIA, Samoa Island, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—This little settlement, metropolis of the British Samoas, tonight joined in mourning the death of Capt. James Percy Ault.

Captain Ault was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when his vessel, the scientific yacht Carnegie, exploded in the harbor.

Scientists aboard the yacht tried to smother out the flames. The fire gained too much headway and they were forced to flee for their lives.

None of the scientists, men renowned throughout the world for their discoveries, could explain the cause of the explosion. Neither could members of the crew.

Tony Olson, a cabin boy, was trapped by flames aboard the burning vessel. Other members of the crew were unable to reach him.

Funeral services for the captain and the cabin boy were held at 11 a. m., today.

Blast Comes Suddenly.

The blast came with terrific suddenness. Hundreds of natives gathered in shore to watch the strange white vessel, saw a sheet of flames shoot skyward.

Then came a tremendous explosion, followed by dense clouds of black smoke. Members of the crew and the scientific men aboard could be seen swarming over the decks.

Small boats put out from shore, but when they neared the Carnegie they were warned back, for those aboard feared there might be another blast.

Captain Ault, unconscious, was lowered to one of the vessel's small boats, rowed ashore and taken to the settlement hospital. There he died.

Scientific data obtained in practically all parts of the world, as well as instruments valued at thousands of dollars, were lost. It was a sad group of scientists here tonight. They had lost one of their own. Captain Ault was noted for his scientific studies and endeavor.

On Four-Year Cruise.

The Carnegie was engaged in a four-year cruise around the world, gathering information in oceanography and other scientific subjects.

Leaving Washington, D. C., May 1, 1928, the vessel cruised in the north Atlantic until October. Later the vessel came to Pacific waters.

Calls were made at Papeete, Pago, and Hawaii. Then the Carnegie came into San Francisco bay last June. In September the ship sailed for Hawaii and then proceeded to Samoa.

Among the scientists aboard when the explosion occurred were: Wilfred C. Parkinson, senior scientific officer; Oscar W. Torreson, navigator; F. M. Soule, electrician observer; H. R. Selwell, chemist and biologist; J. H. Saul, surgeon; W. E. Scott, observer, and Lawrence A. Jones, radio operator and observer.

Four members of the crew were injured, but none so serious that they were expected to die. Eric Stenstrom was the most seriously hurt.

Mrs. Ault Grief Stricken.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Mrs. Mamie Alice Ault, wife of Capt. James Percy Ault, who died of injuries received when the scientific yacht Carnegie exploded in the harbor of Apia, was grief stricken at the home of her brother-in-law here tonight.

COUNTY EMPLOYES ERECTING 75,000 FEET SNOW FENCE

Erection of 75,000 feet of snow fence on county roads, more than three times as much as was put last year, probably will be completed within a week, County Engineer Edgren announced Saturday.

County employes have been at work throughout the fall during times when other road work could not be carried on, getting the snow fences up. Since the recent cold weather, work has been carried on more rapidly as the ground is too hard for other road improvement.

Approximately 25,000 feet of snow fence was erected for the winter of 1928. The amount of increase this year is still very inadequate according to both Arthur Edgren, county engineer, and J. R. Bennett, chairman of the board of county commissioners. It is all that the county could afford, however, Mr. Bennett stated Saturday.

Commenting on the county's needs, Commissioner Bennett said Saturday that five times as much fence could be used if the county could afford it. Engineer Edgren commented that fifty times as much could really be used.

Sun Spots Increase

PARIS, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Considerable interest was expressed by astronomers today in an exceptional increase during the last ten days in the umber of sun spots, reported by the Talence observatory near Bordeaux. Many of the spots are visible with the naked eye. Meteorological officials say they presage strong atmospheric disturbances and magnetic storms.

CHESTS REPORT GIVING AS USUAL

Officials Feel Returns Indicate Basic Soundness of U. S.

"Giving as usual" continues to be the rule as additional reports are received from community chests throughout the country which have held campaigns this fall in face of disturbed financial conditions.

Two weeks ago J. H. Agee, president of the Lincoln chest, received a report from the National Association of Community Chests and Councils in New York revealing that sixteen chests which had held campaigns up until that time had almost uniformly surpassed their totals of last year. This week Mr. Agee received a supplementary report from the same source embodying reports from fifty-two chests in all parts of this country. Analysis of these reports reveals that the chests have raised a considerably larger aggregate total than they had last year. The total for these fifty-two campaigns to date for this year is $16,667,817 as against $16,312,011 for last year, making an increase of $355,806.

Officials of the national association express themselves as being highly pleased with the situation, feeling that the returns to date are indicative of the basic soundness of the country to which President Hoover has made reference, according to Mr. Agee. These figures also give assurance, in the opinion of these officials, that any retrenchment which the people generally might be exercising is not being made at the expense of essential philanthropics.

The analysis of the campaigns further reveals that, of the fifty-two from which reports have been received, thirty-five have already exceeded their totals of last year, fifteen are within easy reach of last year's results, and only two are definitely below. From these two, Atlanta and Detroit, special messages have been received assuring the association that supplementary campaigns are now in progress which are certain within two months at the most to bring in at least the equal of last year's totals.

Among the other facts revealed are that no city having a community chest has found it necessary to postpone its campaign and in no instance has a chest committee despaired of reaching the amounts set up as goals. Only one of the cities studied has decreased the amount to be asked. In Washington, D. C., where the chest in its first year of existence last year raised $1,487,000, the budget committee this year has fixed $1,700,000 as the goal for the campaign which is to be launched in January. In Minneapolis, where the intensive period of the campaign occurred during the height of the stock market break, $1,307,000 has been raised this year, as against $1,260,254 last year.

The returns from which the analysis was made, were as follows:

ITALY'S OLDEST WOMAN IS DEAD

ROME, Nov. 30—(I.N.S.)—Luigia Caselli, Italy's oldest woman, is dead at the age of 108. She lived under nine popes and saw five sovereigns. The old woman was remarkably able up to the last, and ould thread a needle without glasses. She boasted she never took medicine in her life.

JASPER ASKED TO TRY AGAIN.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Henri Jasper, who reently resigned as Belgian premier, has been asked by King Albert to try and reconstruct his government. The statesman has not given a definite reply.

All evidence stresses the fact that today's new Multi-Range Chryslers rule the road. By developing, with characteristic genius, many new advancements headed by the sensational Multi-Range four-speed transmission and gear shift—Chrysler engineering has lifted these latest cars to a new plane of performance.

The Multi-Range transmission introduces a new quiet acceleration gear that combines the best features of both the ordinary "second" and "high"—and achieves a new kind of swift, silent pick-up. It also makes possible faster car speeds at SLOWER engine speeds. The Multi-Range gear shift assures a non-clashing ease and quickness of gear-shifting such as never before has been attained. And a new principle of Down-Draft carburetion, based on aviation practice, adds marvelously to power, smoothness and economy.

New bodies of greater width, length and headroom combine the most fastidious luxury with smart distinction of design. Today, more than ever, the saying is true: "Chrysler ownership brings a pride all its own."

Elder's Long Sprint Gives Victory to Irish Over Army

Rocknemen Pushed Win From Cadets

Intercepted Pass On Ramblers' Goal Converted Into Only Touchdown of Evenly Contested Grid Game.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Notre Dame, the fighting Irish of Rockne, climbed upon the Mount Sinai of intercollegiate football this afternoon and looked down upon a world that was conquered.

Before 85,000 frigid human beings, it finished an all-conquering season by winning from the Army by a score of 7 to 0, the seven being the result of Jack Elder's 99-yard run on an intercepted pass and the nothing being the result of a determined die-hard defense that wouldn't yield an inch at various times when the Army was only a matter of yards away from a score.

Horsemen Well Hobbled.

For, truth to tell, this wasn't Rockne's 1929 "Horsemen" that had ridden so blithely over Indiana, Navy, Wisconsin, Georgia Tech, Carnegie Tech, Drake, Southern California and Northwestern in successive games. If they were horsemen at all, they were distinctly of the draught or Percheron variety. They could pull a load of short hauls, but seldom for a sustained distance and, with a single, game-saving exception, never for long gains.

The exception was furnished by Elder's run for almost the length of the field and even that play was initiated by the opposing team. It came on the end of a poorly thrown pass by Cagle, who stood on the 15-yard line and hurled the ball on a sharp diagonal to Carlmark. His aim was none too good and his trajectory was worse.

Up Bobs Elder.

The ball hung in the air for a dramatic moment while Carlmark waited on the goal line for it to fall into his arms. He still was waiting for it when, up from nowhere, like a bat out of Borneo, came Elder, the sprinter extraordinary.

He took the ball in full stride on the one-yard line, juggled it for a tense instant, righted himself and was off for the distant goal line and posterity.

Hardly a restraining hand was laid upon Elder's form as it flitted like a shadow up the sidelines. Twice he was threatened, but he outran his opponents. Once he was clutched by the shoulders, but this time he brushed aside Carver, the Army defense man, and went right on about his business. He wasn't even challenged in the last 50 yards.

Fate's Cruel Thrust.

This was the Army's nearest approach to a touchdown through a long afternoon of forced marches in that direction and it was fate that its nearest approach was to result only in Notre Dame's single winning effort of the game. For not once before this were the Irish able to go anywhere in particular with their attack and never afterward were they able to do so.

Truth to tell, they were generally outplayed. The second team backfield did march 34 yards in the first period, but when Carideo, Mullins, Elder and Brill went in, the marching stopped and pretty well stayed stopped. Carideo handled punts brilliantly and ran the team like the genius he is, but, except for short gains by Savoldi in the third period and a 11-yard dash by Elder

Manly Chair Vacant At Big Six Meeting

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 30—(UP)—"Big Six" conference officials, meeting next Friday in Kansas City to transact the routine business of the season, must select a new secretary.

It will be the first time in 25 years of Missouri Valley and "Big Six" history that the name of the late Prof. W. G. Manly of Missouri university has not been on the roll of officers as sceretary of the conference.

Professor Manly died here Thursday afternoon after a sudden heart attack.

Emil Beck has been re-elected golf professional at Eastridge club, according to announcement made Soturday. Prospects are bright for a busy golf year at the Eastridge club.

Sloan and Richards May Play On Coast

Clair Sloan, halfback, and Raymond Richards, tackle, are being given serious consideration for positions in the east-west game on the Pacific coast Christmas day, according to word received in Lincoln Saturday.

Contest rules arranged last season fix the Mississippi river as the dividing line for player selections, but it is understood the coach of the east team has asked the coast to waive this to permit "two Nebraskans to join the east squad."

"Y" BASKETBALL SEASON AT HAND

Church and Commercial Leagues to Organize This Week.

The basketball season will get under way at the Lincoln Y.M.C.A. with meetings of Sunday School and Commercial leagues managers scheduled for this week. The church league magnates will assemble at the "Y" Monday night to complete entry lists and make official drawings for opening games. The Commercial league managers will congregate at the "Y" Wednesday evening.

The Sunday School teams will be divided into three groups this winter. Players of any age are eligible to compete in the Class A league. Players of 18 years and under may compete in group B and players of 15 years and under may play in the Class C circuit.

Entries Close Monday.

Entry books will close Monday night on the Sunday league with play in the three circuits to open the week of Dec. 9.

Officers of the Sunday School league are Harry Reid, Grace M. E., chairman; J. H. Martin, College View Union, vice-chairman; O. B. Anderson, secretary.

The Commercial league (formerly the Industrial league) will open its season Tuesday, Dec. 10. The managers will arrange the schedule at the Wednesday meeting of the organization.

Post-Season Series.

According to the rules the top four teams will play a championship series at the close of the regular playing season—all games to count on the total percentage. The second four teams will play a division B championship series—all games to count on the total standing.

Entry books on the Commercial league close Wednesday, Dec. 4. Teams expected to enter include Piegly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply, State Oil Co., Continental National Bank, Lincoln National Bank, Lincoln Telephones, Continental Oil, Evans Laundry, Central Cafe, Martin Baking Co., Standard Auto Parts, John Hancock Life Insurance Co.

Ace Rated as Outstanding Middle.

Announcing its official list of ring champions, the National Boxing association declares middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight thrones vacant, but names Ace Hudkins, middle; Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavy, and Jack Sharkey, heavy, outstanding in their classes. Hudkins is named over Mickey Walker, middle title-holder, but permanently suspended by the association. Champions named are Frankie Genaro, flyweight; Panama Al Brown, bantamweight; Battling Battalino, featherweight; Tod Morgan, junior lightweight; Sammy Mandell, lightweight; Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight, and Jackie Fields, welterweight.

DEADLOCK DUEL ON TEXAS FIELD

T. C. U. Captures Title in 7-7 Grid Conflict At Fort Worth.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Texas Christian university won the championship of the Southwest football conference here today by holding Southern Methodist university to a 7 to 7 tie before 25,000 spectators.

The Christians were not defeated this season. The tie cost the Methodists the title.

Battling from end zone to end zone in the first two periods ,when spectators stood breathless hoping one or the other of Texas' prize elevens would unleash a scoring attack, the teams reached the half with a nothing to nothing tie.

Mustangs Score First.

Late in the third period, the Methodist Mustangs got up their scoring blood. Gilbert passed from his 42-yard line to Mason on the Christian 36-yard line whence he dashed across the T. C. U. goal line. Neely kicked goal for the extra point.

The Frogs of T. C. U. entered the final period with a brilliant passing and center-smashing attack which carried the ball, shoved further by Moleskins Put Away.

Football In Big Six.

No Husker Regrets.

That 1930 Outlook.

COLLEGE moleskins generally have been packed away for future service in the pigskin realm, but the interest probably will continue until after a few combats scheduled for the holidays season and the climactic New Year's day east vs. west classic at Pasadena, in the land of orange blossoms and realtors.

Followers of Cornhusker football, surveying and analyzing the season's performances by the Bible-men, have excellent license to rub hands and slap backs over a satisfactory campaign. The record discloses that the Huskers won four games, tied three and sustained a single reverse.

That record, of itself, might have a drab appearance, when compared with achievements of numerous former Nebraska teams, but when the scores are carefully scanned and the competition the Cornhuskers met all along the trail is taken into the reckoning, the Bible-coached squad's accomplishments stand forth to merit a full measure of praise.

RETENTION of the Big Six conference championship, a prize for which four worthy opponents were striving, is the high spot of the season. Cornhusker teams of a dozen or more years ago had the habit of rough-shodding conference opposition, but that sort of thing passed out with a general improvement in the coaching and quality of football in rival conference camps.

Missouri, for instance, is a notable example of the betterment that has been wrought. The Columbia Tigers were easy annual plucking for the Cornhuskers in the gridiron sport, but the installation of Gwin Henry as coach in 1923 brought a complete change at the Bengal in-

HUSKER OUTLOOK FOR 1930 SEASON

Material Apparently On Hand for Strong Team At Nebraska U.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Two Big Six conference football championships have been hung up on the walls of the University of Nebraska's trophy room, but the campaign of 1929 has passed into history and Cornhusker followers generally are asking: What about 1930?

The question is pertinent for numerous reasons, two of which are that Missouri and Kansas are reasonably sure to be in the field next September with gridiron aggregations of sufficient class to give the Huskers all sorts of worry.

Missouri, for instance, held Nebraska to a tie this fall and started a team against the Biblemen which had only three veterans in the line-up. The eight others were sophomores and juniors, meaning that the Tigers will have no less than eight veterans for first-string purposes in 1930.

Kansas Also Formidable.

Kansas will be similarly fortunate. Big Jim Bausch, selected generally as all-Big Six fullback, has at least another year of conference competition and Husker fans are quite willing to concede that Jim is apt to be a constant source of trouble for Big Six opponents next year, as will a string of K. U. regulars available for 1930.

Oklahoma also may be expected to enter a formidable eleven, as the Sooner institution ranks a close second to Nebraska in total enrollment and is coming ahead in football zipp and interest at fast strides.

Reports from Manhattan and Iowa State rate the Kansas Aggies and the Cyclones slightly below their conference rivals, due to the fact that both schools are to lose a string of regulars by graduation.

Encouragement Justified.

The Nebraska situation, scanned from every angle, apparently justifies encouragement. For one thing, Coach Bible has his plans outlined for a season of spring practice that will be quite as real as the 1929

SAILORS PERK UP; WIN FROM GREEN

Navy Downs Dartmouth, 13 to 6, In Battle On Quaker Sod.

BY HENRY McLEMORE.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Downright embarrassed, not to mention humiliated, by the idea of being remembered as the team which blew every major game during the season, Navy's 1929 football fleet hove into Franklin field here this afternoon, to do or die.

Thanks to a backfield which suddenly emerged from the thick fog surrounding it all year and a line which did likewise, the Midshipmen did the doing and let Dartmouth do the dying, as the final score—Navy, 13; Dartmouth, 6—testifies. Thus a season was saved and the first Navy-Dartmouth encounter in history written on the nautical side of the ledger.

Polar Weather.

Just to prove their seaworthiness, the midshipmen chose Philadelphia's coldest November day in 43 years to stage their rejuvenation act. Dartmouth, situated in the heart of the snowball industry, was thought to have an added edge by the 16 above weather, but such was not the case, the sailors revelling in the Arctic atmosphere.

Before going any further, time out must be taken to tell of Louis Kirn, comparatively unknown back, who, more than any other individual, deserves credit for the Navy's win.

Up From Obscurity.

So inconspicuous that his name was not included in the official pro-

Sloan and Richards of Nebraska U. Only Cornhuskers to Rate As Members of First Team.

BY CLYDE E. McBRIDE.
("Big Six" Conference Football Official.)

There is many a story between the lines of an All-Star eleven from almost any college or university conference. Some are not true stories, perhaps, others give an accurate line on a situation that may have caused comment through the season and still others are vagaries, the unwinding of which lead to nowhere.

Only Two Cornhuskers.

In the recent thrilling campaign of the Big Six teams Nebraska won the championship, yet only two Cornhuskers found places on the first eleven of a composite choice of well informed football men, including coaches. Missouri, generally rated as being all powerful in material and reserve strength, won four positions, indicating perhaps the truth of this rating. On the other hand, Kansas, also rated as being powerful in material, made only one first team place, yet hit for four on the second team and three on the third, tieing Missouri with a total of eight players on the three elevens, Nebraska getting six.

Standings Play No Part.

Then there is the case of the Kansas Aggies, playing in a championship game, next to the last of the season, but landing only two men on the first team, one on the second and two on the third. The following list of team places, showing how the experts rated the playing material of the Big Six members, will be especially interesting when it is considered that the final rating of the teams played absolutely no part in the selection of the material for these mythical elevens:

	Positions
	First	Second	Third	Tot
Missouri	4	3	1	8
Kansas	2	4	3	8
Nebraska	2	2	2	6
Kansas Aggies	2	1	2	5
Oklahoma	2	1	2	5
Iowa	0	0	1	1

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30—University of Kansas will play Creighton university football at Omaha, Oct. 4, according to announceemnt today by Athletic Director Art Schabinger of the Bluejays. The game will be played at night.

The Creighton schedule will be completed at the Missouri Valley meet at Grinnell, Dec. 6, and 7.

ATHLETIC GROUP HERE THIS WEEK

High School Assembly to Convene In Lincoln Next Saturday.

High school athletic problems will be up for discussion this week with the control board and delegate assembly of the Nebraska High School Athletic association meeting in Lincoln. The board will assemble Friday night, while the assembly will convene Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the Hotel Lincoln.

Assignment of the location of the official basketball tournaments, district and regional, will be discussed and probably settled at the meeting of the control board Friday evening. Selection of the tournament centers will be made largely on the accessibility of the town, size of the court and seating capacity of the gymnasium. The board also is confronted with everal problems of eligibility.

General management of basketball tournaments and tourney finances will be considered differet than last year acording to present plans. The association control board Friday evening will pass on the proposition of providing trophies, basketball and officials at the different meets. Neutral officials will be assigned to work the various tournament games, this group being selected from the approved list.

Forty Centers Listed.

Forty centers have filed applications with Secretary Walter I. Blak of the high school association requesting a district or regional tournament.

This list includes Ainsworth, Alliance, Alma, Beatrice, Beaver-Crossing, Bellevue college, Blair high school, Dana college, Columbus, Curtis, Dorchester, Geneva, Gordon Gothenburg Grand Island, Harrison, Hastings, Hebron, Holbrook, Johnstown, Kearney college, School of Agriculture at Linocln, Lodgepole, Long Pine, McCook, Mitchell, Mullen, Norfolk, North Platte, Creighton university of Omaha, Ord, Peru college, Roseland, Scottsbluff, Spalding, Stella, Tobias, Trumbull, Waterloo, York college.

The delegate assembly, a new wrinkle in association procedure, is a legislative body, members being selected at the recent district association meetings. Forty-one delegates will be in attendance Saturday.

Legislative problems expetced to be discussed by the assembly include the basketball tournaments and eligibility matters.

Waldorf and Crider.

Waldorf, Missouri and Crider, Oklahoma, captains of their respective teams, are named as co-captains of the first eleven. This method has been adopted by numerous colleges, and seems only fair with these two fine sportsmen and performers on the first squad. Crider would be the signal caller, could this mythical eleven be called together.

The ends, Hursley, Missouri and Churchill, Oklahoma, would be about the heart's desire of any coach. Each a powerhouse, Hursley a quarter-miler in track, and Churchill an all-round champion. Each a 6-footer, a pass receiver and good under punts, fair blockers and smart on defense; 3-year men. Almost ideal wing men.

Just What Coach Ordered.

Richards, Nebraska and Tackwell, Kansas Aggies, tackles—just what the coach ordered when he sent his scouts out. Richards, a third-year man, 205 pounds displacement, with the necessary speed and aggressiveness, an outstanding Valley football lineman. Tackwell, also a senior, embodying all the experience of full

Lincoln High In Grid Spotlight With Brilliant Record

Brownies Glittered In Football; Three Years Without Defeat

Completing one of the most successful seasons in Lincoln high school grid history, Coach W. H. Browne's eleven's annihilation of St. Joseph Central to the tune of 20-6 Thanksgiving day brought to a close a campaign during which Lincoln chalked up eight victories and one tie, scored 347 points as to the combined total of the nine opponents' 12, and broke the previous all-time Lincoln record for point total in one game.

Walked On Hastings.

The Hastings Tigers were the first team met, Browne's Brownies walking over, through and around the Adams county team until they were in a daze and then proceeded to cross the Hastings goal line seven times. Continuing the devastating processes, Lincoln trampled on Tee-Jay of Council Bluffs for the same number of touchdowns, but added five extra points, thereby outscoring the Hastings point total by two.

Beatrice proved the stumbling block for one of the Lincolnites' avowed intentions—that of keeping their goal line uncrossed, Wade Traylor, fleet halfback, racing 60 yards for a touchdown after receiving a surprise 15-yard pass from Seibert.

Beatrice Hard to Beat.

Beatrice fought gamely and succeeded in holding off the Capital City youths the entire first period and most of the second canto before the Lincoln gridders punched over a score in the last three minutes of the half. During the second half, the Red and Black athletes scored 25 points, while Beatrice failed to count. Beatrice was saved having another touchdown scored against her when the half ended with the ball in Lincoln's possession, first down, on the Gage county team's one-yard stripe.

Ran Wild Over Central.

The booster day fracas with Omaha Central lived up to advance expectations, the Lincolnites running wild at the expense of Coach Knapple's crew.

Next on the program was Omaha Tech, the game in which the selection for the mythical state championship was expected to be settled but the scoreless tie left it more muddled up than before. Lincoln came the closer to scoring, reaching the Omaha six-inch line, but a stonewall defense by the Techsters held the Brownemen for downs. Tech reached the Lincoln 15-yard marker a pair of times, but the Lincoln defense tightened and Tech's advance was stopped.

Victory In Iowa.

A sally into Hawkeye territory netted a 27-0 victory over the Tigers from Washington high of Cedar Rapids. Lincoln's aerial attack was functioning on all cylinders Armistice day, most of the gains being made by that route.

An invasion of Nebraska by Vermillion, South Dakota, in a game which was expected to be close, resulted in a 79-0 victory for Lincoln, the highest score a Lincoln high school football team has ever piled up, surpassing the record made a few years back when Beatrice succumbed, 77-7.

Lincoln High's Record.

Lincoln	45	Hastings	0
Lincoln	47	T. J. Co. Bluffs	0
Lincoln	31	Beatrice	6
Lincoln	52	Omaha Cent.	0
Lincoln	0	Omaha Tech	0
Lincoln	27	Cedar Rapids	0
Lincoln	79	Vermillion	0
Lincoln	20	St. Joe, cent.	6
Total—	347	Opponents—	12

Conquered Grand Island.

The next week Grand Island invaded Lincoln intent of scalping the home team, but returned to the Third City that night with a 46-0 defeat adding to the pain of bruises and what not.

Concluding with St. Joseph Central, Lincoln rolled up 20 points in the 60 minutes playing time, as against Central's six. Central counted on almost a perfect replica of the Beatrice happening, Mason receiving a flat zone pass from Stuber and outrunning the Lincoln eleven for 60 yards to score the second and last touchdown against the Lincolnites.

Masterson and Sauer.

The work of Big Bernie Masterson and George Sauer in the backfield was a potent threat all season, while Harold Schmitt, Bruce Kilbourne, Clair Bishop, Gerhard Prestegaard and Bob Joy were the cream of the line performers during the 1929 schedule.

Nineteen performers have hung up the moleskins for all time at Lincoln high, but eight veterans will be back in 1930 as the backbone for the galloping Brownies of that season. The entire regular eleven will be gone, but with a strong reserve squad due to advance, 1930 promises to be another good season.

Three Years Without Defeat.

Lincoln's record sheet, as now stands, does not show a reverse since the 5-0 upset at Grand Island about midway in the 1926 schedule. Since then Lincoln has won all but two games, both scoreless engagements—one with Cedar Rapids on Lincoln soil in 1928 and then the Tech game in 1929. During this period of conflict, the Browne gridsters have accounted for two undisputed state championships, 1927 and 1928, and are rated with Omaha Tech and Omaha North as the three strongest in the state this season.

Sauer High In Points.

George Sauer, fullback, who scored the first touchdown in the final game at St. Joseph, was high man for the season, lanky George accounting for the total of 87. Bernie Masterson was 21 points behind, scoring 68. Joe Luchinsger and Henry Bauer copped third and fourth places, respectively, "Luke" scoring 54 points and Henry 42. The remainder of the men who scored and their totals are: Bruce Kilbourne, 25; Bill Weir, 18; Alden Martin, 13; Bob Joy, 12 (accounted for the safety at St. Joseph); Virgil Yelkin, 7; Art Kneeland, 7; Cecil Fulcher, 6; Harvey Lanman, 6; and Harold Schmitt, 2.

SOUTHEAST CONFERENCE.

Nebraska City	6	0	4	2	.000
Plattsmouth	5	0	3	2	.000

FALLS CITY, Neb., Nov. 30—Credited they handed Tecumseh a 6-0 defeat, Pawnee City gridders finished the 1929 Southeast Nebraska conference season in second place.

Coach Dean Higgins' Tecumseh eleven, champion for the past two years, apparently had the runnerup position in their circuit clinched with five victories to its credit in six starts. Coach Cork's pawnee Indians, however, upset the dope when Roach gained 50 yards on a tackle-around play to turn the trick.

Falls City swept through the conference competition without a reverse.

ARAPAHOE DEFEATS RIVAL.

ARAPAHOE, Neb., Nov. 30—Arapahoe won its last game of the season by defeating Republican City high here, 61-0. Arapahoe opened with a fast running attack and scored 25 points during the first half.

Riepe and Olinger, playing their last games for Arapahoe, were the outstanding players.

Coach Claude Reynolds' Arapahoe eleven has won five games, had one tie contest and suffered two defeats this season.

FALLS CITY LOSES FIVE.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Nov. 30—Five members of the Southeast Nebraska conference champion football team wound up their high school football careers Thursday. This quintet includes Captain Al Fisher, half; Cecil Stump, quarter; Virgil Wiltse, center; L. Huston, guard; Warren Prather, end.

Coach "Jug" Brown, however, will have a letterman for every position next season according to present indications.

Twenty-three of the 28 varsity players of the West Virginia team this year are West Virginia youths. Three of the other five are from nearby points in Pennsylvania and one each from Ohio and Kentucky.

Rocknemen Pushed Win From Cadets

off tackle, the Irish couldn't break a man loose.

Army's Strong Defense.

For one thing, Elder's game-saving play came in the second period and the team played it as safe as possible thereafter, for another, the freezing temperature made the field as hard as a corrugated roof and the Irish backs were skating around as though ice, and not turf, was under their feet.

But, largely, the horsemen were cut down to mere footmen by as inspired a defense as ever an Army team has sponsored.

Outclassed on paper, held to be no better than one to four in the betting, the Cadets builded better than they knew today. They were so good, in fact, that Biff Jones made not a single substitution in 60 minutes of football that was almost berserk in its fury. Their defense kept the Irish running attack out side the 25-yard line. Their attack, led by Cagle and Murrell, kept the Irish on the run all the way.

Not One Forward Pass.

This attack was so insistent, in fact, that it actually out-yarded Notre Dame by 144 yards to 126 on the running attack. This represented about the difference in the teams, too, for not a forward pass was completed by either team. Maybe it was too cold to throw them; maybe it was too cold to catch them.

Anyway, a lot of football was played this afternoon and only a very little of it was other than stodgy and uninspired. So much for what the muggs saw for the $50 and $75 they were alleged to have paid for speculators' tickets.

Tight Rein On Cagle.

The players saw and felt the blows of a game that was as fiercely played as any this year. Cagle, making his last appearance in the east, was seldom able to get away from scrimmage. Once in the second period, he turned Conley's end for 31 yards and, late in the game, he picked up a bounding punt on the 25-yard line and, with fine disregard for life and limb, literally bruised his way for 39 yards through a gauntlet of Irish tacklers.

This effort carried the play deep into Notre Dame's territory as it had been nearly throughout the entire last half. But Notre Dame turned back this threat as successfully as it turned back all others. It ended when Cagle passed to Hutchinson in the clear, but the latter couldn't hold the ball.

Irish Great On Defense.

Yes, the Irish were offensively great this afternoon if nothing else. Cannon, Twomey and Law were virtually a three-man line on defene. They were nothing much on attack, but neither were the French at Verdun.

"They shall not pass," they said, and this was enough.

"They shall not pass," was the slogan that kept the Germans out of Paris. It was sufficient to keep Notre Dame out of the depths of defeat today, a defeat that would have nullified the achievements of a great season.

Play-By-Play Details.

FIRST PERIOD.

Cannon's poor kickoff went out of bounds on Army's 45-yard line and the play was recalled. Hutchinson took the next kickoff on Army's 21-yard line. He was downed in his tracks by Cannon. Murrel got 5 yards at right end. Murrell's quick kick sailed to Notre Dame's 27-yard line. Notre Dame fumbled the kick and when an Army man fell on the ball it was given to West Point at the point of recovery. Murrell and Cagle lost 5 yards in two plays. Cagle lost 2 yards at left end.

Cagle's forward pass was grounded on the fourth down and Notre Dame took the ball on downs on its own 35-yard line. Savoldi and O'Connor made 8 yards in two plunges. Savoldi added another yard. Schwartz punted out of bounds on Army's 33-yard line, but the play was recalled and Army was penalized 5 yard for offside.

Savoldi Around End.

Savoldi turned left end for six yards. O'Connor added two yards through center. Savoldi missed the first down by inches on Army's 43-yard line, but made the necessary yard on the next play.

On a spin play, O'Connor slipped off right tackle for 9 yards. Savoldi made it first down on Army's 30-yard line. O'Connor was stopped and so was Savoldi. Gebert's pass to O'Connor was incomplete. So was Schwartz's long pass on the fourth down.

Army took the ball on downs on its own 30-yard line. Murrell gained 2 yards through right tackle. He was stopped by Cannon on the next play. Leahy stopped Murrell again. Murrell sent a long punt to Notre Dame's 24-yard line.

First Down for Irish.

Savoldi gained only a yard at the right side of the line. Savoldi plunged through center for 8 yards on the next play. Savoldi made it a first down on the 34-yard line on the next play.

O'Connor plunged a yard and Schwartz furnished 4 yards more. O'Connor gained 2 yards at right tackle. Then Schwartz punted out of bounds on Army's 26-yard line.

Cagle got 2 yards at right end. Murrell added a bare yard. Murrell punted to Notre Dame's 26-yard line. Schwartz was stopped at left end. O'Connor could make only a yard through the center of the line. The period ended before another play could be made.

Score: Army, 0; Notre Dame, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

O'Connor lost a yard on a wide end sweep, Cagle making the tackle. Schwartz punted poorly to Notre Dame's 47-yard line. Carideo was substituted for Gebert, Brill went in for O'Connor, Elder went in for Schwartz and Mullins for Savoldi. Murrell cracked the line for 13 yards in two plays. Then Notre Dame was penalized 5 yards for offside.

Murrell got a yard at center and Cagle slipped through right tackle for 5 yards. This gave Army a first down on Notre Dame's 34-yard line. Donoghue was substituted for Leahy for Notre Dame.

Cagle's plunge was good for 1 yard. Murrell was able to add 2 yards in as many plunges. Cagle's pass was grounded on the fourth down and Notre Dame took the ball on downs on its own 19-yard line.

Mullins Fumbles.

Mullins fumbled, but recovered for a loss of 2 yards. Elder was stopped by Murrell. Mullins gained a bare yard at center. Carideo's punt was blocked by Perry and recovered by Army on Notre Dame's 12-yard line.

Cagle was stopped at right end, Donoghue making the tackle. Murrell plunged at Cannon for 2 yards. Cagle's pass was intercepted by Elder on the 1-yard line and the Notre Dame speed merchant dashed 99 yards for a touchdown.

Elder Eludes Carver.

Elder was challenged at mid-field by Carver, but broke loose and ran unimpeded to the goal line. Carideo kicked the goal.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

Cagle fumbled the kickoff on the 10-yard line, but recovered and came back 13 yards. The play was recalled, however, because Notre Dame was offside. Carideo then kicked off from the 35-yard line. Cagle gathered in the kickoff on the 13-yard line and rushed back to the 37-yard line.

Cagle and Murrell gained 3 yards in two plunges. Notre Dame was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness. On the next play, Mullins intercepted Cagle's pass on Notre Dame's 25-yard line. Elder advanced 2 yards and this time the Army was penalized 15 yards for illegal use of the hands.

Pass By Elder Fails.

Elder's long pass was broken up by Carver. Brill gained a bare yard. Elder cracked center for 4 yards. Carideo punted to Carver, who was downed on Army's 27-yard line.

Murrell gained a yard on two plunges, but the last play was recalled and Army was penalized 5 yards for offside. Cagle turned Notre Dame's right end for 31 yards. Murrell added a bare half-yard. Cannon stopped Cagle at left end. Murrel cracked the right side of the line for 5 yards. Murrell sent a quick kick to Notre Dame's 3-yard line. Carideo picked the ball up and dashed back 22 yards.

Mullins was stopped by the line. Brill lost two yards. Mullin's failed to gain. Carideo's punt went to Army's 43-yard line. O'Brien was substituted for Colerick. Murrell's plunge was good for 1 yard and Cagle added 6 yards at right end. Murrell hit the line for 1 yard.

The half ended before another play could be made.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

THIRD PERIOD.

Army's lineup was the same as at the beginning of the game. The Notre Dame lineup was the same as that which left the field at the end of the first half.

Cagle caught Carideo's kickoff behind the goal line and came out 24 yards. Murrell gained a yard at center and added 2 yards at the same place. Cagle was stopped. Collins replaced O'Brien and Savoldi went in for Mullins for Notre Dame.

Murrell sent a short punt to Notre Dame's 45-yard line. Carlmark threw Elder for a 4-yard loss. Savoldi could not gain. Carideo punted out of bounds on Army's 33-yard line.

Army Forced to Punt.

Cagle was stopped by Twomey. Murrell hit the line for 4 yards. Cagle added 2 yards at left guard. Carideo took Murrell's punt on Notre Dame's 20-yard line and came back 16 yards. Brill punched the right side of the Army line for 8 yards. Savoldi made it first down on Notre Dame's 47-yard line. Savoldi turned right end for 8 yards. Savoldi punched out another first down on Army's 40-yard line.

On the next play Brill fumbled and the ball was recovered by Humber on Army's 38-yard line. Cagle ripped off 7 yards. Murrell plunged for 2 yards. Murrell cracked center for a first down at midfield. Cagle was forced out of bounds for a gain of 2 yards, but the play was recalled, both teams being offside. Cagle got only a yard at center. Murrell added another yard. Cagle gained 3 yards through Law.

Murrell Forced to Kick

Murrell sent a short punt to Notre Dame's 20-yard line. Elder gained 2 yards off tackle. Savoldi rounded right end for 4 yards. Carideo was forced out of bounds after gaining 3 yards. Carideo sent a nice punt out of bounds on Army's 31-yard line.

Murrell was stopped in the center of the line but made two yards. Cagle swung around right end for 11 yards. Murrell lost one yard on the next play. Cagle's pass was intercepted by Nash on Army's 42-yard line.

Elder cut into the line for a bare yard, but lost a yard on the next play. Savoldi cracked center for two yards. Carideo then punted over the goal line. It was Army's ball on its own 20-yard line. At this point the period ended.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

FOURTH PERIOD.

Murrell punted to Carideo who received the ball on Notre Dame's 40-yard line and came back 12 yards. Colerick replaced Collins.

Elder crashed right tackle for 12 yards, Savoldi hit the same spot for 2 yards, Brill added 3 yards at center. Elder's long pass to Colerick failed. Notre Dame sent in Mullins for Savoldi. The last play was recalled and Notre Dame penalized 5 yards for off-side.

Mullins was forced out of bounds for no gain. Carideo sent a pretty punt out of bounds on Army's 7-yard line.

Cadets Unable Gain.

Murrell gained 2 through the middle of the line and added two more outide right tackle. Cagle spun around right end for 2 yards. Carideo made a running catch of Murrell's punt on Notre Dame's 45-yard line and came back 12 yards.

On the next play, Nash purposely threw the ball out of bound for a loss of a yard. Mullins hit left tackle for 2 yards. Brill added a yard on the next play. Carideo kicked out of bounds on Army's 21-yard line.

Cagle's pass was intercepted by Brill on Army's 40-yard line. However, the play was recalled and Notre Dame penalized 5 yards for off side.

Penalty Nullifies Play.

Cagle got two yards at right guard. Cagle was tackled by Cannon for a 3-yard loss. The last play was nullified by a penalty against both teams, the ball remaining as it was. Murrell punched the center of the line for six yards. Cagle was stopped by Law. Murrell sent a long punt to Notre Dame's 22-yard line.

Brill crashed the line for 8 yards. Carideo repeated for 2 yards. Mullins was stopped without gaining. Carideo punted to Cagle, who took the ball on Army's 25-yard line and rushed back 39 yards.

Cagle Injured; Stays In.

Cagle was injured on the play, but recovered. Law also was hurt, but returned to the lineup. Murrell swung outside right tackle for 3 yard. Cagle was stopped by Twomey. Murrell gained 2 yards at right tackle. Cagle's pass was muffed by Hutchinson with a clear field.

This gave Notre Dame the ball on downs on its own 30-yard line. Elder failed to gain at left end. Brill slipped and fell and lost two yards. Brill turned right end for 2 yards. Carideo punted out of bounds on Army's 35-yard line.

Cagle's Pass Broken Up.

Notre Dame sent in Culver to replace Twomey. Culver threw Cagle for 4 yards loss. Murrell hit the line for 3 yards and Cagle's long pass was broken up.

O'Connor replaced Brill for Notre Dame. Murrell sent a brilliant punt out of bounds on Notre Dame's 10-yard line.

Carideo failed to gain at center. He added a yard on the next play when time was called.

Final score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

Bassett High School Has Good Record.

Rock county high school of Bassett took its first plunge into the Nebraska football world this fall. Under the direction of Rex Gay, former Verdon and Pawnee City coach, Bassett succeeded in winning seven of nine games and rolling up 83 points to 42 by opponents. The squad:
Lower row—Chestnut, F. Estes, C. Spann, Patch, McCance, L. Estes, Keller.
Middle row—Lucy, Powell, Spann, Bennett, Jeffrey, Smith, Betts.
Upper row—Coach Rex Gay, Estes, Hornby, Lyman, Turpin, Duffy, Oamek, Maurer, Hart.

Brass Tacks

stitution and the Missouri of the present age is one of Nebraska's most important battles.

Meantime, Kansas continued to be a push-over for Nebraska until the recent season, when the Jayhawkers bounced into the race with a formidable aggregation, shook off their inferiority complex and gave the Huskers as fine a fight as one could care to see. Oklahoma was similarly improved, the Kansas Aggies also perked up to hold Nebraska fairly level and only Iowa State was turned back to a decisive margin.

THE marked improvement in the quality of football in the Big Six circle during late years should inspire no regrets in the Nebraska camp, as it means keener competition, increased interest and growing crowds flocking to games between the Huskers and their natural rivals.

Nebraska's management may be able to arrange attractive intersectional games with desirable opponents, but the Huskers seldom can be sure as to that, whereas conference competition always is available and, in the run of the passing years, is the most desirable of all.

To have gained another championship of the Big Six conference, made up of as many state institutions in this region of the middlewest, is an accomplishment which Nebraska followers should appreciate. Most assuredly, it would be appreciated by the five rivals of the Cornhusker school in this field.

NEXT in value to that conference championship achievement is the reflection that the one aggregation able to take Nebraska's measure during the entire campaign was a team which rates in the national championship class. To bow in defeat to the Pitt Panthers by a margin as tight as one touchdown to two, to have held the same Panthers to the most creditable score of the season is, in truth, a gaudy feather in Nebraska's cap.

Against strong opposition in the east, pitted against grid aggregations of the class of Ohio State, West Virginia, Washington & Jefferson, Carnegie Tech and Penn State, the Panther pack seldom failed to compile a substantial score.

Yet against the Cornhuskers, the Pitters had their toughest test of the campaign—a trial so severe that Nebraska's fourth period forward passing rally lacked but the successful completion of a single pass to have converted the defeat into a victory.

Meantime, I suggest to Husker followers that they give the list of Pitt's eastern successes a second scanning in disposing of the absurd claim by certain eastern cynics that the Panthers did not face serious opposition.

TO those who may not feel inclined to give the stamp of their full approval to the Cornhuskers' accomplishments during the 1929 campaign, I beg to suggest that the Biblemen did quite as much, perhaps more, than a casual critic should demand. My opinion in this regard, I maintain, is not in the nature of a "second guess."

Months ago, I ventured the prediction—and did it in print—that Nebraskans had no license to anticipate any astonishing performances by the Huskers of 1929.

It was apparent to me that the graduation of such stellar gridsters as Howell, James, McMullen, Holm and Ashburn, together with the loss of Munn and Russell, would tear a yawning gap in Husker ranks that the new coach could little be expected to fill.

DEPARTURE of veteran stars was not the only handicap with which Bible was compelled to grapple. The most exacting schedule in Nebraska's history, a succession of eight major games making up the list, certainly was a disadvantage in that it compelled the coaching staff to drive at top speed from the opening day of practice, rather than to adopt the more desirable plan of building slowly, reaching the peak by gradual degrees.

Still another handicap resulted from the toll taken by the injury jinx. Clair Sloan, a ball-carrying triple-threater second to nobody in American football, was lost to the Nebraska squad during the second day of scrimmage drill, while Claude Rowley, super punter and a halfback of rare potentialities, passed out of the picture during the opening game.

Sloan was missing not less than two-thirds of the season and Rowley was not again in condition until the final day of the campaign. With Sloan and Rowley in prime fettle in every game of the race and with the Pitt game coming two or three weeks later, I am not at all prepared to concede that the Cornhuskers of 1929 would have lacked the essentials necessary to the achievement of an all-victorious year.

WHAT about 1930? The outlook, as I see it, is encouraging. Coach Bible will start with a veteran line, and his chief problem will be that of developing the backfield. As to that department of the 1930 Huskers, I am not lacking in confidence that the stuff will be there to enable the new Nebraska mentor to build another creditable crew.

However, I am sure that the close comradeship and good feeling between coach and squad which Nebraska followers most desire will not be lacking.

Dana Bible came to Nebraska highly recommended as a man of fine character, as an ideal leader of young men, and the opportunity to inspect his methods on the Lincoln campus during the past few months has impressed me with the conviction that the Cornhusker authorities made no mistake when they looked to the southland for their football coach.

HONORS BESTOWED BIG SIX GRIDDERS

time in the college ranks, a powerful line performer, both on offense and defense, and with it all a potent point factor. Tackwell it was who came into the game and, with Tiger forwards rushing into his very toe, booted the ball across the Missouri crossbar for that brilliant and unexpected Aggie victory over the Tigers. Again it was Tackwell who negotiated a drop kick that carried his team to a 3 to 2 victory over Iowa State.

Bauman and Brayton.

In the guard positions with Bauman, Kansas Aggies and Brayton, Missouri, any Valley coach would be contented alomt to turn the middle of the line job over to them and worry about something else. Especially would this be true when Smith, Missouri, is added to the center of the line. This trio is big enough to stem the tide of almost any offensive directed at the center of a line. Each is a player of tackle propensities, quick to break through the opposing wall and bring down a ball carrier before his interference is under way. In the Missouri game Bauman, Aggie guard, spent much of the afternoon back of the Tiger line. Brayton was following suit for Missouri in the Kansas game.

So with Smith, the Tiger center, who was mixed up in almost every play of the Kansas game, making numerous tackles and somehow occasionally managing to be around in time to break up a forward pass or down the man who took the ball. He played that kind of a game all through the season. So also with Bauman and Brayton. Bauman and Smith are three-year men.

Crider of All-Around Merit.

Crider, Sooner captain, switches from his regular halfback position to the quarterback task on the All Star. In modern backfield play the positions do not count as heavily as in the old days, and Crider would make an excellent quarterback. He is a 172-pounder and a six-footer, a good pass receiver, a good ball lugger, handles the ball with skill, a good blocker and a hard tackler, a line backer of extraordinary merit and a fighter to the last ditch. Just the type to share the captaincy with a player of the Waldorf type.

Linked with Crider in he backfield, Sloan, Nebraska; Waldorf, Missouri, and Bausch, Kansas. Sloan with his brilliancy in end dashes, broken field running, his passing, his kicking, his constant triple threatening. Waldorf with his hard ball running, wicked line bucking and his forward passing ability. Bausch, the 200-pound fullback of Kansas, rated by some critics as the best back to have entered Valley ranks in years, a power on offense, a catapultic battering ram. Both Sloan and Bausch were held in check by injuries, otherwise they would have flashed the most brilliant ball-carrying play across the Big-Six films in the short history of the new circuit.

Versatile Backfield.

Tackwell and Sloan would provide meritorious and game-winning kicking for this mythical eleven. Sloan would provide a triple threat and Waldorf a double one. Sloan would make a great safety player, ever dangerous and a scoring threat in the returning of punts. Crider, Waldorf and Bausch would present a formidable line back array and an alert secondary defense when spread farther back on the lookout for passes.

Space forbids going into the merits of the second and third team positions, but there isn't a great margin of difference between the first and the second teams, and the jump from the first to the third is not far. In fact, were it possible to assemble these three all-star elevens it wouldn't be a safe bet that the first eleven would finish in front of the third in 60 minutes of competition.

All Merit Praise.

Schopflin, Kansas; Atkeson, Kansas, and Gentr, Oyklahoma; Dills and Derry, Missouri; Wiggins Kansas Aggies, second team names that flash almost as much fire as their first team brothers. And on the third eleven, J. Lee, Oklahoma, and his teammate, Fields; Rost of Kansas and Armstrong Missouri; Nigro, Kansas Aggies, all football monikers with which to conjure.

For the matter of that, not a name on the three elevens that fine words of honest praise might be woven about, and the fact that the name is there shows the player has done excellent work and rated a high valuation from his own coaching staff and the scouts and coaches of the friendly enemies.

Last year Iowa spoiled the chances of Wisconsin for the Big Ten championship and this year the Hawkeyes stopped Minnesota when it had a clean slate.

COUGAR BOWS TO TROJAN ELEVEN

Washington State Goes Down Before U. S. C.; Score, 27 to 7.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Troy's thundering herd, stung by the claws of the Washington State Cougars, rose in wrath today and trampled the northerners under a 27 to 7 score. It was the season's greatest local demonstration of Trojan driving power.

The Cougars scored and kicked the extra point in the first period.

University of Southern California scored in the second, third and final period, piling up four touchdowns, John Baker, substituting for Captain Nate Barrager at guard, converting thrice.

Washington State sprung a surprise in scoring their touchdown and leading 7 to 0 at the end of the first period. Their score was made on a long forward pass.

Old Master and Boy Wonder

Golf's winter campaign is now under way with the American Professional Golfers' association championship being played this week at the Hillcrest club near Los Angeles. Champion Leo Diegel is defending his title against as fine a field of pro talent ever assembled, including Walter Hagen, the Old Master, and Horton Smith, the Missouri Boy Wonder, whose winter campaign of 1928-29 set the links world ablaze.

Hagen and Smith, since returning from abroad with the United States Ryder cup team last June, have turned in more than seventy exhibition games during the longest and most prosperous two-man tour in golf history. Old Master and Boy Wonder, they constituted a potent gallery magnet wherever they played. All accounts agree that most of this exhibition golf was superb; they shattered par on scores of courses.

For all too many years, the "Haig" has missed winning important American championships. Four times winner of the British open, Walter has made comparatively weak showings in the United States. He would like nothing more than to become A. P. G. A. champion. That title would be of unusual value in the extensive foreign tour which he is planning for 1930.

Joplin's tall blonde, who will be all of 22 next May, has hopes of even surpassing that dazzling winter campaign which stamped him as a links prodigy. The P. G. A. title would furnish an ideal start in that direction.

Horton Smith is modest almost to a fault. But he does make it quite clear that he hopes to prove during the 1929-1930 tourneys that he is more than what many critics call him—"a great mechanical player." That estimate, it's whispered, heats Horton up far more than does the "houn' dawg yapping" of "Haig," who sometimes likes to "kid" his "Missouri farmer" partner.

Win or lose, leading or in the ruck, Haig the sophisticate and the unspoiled boy from the Ozarks will draw big galleries—for each has tons of sporting 'IT.'

Pro Packers of Green Bay Rated as Greatest In History

Critics In East Place Stamp of Approval On Verne Lewellen Team

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Those who scatter their enthusiasm between collegiate and pro football are arising these days and proclaiming like this:

"The greatest team ever welded together is the Packers, a professionalized group of former collegians, who represent Green Bay, Wisconsin, in the pros' big league."

All the Good Ones.

And that comes from persons who have been squinting at gridiron activities for three decades and have seen all that Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Carlisle, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and all the others ever had to offer in the way of a "matchless eleven."

These hurrahers for the Green Bay Packers do not hedge their statements with "ands," "ifs" and "buts." They leap constantly to the rostrum and repeat:

"The greatest ever!"

They will tell you with fevered words that when it comes to possession of brains, speed, power and football skill, all welded into one perfect unit, there never was anything like these Packers.

Amazing Coordination.

"Never a wasted motion, never a foolish move, never a definite error, never anything but amazing coordination of eye, mind and muscle of "men at the same time," they exclaim.

Who are they? What men make up the football crew that is rated as the best of the ages?

Well, here are the lads!

	Wt.	Pos.	College
Dilweg	202	L. E.	Marquette
Kern	187	Lt. T.	Pittsburgh
Michaeleski	209	L. G.	Penn State
Earpe	245	C.	Monmouth
Bowdoin	220	R. G.	Alabama
Hubbard	250	R. T.	Geneva
Nash	210	R. E.	Georgia
Blidol	185	Q. B.	Minnesota
McCrary	213	L. H.	Georgia
Lewellen	181	R. H.	Nebraska
Molenda	207	F. B.	Michigan

Team Averages of 211.

Eleven men—and only three under 200 pounds!!

A line that averages 222 from tackle to tackle!!!

Never was there a team like this in weight and strength and dynamic power. And, certainly, as one gazes at the names, there probably never was a team which had so many mighty and instinctive footballers grouped under one standard.

McCrary lives in the memory of southern football enthusiasts as one of the most wonderful backs the south has ever known; Molenda gained immortality at Michigan; Bowdoin was great among the greatest collegians of his day, and Hubbard was brilliant through all his college years. Kern was an ace among Pittsburgh's aces and Nash was a hero among the heroes of Georgia.

All Together Now.

Now they are all together—as the Green Bay Packers!

Is it any wonder that these eleven warriors on rampage smashed all opposition into inglorious defeat in the first ten games this year?

Is it any wonder that they met the New York Giants headed by Benny Friedman and a cast of stars, and yet made the Giants seem almost like high school lads in comparative play?

This is an era of speed football. Speed usually is associated with small, light men. The Packers have no small men. Their lightest regular is the 181-pound Lewellen, a punter extraordinary. All the rest are giants in size.

And What a Machine.

Yet all have speed. There isn't a man from the 250-pound Hubbard right down to Lewellen who cannot show a burst of speed equal to some of the whirlwind sprinters.

Those lads then have speed plus power. They demonstrated their ability and gameness and generalship through their college years. They gained in experience and rose in greatness. Now they are at their athletic peak and still young. They seek no individual glory. They act merely as cogs in a machine.

And what a machine the Packers have become; one that is the superteam of professional football history, and one which the old and the young, the expert and the near expert, point to with enthusiastic gesture and declare:

"The greatest football team of all time!"

'JEFF' PRAISES COAST PHENOM

Old Champ Likes Looks of Campbell, Far West Latest Prodigy.

By LEE LEWIS.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, has his ideas, idols and ideals of this fisticuff business, and when asked to express his opinion of present-day fighters he shoots back an answer that frequently carries as much sting as those short right-hand punches that brought him fame more than two decades ago.

In company with Frankie Campbell, of San Francisco, Italian-American heavyweight, the writer visited Jeff at his Burbank ranch, and during the ensuing chat gleaned many frank expressions of "the days when—"

Praise for Campbell.

Campbell flattened Alex Rowe at Hollywood stadium recently and as a result won for himself the praise of the former champion.

"Is Campbell too small to become a successful heavyweight?" was the question put to the fighter-rancher.

"H—, no," came the curt reply, "Bob Fitzsimmons was always skimpy in build, but he gave me some of my toughest battles. If he'd had 20 more pounds I really believe that he'd have knocked the devil out of me, and he's the only man that I ever felt that way about."

"Has Campbell the makings of another Dempsey?"

Too Old to Come Back.

"That depends upon himself. Jack was great, different though, from Fitz, Corbett and Sharkey, and I hope that he never is as foolish as I was to try that comeback racket. I did it, you know, when I met Johnson at Reno, and six years away from the game was too long.

"Too many fighters today are nothing but cheap actors. They want to do a song and dance turn and get away with it. Campbell showed me that he is willing to get in there and take a chance just to put over a punch.

Fighters Must Not Drink.

"This boy can stop any man he can hit, and for this reason he must take hold of himself. I am not a rabid prohibitionist. I've had my drinks, but that was when liquor was liquor and not embalming fluid. Drinking for fighters now is kidding one but themselves."

This fighting game is a business in which a fellow must cash in on and then get out of, according to Jeffries, whose keen eyes have not been dimmed through the years.

A fighter, if he makes the grade must never take any opponent lightly," Jeff continued. "They're all tough, and anyone who, even though he wins the title in a division, ever should harbor the notion that he is the world's greatest man at that weight. The fellow who upsets that kind of notion may be just around the corner, or he may be hiding out in the sticks."

Very few tackle-around and end-around plays have been seen in American football in the last decade.

Meet Grid's Trade and Mark.

Footballs, not cough drops, are the stock in trade of this husky pair of Smith Brothers. Austin (left) and Vernon Smith are first string tackles on the North Dakota football team which plays Coach Dan Lament's strong Loyola eleven Nov. 30 at Loyola stadium, Chicago. This is the boys' third year of varsity competition and last August they decided to grow beards so as to help finance their way through school. They have done so by posing for testimonials for drug stores and other dispensers of hair tonics. They live on a ranch at Hebron, North Dakota.

SLOAN, RICHARDS FIRST-TEAM MEMBERS ON A. P.'S "BIG SIX" ALL-STARS.

Missouri placed three men on the all-star Big Six conference team selected by The Associated Press and based upon the opinions of officials, coaches and sports writers. Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Kansas Aggies each landed two places. Ames was not represented. The players are: 1, Ray Smith, Missouri, center; 2, George Atkeson, Kansas, guard; 3, Keith Hursley, Missouri, end; 4, Frank Crider, Oklahoma, halfback; 5, Tom Churchill, Oklahoma, end; 6, John Waldorf, Missouri, quarterback; 7, C. O. Tackwell, Kansas Aggies, tackle; 8, K. C. Bauman, Kansas Aggies, guard; 9, Clair Sloan, Nebraska, fullback; 10, Raymond Richards, Nebraska, tackle, and 11, James Bausch, Kansas, halfback.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

JOHN WAKI, Grace, Idaho, has a two-year-old filly sired by Patrick Silk, 2:24¼, that he has named Maxim Silk. That filly was trained some the past season and pleased her owner so much that he intends racing her in 1930. Patrick Silk was the first foal of Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, and was taken to Idaho by Warren Dennis when that trainer resided in that state. His record of 2:24¼ was given Patrick Silk by Mr. Dennis and since that time the horse has evidently changed ownership several times, as we have learned of at least three men owning, or claiming to own the horse.

Writing of Bingen Silk brings to mind the fact that few Nebraska horsemen ever learned that Nell Cord, dam of Bingen Silk, was also dam of another 2:10 trotter, but such is true. L. E. O., 2:07¼, by Toddington, 2:20, was out of Nell Cord, 2:26¾ by Silk Cord 34878. By the way Silk Cord also sired the dam of The Laurel Hall, 2:06¼, one of the most popular sires of 1929 and a stallion much sought after by owners of breeding establishments.

Silk Cord is dam of a three-year-old trotter racing in Germany this season and winner of a recent event. That filly was sired by Viney Bingen, 2:03, a trotting stallion gaining his record at Omaha, Neb. Silk Cord and Viney Bingen are both owned in Germany, but should never have left America, where such mares and stallions are badly needed.

ANOTHER matter of interest to Nebraska horsemen should be the winning of a trotting race at Vienna, Austria, early in October, by the six-year-old bay mare Osiris, by Ossory, 2:14½, son of Constantine, 2:12½. Ossory was bred by Rev. Thomas Barden, Tecumseh, Neb., and sold by that gentleman for export in the early summer of 1914.

"Columbus" labored under the impression that Ossory was lost at sea at the beginning of the world war and so stated in The Star. Father Barden sets us right on that subject and writes as follows:

"You doubtless had Ossory confused with Red Lac, 2:07¼, by Allerton, 2:09¼, which was lost at sea in the early days of the world war, when the vessel he was on sank after attacked by a German submarine. Ossory was sold to a Mr. Metcalfe of Berlin, Germany, and was about to be purchased by the German government when war was declared and the deal fell through. A few years ago he was represented in Europe by the good trotter Moron, a horse that was inferior to no other trotters racing that season at European meetings. I am pleased to learn that Osiris, by Ossory, has developed into so good a trotter as published reports indicate."

WHILE writing of horses bred by "Doctors," I did not mention several good trotters known to readers of The Star that were bred by veterinary surgeons and for the reason that at the time we were only thinking of physicians.

Dr. C. C. Hall, Omaha, a capable veterinary surgeon, bred Silk Aubrey, 2:10¼; Tom Dennison, 2:11¼; Sweetnot, 2:13¼, and other trotters. He also owned Sweet Aubrey, 2:08¼, during all the years that good trotting mare was raced and later owned Sweetwood, 2:17¼, dam of Sweet Aubrey and Sweetnot.

Dr. J. D. Sprague, V. S., David City, Neb., bred Dr. Igo, 2:13¼, 2:13¾, sire of Dr. Nick 2:04¼; Virginia Dare, 2:12¼; John Igo, 2:16¼, etc. Dr. J. N. Deiling, V. S., Dallas Center, Ia., bred Shamrock E. p. 2:04¼, by the Nebraska-bred stallion Percentage, 3, 2:26¼, son of Sorrento Todd, 2:11. In addition, Dr. Deiling bred other pacers and trotters with fast records.

THE list of veterinary surgeons breeding or owning fast trotters and pacers might be continued at length, but we will now refer to a few dentists that were and still are, admirers of the trotting-bred horse. Dr. Grant Williams, Omaha, has owned a number of good young horses and bred others. He still is interested in the industry.

Dr. J. D. Davis, Solomon, Kan., is another capable dentists that loves the light harness horse. Dr. Davis owned until recently the fast pacing stallion Shadeland Silk, 2:07¼, by Bingen Silk, purchased of E. D. Gould as a yearling by Dr. Davis.

Over at Manson, Iowa, lived until his death in 1928 Dr. Griffin, a very successful dentist that for many years was interested in the trotter and pacer and at Concordia, Kan., lives Dr. Eagleson, dentist, owner of the pacing mare Emmalander, 2:16¼ during the years that daughter of Scottlander was raced by Andrew Noe, Concordia. We might add many names to these two lists of doctors other than physicians that were admirers of the trotting-bred horse, and may do so in the future.

UNQUESTIONABLY the most prominent breeder of trotters among American physicians was Dr. L. Herr of Lexington, Ky., breeder of that famous stallion Mambrino Patchen 58. Dr. Herr also bred Lady Thorn, 2:18¼, one of the truly great race trotters of her era. He likewise bred Mambrino King 1279, son of Mambrino Patchen, and numerous other noted stallions, mares and geldings.

Mambrino Patchen 58 never sired a pacer, although his greatest son, Mambrino King, did. Mambrino Patchen was a much older horse than Almont, Belmont, Onward, Red Wilkes and other successful sires bred in Kentucky, and for that reason his opportunities in the stud were inferior to those stallions named, and yet he sired 25 trotters with records of 2:30 or better. Of his sons, 57 became sires of speed and 110 daughters were dams of speed.

His reputation rests largely with his daughters, even though Mambrino King was a much greater sire than any member of the Mambrino family. The most fashionable cross for many years with American breeders was what the public was pleased to call the Wilkes-Mambrino Cross and had its inception after George Wilkes, 2:22, was taken to Kentucky and was given access to daughters of Mambrino Patchen.

SOME of the most successful sons of George Wilkes were out of daughters of Mambrino Patchen, as for example Alcantara, 2:23; Alcyone, 2:27; Baron Wilkes, 2:18; Constantine, 2:12½; Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Patchen Wilkes, 2:29½; Simmons, 2:28, and Wilkes Boy, 2:24¼.

As previously stated Mambrino Patchen's most noted son was Mambrino King, which was likewise the most successful show stallion exhibited in America for many years, or until defeated by Stamboul, 2:07½, a much younger horse owned by E. H. Harriman, railway magnate.

Last-At-Law, p., 2:06¼, fast and handsome pacing stallion bred by Al Farrens, Hastings, Neb. was the only high-class member of the Mambrino Patchen family owned in this state. Last-At-Law was a son of Heir-At-Law p., 2:05¾, by Mambrino King, and was the last foal by that stallion, hence his name. Heir-At-Law sired Minor Heir, p., 1:58½, and a number of other 2:10 performers.

THE most successful breeder among western physicians was Dr. M. W. Hicks, living at Keokuk, Iowa, when he began breeding light-harness horses. Later, the doctor moved to California, where he gained world-wide fame as a breeder.

His first success came about when he shipped his brood mare Prairie Bird, by Flaxtail 8132, to Indiana and mated that mare with Blue Bull 75, then a very popular sire. The foal resulting from that mating was Prompter 2305, which in time became a noted sire of dams.

Dr. Hicks also bred Buccaneer 2656, by Iowa Chief, son of Green's Bashaw, and that horse later acquired fame as a sire after being taken to California by his breeder-owner.

Tinsley Maid, dam of Buccaneer, was also a daughter of Flaxtail, a stallion that started Dr. Hicks on his way to success as a breeder.

The doctors best known brood mares were Fern Leaf, Mary and Prairie Bird, by Flaxtail, and Flirt by Buccaneer, and that quartet of producing dams were bred by Dr. Hicks at Keokuk.

THE pioneer stallion of southeast Iowa was Flaxtail, a stallion whose breeding was never traced. Nothwithstanding that handicap, Flaxtail established a family that still is making its influence felt. A friend once asked this question:

"How does it happen that Flaxtail was registered under the number 8132, when his breeding was unknown? And how did it come that Buccaneer and Prompter were registered before Flaxtail, sire of their dams, was?"

Flaxtail became standard through two sources, or for two reasons. He sired two trotters with race records faster than 2:30, while his daughters became dams of 12 trotters and nine pacers.

Those are the two reasons why Flaxtail was eligible to registry as standard, but he was not eligible at the time Buccaneer and Prompter were registered.

DAUGHTERS of Flaxtail, as well as granddaughters, became dams of speed and among his descendants through the female line are found several champions. That was true of Fern Leaf, dam of Goldleaf, 2:11¼, champion four-year-old pacer in 1891. Flirt, by Buccaneer, dam by Flaxtail, was dam of Frou Frou, 2:25¼, champion yearling trotter in 1891. Black Silk, 2:09¼, and Joe Bowers, 2:09¼, by Symboleer, p., 2:09½, traced to Flaxtail through their dams, and Bill Barleycorn, p., 2:08, a hardy race horse known to practically every reader of this column, also traced to Flaxtail through a daughter of that stallion brought to Stockton, Kan., by Mr. French.

In addition to those mentioned, other fast performers trace to Flaxtail, that unknown sire of speed and head of a successful family of harness horses. In California such stallions as Wayland W., 2:12½, sire of Bolivar, p., 2:00¾, and Welcome, p., 2:10½, sire of Harold Welcome, p., 2:08¼, and Welcome Boy, p., 2:10, trace to Flaxtail through their grandam Mary, a daughter of that pioneer stallion.

IN a recent issue of The Star we wrote concerning the death of John E. Madden, most successful (in a financial way) of American breeders and owners. While it is true that Mr. Madden's greatest success so far as money matters are concerned came with his association with the thoroughbred horse, his affection for the trotter far exceeded that for the runner.

Doubtless that was the result of his first investment in horses, something referred to in a previous item. As then stated, Robert McGregor, 2:17½, was his first purchase of a high-class horse and that stallion started him on the way to fame and fortune.

John E. Madden never cared for a pacer and why, we never learned. We do know that he bred 23 trotters with records of 2:10 or better, the fastest Periscope, 2:03½, which was a great colt trotter and matured into a high-class aged trotter.

Even though caring little or nothing for the pacer, it is a strange bit of irony that the fastest harness horse bred by Mr. Madden was the pacing mare Guesswork, 2:02¼, a mare that raced without hopples. That mare, as many look at it, deserved the name "Clockwork" rather than "Guesswork," as she raced consistently.

THE fastest trotter ever raced by Mr. Madden was Hamburg Belle, 2:01¼, by Axworthy, 3, 2:15½, holder of the race record for trotters many years. That mare also brought to John E. Madden the largest sum ever received for a trotting-bred horse as he sold her to M. H. Hanna, Cleveland, O., for $50,000.

As previously stated, Mr. Madden was a thorough student of breeding problems, being excellen in that respect by no man in America. Although breeding five winners of the Kentucky Derby during a period of 12 years, something no other man ever has done, John E. Madden accomplished other noted things with the running-bred horse.

For nine years he headed the list of winning breeders of thoroughbred runners, during that time breeding hundreds of winners. Still, he thought so much of the trotter, that he established a cemetery for Nancy Hanks, in which have since been buried many great trotters and runners.

Gus Tebell of North Carolina State and Bob Neyland of Tennessee may not be in the Southern conference ranks next year. Both are said to be considering changes.

No charge is made for admission to games played by the Navy at Annapolis. When Georgetown played there 40,000 Washington fans asked for free tickets, but only 15,000 were given to that city.

OWNING HOSSES COSTS A-PLENTY

King George Big Loser in Game of Racing Nags On Oval Tracks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—Hoss galloping is called the "sport of kings." But if you ask George of England whether it's true or not, he may shake a negative head. It may be sporty, yes. But a sport? Well, if losing and losing and losing is a sport—yes!

They've sort of swapped up the horses over in England and stored them away for the winter. That procedure usually gives the statisticians a chance to find out what happened during the season just agone. Naturally, the first thing is to ascertain how the King fared with his oat gulpers.

That Sad Story.

It's a sad story. The King lost planty! He has a big stable. He thought he had some awfully good horses. But it was merely a thought. The nags fooled George and done wrong by him, yes, sir. They accepted free board and room, lots of petting, sugar lumps and carrots—and then, when called to do some running and winning, they became ingrates.

They defiled the royal colors upon almost all occasions and then never did so much as to offer an apology for their doleful efforts. The king could have got himself a gun and shot the lot, or he could have sold them for laundry waion purposes. But he didn't.

Still Paying Bills.

His majesty just kept 'em around, those loafers ,and continued to feed and house them and even has put them into comfortable quarters for the winter, instead of ordering them transformed into French porterhouse steaks.

Thus the king proves that he is now different than any other horseman. No matter how indifferently a horse performs, his owner never loses faith and figures he will do right by him the next time—or the next, or the next.

Almost from the day since King George inherited the stable from his father, the late King Edward, his racing ventures have been costly. Rarely has he made a profit; rarely has he broken oven. Usually he has been a loser and some folks estimate that since his reign began, King George's horses have cost him between $500,000 and $750,004.

Intends to Carry On.

Asked recently if he was a bit disgusted with the "Sport of Kings" and whether he intended to dispose of his stable of ingrates, the king shook his head. He will carry on, not so much because of his own desire, but because he feels that continuance of a royal stable was one of his father's wishes.

But if you were to ask George of England whether he regards racing as a sport, arranged especially for kings, the likelihood is that the frank and honorable George would shake his head and hand you his check book as proof of his assertion.

When Chicago was national champion in 1899, two halves of 45 minutes each were played, with only 10 minutes rest between. Today's four 15-minute periods, with 15 minutes' rest between halves, is somewhat lighter work.

Eight Nebraska Highs All-Victorious In 1929 Campaign

Lincoln, Omaha Tech In Scoreless Tie; Belong In Upper Prep Circle

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Eight Nebraska high schools closed the 1929 Nebraska high school football campaign without a defeat or tie score in Cornhusker competition. These eight schools are:

Falls City. Randolph.
Imperial. Albion.
Nebraska Deaf. Cozad.
Omaha North. Crawford.

Added to the all-victorious group should be the names of Lincoln and Omaha Tech. The Maroons and Capital City elevens finished an undefeated season, but locked horns in a scoreless tie in a mid-season game.

Five More Undefeated.

In addition to the 10 football aggregations whose records were spotless in Nebraska competition, there are five other schools that failed to dip their colors in defeat this year, but were held to tie scores by football teams that had met defeat at the hands of a Cornhusker prep team.

This group includes Crete (tied by Ashland,) Leigh (tied by Osceola,) Sterling (tied by College View,) Sidney (tied by Lodgepole), and Alma (tied by Franklin.)

Sterling, with an undefeated record, is scheduled to have several of its verdicts reversed for use of an ineligible player, according to the word going the rounds in Nebraska high school circles. This fate was meted out to Scottsbluff early in the season and cost the western team a clear claim to the Western Nebraska title as well as an all-victorious season in Cornhusker prep circles.

York Once Defeated.

During a program of cold Thanksgiving day games, in which battles between rival elevens featured nearly every section, one member of the undefeated class fell by the wayside.

The team to lower its colors for the first time this year was York. The Gautsch eleven, held to a tie score by Kearney last week, suffered an 8-0 reverse at Grand Island and thereby passed out of the Mid-state title picture.

Defeat of York left Beatrice and Grand Island to argue the Mid-State situation. Beatrice, one of the speediest teams in the state this fall, appears to have slightly the better of the argument. Two tie scores are written on the Grand Island book, while but one deadlock is on the Beatrice sheet.

Fairbury and Fremont.

Fairbury and Fremont won other Mid-State encounters Turkey day. Fairbury turned back Kearney, 14 to 7, and Fremont spilled Columbus, 13-6.

Crawford, Albion and Imperial are undefeated and clear of ties as a result of Thanksgiving day wins.

Coach Wayne Binfield's Crawford eleven traveled to Gering and handed the Bulldogs a 12-0 trimming. This was a distinct feather in the cap of the northwest champions. A post-season game with Scottsbluff was swept away by cold weather and snow.

Albion and Imperial.

Albion, coached by Bill Putman, waded through Newman Grove, 32-0, as a fitting finale to an all-victorious season. The Albion lads cleared nine hurdles without a skip.

Coach "Buck" Fruhling's Imperial eleven closed a second consecutive season with a reverse Thursday when the Chase county high eleven beat Wauneta, a neighborly rival, 14-0.

Sidney high won the Western Nebraska conference title with a 6-0 victory over Chappell. Fumbles cost Sidney its chance for scores on several occasions, but Coach Leo Black's warriors managed to cash in with the needed touchdown.

Alma and Crete.

Alma kept its slate clear of defeats by beating Orleans, 7-0. Crete finished an undefeated season by trimming Wilber, 13-0, to cop the Saline county title.

Lincoln high crushed St. Joseph Central, 20-6. The convincing victory of the Red and Black was a big boost to Cornhusker prep football, as the St. Joseph team was undefeated in Missouri circles.

Broken Bow edged out Ansley in the game deciding the Custer county title, 7-6. Callaway spilled Mason City, 12-6, and Comstock beat Sargent, 14-0, in other Custer county games.

Lexington scored a lone touchdown and beat Gothenburg, 6-0, in the tradition battle between the Minute Men and Swedes. Omaha South and Central City played without a score.

Havelock Wins Title.

Coach Paul Delaporte's Havelock high team outscored an inspired Jackson high eleven, 12-6, to make sure of the Greater Lincoln league title. College View won a nip-and-tuck affair from Bethany, 16-13.

Harvard swept through undefeated in the Southern league by polishing off Sutton, 18-0. Nelson won from Edgar, 6-0, in another Southern loop game.

In the southwest, Imperial's victory over Wauneta was the feature. Holdgee showed plenty of strength in drubbing Minden, 41-0. Franklin turned back Gibbon, 25-0.

Pawnee Spills Dope.

Pawnee City upset the dope in the southeast Nebraska sector when a tackle-around play netted 50 yards and the touchdown which beat Tecumseh, 6-0. The win shot the Indians into second position. Auburn and Peru played without a score, while Humboldt and Table Rock came to no decision.

Scottsbluff wound up a splendid season in the western circle by winning a 7-0 game from Morrill.

Tekamah high trimmed Blair, 13-0, to capture the East Central Nebraska conference title. It was the fifth consecutive championship won by Tekamah since H. A. Greutzmacher has had charge of the Burt county team.

Neligh Tied Norfolk.

Neligh and Norfolk played to a 6-6 tie in the northeast. Wakefield swamped Walthill, 40-9; Clarks spilled Polk, 14-0; Lyons won an 18-0 victory over Oakland; and Newcastle finished ahead 8-0 at Ponca.

In other games with historic settings, Falls City dropped a 12-7 decision at Hiawatha, Kas., and Schuyler and David City played without a score.

DEADLOCK DUEL ON TEXAS FIELD

Frogs Even Score.

But Mason of S. M. U. punted short and T. C. U. began a counter march from the S. M. U. 24-yard line. Grubbs threw a pass to Leland on the 11-yard line. Grubbs and his running mates smashed to within one yard of the Methodist goal. Then Grubbs cut through tackle to score. Green kicked the goal for a tie.

TUFFY RATED AS 'BIG MONEY' BOY

Win Over Basque Places Sioux City Slugger Among Elite.

BY BERT DENBY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(UP)—It begins to look as though Tuffy Griffith will be in on some of the "big money" the promoters expect to pay heavyweight fighters during the coming winter.

Little more than an unknown a year or so ago, Tuffy has fought his way through three divisions, has been highly successful in each, and now has become something to be reckoned with as a heavyweight.

Last night he crossed the hardest obstacle of his life by winning a ten-round decision from Paolino Uzcudun, the Basque. Tuffy's margin wasn't a particularly wide one, but it was wide enough to leave no doubt as to who had won. The fight probably was the best thing which could have happened to Griffith, since it taught him that a good offense isn't always te best defense.

Paolino Able Take It.

Accustomed to tearing in and beating down opponents, Griffith finally found a man who could take everything he had and not only stay on his feet but fight back hard enough to make Tuffy resort to boxing. As a result Griffith probably will put in some work developing a defense.

Never before had any one taken Griffith's right cross repeatedly on the jaw and stood up. Paolino took it and smiled.

The Griffith victory was something of a surprise. Paolino was a 7-5 favorite. Tuffy's cleaner hitting and boxing ability won him the fight. He never let the Basque get set for the wicked body punishment which Paolino has handed most of his opponents.

Three Good Ones In West.

Already there is talk as to what the next heavyweight match here will be. There are three good heavies in the middle west. Besides Griffith there are Otto Von Porat and Hein Mueller. The latter is a German, who fought his first fight in this country last night and won a 10-round decision over Salvatore Ruggirello, the "one punch knockout man" from Italy.

There is talk about Griffith getting the match with Sharkey in Florida and there also is talk of matching him with anything else the east has to offer.

Drawing Cards Needed.

Admittedly, a Von Porat-Griffith match would sell out the 25,000 seats in the Chicago stadium but it is quite likely that the stadium will refrain from matching them for a while since both are great drawing cards and the stadium needs drawing cards badly enough not to want to kill one of them off by allowing the other to defeat himat this time.

But at any rate the victory last night put Griffith in the "big money" class and he middle west has high hopes of his eventually assuming the heavyweight title which Gene Tunney left vacant.

Detroit One Point Ahead Georgetown

DETROIT, Nov. 30—(UP)—Overcoming a 13-point disadvantage, University of Detroit closed its 1929 football season by scoring two touchdowns in the third period to win from Georgetown, 14 to 13.

NODAKS ON LINE TO MEET DAVIS ELKINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Davis-Elkins football team will travel to Grand Forks, N. D., Oct 3, 1930 for a game with University of North Dakota and the western team will return the game at Elkins, W. Va., in November 1931, according to a two-year agreement announced here tonight by Jennings Randolph, athlethics director at Davis-Elkins.

JOPLIN PHENOM DOES HIS STUFF

Horton Smith Rushes Up From Rear and Wins Berkeley Open.

BY TOM LENNON.

BERKELEY COUNTRY CLUB, Calif., Nov. 30—Ripping the shirt off par, Horton Smith, famous Joplin, Mo., professional, today shot 69 and 66 for a total of 280 to win the Berkeley $5,000 open golf tournament here today.

Smith went the final 36-hole jaunt in five under par. He was putting perfectly except for three holes, where he three putted. His four rounds were 74-71-69-66. His 66 was one stroke above the course record held by Al Sais, Berkeley pro.

Billy Burke Second.

Second was Billy Burke of Westport, New York. He had a 283 total. Then came Johnnie Perelli of Oakland, Cal., with a 288 for third place. Other scores:

W. H. Cox, Chicago	290
Al Espinosa, Chicago	291
Al Watrous, Chicago	292
Abe Espinosa, Chicago	293
Ed Dudley, Delaware,	294
C. Beer, Bakersfield, Calif.	295
Morte Dutra, Tacoma, Wash.	297
Tom Creary, New York	297
John Black, San Francisco	299
Craig Wood, New Jersey	299
Willie Hunter, Los Angeles	300
Louis Nadi, San Francisco	300

John Dawson, Chicago and Jack Wolf, San Francisco, were tied for first place among the amateurs. Each had a score of 301.

Pro Golfers In Clash For National Title

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—One of the annual attractions of the golfing world will start here Monday when more than 60 leading golfers of the country tee off in the qualifying round of the national professional championship tournament.

Most of the entrants have been on hand for several weeks playing the Hillcrest Country club course where the tournament will be held.

Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, the defending champion, Johnny Farrell, open champion in 1928, "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, Horton Smith from Joplin, Mo., and one or two others are favorites.

workouts were disappointing. The new head coach was unavoidably late in getting on the job last April, but he will be on the ground all winter, devising plans to give Husker footballers a spring campaign the like of which never has been witnessed in the Nebraska camp.

Nebraska prospects point to the development of a formidable aggregation of forwards as only Richards, tackle, and Lewandowski, end, will pass out via graduation. A survey of the situation suggests that Bible will have at his command the following varsity squad for 1930:

Varsity Men Available.

Center—Maasdam and Morrison.

Guards—Koster, Justice, Gilbert, Jeffries, Greenberg and Burgeson.

Tackles—Rhea, Broadstone, Kroger, Peterson, Jenkins and Eno.

Ends—Morgan, Hokuf, Prucka, Byrnes, Fisher, Still and Milne.

Backs—Young, Rowley, Frahm, Paul, Perry, Marrow, Kreizinger, Packer, Marquis and Long.

With but few exceptions, every Cornhusker thus listed is first-string material and most of them will be granted letters in reward for toil in 1929.

Freshman Additions.

Acquisitions from Coach Choppy Rhodes' 1929 freshman squad are expected to add materially toward brightening the outlook for next fall. As a plain matter of fact, Choppy had at his command a glittering outfit of yearling prospects and their addition to the varsity next September may rightfully be expected to round out a Husker squad of rare potentialities.

A partial roster of the freshmen who will be coming up to the varsity lists the following:

Partial Roster.

Backs — Roby, Mathis, Dunn, Miller, Shirley, Stansberry, Drewelow, Barnes, Penney, Hinkle, Staab, Brown and Manley.

Centers — Ossowski, Sandahl and Leffel.

Guards — Hulbert, Rosen, Witt, Minnick, Farner and Harmon.

Tackles—Fogarty, Ely, Behrends; Dunkak, Nuttleman, Allison and Woodward.

Ends—Durkee, Nesmith, Martin, Holtzendorff, Hulbert, Christian and Swanson.

Winter Study Sessions.

Development of not less than two first-string quarterbacks is an important detail that will engage Coach Bible's attention during the school year and it assured that the tutor of the Cornhuskers will not wait for that until the spring practice period.

His present plans include a series of football study sessions with the most promising candidates for the pilot's job, the list including Mathis, Staab and Manley, in event the latter returns to school at the start of the second term.

Mathis and Staab are youngsters of fine promise and Coach Bible is hopeful that the Huskers of 1930 will not lack intelligent direction from the quarterback station.

ONE PUNCH LOSER IN GOTHAM FIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York light-heavyweight, decisively defeated "One Punch" Williams, Harlem negro, in a ten round bout at Olympia A. C. tonight.

Rosenbloom battered Williams about the ring and scored a knockdown in the eighth round.

DEMPSEY WINS IMPROMPTU GO

Novelty of Ex-Champion Fighting Gratis Is Seen in Gotham.

BY SID MERCER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.) As the bell rang for the first round, Dempsey advanced, bobbing and weaving, and after a brief flurry of gloves, backed off, measured his man drove a terrific right to the jaw and a left to the body for the knockout.

Think we're kidding? Not a bit of it. It actually happened.

And so the ring record of Dempsey does not show a blank for 1929 after all. It reads as follows:

November 29, John Tomaford, K. O., one round.

Whole Affair "Big News."

Any time Dempsey smacks a man down that's news, and when he does it for nothing—as he did yesterday—that's a novelty. And when his victim gets nothing for being on the receiving end of one of old John's "iron mikes" that's poor business.

The Dempsey punch was demonstrated at Stillman's gymnasium before a small but select gathering of boxers, trainers, rubbers and about a hundred cash customers, who were taxed the modest sum of 25 cents each.

Dempsey Gets Nothing.

And Dempsey didn't even get one per cent of the gate, which went to Lou Stillman, the genial proprietor of the upper Eighth avenue knuckle foundry.

John Tomaford, the gent who flirted with the old champion's punch is a young Scandanavian heavyweight who has been battling in the armories this season. He is managed by "three-fingered Jack" Dougherty, who will not include this fight in Tomaford's record.

It seems that old John, coming on from Chicago to attend the Muldoon testimonial dinner, felt in the need of some exercise late yesterday afternoon. Summoning the faithful Jerry Luvadis he repaired to Stillman's, donned heavy woolen tights and proceeded to get up a sweat. The photographers flashed old John doing his stuff but packed up and left before he entered the ring, thereby missing a great shot.

Big Gloves Not Big Enough.

Dempsey's fists were thoroughly concealed in a pair of sixteen-ounce gloves and that may have induced Tomaford to take a chance. He finished upon the floor in less than two minutes. Then Dempsey boxed a round with Jack Shupack and called it a day. Shupack demanded a guarantee and got it. He was not knocked out.

Dempsey's base of operations for the next few weeks will be New York. He has closed down his Chicago coliseum boxing club until after the holidays and will appear here in vaudeville next week.

HOLY CROSS BOWS TO BOSTON ELEVEN

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—impregnable defense in the pinches and an ability to capitalize its opponents' lapses gave Boston College a 12 to 0 victory over Holy Cross in the annual football game between the rival Jesuit colleges here today.

Dixon's punting was outstanding. The end's kicks were exceptional both with and against the wind and kept Holy Cross in its own territory or at midfield almost throughout the game.

PITCHER ED ZINK HAS BROKEN ARM

STERLING, Neb., Nov. 30—Ed Zink, former Nebraska league baseball pitcher with the Lincoln club, will carry his left hurling arm in a splint for several weeks as a result of a bone fracture sustained here while witnessing the Thanksgiving day football game on the local high school field. Zink stumbled and fell while following the play along the sideline, breaking a bone near the elbow. He was taken to Lincoln for medical treatment.

ENGINEERS MAY JOIN NEW LOOP

Report Havelock to Join In Formation League Of Six Teams.

Announcement in Havelock school circles the Engineers contemplate withdrawing from the Greater Lincoln league revived talk Saturday of the formation of a new high school conference.

Havelock decision to pull out of the Greater Lincoln loop was influenced by the action of the Lincoln school authorities in refusing to permit Jackson, College View and Bethany to play night football at Ballard field.

Drop Lincoln League.

Night football was introduced at the shoptown this fall and proved a huge boost to the financial coffers, a factor not to be overlooked in interscholastic athletics which in many schools are forced to be self-supporting.

The proposed league, which may be organized in time for a track meet next spring is reported to include Havelock, Crete, Seward, Wahoo and Ashland. These five schools have been exchanging athletic relations and it is pointed out a league would provide championship competition and increase interest.

Need Sixth Member.

A sixth member is desired for the proposed loop. Wymore and David City are among the schools suggested to compete the circuit.

An attempt was made to organize such a league a year ago but the Lincoln school system frowned on Jackson's entrance into the circuit and plans were dropped.

SAILORS PERK UP; WIN FROM GREEN

gram, Louis ran, passed, blocked and kicked in a highly sensational manner. It was this young man who, playing his first year on the varsity, scored both of Navy's touchdowns.

Following a scoreless first half, in which the balance of power was fairly evenly distributed, Kirn and his comrades opened up in the third and before half time was reached had plowed through for a touchdown. The score followed a continuous 75-yard march up the field, the feature of which was a 20-yard sprint by young Mr. Kirn.

Kirn Drives Across.

Navy's second touchdown came on a break. Morton's punt from his own 35-yard line was blocked by Gray. Moret, snatching up the ball, raced to the 12-yard line before being downed. The Navy then gave the ball to Kirn and, in four successive drives into the line, he took it over. Bauer forward passed to Clifton for the extra point.

Dartmouth waited until seven minutes before the end of the game to score, taking advantage of one of Bowstrom's few poor punts to shove across its lone tally.

Poor Punt Brings Punishment.

Kicking from his own 15-yard line, Bowstrom's boot rolled but to the 35-yard stripe. A five-yard penalty aided Dartmouth to get a first down on the Middies' 21-yard line. After two weak line plunges, McCall made a beautiful running catch of Wolff's pass for a touchdown. Martin's drop kick for the extra point was blocked.

From this point on Navy assumed a defensive attitude and spent its time knocking down Dartmouth's long and desperate passes. Some 45,000 people were in the stands.

COAST BOBS UP BID FOR GAME

San Francisco Planning Match St. Mary's and Eastern Team.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The undefeated St. Mary's college football team of Moraga, Cal., today was selected to represent the west in an intersectional game which the Junior Chamber of Commerce here is seeking to arrange for Saturday, Dec. 21.

Invitations were sent to Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Tulane and Southern Methodist university of Texas, as first, second, third and fourth choice teams to represent the east.

Rockne Talks of 1930.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Knute Rockne closed the greatest football season of his career here this afternoon with a smile as the news was relayed to him that Notre Dame had defeated Army 7 to 0.

Rockne was kept at home because of an infected leg. His first thought when it was over was for the seven players he loses next spring by graduation—Captain Law, Cannon, Twomey, Nash, Monyihan, Elder and Colerick, all of whom played their last game in New York today except Monyihan, out with a broken ankle.

"The loss of those seven boys looks irreparable," said Rockne, propped up in his bed, "but we have lost fine players before and, in due itme, I hope that their places will be filled.

"This year's team had as stout a heart and fine determination and courage as any team we have ever had.

"They probably reached the high spot in the Southern California game."

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The matter of the 1929 football championship in the Nebraska Intercollegiate conference will be the subject of much discussion in Chadron and Peru circles during the winter season.

The Eagles and Bobcats are deadlocked in a tie for the conference leadership in the N. I. A. A. circuit and attempts to get the two teams together in a post-season combat have been to no avail. Final disposition of the football situation will be made at the December meeting of the conference and the collegiate dads are expected to decide it a draw and congratulate both elevens.

Comparative Scores.

The Chadron-Peru championship dispute shows just how much confidence can be placed in comparative scores. Kearney, a team which Chadron beat, 18-7, was swamped by Peru, 45-0. The Bobcats polished off Omaha university, 50-0; while the best Chadron culd do was 33-13. Chadron lost to Wayne Teachers, a team which Peru swamped, 39-0.

The fact remains, however, that the Eagles stopped the Bobcats on Armistic day and turned in a 9-2 victory—the only reverse of the season for Coach Lon Graf's Pedagogues.

Win Outside State.

Chadron and Peru each carried the conference banner victoriously in outside contests. The Eagles beat Spearfish, South Dakota Mines, Mt. St. Charles and St. Regis. The Bobcats bowled over Tarkio and St. Benedict. Each looked good in comparison with N. C. A. C. competition. Chadron smeared the Hastings record wtih a 27-0 defeat. Peru played Wesleyan a scoreless tie and beat the Methodist 7-0 in the second game.

Chadron was at its peak in midseason, playing its best ball against Peru, after a very fine early season start in which the Eagles spilled Mt. St. Charles and St. Regis.

Peru got away to a slow start and uncorked a particularly strong offensive in the Kearney and Omaha games.

Omaha Has Good Season.

University of Omaha, under Warren Howard, had a good season. The Cardinals enjoyed some improved material this year and, aside from the Peru game, the Omaha collegians gave a good account of themselves.

Wayne Teachers played in-and-out football, reaching their peak in the 7-0 victory over Chadron Teachers in the final game. Dana college failed to engage in any conferece competition.

Coach F. B. Moon's Cotner college eleven swept through to an undefeated season in the Nebraska College Athletic conference. The Bulldogs won over Wesleyan, Doane, Central, Grand Island and York.

Cotner's Veteran Crew.

The Cotner mentor started building his championship team last year and, with a plentiful supply of veterans on the 1929 roster, the Blue and White breezed through the conference schedule without a skip. A 12-0 reverse at Chillicothe (Mo.) Business college was the only defeat on the Bulldog slate. This was prior to the championship game with Doane and the Bulldogs were devoting all their attention to the titular tilt.

Coach Roy Pierce's Doane eleven was the surprise of the circuit. The Tigers were shy veteran performers in important positions, but the Congregationalists presented a defense which was plenty powerful and the offense had sufficient power when the breaks presented themselves. Doane lost only to Cotner, brushing aside all other conference opposition.

Midland Up and Down.

Midland college was up and down during the season, the Lutherans playing their best ball at Wesleyan when they turned in a 12-0 victory over the Methodists, the first time a Midlad eleven ever was able to lift the Wesleyan scalp.

Hastings college was hard hit by graduation and injuries. Loss of McCrady by graduation left Coach "Brigham" Young with the task of developing a new triple-threater. Injury to Tower, who filled McCrady's shoes, cost the Bronchos in the late season games.

Wesleyan closed a rather disastrous season in surprising shape. The Methodists upset Hastings, 13-7, in a Turkey day battle at Hastings and that went a long way toward removing the sting of previous defeats. Wesleyan also turned in a good game in playing Peru Teachers to 0-0 and 0-7 scores. Coach F. F. Alabaster was handicapped by a persistent injury jinx.

York college won a lone victory by edging out Grand Island in the Thanksgiving day finale. It left the Zebras without a victory, although they gleaned some satisfaction in being able to cross Cotner, Midland, Doane and Wesleyan goal lines.

Central got its only conference victory at York's expense. These three institutions had little material and were destined from the start to finish well down the ladder.

DR. J. R. CAMPBELL DEAD.

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Dr. J. R. Campbell, 81, professor of education at Oklahoma A. & M. College, died late today. He became unconscious at noon. Physicians said death was caused by a stomach ailment. Dr. Campbell was the first president of Southwestern State Teachers college at Weatherford, Okla. Rapid growth of that institution has been credited largely to the work of the pioneer Oklahoma educator. He came to A. & M. college in 1921 and has been affiliated with the education department here since that time.

Gridiron Letters At Havelock High

Twenty-three team football letters and one student manager award will be made by Havelock high school this year, Coach Paul Delaporte announced Saturday. Five members of the 1929 squad will be lost next season, only three of which were regulars. This group includes Capt. Austin Mellen, guard, who will receive his third letter, Orville Smith, center, and Gus Frueaf and John Bourke, guards, who will receive their second letter, and Will Haberlan, halfback, who is to receive his first award.

John Frueauf, tackle, is the only returning gridster who will receive his third letter, while Ed Finning, fullback; George Haberlan, quarterback; Merle Headrick, end, and Robert Harrison, center, will be given their second letters.

Letters to first-year men who will return next fall follow: Bud Young, tackle; Sterling Helvey, Murrell Herling and Dave Smith, ends; George Bailey, Herbert Hill and Frank Medine, guards; Harold Hustad, center; Dan Dormer, Harley Law and Hal Smith, halfbacks; Harold Jones, quarterback; Hervey Ewing, fullback; and Ralph Erickson, student manager.

Letters will be presented at a school convocation later. A captain for the 1930 team will be selected this week and announced at the annual football banquet Thursday night.

OLIVER WILSON BROUGHT BACK

Prisoner Faces Charges Of Escaping Custody And Stealing Car.

Declares Visited Here Twice Since Made Getaway.

Oliver P. Wilson, who escaped from county officers September 17, was returned to Lincoln late Saturday night, from Gillette, Wyo., by Deputy Sheriff James Davis. Wilson escaped a day after being sentenced to serve from 1 to 20 years in the state reformatory on a forgery count.

Charges of escaping custody and of automobile theft will be filed against Wilson, County Attorney Towle announced Saturday afternoon. Both are penitentiary offenses.

Wilson visited Lincoln twice after he escaped and started to work on a Wyoming ranch, he revealed Saturday night. He made the trip here by bus two times in October in company with the owners of the ranch on which he was working, he declared.

Escaped Over Roof.

He escaped in September while waiting to be examined in the clinic at the city jail, by going through a window and then climbing down a roof. He secured a car near the Burlington station which he was forced to abandon two miles west and one-half mile south of the reformatory because of car trouble.

Then for several days he hid in a corn field and raided the summer home of Dr. W. H. Griffiths, one and a half mile west of the state hospital, to secure provisions. Three days after his escape he took a car belonging to Ralph Raikes from in front of the state hospital and headed for Buffalo, Wyo. He secured fuel by siphoning gas from tractors.

Used His Own Name.

Although he changed the license plates on the car Wilson went under his own name while working in Wyoming. He came with his employers to Lincoln so that they would not become suspicious that he was an escaped prisoner. While here he stayed at a hotel and at a rooming house.

Wyoming officers finally discovered his identity by means of pictures and of the car. The auto, which had been driven less than 2,000 miles, now has gone over 8,000 miles.

County Sheriff Hensel and Deputy Sheriff Hulfish were at the train when Wilson arrived at 11:45 o'clock Saturday night in custody of Deputy Sheriff Davis.

EDMISTON SAYS OUTLOOK GOOD

Predicts Favorable Year At Meeting Of Life Insurance Agents.

The outlook for sales of life insurance in the next year is most rosy A. R. Edmiston, general agent of southern Nebraska for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., told twenty members of his sales force in attendance at an all-day agency meeting Saturday. The belief that when stock speculation ends life insurance will increase in favor among investors was also stressed.

Because of increased value of crops, farmers are spending more liberally and will do so in the future. Agency business in the last month was the largest in five years which would tend to bear out the prediction for next year, according to Mr. Edmiston.

T. B. Strain, vice president of the Continental National bank, addressed the agency members at a luncheon which followed the morning session. He stressed that disagreeable results of stock speculation would end as soon as people went back to work and ceased dreaming of easy money.

Details of the company's expansion program were furnished by Mark S. Trueblood of Cincinnati, agency supervisor of the company. At the morning meeting short talks were made by F. H. Eldredge, R. H. Edmiston, George C. Hill, Sepeca B. Yule and E. L. Hevelone.

Japanese Depart For Naval Parley

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Nov. 30 —(UP)—The Japanese naval delegation, headed by former Prime Minster Reijero Wakatsuki, sailed today for Seattle, enroute to London.

The delegation conferred with Premier Yuko Hamaguchi yesterday to complete final preparations for the five-power conference, which will be held in London in January.

HUNTER WITNESS FOR M'CORMICK

Says Improvement Shown By Incompetent Heir 'Almost Miracle.'

Hearing to Oust Brother and Sister as Guardians is Delayed.

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The Stanley McCormick guardianship hearing stood adjourned tonight until Thursday because Judge William Dehey found that he was required to return to his home in Inyo county to transact other business.

The last witness heard today was the most important placed on the stand—Robert Hunter, who knew the incompetent heir to $50,000,000 of harvester wealth when both were young artists in France.

Hunter testified after being called to the stand by attorneys for Harold McCormick, brother, and Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, sister of Stanley, that his friend appeared normal during their artist days. He said they were acquainted in Paris from 1897 to 1904.

The brother and sister are contesting the efforts of Mrs. Katherine McCormick, wife of the millionaire heir, to oust them from his joint guardianship.

Hunter next saw McCormick at the latter's estate in 1918, he said. He was refused admittance, but saw McCormick peering from a barred window, he testified.

The next day, on an order from the doctor, he was permitted to see McCormick. McCormick was excited and fairly leaped toward him, appearing deranged, said Hunter.

Almost a Miracle.

"Almost a miracle," was the contrast when Hunter saw McCormick again in June of this year, he said. McCormick was described by the witness then as poised, an exceptional conversationalist and apparently normal in all respects.

Cross-examination brought out that Dr. Kempf, whose treatment of McCormick is attacked by his wife, arranged the time of the 1929 meeting, carrying out the implication in Mrs. McCormick's attack that the doctor selected a time when the patient was enjoying one of the best periods.

Kenneth McKillip, nurse and guard for McCormick for sixteen years, was recalled to the stand to resist an implication that the millionaire once sought to hurl himself under a train.

McKillip's story said that a friendly dog joined them one day in the fall of 1927 when they were walking near a railroad track. McCormick became nervous, said McKillip, when the dog ran onto the tracks as a train approached and whistled at the animal.

When it did not respond, the witness related, McCormick started to run forward, but was restrained by attendants, while the dog escaped of its own volition.

EX-PASTOR GETS $20,000 DAMAGES

Jury Gives Illinois Man Large Sum in Libel Case.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 30—(INS)—John A. L. Warren, unfrocked Methodist minister of Durand, Ill., was awarded $20,000 damages by a jury here today, who found five members of Warren's former parish guilty of slander and libel. Defense counsel immediately made a motion for a new trial. Judge A. E. Fisher said he would hear arguments within two weeks.

Warren's attorneys, meanwhile, announced their intention of filing a second sut for $100,000 against the Rev. Frank Sheets and the Rev. C. K. Carpenter, Judd Van Sickle and George Fritz. The latter two were defendants in the first suit of $50,000.

Rev. Mr. Sheets acted as Warren's prosecutor at the Rock River Conference at Oak Park in 1927, while Rev. Mr. Carpenter, former secretary of the conference, received Hazel Lamb's charges and placed them before the conference.

In filing the suit charging the five defendants, Warren declared that they "framed" the charges brought against him by Hazel Lamb, maid in his parsonage, which brought his expulsion from the church.

Those found guilty today were Judd Van Sickle, George Fritz, Albert E. Swinson. The case went to the jury today after defense counsel waived final arguments.

INSTITUTE WILL CONVENE HERE

Professional Group To Hold 1930 Meeting In Lincoln.

The next national convention of the American Inter-Professional Institute will be held in Lincoln, October 10 and 11 of next year, according to an announcement of H. H. Wilson, president of the Lincoln chapter at a meeting of the organization Saturday at the Lincoln hotel. The announcement was made in a report of the proceedings of the national board of directors' meeting held at Sioux City Ia., November 17 at which Dr. B. F. Bailey of Lincoln, national president, presided.

He declared that the institute will endeavor to procure a charter from the federal government to place it on the same basis as the National Red Cross and the National Geographic society. It was stated that a committee had been appointed to attend to plans of expansion and organization of other societies.

Selections from an editorial in The Star of November 26 concerning the recent statement of Dr. H. von W. Schulte, dean of Creighton medical college, before the Omaha institute when he declared that more could be accomplished by the club if reporters were barred from meetings was read by Dr. Bailey. "We not only welcome the representatives of the press at our meetings but are glad to have our proceedings made public," he said. "We have nothing to conceal."

BANDITS GET $4,000.

SAUK CITY, Wis., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Two youthful bandits, working with casual precision, locked Lawrence Sprecker, cashier of the Blackhawk, Wis., bank, in the vault late today and escaped with $4,000 in cash. Several thousand dollars in securities were not touched.

Nine Lost In Storm; Many Are Stranded

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Nine hunters are missing and thirty-three parties in automobiles are stranded in deep snow in the heart of the deer country.

Fear is felt for the missing men, who were in the launch Betty B., on the Tahquamenon river. The auto expeditions are caught in snow twenty-eight inches deep twelve miles north of Eckerman, Chippewa county. Conservation Officer Fred Sanderson reports some of the men nearly frozen.

Three teams of horses and sleds are battling their way through the snow and blizzard from the Sheldon lumber camp in an effort to rescue the hunters.

Similar plights are reported in other hunting areas. The county to the aid of the snowbound.
to the aid o fthe snowbound.

Ships Bottled Up.

Ninety-one steamers and 1,800 men also are feeling the full force of a terrific blizzard sweeping over upper lakes. Other ships are bottled in Lake Superior harbors. These carry millions of dollars worth of grain.

The storm is one of the worst on record for November. Snow has been falling for thirty-six hours. Traffic in the St. Mary's river from the Sault to Detour has been at a standstill for forty-eight hours.

Thirty-five steamers, days overdue, are clinging to the coast at Whitefish Point.

Repetition of 1926 and 1927 ice blockades, costing shippers millions, is regarded as a certainty.

COLLEGE TEAMS JUDGE ANIMALS

Students Grade Entries at Chicago International Exposition.

Emma Goecke in Line to Keep Grand Championship in Family.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The cream of collegiate livestock judges from the United States and Canada passed judgment today on the best the world has produced in the way of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs at the opening of the thirtieth annual international livestock exposition at the Chicago stock yards.

One hundred and forty-one college men and one co-ed made life miserable all day for the test animals in the arena as they poked and prodded the herds and then marked their judgment down on little white cards.

Tonight the judges started their long task of tabulating the result and hoped to finish by tomorrow afternoon.

Twenty-one universities and agricultural chools, including two Canadian institutions, were represented in the crowds of serious-faced students.

Lone Co-Ed Judge.

Miss Evangeline Simmons of the Colorado State agricultural college team was the lone co-ed in the ring. Clad in a fur coat, patent leather pumps and a green silk dress, she elbowed her way to the circles around the animals, viewed them from all sides and marked her judgment on a white card. Only once did she wrinkle her brow before she put her judgment on paper.

Three huge perchons were led into the arena and Miss Simmons, along with the rest of the collegians, gathered about. She walked slowly around the horses, chewed the end of her pencil, frowned and seemed hesitant. Another collegiate looked at the horses' teeth and Miss Simmons looked over his shoulder. Then she wrote her opinion.

Have Miserable Day.

The cattle bawled, the sheep baaed and the hogs grunted when the collegians with their canes, the universal accoutrement of all stock men, poked at their ribs. By the time the entire 142 had inspected them to their hearts content, the animals had spent a miserable day and voiced it to their keepers.

In another arena, boys and girls from farms all over the country, exhibited the calves they had fed and nutured to win a prize. Little fellows, hardly tall enough to see over the backs of their animals, tugged and pulled at the lead ropes to get the calves into line.

The program said the animals were calves, but to the city man they appeared to be full sized cows, or rather cattle—there are no cows at a livestock show, the veterans remarked.

Judging of the many entries according to class began today.

Miss Goecke Wins.

Chief among the girl entries was Emma Goecke, State Center, Ia., sister of Clarence Goecke, who last year won the grand championship with his steer and went home with almost $10,000 jingling in his pockets. Emma, who was forced to exhibit his calf last year when he got so bashful he wouldn't enter the ring, took part of that prize money and went this year to Iowa State at Ames.

Today she won the blue ribbon in both the senior and junior hereford class, which puts her in the running for the prize her brother took last year.

Emma, who is 16 and pretty, took the plaudits of the crowd modestly, saying she did not think she "had any chance" to duplicate the feat of her brother.

"Two championships in the same year are too many for one family," she said.

Mix is Operated Upon For Shoulder Injury

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Tom Mix, screen cowboy, today was reported to be resting easily following an operation on his shoulder here last night.

Doctors reported it was necessary to wire his shoulder blade into place and sew several ligaments. Mix suffered a broken shoulder when thrown from a horse at Dallas, Tex., on September 9. After Mix had complained of pains in the injured shoulder, physicians deemed an operation necessary.

Doctors said Mix would be in the hospital for at least three weeks.

RUSSO-CHINESE DISPUTE STIRS POWERS TO ACT

Four Nations Join U. S. In Trying To Prevent Further Hostilities.

Report No New Clashes On Strife-Torn Border.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.)—The world powers signatory to the anti-war treaty were understood tonight to have decided the grievance between China and Russia has reached such a stage that further inaction on their parts would be unwise.

Four nations, Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany, have pledged their wholehearted co-operation with the United States for the prevention of hostilities. Japan has not decided what method she cares to follow in the war-prevention move, it was understood.

Possibility of the world powers sending a reminder to the disgruntled nations that they are signatories to the Kellogg-Briand treaty for the renunciation of war, or employing some other method designed to still their guns was discussed tonight in diplomatic circles despite the meager announcement of the state department.

Stimson Issues Statement.

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, issued the following statement at 6 p. m.:

"A series of conferences and discussions with various of the principal powers are continuing over the situation in Manchuria."

The half-year controversy in the far east flared up when China seized the Russian-built Chinese Eastern railway and arrested some of the Russian rail officials. Intermittent fights and bombings by soviet airplanes along the border has followed.

Stimson's program today indicated to observers that he is not regarding the possibility of combat between the countries with mild concern.

In the morning he and Assistant Secretary of State Nelson T. Johnson conferred with President Hoover. They spent the remainder of the day holding conferences with executives of the department's far eastern service and finally the ambassadors of Japan and Germany and the charge d'affaires of Great Britain called to see Stimson. Later C. C. Wu, Chinese minister, called and conferred with Johnson and Peter Norbeck, chief of the far eastern service of the department.

Earlier in the day the department believed the Mukden government was ready to negotiate direct with soviet Russia in an attempt to settle the dispute. What developments that were later that might have changed the situation was still obscure when Stimson closed his desk tonight.

TRAIN WRECKED FEAR SIX KILLED

Report Between 50 And 60 Injured In Accident Near Onley, Va.

NORTHAMPTON, Va., Dec. 1—(U. P.)—Six persons were reported killed and between fifty and sixty injured early this morning when a Pennsylvania railroad express train from Norfolk to New York was wrecked near Onley, Va.

The dead and injured were being brought here by emergency crews of workmen. Details of the wreck were meager and due to confusion of aiding the injured, trainmen were unable to give information.

The train was running on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk division of the Pennsylvania lines.

No further estimate of the dead could be obtained, but hospital attendants here said "at least six were killed."

DRYS OPPOSING SHEPPARD PLAN

Proposal to Punish the Buyers of Liquor Faces Defeat.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Legislation to make buying of liquor, as well as selling, a violation of the national prohibition act probably will be blocked in the forthcoming session of congress as a result of dissension in the ranks of the drys.

With Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, prepared to introduce the bill penalizing liquor buyers, many pronounced drys in both senate and house are either opposed to the measure or unwilling to bring the issue to a head this winter.

The split in the dry forces, which became pronounced among the leaders of the many national prohibition societies, is declared to be especially pronounced in the house, which is overwhelmingly dry. The house drys have usually followed the administration's policy in liquor legislation, and opposition of Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran to the Sheppard proposal has had a telling effect.

Strong Opposition.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, titular leader of the house drys, declined to endorse the Sheppard plan today. He refused to make any comment on the proposal and many other house drys have declined to commit themselves. Representative Graham, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the house judiciary committee, which would handle the bill, is strongly opposed to it.

The contest over the Sheppard plan may prove to be a contest for leadership of the dry forces of the country. Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America and Wayne B. Wheeler's successor has refused to sponsor it. On the other hand Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist board of temperance and morals, and Bishop James Cannon jr., leader of southern dry forces, are strongly for it.

The overwhelming vote by which congress passed the Jones-Stalker law providing a maximum five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine for liquor law violators is said to have encouraged the extreme dry leaders in their fight for an air-tight prohibition law.

POLICE SEEKING SENDER OF BOMB

Explosive Mailed From Coast Mangles Young Man in Tennessee.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Police and federal authorities late today believed they were close on the trail of the Los Angeles sender of a bomb which mangled a man in Knoxville, Tenn., and injured three other persons.

Investigations revealed a letter which the bomber sent to the Western Union Telegraph Co., along with a telegram which was intended to stop the receiver from opening the deadly package in the distant city.

"If you want to save a life send this telegram," read the letter to the Western Union main office. "I am broke."

The sender signed his name "Dementia."

Enclosed with the letter was a telegram to Donald Scott, 26-year-old railway mechanic, who formerly lived in Los Angeles. The telegram read:

"Do not open package. It will explode. Throw it in river."

The telegram likewise was signed "Dementia," the medical name for a form of insanity known as "dementia praecox."

The telegram which would have saved Scott from serious injury, arrived in Knoxville twenty-five minutes after Scott opened the package and was felled by an explosion.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:

1 Time	.12
3 Times	.10
7 Times	.09

These offices are open to receive advertisements from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. daily. All advertisements received up until 12:30 p. m., will appear in all city editions the same day. All ads received between 12:30 p. m. and 10:00 p. m., will appear in all editions the folowing day.

AUTOMOTIVE NEWS

EUROPEAN DEMAND FOR STATES' CARS SHOWS INCREASE

The people of Europe are turning to America for the latest developments in automotive design and performance because they recognize the engineering improvements and value incorporated in American-built cars, according to E. C. Morse, president of the Chrysler Export corporation, who has just returned to Detroit—after a four months' stay in Europe.

"Regardless of tariff or national prejudices, European motorists will buy their cars where they can get the best values. From my observations, there will be a continued increase in the demand for American automotive products in the overseas market," Mr. Morse said.

"European buyers are insisting on style, performance, economy and dependability in the operation of their automobiles, and they demand an established dealer organization marketing the cars they purchase. At different meetings held with Chrysler, Dodge, DeSoto and Plymouth distributors representing all the larger cities in Europe, there were definite well-founded expressions that 1930 would mark a profitable and increased market for American-built passenger cars and trucks that fill every requirement of European motoists."

BUSINESS IS ON SOUND FOOTING, SAYS C. W. NASH

In a personal letter to the Nash dealer organization, C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors Co., states that "there is nothing wrong with general business conditions in our country at all," and predicts that next spring will see a very normal business.

"I am willing to admit that in some sections of the country the automobile business is suffering a little. In other parts of our territory sales are running ahead of last year at this time.

"I have never known a time when general business conditions were on a more sound footing than the present time. The country has been blessed with a bountiful harvest; prices of farm products are at a very satisfactory point; stock has done exceptionally well and brought a splendid price. Other commodities coming from the ground, such as copper, iron, etc., are at a very good price The history of the American people is that when they have money they spend it. There is no shortage of money; the banks are loaded with cash. The indications are that we are going to have cheaper money in 1930 than in 1929; and just the moment those who have been intoxicated with speculation are sufficiently sobered up, you will find that business will go along about in a normal way."

The strain caused by rough spots in the street, uneven car tracks nad other obstructions can be avoided by releasing the clutch and allowing the car to coast over these places.

DESOTO ACHIEVES HIGH RANKING IN PERIOD 17 MONTHS

Emulating the success of Hernando DeSoto, dauntlets explorer and discoverer of the Mississippi river, the DeSoto automobile has achieved a remarkably high ranking among automobiles in the comparatively short period of time that it has been manufactured, declares L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the DeSoto Motor corporation.

"Starting in August, 1928, a new car, unknown to the general public and with no sales organization to sell it, the DeSoto today has reached a commanding position in the field of low price sixes," declares Mr. Peed. "In addition to building up a gigantic merchandising organization that covers not only this country but every civilized country in the world, 81,065 cars had been built and sold. The one hundred thousandth car was produced during the fourteenth month of manufacture and now, at the end of seventeen months, the production and sales figures are still rising rapidly.

"During 1930, DeSoto expects to sustain the remarkable pace it has set thus far," Mr. Peed continued. "The DeSoto is a tried and proven product and the sales organization is no longer in the formative stage. DeSoto justifies the faith that the automobile-buying public has put into it."

Auto Notes

An improperly adjusted brake wears quicker and is far less efficient than one that is in adjustment.

When parking, greater leverage is given by pulling on the rim of the steering wheel instead of the spokes.

Regular 30-day inspection of brakes whether two or four-wheel insures a driver of being able to "stop" when necessary.

The wiring of a car should be inspected every so often to insure against defects which may prove serious on the road.

If the speed of the car cannot be increased beyond ten miles an hour in second on a hill, the engine is laboring and it is best to shift to low.

A thin layer of vaseline spread over the battery posts and terminals will prevent corrosion that causes loose connections and finally eats away the metal.

Because of wear and tear, it is a good plan to replace the ignition cable about once a year.

Never turn the steering wheel the slightest degree when the car is in motion unless the road is clear to the right or left of the car.

The efficiency of a fan is reduced after the car has been in service for more than a year. Have the blades adjusted at a proper angle.

A slipping clutch is due to a weak or improperly adjusted spring, or to the condition of the clutch facing. Oil may have soaked into the leather or asbestos facing.

The principal parts which have a direct bearing on the starting of an engine are: Battery, starting motor, carburetor, spark plugs, ignition system and valves.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Engine Efficiency at High Temperature.

Running the car at low temperature results in wasted fuel, crankcase dilution, increased wear and poorer all-round performance. Most engines operate with greatest efficiency when the temperature of the fluid in the cooling system averages about 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

Vibration Injurious to Cylinders.

An engine that is subject to considerable vibration is liable to have its cylinders work loose on the crank case through the loosening of the holding-down bolts, or nuts if they are not watched. A wrench should be applied occasionally to make sure that everything is tight. The trouble that arises from loose cylinders runs all the way from leakage of oil to a wrecked engine.

Oil Ruins Wire Covering.

Because oil has a disintegrating effect, not only on rubber but on cotton and fabric as well, care should be taken to see that the wiring for electric lighting and engine starting system is well protected. If oil is permitted to remain on the wiring, the insulation will in time be softened so that the slightest chafing will cause the bare copper to be exposed and a short circuit or a leakage of current follow.

To Get Dents Out of Fender.

A slight dent in a fender may be remedied without damage to the paint with a little care. Two hardwood blocks should be obtained, one shaped to the curve of the under part of the fender at the dent and the other curved to the contour of the upper surface of the fender. While the one block is held under the dent, the other is held above it, and hit with a hammer until the dent is smoothed out. It may be well to heat the underside of the fender with a blow torch to prevent the paint cracking. The heat should not be too great or the paint will be burned.

Lighter Oils for Winter Months.

Lighter grades of both engine and chassis lubrcants are needed in cold weather. With the first signs of cold weather the car owner should change the fluid or solid-bodied lubricant in the transmission and differential. Before the fresh lubricant is put in these parts, they should be flushed thoroughly.

Wise Stoppers.

Reckless stopping is becoming recognized as a large part of reckless driving. The motorist who comes to an abrupt stop without giving plenty of warning to the car or the truck behisd him is courting a lot of trouble. It is a wise plan to keep brakes in good repair and adjustment. The car can be stopped very abruptly. The driver behind may not be so wise. Perhaps his wits move a little sluggishly and his brakes do not take hold as quickly A heavily loaded truck cannot be stopped as readily as a passenger car. It is a good idea, therefore, to imagine that all cars behind are "slow stoppers," and act accordingly.

Accidents the Good Driver Avoids.

Crashing into the car ahead, because he keeps back his proper distance and allows himself time to stop.

Rear-end collisions, because he uses his rear-sight mirror to keep a check on the man behind and signals him his intention of stopping in time.

Sideswiping, because when he decides to pass the car ahead he announces his intention with the horn, to make sure the road in front is clear and then swings out and around in a wide, easy curve that leads the other car plenty of room.

Being sideswiped, because when the man behind sounds the horn to pass, the good driver gives him the road and does not speed up in an attempt to "freeze him out" or swing over toward the middle of the road to squeeze him out.

Head-on collisions, because good drivers are sure the road ahead is free from oncoming cars before trying to pass a car traveling in the same direction.

Going into the ditch usually occurs at night, and good drivers carry road lamps or spot lamps which enable them to keep on the road, in spite of fog or the glare of oncoming cars.

Grade crossing smashups are avoided by good drivers not trying to beat a train across and by never merrily sailing around the car ahead whichhad the good sense to stop when it saw an approaching train which was hidden from the cars behind.

Danger Shines Through Wet Windshield.

A driver who attempts to operate his car when rain flows over the surface of the windshield faces danger, especially at night when light from approaching cars is magnified by raindrops blinding the driver. If the car is not equipped with an automatic windshield wiper, apply a solution to the glass to clear the vision. One that has proved satisfactory contains a mixture of two ounces of glycerine and one ounce of water and one dram of salt. Apply with a soft cloth, rubbing up and down.

Choice of Anti-Freeze Solutions.

Denatured alcohol is cheaper than glycerin as an anti-freeze solution for the radiator, but is more volatile. It evaporates at a temperature of 180 degrees. Glycerin, on the other hand, is nonvolatile up to a temperature of 225 degrees. A temperature of 180 degrees is not beyond the efficient operating range of any modern engine. Only in case of some mechanical defect would a temperature of 225 be reached. This means that, while alcohol costs liss initially, it may cost more in the long run, depending upon a number of conditions.

Causes of Hot Radiator.

There are various reasons why the water in the radiator becomes hot and boils. Foremost is the condition of the hose connections. If the rubber tubing is not new it becomes soft and the inside layer loosens and partly stops the circulation. A loose fan belt will cause a reduction of air circulating around the cells of the radiator. Scale and sediment in the water will also cause the circulating system to get hot. An advanced spark, poor quality of oil, and dragging brakes can be figured in the other causes of this trouble.

Dirty Fuel Line Causes Carburetor Trouble.

Very often trouble with the carburetor can be eliminated by removing the pipe line and cleaning the same. Usually there is a strainer at the base of the carburetor, or at some point in the fuel line. This strainer, or trap, frequently becomes clogged to such an extent that the carburetor does not obtain sufficient flow of gasoline. Before changing the adjustment of the carburetor it is advisable to determine whether there are any obstructions and remove same from line.

Short Circuit in Electrical System.

A short circuit gives more trouble in the electrical system than anything else. This may be caused by a worn or oil-soaked wire, to defects in the units themselves, but also they are found at the ends of the wires and binding posts. The ends or terminals of the wires are necessarily bare, and often they are so bent or attached to their binding posts so that a small portion comes in contact with the metal of the instrument or engine. A drop of water, due possibly to the condensation of the moisture in the air, will often cause a short circuit, especially in the secondary or high tension system.

Cleaning the Car.

Get accustomed to having the car cleaned at frequent intervals. It would be best, of course, to have this done each time the car comes from the road and really requires washing, but often owners allow mud to accumulate. Small particles of sand make their way to the moving parts, especially those of the running gear. The steering knuckles, the drag link and steering cross rods, the universals and brakes, etc., are parts which never should be allowed to remain covered with dirt and mud. A good washing may save twice as much in repairs. Have a hired washer do the work, for he has the equipment and knows how best to remove all the dirt.

Attention to Muffler.

The muffler deserves careful consideration every once in a while, if the operator cares much for efficiency and ecopomical operation. This exhaust silencer has a great number of very small openings on the inside of the chamber which become clogged with soot and carbon from the cylinders. The deposit collects very rapidly, especially when the grade of the oil is poor or too much oil is used. It also results when the carbureter is adjusted to give too rich a mixture. When these small openings become clogged the exhaust gas cannot escape readily and naturally the cylinder of the engine is not clean at the exhaust stroke. Result: It is impossible to bring in a full cylinder of new gas on the next intake stroke. There is not a full charge to explode an dthis means a loss of power to the engine.

Prolong the life of the car by studying the oil needs of the engine.

Always open the throttle slowly to give the engine a chance to pick up gradually.

The battery is weak if headlights are very dim at low car speeds and very bright when going faster.

Be prepared for bad weather by having the skid chains in good condition and ready for use when needed.

Look carefully over the steering connections. Especially if the car has been used several years, there may be a weak part that needs replacing.

The drip pan under the engine should be kept clean. The absence of old oil and gasoline may prevent a destructive fire should there be a back fire, due to lean mixture of the carburetor.

Because there is more vibration in light cars, there will also be found more loose nuts, bolts, etc. To overcome this condition it is wise to consider lock washers, split pins and other trouble preventers.

Sudden starting and stopping is not only hard on tires, but it is bad for the whole car.

Have the mixture enriched when the engine begins to "cough," or there is a popping of the carburetor.

When parking in a storm, always point the car away from the direction of the downpour of rain. This will prevent the ignition from getting wet.

Cold gasoline needs a hot spark, and because of this condition the battery, ignition cables and spark plugs should be in efficient working order for the winter months.

Their Honeymoon by Parachute

IF ONLY THE BEST IS GOOD ENOUGH
GIVE A 1930 NASH "400"

IF you think you've experienced all the pleasure Christmas has to offer, give your family a 1930 Nash "400" on December 25. There's a thrill in giving or receiving a car so different from the rank and file of motor cars. In the Twin-Ignition Eight, the Twin-Ignition Six, and the Single Six, Nash engineering has introduced one new feature after another to add pleasure to the pleasure of motoring. Here are refinements hitherto confined to very costly motor cars and others that are entirely new. When only the best is good enough—give a 1930 Nash "400."

What could please your family more than to find a smart, new De Soto Six standing at the curb Christmas morning?

Surely, no gift could be more appropriate. And it so happens that right now is the best time of all the year to trade your old car for a new one.

In a few weeks, calendars will read "1930"—and the appraisal value of your old car will be materially reduced. Right now, used car stocks are relatively low, and the wisdom of December buying is being rewarded by more attractive trade-in allowances.

Drive your old car in today for an appraisal. This will not obligate you to buy—but if you want delivery of a new De Soto Six by Christmas, an order placed this week will assure it.

Lincoln People Busily Planning For Christmas

Although Majority Will Spend Holidays At Home With Their Families And Close Friends, A Few Are Arranging To Visit In Warmer Climes During Yuletide.

With Christmas just three weeks and three days in the distance, plans for the holiday season are already beginning to take shape. Some more fortunate persons are going to warmer climes for the holidays, while the majority are remaining at home where they will spend Christmas day with their families and close friends.

Among those who are spending the Christmas season away from Lincoln are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brooks, who will leave the Saturday preceding Christmas for Richmondmond, Va., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Brooks' mother, Mrs. S. V. Merriman.

Mrs. Will H. Dorgan and little daughter, Annette, will leave in about ten days for California where they will spend the holidays and the remainder of the winter. Judge and Mrs. Charles Goss will go to Chicago for Christmas unless their daughter, Miss Catherine Goss, returns to Lincoln for the holidays.

Much Activity In Prospect.

There will be plenty of activity in Lincoln, however, judging from the number of affairs that have been planned for Christmas day.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart, for instance, already have invited their house party guests for Christmas eve and Christmas morning breakfast. In their list they have included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Talbot and two children, Nan and Harriett; Mrs. Helen Burnham and two daughters, Helen and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimball and son, Billy; Miss Anne Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder and daughter, Anne, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dierks and daughter, Ruth Louise. The guests will all arrive Christmas eve.

Mrs. M. W. Folsom is to entertain the members of her family at Christmas dinner this year. The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Folsom, Arnot Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ricketts and son, Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller and children of Omaha.

Family Groups to Entertain.

Judge and Mrs. C. B. Letton will have as their Christmas guests, their son, Harry B. Letton, Mrs. Harry Letton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kirby, Mrs. W. M. Morning and Mrs. N. A. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carlsen expect to remain at home for Christmas, with relatives as guests, as do Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Rowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Grainger will preside at dinner Christmas day for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grainger, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chenoweth and daughter, Justyn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods and children, Shirley and Thomas, jr., and Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Ladd.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Roberts will have as their Christmas guests, Mrs. Roberts' mother, Mrs. F. E. Hyde, her sister, Mrs. T. A. Kieselbach, Prof. Kiesselbach and family, and her brother, Dr. J. F. Hyde and Mrs. Hyde of Omaha.

Woods To Visit Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woods and Frank Woods, jr., of Chicago, are expected to pend the holidays in Lincoln wtih their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods, although no definite plans have been made, due to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Woods are just returning from a trip to Shanghai.

Miss Margaret Ames, who is attending an art school in Washington, D. C., will return to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ames. Warren Pershing, who is attending Yale, will also spend the holiday season in Lincoln.

Mrs. Helen Burnham and children, the R. H. Talbots, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Chapin, will spend the Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Chapin.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Towle will entertain at Christmas, their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Cozier and Mr. Cozier of Cleveland, Curtis Towle, who is attending Princeton university, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Varney, jr., and Thomas Tiffany Varney III of Broken Bow.

Prenuptial Courtesies To Be Held

Grace Lintt Honoree at Shower Friday; Georgia DeVriendt to be Feted.

Gay parties which mark the interim between the engagements of popular girls and their weddings are adding a great deal to the jollity of the early winter season.

Miss Grace Lintt, who is to be a December bride, will be the honoree at a linen shower which Mrs. O. I. McGrew will give at her home, 2611 Y street, Friday evening. Contests will be the entertainment for the twenty-five guests and a supper is to be served informally. Mrs. McGrew plans to carry out a pink and white color scheme in the appointments.

A pantry shower for Miss Lintt is being arranged by Mrs. W. D. Lawrence at her home, 3903 Garfield street, Wednesday evening. Twenty-five guests will be bidden to spend the time informally. Holiday decorations will prevail and at the close of the party, a supper will be served.

Miss Weinhold Honored.

A pretty affair for Miss Thelma Weinhold was the dinner which Mrs. V. H. Edwards gave at her home, 2718 South Fourteenth street, Thursday evening. The eight guests were seated at a table gay with a center bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and spent the evening socially. Mrs. D. C. Williams of Kansas City was a guest.

Shower Is Planned.

An out of town shower for Miss GeorgiaDeVriendt will be given on Saturday evening by Miss Alice Rausher at her home in Sutton. All

Musicians Planning To Hold Dinner

A lovely affair of the mid-week will be the dinner of the active members of the student division of the Matinee Musicale Wednesday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Orchid colored tapers in low green holders, and orchid colored chrysanthemums in a low green bowl will be decorations for the table set for fifty.

After dinner talks will be given by Mrs. Royal Brewster, president of the Matinee Musicale; Mrs. Lillian Polley, and Miss Lucile Cline. Impromptu speeches will be made by members of the student division

Mrs. John Campbell Meakin To Be Honored During Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Herman James Are Among Lincoln Guests Of Past Week For Whom There Has Been Much Entertaining.

The social lull forecast for the week may be nothing more nor less than a hang-over from a mid-week holiday which always takes its toll of activities, and again it may be prophetic of what the season will be until the holidays.

However some interesting guests arriving during the week may do much to liven things up. Mrs. John Campbell Meakin of Montreal, Canada, arrives Wednesday to spend a short time with her brother, Fred G. Caldwell and Mrs. Caldwell. Dr. Meakin will join her on Friday, and they will leave again on Sunday. Even though the visit is short, a number of informal affairs have been crowded into a brief period.

Honor Former Residents.

President Herman James of the University of South Dakota at Vermillion and Mrs. James were the incentive for a number of affairs during the past week. They were Thanksgiving guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Davis. Saturday evening the Jiggs club, of which Mr. and Mrs. James were members during their residence in Lincoln, entertained at a dinner at the University club. There were sixteen pseent, and following dinner the men spent the time with chess and the ladies with bridge.

This morning, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Roberts are entertaining eight guests at breakfast as a courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. James.

Mrs. Flansburg Is Hostess.

Mrs. Philip McCullough who arrived a few months ago from Mexico City, and leaves Monday for Spain where she will join Mr. McCullough, and Mrs. Robert Wenger of Grand Island, shared honors at a party last Wednesday for which Mrs. Harry Flansburg was hostess at her home, 2301 Lake street. Following luncheon the afternoon was devoted to bridge.

Mrs. Dorgan Presides.

Mrs. Will H. Dorgan, 2144 A street, was hostess to fourteen guests at dinner Saturday evening at her home. An evening of bridge followed the dinner.

Mah Jongg Clubs Meets.

The Mah Jongg club met for dinner and an evening of bridge and Mah Jongg at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder, 1144 Crestdale road, Saturday evening. Dinner covers were arranged for thirty.

Wisons Giving Dinner.

Judge and Mrs. W. W. Wilson will preside at a dinner Thursday evening in the Garden room of Hotel Lincoln. Covers will be arranged at one table for thirty-two guests. Bridge will be the after dinner diversion.

Gridiron Dinner at Uni. Club

Nebraska Football Team, Coaches and Old Grads Will Gather Tuesday Evening.

Football enthusiasm will be revived Tuesday evening when the Nebraska football team and men of the University club get together for the first club gridiron dinner. Two hundred and fifty are expected to attend what may be consdiered the outstanding event of the week at the club.

Preceding dinner there will be an informal reception and Earl Cline will welcome the coaches and team on behalf of the University club.

Dr. H. W. Orr, Clayton Andrews, C. A. Wilson, Dr. J. J. Hompes, Roy Wythers, Dr. Stanley James, Roy Cochran, Don W. Stewart, H. C. Young, W. T. Irons, Dr. A. D. Munger, A. A. Tanner, G. W. Letitia Speice Becomes Bride of Stuart Hadley

Former Nebraska Students Married At First Congregational Church in Omaha; Minnie McCord To Become Bride of Egbert Ryan; Miss Bergsten Weds Edward A. Boerner.

Miss Letitia Speice, daughter of Mrs. Alice Speice of Columbus, became the bride of Stuart S. Hadley, son of Mrs. S. S. Hadley of Lincoln, Wednesday at 4 o'clock at the First Congregational church in Omaha. Only immediate relatives were present for the reading of the lines by the Rev. F. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Boardman E. Speice of Columbus were the only attendants.

Mrs. Speice wore old blue silk crepe, with flared tiers falling in an uneven hemline, and fashioned with collars and cuffs of eggshell crepe. With her frock, she wore a felt hat in the same shade, and a corsage of pink Ophelia roses.

The bride was gowned in gold flat crepe, made on the princess lines, and the circular skirt ended in an irregular line, longer in the back. Double inserted crepe frills were used on the close bodice, with a large back bow, and the long sleeves were finished with self-color buttons over folds of the material. Her hat was of leaf brown felt, and her flowers were formed into a corsage of English violets, lavender sweet peas, and sweetheart roses. Her only ornaments were an etched gold brooch and ear pendants, heirlooms her grandmother, Mrs. C. F. Elias, wore on her wedding day more than fifty years ago.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at Hotel Paxton. Covers were laid for the members of the bridal party and the relatives.

Mrs. Hadley attended the University of California and the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Hadley is a member of Phi Gamma Delta at the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadley will make their home in Columbus.

Children's Theater Plans Second Play for Saturday

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" Is Production Selected by Lincoln Junior League and Miss Alice Howell; Miss Katherine Masterson Will Direct Play at Temple.

Lincoln Junior League and Miss Alice Howell will present for the children of Lincoln, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," Saturday afternoon, December 7, as the second of a series of plays to be given this winter at the Children's theater. The play is under the direction of Miss Katherine Masterson.

That there is a desire for good plays for children in Lincoln was proved at the opening of the theater two weeks ago. Youngsters who came a bit late had to be turned away and every available seat and chair that could be put into the Temple theater in safety was used before the curtain rose on the first act of "Snow White."

Children's Theater Plans Second Play

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" has been dramatized from the story by Alice Hegan Rice, which has delighted both children and grown-ups for many years. The play has been simplified and cut in length in order to appeal to young children as well as older children and is full of funny scenes and characters that have an appeal for little children. It will be presented in three acts, the curtain to rise promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Entertainment will be furnished between acts as it was the last time in order to help keep small people from growing restless during the shifting of scenery.

The cast of characters will be as follows:

Mrs. Wiggs—Josephine Douglas.
Little Tommy—Gail Jenne.
Lovey Mary—Katherine Masterson.
Miss Hasey—Valerie Worrell.
Miss Lucy—Betty Evans.
Mrs. Eichorn—Charlotte Wells.
Mrs. Schultz — Helen Knollenberg.

Regional Women's Business Club Meet At Manitou, Colo

Grace A. Trott, District Chairman, Begins Laying Of Plans For Conference Next June; Preparations For Norfolk Sectional Meeting December 8 Nearly Complete.

Miss Grace A. Trott, chairman of the west central regional conference of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, has received word from the national organization that the conference will be held on June 16, 17 and 18 at Manitou, Colo.

Miss Trott received her appointment as chairman of the regional district from the national president last spring. She has been a club worker and organizer for a number of years, and was one of the first to work in the state organization, last year serving as state president. She is a past president of her local club and is active vice-president of BR, P. E. O. of Lincoln.

The west central division includes the states of Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico. The state presidents will form the program committee to work with Miss Trott. They are:

Wyoming, Miss Julia B. Freeborn, Cheyenne.

North Dakota, Miss Eleanor Bryson, Minot.

South Dakota, Miss Lilliam English, Yankton.

Colorado, Miss Hester M. Smith, Denver.

New Mexico, Miss Grace Bowman, Santa Fe.

Miss Mollie Lamb of Omaha was recently appointed transportation chairman. Other appointments for credentials and registration, finance, hospitality, local arrangements and publicity committee officers will be made within a few weeks.

The conference program will include federation activities along the following lines:

Officers' training class.
Parlimentary law practice.
Club mechanics.
Committee round tables.
Song leaders training class.
Emblem pageants and ceremonials.
Thrift activities, international relations, and degislature problems will also be discussed.

Plan Norfolk Sectional Meeting.

Following the plan of the national federation, the Nebraska Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs has organized five sectional meetings. The first to be held at Norfolk on December 8.

Miss Amy Wolt, president of the Norfolk club, is the 4th Division chairman. She is being assisted by Miss Dorothy Nott, state chairman of resolutions and public relations.

The object of the meeting is to acquaint business and professional woman with the advantages of the state and national federation. State President Anna T. Lisson will be present and will preside at the good fellowship dinner which will be held at 12:30 o'clock. Registration will begin at 10:30 o'clock and the meeting will convene at 11 o'clock. Miss Grace Trott, state chairman, will give talks on federation work. A member of the Norfolk club will speak on the topic, "What my club membership means to me."

The towns and their presidents that will be represented are:

Wayne, Miss Ethel Stephens.
Madison, Miss Nelle Palmer.
Columbus, Mrs. Myrtle Nanninga.

The Look Out Club.

"Safeguarding Health by Safeguarding Rest," proved to be an interesting topic to the members of the Look Out club at the home of Mrs. William Mann of Woodlawn Tuesday evening.

The members claimed that every normal person needs at least eight hours sleep out of the twenty-four, thus making it necessary to have good beds in which to spend one-third of our time. Practical ways of caring for the bedding with plenty of fresh air was also claimed to be a necessity.

Girl Reserves Plan City Christmas Vesper Service

Camp Fire Girls To Be Guests At Holiday Event December 8 At First Presbyterian Church; Irving High Club To Give Christmas Pageant At Orthopedic Hospital Thursday; New Leaders Announced.

The Girl Reserves of Lincoln will entertain the Camp Fire Girls at the city-wide vesper service at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon Dec. 8. A Christmas candle-lighting service in which many girls will have a part will be presented and carols will be sung by a chorus of Girl Reserves. Martha Hershey, president of the high school inter-club council, will preside.

The service had been previously arranged for Sunday afternoon Dec. 15, but due to the conflict with the traditional candle-lighting service of the First Presbyterian church, which large numbers of people attend annually, the event has been changed to the earlier date.

Jackson high and teacher's college clubs have charge of making the programs, which will contain the complete order of service. Lincoln and Bethany high school clubs will furnish the ushers in uniform.

The Lincoln high school club is sponsoring a series of five meetings on charm and personality. Last week Dean Fordyce from Nebraska university gave an illustrated lecture on personality, emphasizing the way in which faces express inner worth. Numerous slides of well-known people demonstrated the well-received lecture. Wednesday afternoon a style show will be presented under the direction of Una Jean Davis. Mrs. H. M. Parmalee will give a talk on "Feminine Foibles," and a skit will be presented by four girls of the music committee under the direction of Ana Margaret Brehm.

Jackson high Girl Reserves surprised their membership last week with an impromptu program of initiation stunts which were thoroughly enjoyed.

The Whittier members made one hundred turkeys out of pine cones and crepe paper for the Thanksgiving party which was given by the Woman's club at the Orthopedic hospital last Friday afternoon. Carolyn Davis, Vivan Everett, Beth Burr, and Nellie Brundige who took the favors out to the hospital were also guests at the party. At their regular meeting next Tuesday afternoon at the school, plans will be made for the fox and goose chase which is to take place next Saturday.

Present Christmas Pageant.

Dorothy Smith as chairman of the service committee at Irving junior high school has charge of the Christmas program which will be given at the Orthopedic hospital next Thursday afternoon at four o'clock. A toy orchestra will play several numbers, in addition to readings, dances, and a talk by Miss Ruth Easterday on Christmas spirit. A Pageant in four scenes, depicting the celebration of Christmas in Russia, Syria, Italy, and Mexico will be given by Iola Alger, Dorothy Smith, Jane Jeefer, Lotus Hastings, Ilene Powell, Maren Dobson, Margaret Werner, Margaret Stanford, Virginia Zemer, Ila Fern Hullstrom, Edne Jane Forney, and Virginia Smith. Vera May Peterson will be the reader.

The eighty members in the Irving Girl Reserve club have chosen hobbies and are divided into hobby groups. The members of the drama group are Janet Austin, Elinor Farrell, Esther Goodman, Betty Gronquist, Helen Hewitt, Luella Hunt, Ruth Irish, Dorothy Jahn, Henrietta Kortlang, Margaret Munger, Roberta Pruitt and Bessie Stine. The handicraft hobby group is composed of Kathryn Adams, Elizabeth Christian, Florence Daggett, Margaret Johnson, Margaret Lanphere, Lotus Miller, Elizabeth Moomaw, Vera Oxenford, Winona Pearson, Kathryn Simpson, Beth Taylor, Mae Tharker, Ruth Turner, Naomi Walker and Betty Woods. The music group which sponsors an orchestra and other activities consists of Constance Baker, Margaret Baker, Dorothy Bates, Doris Buell, Kathryn Cartney, Carol Clark, Ramona Gahn, Lotus Hastings, Helen Pauley, Eileen Powell, Hope Probasco, Wilma Riggle, Margaret Shaner, Fauna Sorensen, Margaret Stanelsforth, Nadine Wheller and Virginia Zemer. The sports hobby group is the largest one, consisting of Catherine Adams, Roberta Albers, Iola Aulger, Irene Bachman, Adella Burkard, Claudine Burt, Dorothy Card, Shirley Diamond, Ina Clarke, Maren Dobson, Edna Forney, Helen Groves, Betty Haynes, Ila Fern Hullstrom, Ada Harding, Janet Hoevet, Jane Keefer, Betty Knox, Elizabeth Lein, Vera May Peterson, Dorothy Smith, Virginia Smith, Helen Spain, Marian Staley, Theresa Stava, Louise Stephens, Susan Elizabeth Stoll, Mae Thomas and Margaret Werner.

The sports group held a hobo hike yesterday afternoon, marking the trail of their wanderings with tin cans labelled with characteristic symbols. The entire supper was cooked over a camp fire, at Belstew to which each girl contributed mont park and included vegetable some vegetable, baking powder biscuits cooked on sticks, pop corn and taffy apples.

The Girl Reserves at Twenty-sixth and O streets, under the leadership of Miss Bernice Peterson, are preparing a Christmas play which will include all of the members as characters, costumers, property managers and stage setters. The play will be given at several institutions in the city as well as before other Girl Reserve groups.

New Leaders.

Miss Louise Plageman will be the adviser for the new group which has been organized at Saratoga school. There are nineteen little girls in the club. They are Marjorie Wiederspan, Eileen Weirvint, Virginia Van Winkle, Evelynne Trigg, Grace Thomas, Betty Thielen, Angela Matthai, Viola

Entertain Children of Hawthorne Community Church

—Bucklin Photo.

Fifty little boys and girls of the primary department of the Hawthorne community church Sunday school and twenty mothers were present for the Thanksgiving party at the church Wednesday afternoon. Games were played. Late in the afternoon, corn was popped, and the hot corn and lolly pops were served the little folks. The rooms were decorated with bright colored balloons, which were given the small guests as favors.

Mrs. C. E. Saal is in charge of the primary department, which has an enrollment of eighty-one youngsters. The Sunday school has a weekly attendance of about 200 children from all parts of the city. The school is departmentalized, with sessions from the nursery age through the adult. W. M. Bryant is superintendent of the Sunday school, and the Rev. G. H. Main is pastor of the church.

Regional Business Women's Clubs Meet In Colorado

June Neiman told of many of the different subjects discussed at the state meeting held at Aurora this month and Miss Leola Richert, club president, spoke of the club growth contest, outlined at the state meeting, each club participating in the contest on a membership basis.

One of the topics offered by the committee in charge of the evening was the "Pal" or "Heart Sister" idea. This suggestion is to be carried out by the club for the next three months.

Miss Catherine Deines, registered nurse of Lincoln, was a guest for the evening and gave several demonstrations and a number of ideas on first aid work.

The next meeting, the business and social monthly meeting, will be held December 10 at the club rooms.

Thanksgiving Party at Beatrice.

The Beatrice Business and Professional Women's club enjoyed a Thanksgiving program Tuesday evening in charge of Ruth Dole. Effie Smith and Mayme Buehler led in the singing of Thanksgiving songs, a Thanksgiving talk was given by Mrs. R. B. Carey, and two selections by the glee club. Blanche Miller was hostess during the dinner hour. Favors at the dinner were little chocolate turkeys. Lucille Maze was introduced as a new member in the club. It was announced that each club member was to have a secret pal for the next three weeks, these pals to be revealed to one another at the Christmas party December 17. The program next Tuesday evening will be featured by a talk by Miss Nelle Gingles.

Crete Has Social Evening.

The Crete Axis club met Monday evening for its regular social meeting. The committee in charge of the social hour arranged a radio program, station A-X-I-S broadcasting.

The program consisted of reproduced records and a talk on salesmanship by Mrs. Iola Wilding, and a talk on life insurance by Miss Myrtle Benne. Mrs. C. E. Beals provided the humor on the program, and the broadcast closed with a bed-time story by Miss Bernice Brabec.

After the program, the refreshment committee served.

Hears Investment Talk.

The Business and Professional Women's club of Grand Island met table decorations were suggestive of Thanksgiving and sixty members and guests enjoyed dinner together, after which Miss Ruth Shaw, president, introduced Clarence Newell, who favored the group with two piano solos, "Impromptu" by Schubert and one of ach's "Two Part Inventions."

Miss Shaw then introduced I. R. Alter who addressed the club members on "Safe Investments". Mr. Alter began by quoting a saying from Patrick Henry, "There is no light which lights the pathway like the lamp of experience," and he said that he would like to add that there is no substitute for experience. Many persons find it hard to find an authority on investments and Mr. Alter stressed the point that after one who is supposed to know has been consulted, it is always best to check that authority before investing. Friends may be sincere but their judgment is sometimes very poor. According to Mr. Alter, government bonds are the safest investment. He then placed first mortgages on real estate and then industrial bonds. The investment must be suited to the investor, of course, the ihvestor taking the largest risks may have the biggest returns, but some investors are not in a position to assure large risks. After presenting the club's library with a bulletin published by the Better Business bureau of Kansas City and stating that he would send this bulletin, which stresses clean advertising and protects against promoters, to the club regularly, he closed with the remark that before investing, investigate.

After the address, a business meeting was held at which Miss Laura Dunlop reported on the meeting of the officers, chairmen and presidents, representing the twenty women's clubs which she and Miss Shaw attended Sunday, Nov. 17, at Aurora. Miss Dunlop said that the state convention would be held in Hastings in April. The Hastings president, Miss Angeline Wood, and the state program chairman are now making arrangements for a national federation speaker. A tentative plan was arranged by which four district, meetings are to be held before the state convention. The state membership has grown so extensively that it is impossible for all members to attend meetings when they are held at too great a distance from local clubs. The district meetings, which are to be held at Crete, Fremont, Norfolk and Grand Island, will keep the members in closer touch with the work of the state federation. She also announced that the west central regional district convention which includes the state of Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico will be held at Manitou, Colo., next June.

Miss Delphia Taylor was apointed as the club's representative for the local Christmas Cheer work.

THE modern motif at its loveliest is presented in this exquisite diamond engagement ring, with its sparkling solitaire brilliantly enhanced by six side diamonds. Millions have seen it advertised in the Saturday Evening Post—have admired its rich beauty. A superb ring which will tell an eloquent tale of devotion to "the only girl."

Saline County Pioneer Eighty-four Years Old

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 3—Mrs. Adelia Wheeler of Crete will celebrate her eighty-second birthday anniversary next Tuesday when she will be the guest of honor at a birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Dudley, Lincoln.

When Mrs. Wheeler with her husband, Daniel, and baby migrated from Rockford, Ill., to Saline county in 1868, they settled four and one half miles northeast of Crete. The pine floors, siding and shingles for their little cabin were hauled from Nebraska City.

After their dwelling was completed, this young couple had but fifty cents left with which to start house keeping, although they did have a supply of provisions. Mrs. Wheeler says that there was no city of Crete here at that time. However there was an encampment of about five hundred Indians less than a mile from their home.

Grandma Wheeler is still very active both physically and mentally. On October 29 she was an honored guest at the American Legion auxiliary banquet, at which time she addressed that organization and presented to it the historic gavel which was received by the ladies of the G. A. R. when she was their president. Her husband, who was a Civil war veteran, passed away ten years ago.

Mrs. Wheeler is the mother of eight children, six of whom are living. They are Mrs. J. E. Dudley, Lincoln; Charles Wheeler, Chicago; Mrs. Fred Mair, Mrs. H. E. Field, George and Thomas, all of Crete. Thomas is now residing on the old homestead. There are 11 grandchildren and 10 great grand children.

Weddings At Crete.

A very pretty wedding occurred Wednesday morning at nine o'clock when Miss Marie Muff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muff, became the bride of Dennis Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Murphy of Friend. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Mosler, at the Sacred Heart church, before a large number of relatives and friends. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Dolores Algermissen, cousin of the bride, and by Allen Murphy, Dubuque, the groom's brother. The white satin gown adorned with seed pearls, in which the bride was attired, was of the fitted princess type with a long skirt of uneven hemline. A wreath of orange blossoms held the long tulle veil in place. A shower bouquet of roses was carried by the bride. The bridesmaid wore an orchid satin dress made in the bouffant style with fitted bodice and uneven hemline.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a honeymoon in St. Louis Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside upon the Murphy farm near Friend.

A simple service marked the marriage of Miss Audry Gannon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oley Gannon, Seward, to Robert F. Warkow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Warkow, Crete, solemnized last Sunday, by Rev. Adolph Schrein, at the John attended the bride and groom. Bethelehem Lutheran parsonage. Miss Libby Havlicek and Ralph St. Mr. and Mrs. Warkow will make their home in Crete and will live at the Cosmopolitan hotel.

Music Club Meets.

The Crete Music club was entertained Monday at the home of Mrs. A. S. Lefferdink. Prof. Charles V. Kettering portrayed the life of Wagner and gave the plot of his opera, Die Valkgries. His lecture was interspersed with music taken from the opera. Mrs. W. H. Ferguson reviewed, briefly, the lives of famous German composers and their types of music. These included Mozart. Bach, Schumann, Schubert and Brahms. Mrs. Thomas Dredla played "Prelude in C," by Bach, as a piano number. Mrs. Fred Boekel, jr., with Mrs. L. F. Klein accompanying, sang three selections, Ave Maria, Serenade, and Hark, Hark, the Lark, by Schumann. Miss Lois Lefferdink, with Miss Ruth Taylor at the piano, played a violin solo, Largo, by Handel. Following the meeting, a reception was held complimentary to Mrs. W. H. Ferguson, who leaves Crete soon to make her home in Lincoln.

Week's Club Activities.

The Axis club held its regular social meeting Monday evening and enjoyed an especially arranged radio program, with station A-X-I-S broadcasting. The program consisted of reproduced musical numbers, a talk on salesmanship by Mrs. Iola Wilding, one on life insurance by Myrtle Benne, and a bed time story by Bernice Brabec, with Mrs. C. E. Beals as comedian. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. A. Burrus had as her luncheon guests on Friday, the members of the Sorosis club. Yellow and white chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece of the luncheon table and were also used through the living room. Chocolate turkeys and a "bushel" of corn were seasonal favors. Holiday Observed In Realistic Fashion

Armistice day in the kindergarten of Park school was celebrated successfully in a most realistic manner. It would seem, according to the pictures, that the hospital idea was featured. There was a hospital equipped with beds and bedding, to say nothing of a score of Red Cross nurses more than willing to do their bit by bandaging wounds, serving food and taking the pulse. There were some soldiers who were able to be out of their beds, and these were provided with crutches. A stretcher made of gunny sacks and iron rods was used by the nurses to carry crippled soldiers if it were necessary to move them. There was also a large tent constructed of gunny sacks, with flags marking the two entrances. One of the special features of the program was the signing of the armistice by two young soldiers, thus making sure that the World war was at an end.

A parade around the playground led by a band, and with all in the procession wearing either soldier hats or Red Cross caps, and each small child carrying a flag, completed the celebration.

The pictures of the kindergarten group were taken by T. V. Goodrich. Miss Jessie E. Keller is kindergarten director, and Miss Grayce Leighton is assistant director.

The No Host Dinner Bridge club was entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Collins. Places for eight were found at a table decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and yellow tapers. All other appointments carried out the same color scheme. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Observe November Birthdays

Patsy Ruth Perkins, upper left, is the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Perkins, 901 South Fortieth street. She celebrated her first birthday November 13. The dinner for Patsy also honored her aunt, Miss Ruth Frost, who has her birthday the same day.

Fourteen friends were present for the fifth birthday anniversary dinner of Betty Jane Stewart, upper right, at the home of Mrs. Elmer Lindholm, 1900 N street, Havelock, Wednesday. Betty Jane, whose birthday was Tuesday, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart of Chattanooga, Tenn., and with her parents is visiting in Havelock.

John Richard Fischer celebrated his fourth birthday November 30. John, lower left, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Fischer, 519 South Second street.

Irma Rose Tingelhoff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Tingelhoff, 3614 J street. Irma was 7 years old November 29.

Millions of Marvelous Modern Toys Being Manufactured For Santa Claus' Orders This Year

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Merry old Kris Kringle and his jolly reindeer make their annual trip to fill the stockings of boys and girls a few weeks hence and a survey today showed that already his thousands of assistants in this Santa Claus-land have constructed millions of marvelous modern toys from his blue prints.

Iceless refrigerators, airplanes that actually fly under their own power, fire trucks, racing fire engines with aerial ladders and little men rescuing a girl from a blazing orphan asylum are among the wonderful toys for this Christmastide.

The survey disclosed that New England, to a large extent, has supplanted Germany as "Toyland."

The survey was made by the Boston and Maine railrad and revealed carload after carload of toys, which will gladden many a small heart on Christmas day moving west and north, south and east.

Original Toy Town.

Just a peep behind the curtains of these Santa Claus freight cars in this area today disclosed that in this year's parade almost every conceivable sort of invention is included.

Rocking horses, tool chests, drums, ring-toss games, doll's furniture, miniature pool tables, miniature pianos and many other things, including the very latest in the furnishing of the doll house,—"iceless refrigerators,"—are being loaded by the thousands. The miniature "iceless refrigerators" complete even to "ice cubes" have been produced for the young lady "house-keepers" and their doll families.

Where toys that "wind up" and "go places" are produced, freight cars were being loaded with airplanes that fly, racing automobiles that reproduce the "Golden Arrow" and other famous racing cars, toy soldiers, fire engines, motor coaches of all colors and sizes, and scores of other things that whizz about and make childish delight. The airplanes actually fly—some as far as 900to 1,000 feet—with wings of balsam wood from South America.

Wonderful Contraption.

Perhaps the most wonderful contraption from a child's point of view is the new fire-engine-huse combination. A metal fire house with an aerial ladder truck inside is shown with a replica of an orphan asylum some distance away. On the outside of the fire house is a tiny alarm box. Opening the door discloses a hook. Pulling the hook sounds a bell. The bell taps off a box number. There is a whirring noise and the fire house doors fly open. The ladder truck dashes forth, speeds to the orphan asylum where the arrival is marked by the big ladder being raised to the roof. Up the ladder scramble two miniature men with a line of hose. The child is found and rescued—all in the matter of a minute or two. The whole is a most intriguing operation.

Thirty-four Thanksgiving baskets were distributed to the homes of ex-service men in need Thanksgiving morning by the American Legion. The auxiliary packed the baskets containing chicken, potatoes, apples, and other edibles. The auxiliary is conducting home educational classes, the first of its kind to be organized by an auxiliary. Mrs. C. E. McGlasson, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, originated the project. The women attending the classes are wives of ex-service men, who may invite their friends. Classes have met in the auxiliary club rooms for six months, each one directed by Miss Alma Maryott with Mrs. Lloyd Wright assisting. The first three months were spent in sewing and in making new garments from old. More than 200 garments were completed within this time. All materials were furnished by the auxiliary from the emergency shelf or purchased by the organization. Cooking classes are being conducted at this time. The instructor gives a talk on nutritive value of foods and demonstrates practical methods of preparation. A program is being planned for the coming year.

Sarah D. Gillespie tent No. 7, D. U. V., met Tuesday evening in I. O. O. F. hall, when three department officers, the inspector, Mrs. Georgia Priestley, Fremont, the G. A. R. commander Thomas J. Escape From Chinese Bandits Recalled As Lincoln Man Meets Fellow Adventurer

More than the usual significance of a meeting between close friends after long separation attended the chance meeting of Roy A. Brehm, Lincoln, and C. J. Jensen, Minneapolis, here Friday, for it was three years to the day since their reunion at the close of the siege of the city of Sain Fu, province of Schensi, China, where both were missionaries of the Scandinavian Alliance mission, an interdenominational undertaking.

Mr. Brehm, who returned to America for the first time in five years in time to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brehm, 2134 Lake street, had left Sian Fu with a party of fifteen missionaries and students for a neighboring town one week before it was surrounded by an army led by a former Schensi province governor, who failing in his attempted conquest of the neighboring province of Honan, tried to regain his former authority in Schensi, which meanwhile had come under control of the "second army," comprised chiefly of banditts who systematically pillaged the town, according to Mr. Brehm.

A week later Mr. Brehm's party returned to find the gates of the town closed to them. That was early in May. Followed what was probably the longest and most disastrous siege in modern history, Mr. Brehm declares. About 30,000 persons perished in its 195 days' duration.

By a curious twist of fate, neither attackers or defenders emerged victorious but a third army, Christian Chinese troops commanded by Marshall Feng, forced by reversals in battle to flee from northern China and on their way to the interior, routed the besiegers and entered the city, amidst wild acclaim of the inhabitants, to make Sian Fu the headquarters for the Christian Chinese army. Two days later the exiled missionary group was reunited with their marooned comrades. Brehm had been a member of the group shut out of the city; Jensen had been unable to leave because of business, although several missionaries, under terms of a temporary truce arranged with leaders of both armies, had been pemitted to quit the city October 11.

Meet In "No Man's Land."

October 11, 1926, will always be a red letter day for Mr. Brehm. "With each group of missionaries carrying Red Cross flags, we met halfway between both armies in what might be called "no man's land." Bullets whined overhead as our little group of twenty-five met for the first time in five months. Several returned behind the lines with us, but Mr. Jensen, business manager of the mission, was one of the few who returned to the city. Mrs. Jensen was the only foreign woman left in the city."

Mr. Brehm did not know that Mr. Jensen was to be in Lincoln Friday until told that the former missionary was delivering an address at the Swedish Mission church Friday night.

For 14 months, beginning May 1, 1927, date of the evacuation of missionaries as result of the communistic influence fostered by Russia, Mr. Brehm was the only Protestant missionary in Sian Fu. Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, fearing for the safety of their two daughters, had sailed for America and Mr. Brehm had assumed the business manager's duties.

The Russian influence reached its peak in China in 1926 when propaganda of Russian advisors of northern Chinese armies penetrated Chinese ranks with telling effect. Southern China, with its feudal system of land tenure, had all ready been effectively communized.

The wave of communism was anti-Christian in character, but Russian agitators feared to take the lives of missionaries. Atrocities perpetrated by the bolsheviks was the cause of the downmall of communism in China, Mr. Brehm says.

Break With Russia.

The final break came when Marshall Feng, described by Mr. Brehm as the most patriotic Chinese, and Chiang Kai Shek, present Chinese president and military leader against whom two rebellious factions are now battling, decided that China was being used as a "stepping stone" for a world revolution destined to establish Russian supremacy even at expense of destruction of China, and ordered exile of Borodin, leader of Russian propagandists.

On his way to Russia Borodin and his party stopped at Sian Fu and Mr. Brehm came face to face with the famous Russian leader, noted for his seclusion. Mr. Brehm sent English-printed Chinese newspapers the first authentic news that Borodin had actually departed, thus quieting fears that Borodin would remain in China to stir up trouble in the northwest, where Sian Fu is located.

Mr. Brehm is inclined to sympathize with the peoples' army in their struggle to overthrow the nationalistic government of Chiang Kai Shek, successor to Sun Yat Sen, "the Washington of China," and who was Sun Yat Sen's chief military aide.

Ten Per Cent Rule.

Illegal appropriations of government monies and the fact that officials did not get their positions according to the provisions of representative government are the two chief causes of the revolt, according to Mr. Brehm, who states that the nationalists are harder pressed than they have been since the capture of Peking two years ago. Popular sentiment, he explains, is usually with the faction that has the most money, which in this case is the nationalist party.

Despite these allegations, China's government is more representative and dependable than ever before, he thinks. "For governmental improvement, morals of the Chinese must be elevated. Chinese, easily influenced and governed by mob rule, have an inherent distrust of each other."

The wealthier ten per cent comprise the ruling class, according to Mr. Brehm, who declares that the other ninety per cent are agriculturalists and peace-loving, used as "cannon fodder" by those in power.

Educated Respect America.

The educated class, the only one capable of thoughts has far more respect for America than any other country but America's innovations have proved both detrimental and beneficial, he says. American movies have been the chief offender, with a resultant derrogatory effect upon Chinese womanhood, Mr. Brehm stated.

Business is improving on the coast but warfare makes business impossible in the interior. The land is the most fertile of the globe, he believes.

Sian Fu has an important place in Chinese history, having been the capital for hundreds of years and possessing the strongest wall of any Chinese city. It was the center of the Chinese revolution of 1911 when its 10,000 Manchus, comprising the ruling class, were massacred. Sian Fu was also the haven for English refuges during the Boxer rebellion.

Starvation Takes Toll.

Famine conditions near Sian Fu are probably the worst in China, Mr. Brehm believes. It is not an unusual sight to see streets of Chinese cities littered with dead bodies, the toll of starvation. In many cases food is only a day's journey away but inadequate transportation facilities and guerilla warfare prevent its shipment.

After a two weeks stay here Mr. Brehm will go to Chicago for further religious work, having surrendered his Chinese post. He graduated from Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, having taken preparatory work at Northwestern college in Napierville, Ill., and at Nebraska Wesleyan university. He went to China in August, 1924, teaching the first three years in the school for missionaries' children.

Lasting Freshness
--Made In Lincoln

Lulu S. Wolford, Nebraska Educator, Writes of Beauties and Possibilities Of Rocky Mountain Region After Trip

BY LULU S. WOLFORD.

After a lapse of several years a visit to the Rockies is a source of ever changing and never ending pleasure.

Colorado in mid-October is at its best. Its mountains are remarkable for variety and ruggedness and are the most picturesque on the continent.

Five highways lead into their vast solitudes and wind in and out ever turning and doubling back until the heights and passes are scaled.

The varying shades of green of pine and cedar form a background for the gorgeous tints of blue spruce, crimson and scarlet sumac and the quivering gold of the aspen tipped in orange and flame. Crystal clear are the streams effecting the colorings of autumn and the turquoise of the sky.

Red Rocks Near Denver.

Just a short drive from Denver are the Red Rocks, rising obliquely from the plains and traversed in every direction by newly-constructed roads laid down like red ribbons.

Denver is a beautiful city, well groomed, populous and busy. Here we meet a number of former Lincoln, Nebraska, people, among them Frank Farmer and Charles and Joseph Reed, who are members of the only quartet in the world employed full time by a mortuary. The beauty of their music is not soon forgotten.

Longmont, Boulder and Fort Collins are especially attractive because of their proximity to the mountains. There are a number of lakes in this section of the state, the fields are irrigated and produce car loads of sugar beets which were being harvested and stacked in great ricks for shipment to the sugar factories.

Tall Men In Casper.

The outstanding town of eastern Wyoming is Casper, an oil city. Great reservoirs of crude oil surround it on two sides and there is an awakening interest in rumored prospects of further discoveries in the "Salt Flats." A conspicuous feature of Casper is its many tall men. Its cordiality and hospitality makes the veriest tenderfoot feel welcome.

Leaving Casper one traverses beautiful Wind River Canyon to Thermopolis, boasting of hot mineral springs and mud baths and well established as a health resort.

The water pours through the irrigation ditches from Shoshone Canyon to water the rich valleys around Powell. Sugar beets, alfalfa, small grains, vegetables, especially potatoes, honey and sheep hold the interest of the farmers. There is considerable oil excitement near Powell, several good wells being recently "brought in" in the vicinity. One at Frannie is producing 2,500 barrels daily with a potentiality of 5,000.

Cody Is "Buffalo Bill's" Town.

Cody, at the entrance of Yellowstone Park is best known of Wyoming's towns, being founded by the famous Colonel William F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill."

With the founding of Cody he built the Irma hotel, named for his daughter, which is still maintained by the present owner with but little change. A great fireplace of native stone, surmounted by a buffalo skull is in the eastern end of the great lobby and many fine oil paintings interspersed with mounted animal heads adorn the walls of the lobby, dining room and halls. The great bar with its splendid mirrors still extends across the end of the dining room flanked by fine cabinets whose original purpose may be left to the imagination.

The Cody family and the townspeople have recently erected a museum as a monument to Colonel Cody. His neice, Mrs. Mary Jester Allen, is in charge.

Hears of Escapades.

Another niece, Mrs. Harry Thurston, entertained me in her home one evening wtih a recital of many interesting and thrilling escapades of the intrepid old scout. She exhibited a picture of him mounted on his horse. This picture is fashioned entirely from birch bark by Merrill Concord.

She told of the old home at North Platte, Neb., known as "Scouts Rest Ranch" and of his duel with the Indian, Yellow Hand, in which the latter was slain and Cody wounded, although this latter fact was known to but few. This occurred in 1875 and Yellow Hand was the only Indian Cody ever scalped. This scalp is still in the possession of Johnny Baker, at Lookout Mountain, Colo., where Colonel and Mrs. Cody are burried.

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney designed and gave to Cody a fine bronze statue of Buffalo Bill which guards the entrance to the Shoshone Canyon. He is mounted, turning toward his men to issue an order while his right hand is thrown high in the air grasping his gun which is pointing westward and upward towards the mountains.

Photographed With Sitting Bull.

Buffalo Bill is the only white man with whom Sitting Bull would consent to be photographed, no other being able to command this austere Indian's respect.

In the museum is the old muzzle-loading goose-gun weighing fourteen pounds used by Cody in hunting geese in the vicinity of Braconville, Neb. He hunted by boat and was often accompanied by John Dehn, sr., who built the first hotel in Braconville, and by Joe Opelt, part Indian, who ran this hotel, and later built the Opelt hotel on Ninth and P streets in Lincoln. These incidents were related by the county assessor, H. A. Phillips, formerly of Firth, who secured and donated the gun to the museum.

Colonel Cody promoted the first irrigation project in Wyoming. He later organized and traveled throughout the country with an animal show for the education of children.

Colonel Powell, Cody's close friend is buried on Red Rocks overlooking the city and rumor has it that Cody was to have his final resting place on his beloved Cedar mountain or on Rattlesnake mountain. Why he was buried on Lookout Mountain, near Denver, is a matter of conjecture.

"Dude" Ranches Flourish.

Wyoming is the state of rodeos and "dude" ranches. These ranches are seldom in evidence from the highway as it is customary to build them back far enough that they may not detract from the wild natural scenery.

But we must leave Wyoming for the state that is third in area and estimated as relatively the most sparsely populated, Montana.

This too, is a picturesque mountainous state with many small thriving towns nestling in valleys among the mountains. Men who profess to know, estimate the population of the entire state as below 650,000.

Springs Feed Missouri.

It is in this state that the mighty Missouri has its beginning, and not far from Three Rivers is Great Falls. Here are several smelters. Here also is the largest spring (feeding the Missouri), to be found in the United States. Walks are built in several directions over these springs that one may stand above the waters surging up through the cleft rocks. It is blue green like the sea in appearance, so clear you can see the pebbles and fish in the stream-bed. The springs maintain a uniform temperature of fifty-seven degrees.

The "Big Muddy" that we know the Missouri to be is quite in contrast to its limpid purity as a mountain stream.

Montana's capital city, Helena, is unique. It follows the gulch where placer gold was discovered and as the gold was panned and mined the city was built over the mined ground, following the contortions of the gulch. Its streets were precipitous, tortuous, apparently without beginning or end, and cardinal points are unknown. The only directions one can be sure of are up and down and there are plenty of both! "Up and down" together with "left" and "right" form the vocabulary of direction.

Here reside Frank Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, formerly Susie Wallace, and Penelope Ring Harris, all of whom were reared in Lincoln.

Old-timer Reminisces.

Mr. Johnson delights to tell how as children he, Penelope Ring and Ruth Bryan used to ride over the streets and sidewalks in the vicinity of Seventeenth and H streets, on a wonderful vehicle of his construction, a pair of wheels from a vaby cab forming his "rolling stock."

Mr. Johnson is vice president of the American National bank and Mrs. Harris' husband is connected with the federal government survey.

Butte is Montana's metropolis and is unique in many respects. The city never has an absolute check on population because it is so shifting and because so many are underground in the mines. It is estimated at 70,000.

A gold miner from Virginia City came prospecting for gold and in disappointment and disgust drove his pick into a mountain top and threw down his shovel and left. Some months later his tools were found oyxized with copper and hence the discovery of the richest copper mines in the world.

A Hodge-Podge Town.

It is a hodge-podge town. The miners building their homes around the shafts into the earth, so that homes, dumps, business houses and refuse, slag, streets and tracks are all mixed up together as if dumped out of a sack.

The old home of United States Senator Clark, a large brick house, was pointed out with the information that the shaft to his mine is in the back yard. The tall smoke stacks belch out clouds of gray smoke that settle down over the town like a pall obstructing the view until a breeze springs up and blows it away. Dirt and grease prevail and yet Butte is one of the most interesting and exciting cities imaginable.

We drove up the mountain side among the mines, a tortuous, steep climb. Many of the shafts extend into the earth 5,000 feet, and there are "levels" every one hundred feet where landings from the cage may be made. From these landings are "drifts" and "swopes" where the miners follow and blast out the veins of ore. The ore is mined upward from a "level." It is handled by man power but once. Air pressure drills, dynamite and blasting powder are used in breaking loose the ore.

There is so much sulphur in the ore that when well ignited it will smelt itself. This leads to fires in some of the mines.

Fires Are "Walled Off."

A fire that cannot be controlled is walled off and firemen stationed to keep it under constant surveillance, Should smoke or flame be discovered the mine is immediately cleared and the damage repaired.

Every precaution is taken for the safety of the men and most accidents are said to be due to carelessness on the part of the miners themselves.

The ore is shipped to Anaconda about twenty-five miles distant, where it is refined. The Anaconda is said to be the greatest mining company in the world, and Montana is reputed to produce the richest copper ore.

It is estimated that there has been about 5,000 persons coming into Butte during the past six months. Owing to the high wage scale minimum wages are said to be about six dollars a day and maximum fifteen dollars, the increase depending upon the degree of responsibility assumed.

Virginia City Once Great.

Virginia City was once a teeming city of upward of 75,000 souls in the days when millions in gold placer was mined there. Now it has a census of two hundred.

Prospectors are ever on the hunt for rich veins and one sees the evidence of explorations in every direction. Some of these prospectors are financed by eastern capitalists and some are "grub-staked," which means that the prospector secures the necessities of life by bargaining with some individual to so provide for him, in return for a fifty-fifty interest in his findings should he strike "pay dirt."

There are usually plenty who are willing and ready to take the chance and provide a "grub-stake" of approximately fifty dollars a month.

Several Lincoln Families There.

Among the former Lincoln people living in Butte, are Rev. and Mrs. Cole of the Mountain View M. E. church, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Person. Mrs. Person will be remembered best as Mildred Sampson. The doctor is a member of a hospital staff and has several times gone down a deep shaft to administer aid to an injured miner.

A state convention of women was held in Butte last summer and one of the entertainments was a visit to a mine. The visitors were placed in a cage and dropped down about 5,000 feet. Since the drop occupies somewhat less than three minutes and is in utter darkness, it is small wonder many emerged from the cage in tears. There is no end of thrills for the tenderfoot.

Montana is unsurpassed for beauty and natural resources and there are thousands of acres of land open to homesteads. It has millions of opportunities for investment, adventure, discoveries and wealth. It is an inviting place for summer resorts, "dude" ranches and homes.

In the words of Horace Greeley, "Go West, young man, go West."

FIRE CAUSES $200,000 LOSS.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Nov. 30—(U.P.)—Fire which broke out this afternoon in the center of the Logansport business district, destroyed three buildings at an estimated loss of $200,000. An overheated furnace caused the blaze.

HOOVER PLAN TO GUIDE C. OF C.

National Conference Meets in Washington On Thursday.

Spokesmen of Industries To Present Their Views.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Spurred on by the recent economic conferences held by President Hoover, 250 men, representing leadership in nearly every branch of commerce carried on in America, will gather at the United States chamber of commerce next week to plan next year's work.

Dedicating their work to preservation of a normal economic balance, they will be led by President Hoover and Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, nationally known economic expert, and others. They plan to conduct an exhaustive survey of business and industrial conditions throughout the country, and on this build up a structure calculated to carry the ship of commerce through the next twelve months safely and profitably.

Meet Thursday.

The group will assemble on Thursday, December 5. Mr. Hoover will open the series of conferences with an address stressing the important factor of co-operation and teamplay in business. Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Klein will attend all through to aid in working out the problems confronting the business leaders. The group expects to get a cross-section view of the country's work, and with this as a basis strengthen the weak spots and maintain the balance of those going well at present.

Already a preliminary survey of the business and industrial field has been made by leaders attending the conferences called by Mr. Hoover during the past two weeks. This group found conditions gratifying and in need only of a balance wheel to maintain them at their present status.

Prospects Bright.

"The preliminary survey shows surprisingly favorable factors, and these largely due to the growth of high standards and wise practices within organized business itself," the U. S. chamber of commerce commented in a bulletin announcing the conferences today.

"For example," the bulletin continued, "there are no accumulated inventories, thanks to wise manufacturing and merchandising practices, and to efficient transportation service.

"The study which we have made of the present business position and its outlook indicates the possibility of assistance at some points of weakness, so that it is reasonable to expect a continuance of business activity, generally."

Spokesmen for a number of important industries will be asked to present their views on the present condition of the business. Leaders in foodstuff manufacturing, industries, construction, coal, chemicals, implements, hardware, insurance, iron and steel, leather and leather products, lumber, advertising, amusement, exporting and financing, electrical, and mining and metallurgical industries will be among those to speak.

YOUNG PLAN IS UPHELD IN VOTE

Bill Against Reparations Proposal Loses 312 To 60.

Action of Reichstag Is Expected to Affect Public Vote.

BERLIN, Nov. 30—(INS)—Public opinion throughout Germany was ranged into two distinctive camps tonight over the action of the Reichstag in defeating the proposed bill directed against the Young plan for reparations payments.

By the overwhelming vote of 312 to 60, the Reichstag threw out the bill on its second reading. The defeat was a decided blow for the nationalist party, whose leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, prominent German publisher, had sponsored the measure.

The action of the Reichstag is expected to have a salient effect upon the public vote on the measure, which will be taken in a plebiscite scheduled for December 22. The plebiscite was obtained by Dr. Hugenberg through the medium of his newspapers and publications.

While many thousands of persons throughout Germany favor the measure, on the grounds the Young plan is detrimental to Germany's best interests, there is also great opposition to it, and the subject has resulted in a wide breach between the political factions in the country.

The German government, as represented by its cabinet and President Von Hindenburg, is unanimously opposed to the measure, which has been characterized by government spokesmen as "suicidal and chaotic."

Uncle Sam Mobilizes Forces for Annual Rush of Christmas Mail

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(U.P.)—A peace time army of nearly 75,000 persons, mobilized by the federal government within recent weeks, was ready tonight to go "over the top" in a great winter drive that will reach virtually every home in the land before Christmas eve.

Unlike most military outfits the coming of this army was eagerly awaited by the inhabitants of the land. Most of the population, indeed, is contributing heavily to the ammunition kits of the men comprising this army.

Commanded by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, the army of extra postal carriers and clerks will augment the more than 360,000 regular postoffice employes in the annual rush of delivering the Christmas mail.

New Record Expected.

Christmas mail is expected to reach record proportions this year by the postoffice department, which last year delivered nearly 2,100,000,000 parcels, letters and yuletide greeting cards.

Annually the postoffice department expends sums aggregating about $5,000,000 to deliver the Christmas mail and the 1929 cost is expected to reach an even higher figure. Extra help alone cost $4,979,000 in 1928.

Illustrating the magnitude of the task facing the postoffice department, it was learned tonight that nearly 4,000,000,000 stamps are being distributed to postmasters for use on the holiday mail.

Post office statisticians estimate that about one-eighth of all the mail carried during the year is distributed in the brief period of the Christmas season. On this basis there were 92,480,000 parcels and about two billion letters and cards in last Christmas mail bags.

Dogs Deliver Mail.

Far in the frozen northland the Alaskan dog sled mail is now plodding its way through snow, ice and sleet with Christmas mail for the lonely inhabitants of trading posts in the Arctic circle.

One month ago the dog sled mail carrier left Kotbebus on the southern end of the 650-mile route to Point Barrow where he is expected to arrive by Christmas day. So regular has been the coming of this mail that it is called "the Christmas mail." Airplanes may soon plant the dog sled, however, for transportation of mail over this isolated country where trails are few and difficult.

NEBRASKA LEADS IN MUNY POWER

Berg Declares 240 Public Power Plants in State; Thorne Says 204.

Nebraska still leads the union in the municipal ownership of light and power plants, City Clerk Berg, secretary of the Nebraska Public Ownership league, said Saturday upon receipt of statistics from the national headquarters of the league.

The number of municipally owned plants in the state at the present is given as 240, two less than the number quoted for 1927 in a survey for that year published in a recent issue of the American City magazine. Kansas is second.

Texas boasts of a record of no municipally owned plants sold in the past two years ,according to Mr. Berg. This record has not been duplicated by any other state.

Figures quoted by Thorne Browne, director for the National Electric Light association, place the number of municipally owned power plants in Nebraska at only 204. He states that there are 260,000 persons in the 204 towns publicly served, and 573,000 in the 347 cities and towns supplied by private companies.

Opera Secrets Bared?

Mme. Frances Alda, Former Wife of Metropolitan's Director and Radio Star Now, Writing of 22 Years Behind the Scenes.

MME. FRANCES ALDA.

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—Whether or not Mme. Frances Alda will tell "all" about the Metropolitan opera is a question debated in the best operatic circles these days.

Mme. Alda, deserting opera for the radio, until last year was the wife of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan opera. Then she obtained a divorce.

Now Mme. Alda is writing a book of her 22 years' experience at the opera. It will be ready in the spring, following completion of her last season at the Metropolitan.

Title Changed.

"I had intended calling the book 'Gatti-Casazza's Wife,'" Mme. Alda said. But the title is to be "Coming of Age With the Metropolitan."

"It is written, however, from the point of view of Gatti-Casazza's wife," Mme. Alda added. "I have selected a number of details behind the scenes at the Metropolitan that I think are of the greatest interest." Her eyes flashed.

Secrets.

"How many of those who attend the opera know that one of the popular operas always is sung one-half tone lower than it should be—to accommodate a favorite principal who cannot reach the high notes?" Mme. Alda went on. "And why, to the bewilderment of the public, are some principals given certain roles when other singers are more suitable?"

All of which is accentuated by the collapse and resignation of Josef Rosenstock, conductor brought from Germany for Wagnerian operas after conducting only three times.

Mme. Alda is singing six Puccini operas over the radio—one a month.

LAST REPORT OF GOOD IS ISSUED

War Secretary Reviews Militia, Waterway and Relief Projects.

Says River Transportation Has Been of Great Benefit To All.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The annual report of the late Secretary of War James W. Good, the final touches of which worried him on his deathbed, was made public today. It was the final chapter in a long and notable public career.

The report disclosed the secretary of war has more functions of a non-military nature than military. Good reviewed the flood control activities, inland waterways and river and harbor projects, and discussed insular possessions and canal projects. About one-third of the report dealt with army activities.

Good declared there has been created for the first time in the nation's history an efficiency military establishment" spread widely over the country, yet finely co-ordinated and capable of swift and united action."

He cited regular army activities, development of the national guard, organized reserves and training camp activities as contributing to this development. He said the war department has a war reserve supply sufficient to equip two field armies, approximately 1,000,000 men. The department had sought equipment for 1,500,000 men but congress reduced this figure.

Stresses Waterways.

Concerning the civilian activities of the war department Good declared:

"There can be unreasonable doubt that the Inland Waterways corporation has been of incalculable benefit to the people at large; that it is continually increasing its effectiveness and that it will eventually demonstrate that the development of our interior waterways and the proper utilization of such developed navigable streams will offer through co-ordination with railways and highways, a system of transportation furnishing cheaper freight rates to all people who have been taxed to create them; that each participating carried by joint routes will receive a reasonable return upon the money invested, and that before long the government can pass over the corporation's facilities to private capital for operation, with the assurance that they are so safeguarded by laws, precedents and decisions that their profitable operation will indicate to private enterprise the desirability of their continued operation."

Army Relief Work.

Good also called attention to the relief work done by the army during the past fiscal year, citing the Porto Rico hurricane of September 13, 1928, which three days later swept across Florida and inflicting great damage between Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach. The army afforded relief amounting to $953,766.35 in supplies, the report said. The army also afforded relief in Cumana, Venezuela, when it was razed by an earthquake in January, and the next month in Duncan, Miss., when that town was struck by a tornado. During last March when rivers overflowed in Florida and Alabama the army again went into action for civilian relief.

In April tents, blankets and cots had to be sent into Georgia when a tornado struck there. The army also did yeoman service when the Cleveland clinic was wrecked by fire May 15. The department also assisted in flood and storm relief work in Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

CO-ED IS FREED IN THEFT TRIAL

Accused $2,000 Gem Robbery While Working in Oklahoma Home.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 30—(UP)—Alma Lee Couch, attractive University of Oklahoma co-ed, was acquitted tonight of a charge of a $2,000 jewel robbery.

The jury deliberated fifty minutes. The state had attempted to prove she stole the jewels while employed as nursemaid in the John B. Frederickson home. The trial opened Wednesday.

Miss Couch, calm and composed during attorneys' arguments that lasted the entire afternoon, broke into tears as the verdict was read. She fastened her eyes on the jury chamber during the brief deliberation and said not a word.

Courtroom Packed.

The courtroom, which has been packed with crowds during the three-day trial, was only one-fourth filled when the report was made. Accompanied by her parents, she left the room and planned to return to Norman, seat of the university.

The state charged Miss Couch faked the bandit story and, during the absence of her employers, took the jewels to a terminal station, where she checked them in two hat bags. The loot was recovered eighty-nine days later in the unclaimed hat bags. W. E Davidson, check stand agent, identified Miss Couch as the person who checked the bags the afternoon of April 11. The Fredericksons returned home that midnight and found the house ransacked and Miss Couch lying prostrated in an upstairs closet.

With a firm voice, Miss Couch answered attorneys' questions. She told of her school life, how she had never been tardy or absent from grade school for thirteen consecutive years, of her two years' teacsing experience at intervals while she attended the university working for a master's degree in education.

She wept twice during her two hours of testimony. Both times were when attorneys asked her why she accetped a $10 a week position as nursemaid when she previously had made $125 a month teaching school.

She told the court illness caused her to abandon teaching a year ago. Not wishing to be dependent on her parents, she was willing to "take any employment."

Admits Slaying Of Pretty Wife

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 30—(INS)—Said by police to have confessed to the crime, Nathan Burton, 26, tonight was held on a first degree murder charge in connection with the brutal murder of his attractive 21-year-old wife, Ellen.

The woman was beaten to death at her home near Waldo, Fla.

According to authorities, Burton admitted that following a quarrel over "another man," he first beat his wife with his fists and then struck her over the head with a stick of wood.

An 18-month-old baby of the couple was also injured in the scuffle.

Here and There

Modern Woman.

(Kansas City Star.)

In some recent magazine articles similar views have been expressed forcibly by women writers who described themselves as "disillusioned feminists." Freedom and equality, said those disappointed women, had undermined the old-fashioned home and menaced the family and were responsible for the steady increase in the divorce rate. Women were advised to return to their previous status and be content with supremacy in the home—a sphere that might seem narrow and circumscribed but was vitally important to society and to progress.

Such advice is, of course, absolutely futile. Great economic and social revolutions do not retrace their steps. The modern woman is what she is less from cheice than from nesessity. The millions of women who are employed in factories, shops and offices are thus employed because of great industrial changes, mechanical inventions and other factors beyond their control. Political equality came to women as an inevitable corollary of legal and economic equality. With rights and privileges came civic duties and the civic social opportunities. Women have not shirked their obligations in the political and civic spheres, and freedom has meant work and sacrifices as well as personal satisfaction.

Today women own vast amounts of property, tangible and intangible. Women wield enormous influence in business directly and indirectly. They are the chief consumers of the modern world. They cannot abdicate. If freedom and equality have brought in their train certain difficult problems, women will contribute their full share to the solution of those problems. Questions of marriage, divorce, education, crime, vice and social welfare are discussed as ably and philosophically by the women as by men. It is as idle to ask women to "go back" to older conditions as it would be to ask the men to return to barbarism.

Maoris Wont Settle.

(New York Sun)

"I could no more settle down to a roll-top-desk life than Cherokee Indians can run farms," says a character in a story by Jesse Lynch Williams. The United States has had no great success in converting the red man into an agriculturist: Australia early realized that to try to make its aboriginals run farms would be futile, yet New Zealand continues to work doggedly at the task of turning its Maoris into successful tillers of the soil.

Members of the race still own four million acres of land in the North Island, a large proportion of which is lying idle. This is an anomalous situation at any time, and it becomes acute in a period of economic depression and unemployment such as now exists in the dominion. White settlers naturally desire to get their hands on that idle land and raise profitable dairy produce or crops. They argue that in the process many men now out of work could be employed as farm laborers. The government, however, has always treated the natives fairly, and rather than invade their rights by taking the land away from them it prefers to encourage the present owners to utilize their holdings.

The best results have been obtained on the east coast, due to the inspiration of Sir Apirana Ngata, M. P., who has devoted his life to leading his people to a higher civilization. Sheep farming suits the Maoris well enough, because the sheep can be left for weeks at a time, and the rush at shearing period adds zest to life. Dairying, with its steady daily work throughout the year, they do not take to so kindly. They are making progress, however, as shown by the production of 285 tons of high-grade butter by one Maori-owned dairy last year.

Wordless Poetry.

(Chicago Examiner.)

Abbe Ernest Dimnet (author of "The Art of Thinking") is now lecturing in America. One of his topics is "Poetry and the Community." He feels that people generally, and Americans in particular, are too much inclined merely to regard poetry in its narrower aspect—poetry of the pritten word.

Poetry, he reminds us, is a mood, a state of mind, which should and does lift humanity into a state of ecstasy. And this state of mind is above meanness. Our western civilization eternally stresses the virtue of doing things—buying and selling, "carrying stones hither and thither." Somehow we fail to recognize fully the supreme joy of meditation.

There was a time when Arabs found delight in merely watching birds. And from this attitude developed a certain nobility of spirit which somehow was lost when the western influence started putting these people to work in overalls and turned their eyes from the skies to the ground.

Most of us struggle frantically for material gain and in the end find ourselves spiritual.

Man Believed to Have Been Murdered Thirty Years Ago Back Home

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)— Believed dead for thirty years, Al Artrip, Cumberland mountain farmer, was reunited with his family tonight.

Artrip returned home when he learned of the death of Hunt Hall, a neighbor, who died ten years ago after making a deathbed statement in which he confessed to having murdered Artrip.

Arrtip mysteriously disappeared thirty years ago while on a fishing trip with Hall.

Hall, at the time of his death, declared he had murdered Artrip and robbed him of $100, after which he burned the body.

It was only recently that the "dead" man heard of his confessed "slayer's" death. He then returned home.

Artrip confirmed Hall's story about the robbery and attempt to burn his body. However, Artrip said, he came to consciousness just as the flames reached his body and he managed to escape.

Afraid to go home in fear that Hall might aftr all carry out his plans to murder him, Artrip left the vicinity.

"I heard a few days ago of old man Hall's death and decided to come home,' 'Artrip said.

SEVEN PERSONS OVERCOME.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 30—I.N.S.)—Seven persons, ranging in age from 3 to 50, were overcome by gas fumes today as the first touch of winter was felt in San Francisco. The temperature dropped to 52 degrees.

DROUTH WORRIES CALIFORNIANS

Forest Fires Greatest Hazard Of Dry Spell.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Weather bureau records show that California has had drier winter seasons than the present one, but the agriculturist with one eye cocked at the cloudless skies doesn't feel at all comfortable over that fact.

Residents in cities are none too well pleased, either, because the long continued state drouth has brought an every increasing hazard of the past.

All authorities are agreed that peril of a water shortage is not acute or immediate—"but," they say, "we'd better have some rain pretty soon or there's going to be trouble for everyone."

The greatest economic factor in the past sixty days because of lack of rainfall, has been the forest and brush fire losses, mounting in perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Sun parched hillsides offered ready prey to flames and thousands of acres have been swept, with many fine stands of virgin and second growth timber sacrificed.

The peril continues so long as there is no rain and state and federal forestry officials are admittedly nervous over the situation. California even has appropriated extra funds with which to carry on the fight against fires, extending almost three months past the dry season.

Both United States weather bureau officials and Dr. Jerome S. Ricard, noted Jesuit sun spot scientist of Santa Clara university, see no immediate prospect of rain.

MODEST

Writer With Three Plays on Broadway Doesn't Believe in Personal Publicity.

MARTIN FLAVIN.

BY CENTRAL PRESS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—He has three plays on Broadway—almost unprecedented—has Martin Flavin. Yet little is heard of him.

One merely hears he is middle-aged and that one of the three plays, "The Criminal Code" (on injustices of the law), is being considered for this season's Pulitzer play prize, to be awarded next April.

Yes, Martin Flavin's so quiet one begins to wonder whether there is a Mortin Flavin. But there is.

He's 46, was born in San Francisco, lives in New York, was graduated from the Universityl of California in 1903, once was a lawyer and otherwise has been in business (making wall paper, somebody said), but now he's too busy seeing plays to do anything except write them.

His first "Children of the Moon," was produced in New York six years ago or so. It was recorded as a sincere, serious effort. Then he had "Service for Two" and "Lady of the Rose."

"Broken Dishes," second of his plays to be produced this season, a comedy of the home, was written in Paris in 1927. "The Criminal Code," first to reach the stage this season, was written the same year in California. It is a serious work. "Cross Roads," a study of college life, was written following a visit to New Haven, Yale's home town, in 1928. fYo(hm" 789 0$6..6 ..6..6..6

It's no wonder, though, that Flavin has a great deal to write about, for not only has he lived in California and New York, but in Chicag—and he knows Asia and Europe "like a book."

And he does not believe in personal publicity—as you have guessed.

Lincoln High School Students Celebrate Book Week With Prize Contests and Unique Exhibits of Rarities

Eleven years ago, when it became the custom to have a week set aside for this or that, several large organizations originated a book week. It was to be observed every year sometime in November.

The libraries and schools immediately took this up. It seemed the ideal way to interest the children in books. There were programs, exhibits and contests, with the common aim of interesting the children in as many different types of books as possible.

This year book week was observed from November 17 to 23. For the first time in the past four or fie years Lincoln high school observed this week.

With the help of Miss Price, Miss Wilson, Miss Mayhew, Miss Mary Dunlap, Miss Miller, Miss Eaton and Miss Montgomery, exhibits, contests and a program, given Friday, were arranged.

Unique Book Exhibit.

Many different types of interesting books were arranged in the three show cases in the front hall of the second floor. Books varying from small tablets, only a few inches square, to a large English Law Record about the size of a large Webster's dictionary were an exhibit. They dated all the way from 2400B. C. to the latest and most popular books. Some of the collections are the works of Nebraska writers.

The University of Nebraska loaned a collection of five clay tablets which were on display. One of these was a Temple record and the others were bills from the butcher and other merchants.

Several books purchased in France and dated from 1598 to 1696 were loaned by Miss Mariel C. Gere. They have old parchment bindings and were mostly written in Latin.

Early Speller Loaned.

Miss Nellie Putney loaned a spelling and reading book which was published in 1844. There were many rules given, while the spelling starts with one syllable words and goes through a list which would be difficult for a well-educated person.

A book published in 1817, while Nebraska was still a territory, and bought in England by the father of Miss Ruth Price, gives an account of the travels of John Bradbury in the interior of America.

A priceless possession of Miss Price is "Uncle Tom's Cabin," published in 1852 and one of the first editions.

Had Franklin Facsimile.

Grace Marie Phillips loaned an interesting book called "Poor Richard's Almanac," produced in facsimile of the one published in 1773 by Benjamin Franklin.

There were several bound copies of Harpers, published during the Civil war and in the possession of Miss Gere. Almost every event of the war is illustrated with pen drawings.

Some of the Nebraska authors represented in the display were Keene Abbott, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Hartley Burr Alexander, Elizabeth Atkins, A. L. Bixby, William Jennings Bryan, Willa Cather, Richard Faulkner, Annie Louise Miller, John G. Neihardt, Louise Pound, Addison Erwin Sheldon, and Myrtle C. Tellman.

Books from Scotland, France, Spain, Italy, Bohemia and Germany were also on display.

Displays In Library.

In the high school library there were two displays of books. One of the displays is the process a new book has to go through before it can go into circulation.

The first step is the inspection of the book to see if all the pages are in it and the stamping of the edges of the book and backs of pictures with the library stamp.

The date the book is received and the number of it is stamped on the fly leaf. The book is then classified according to its contents. An author's number is given to it.

A card pocket is pasted in the front while a date slip is put on the fly leaf. The book is given a call number and then a coat of shellac.

Last of all two cards are made, one for the book and the other for the index files. The book is then ready for circulation.

Favorite Books Shown.

On another table a group of books that have been voted on by the sophomores as their favorite books. There were twenty-three of them.

The following books recently purchased by the library were reviewed by members of the writers' club and were on display:

"Flying the Arctic," by Capt. George H. Wilkins reviewed by Jean Kirkpatric.

"The Story of Marco Polo," translated by Noah Brooks—Marie Davis.

"I Escape," J. L. Hardy—Margery Merle Wishnow.

"Lincoln or Lee," William E. Dodd—Maurice Garrison.

"A Gentleman of France," Stanley J. Weyman—Leslie Witte.

"Mistress Madcap," Erith Bishop Sherman—Bernice Riseman.

"A Lantern In Her Hand," Bess Streeter Aldrich—Geraldine Moses.

"In the Clutch of Circumstances," the Burglar of Mark Twain's—Evelyn Diamond.

"Captain John Smith," Vernon Quinn—Mildred Stanley.

"Union Portraits," Gamaliel Bradford—Grace Marie Phillips.

Still another table held books selected by the whole school as the most popular.

Contests Held.

Anyone in high school had the privilege of entering either the essay or poetry contest. The suggested subjects for the essays were: Ten Books I Would Like to Own and Why; How to Take a Trip Abroad via Book Land; Modern Book Illustration; Recent Biographies Worth Reading: Why I Like ——'s Books; Why I Like to Read; The Most Attractive Book I Saw at ——'s Bookstore; My Favorite Author; A Tour of Bookland; My Book Chum and Taking My Book Chums Sight Seeing. Other suggestions were writing of slogans for book week, writing of "Blurbs" for book jackets, writing of original poems concerning books, preparing of lists of favorite books and consolidating the lists from all classes and posting in the library.

Some suggestions for material to appear in the Advocate, the school paper, were original essays and poems, book riddles, sketches of authors, reviews of new books, news of book week activities, a hidden title story to be used in English classes with special notice to the pupil who could locate the most titles.

Awards Presented.

Awards for the best poem and essay submitted to the four judges, H. C. Mardis, Miss Francis Duncomb, Miss Belle Farman and Miss Sarah T. Muir, were presented by Anne Bunting, vice president of the writers' club, at the assembly Friday morning.

A book on 'Modern Comedy" by Galsworthy was awarded Frank Greenslit for his essay on Why I Like Hugh Walpole's Books." Others who received honorable mention were Beth Schmidt and Breta Peterson. There were nine entries.

Elizabeth Regan won a Book of Nebraska Verse for the best poem which was called "Evening Musing." Anne Bunting and Aldridge Buckner won honorable mention. There were eight entries in the poetry contest.

Winning Poem.

The following poem was written by Elizabeth Regan.

Evening Musing.

When evening in her grey cloak
Announces the coming of night
Riding on a black steed,
The trees seem like priests
Bending over the earth
Giving their benediction
In the twilight.

The following essay was written by Frank Greenslit.

Why I Like Hugh Walpole's Books.

"The constant perusal of novels is a waste of time. It gives rise in the mind of the reader to a sort of morbid, passive interest in the lives of persons who never existed. Especially when, as often happens, the characters are extravagantly over-done and the plot is impossible, does the novel exert a harmful influence on it's reader. The greater part of current fiction is like this; and it is avidly devoured by the greater part of the reading public.

Two Novel Types.

"Present day novelists are, for the most part, prone to class themselves in one of two categories. They are either realists or romanticists. The former always try to depict life as it really seems to them; that is without much glamour and adventure. In their efforts they exaggerate the pathos and hard-knocks and the tragedy of life; and consequently their books are flavored with a somber, morose cynicism which inhibits the wholesome enjoyment for the reader.

"The romanticists are just the opposite. They impart to their books a fanciful, visionary atmosphere. Their characters are always having all sorts of wonderful things happen to them at just the proper time. They are saturated with the spirit of melodrama. Reading many of their books is just like eating too many candy-bars. One soon sickens of it.

"But out of all the turmoil and antagonism that goes on between the adherents oft the two schools there appear certain writers who have not yielded to either. They stand out preeminently above the rest. They are neither realist or romanticist. They have a struck a happy medium. Such artists as Sherwood Anderson, Galsworthy, Erich Remarque, and for me, Hugh Walpole, have captured the tastes or intelligent readers because they are temperate in their use of the imaginary, and moderate in portraying the trials of human life.

Walpole Fascinates.

That is why I like Walpole. No other author has ever fascinated me so completely. His are the only contemporary novels I enjoy reading twice. They are so alluring, so compelling; and their glamorous realism makes one feel that life is fair and that there is a certain beautiful happiness in store for everyone.

Of course he is an Englishman. He writes the language faultlessly. His style is admirable, but it did not come as a gift. Back of his books are years of intensive, concentrated cultivation of the mechanics of writing. As a result he is master of the novel, the most difficult form in literature to perfect; difficult because of the many subtle variations in plot and characterization it demands. He is recognized by the literary world as an authority on phraseology and idiom. He has a keen appreciation of the element of rhythm in prose, fostered, no doubt by his love of music.

Yet 'all beyond these mere intellectual accomplishments Hugh Walpole is a man. I am sure that unlike many artists, he could mix with his fellow beings on terms of equality; that he could perform real manual labor without shirking; that he could converse with a working man in such a way as to make the latter exclaim, 'I'd like to have a friend in that fellow.'

Athletic Appearance.

"He is close to six feet tall and of massive build. His complexion ruddy in hue, is more like an athlete's than a man in letters. Always in the peak of health he is amiable, lovable, a truly magnetic personality.

"If you prefer phantasy with a capital 'ph' read his 'Portrait of A Man With Red Hair;' if you wish a novel classical in its descriptions of rural life read "Jeremy.' Would you rather see life stripped of its romance, and yet worth while, read 'Fortitude.' Walpole's books are always unique, always worth one's time.

"Yes.... I am admittedly, decidedly a Walpole fan; nor am I alone. Thousands of people buy his books each year; countless editions of his books are ever published. Hugh Walpole is among that selective group of writers whose fiction fully rewards and merits the time it takes to read it."

Art Prizes Given.

The art club also gave prizes to both the advanced and beginning student who made the best poster. Sidney Dewey won first place in the advanced group with a poster on "Books on the Orient," while Harriet Woods won first place in the beginning group with a poster on "Books about Drama."

In the advanced group Lucile Lampert and Genive Mastalka received honorable mention while Phil Yost and Robert Grady received honorable mention in the beginning group. Books of artists illustrated in colors were the prizes. Phil Yost received a block print instead of a book.

Sees Vivid Contrast Between Lincoln And Its Eastern Twin

Lincoln, Neb., does not have all the odd or interesting agricultural incidents of the world, even though it is our pride that we are within its bread basket. Lincoln, Mass., has its rural and unique oddities too. According to pictures sent by Mrs. G. A. Loveland, formerly of Lincoln, and now of Wellesley, Mass., the upper picture shows seed corn under the eaves of a barn in Lincoln, Mass. The other is a blue Hubbard squash that is growing in a picket fence on the Gray farm at Lincoln, Mass.

BY LILLIAN S. LOVELAND.

The town of Lincoln, Massachusetts is quite different from the city of Lincoln, Nebraska. For one thing, "town" in New England, means township, and is made up of a number of small villages with farms and country estates adjoining. It is governed by a board of selectmen, and by all the people in their annual "town meeting."

Though Lincoln is less than twenty miles from Boston, much of the country seems wild and uninhabited. One can drive for a considerable distance and not see a house, for the timber, pine, hemlock and spruce, and hardwoods; birch, maple, oak and hickory cover the greater portion of the land.

There is little farming of the kind we are familiar with in Nebraska: the fields of corn seem but small patches, and the corn itself is of a different variety; small and flinty. Usually the corn stalks are cut while still green and piled up in tepee-like stacks. Later it is hauled into barns and husked, the stalks being kept for fodder. The finest ears are saved for seed-corn, and it is a common sight to see long chains or tassels of corn ears hung under the eaves of barns. There is no alfalfa and practically no wheat. Most of the cultivated land is given over to the raising of hay, usually timothy and clover which is reseeded every few years, or to the native grass. Haying, which comes in July, is the really busy season for the New England farmer. A second crop, called "rowan" is often cut in September.

Vegetables Big Crop.

In parts of Lincoln, there are large market gardens where the finest of strawberries, asparagus, tomatoes and sweet corn, and later cauliflower, squash and celery are raised. There are also extensive orchards; Mackintosh Reds and Baldwins being the favorite varieties, though Delicious and Jonathans are being introduced in a few places.

Driving through the outskirts of Lincoln "Center" the other day, we noticed a big blue Hubbard squash growing between the pickets of the front fence. Mrs. Gray, the farmer's wife, told us that it just happened to grow that way, and not, as we first supposed, that someone had put the squash there when it was small.

Speaking of driving, the roads around Lincoln, Mass. are very different from those around Lincoln Nebraska, for they curve and twist and turn in and out through dense woods—gorgeous now in their autumn coloring; between stone walls or rail fences—never barb-wire, beside some clear, sparkling brook—one never hears "crick" in these parts, past gray rocky ledges and stony upland pastures, on the edge of green hay meadows, smooth as lawns after the late mowing, skirting the short of a blue, shining lake or pond—Walden Pond, beloved by Thoreau is partly in the town of Lincoln—and on into charming villages of elm-shaded, clean white, green-blinded houses. The roads for the most part are hard surfaced, but the back roads are covered with the natural sand and gravel of this region, and though sometimes a bit rutty and stony are perfectly passable even in rainy weather.

So Many Folks

LIKE to give gifts ranging in price from 50 cents to $1.50, so I must tell you of the delicate gifts of organdy I saw at the Mary Jane Garment Co. Lovely bridge aprons of white or pasel shade. Perfectly beautiful boudoir pillows made entirely of pastel organdy ruffles or some like huge flower for only $1.50. See the novel gifts of oil cloth.

I'll Bet Hubby

GETS anything but a kick, when he receives the statement in January for his Christmas present. How'd you like to select him a clever watch, lighter, cuff links, smart cameo and many other things, and have the privilege of paying for it in small payments? At Boyd's jewelry store this club plan is available for just such a wife as I. Then too, on every $25 purchase there is a fine gift given—a set of four silver salt and pepper shakers or clever modern smoke stand.

A Fellow Just Can't

GO on doing the same thing year after year and be in style. Take Christmas cards. Even those Holiday greetings have a new style this year, at least I discovered some at Latsch Brothers, which are entirely different. Your own personality may be decidedly developed in the unique folders, the illustration on the outside and a space for your own personal note within. Then, they have some cleverly engraved with the Christmas message in the type print they will employ in adding your name. Some in parchment, some with old-time metal seals, distictive and modest ones too. Many are direct imports from France and England. Now don't get the impression that these are expensive. This exquisite showing includes those priced as low as two for 5 cents up to a dollar. As an added feature for those selecting early, they will print your name on as many as 25 up to 150 for only one dollar. So you see it would pay to take advantage of this within the next few days.

Every Woman

WHO pays the slightest heed to smartness knows that today she may own a fur coat, a fine fur scarf and still escape the reproach of extravagance. She is just shrewd enough to invest in something which will give beauty to her appearance and comfort to her body for many years to come for as you select coats at Cadwallader's you're sure of the very styles that the most famous of all fur designers can create. Also Cadwallader's models are very moderately priced. Make up your mind to have what you want this Christmas and be clever enough to have Hubby with you when you try on these flattering ones at Cadwallader's.

Mrs. Champe Says

WHY not give beauty this year? My guaranteed perfect permanent waves will make gifts of lasting beauty for Mother, Daughter, Sister or Sweetheart—the price for the complete permanent is always $5.00—your shampoo included. All work done by expert operators under my personal supervision. Emme Champe's Beauty Shop, Sears-Roebuck Store, Tenth and O. Phone B6871.

Cleaning for Holiday Festivities

ISN'T hard at all when we've the Modern Cleaners to rely on for the cleaning of our laces and drapes. No matter how lovely your drapes, how sheer your laces and nets, you're sure to be pleased with the Modern Cleaners up-to-date and prompt service. Holiday festivities become more pleasurable when we're all clean and ready. Call them at F2377.

For Years

MOTHERS of musically inclined daughters and sons have chosen their instruments at Crancer's, so I know it will be good news to you to know that the new Christmas shipment is bigger and better this year than ever before. See these at the Altstadt Instrument Co., in Crancer's.

When You're Searching

FOR just the right Christmas gift—one that wouldn't usually be thought of and one that is useful and ornamental too. Did it ever occur to you that a clever hand-set telephone for her boudoir might be just the thing? Especially since they may now be obtained in color to harmonize with that room. While you're about it why not have the extension put in too? After the small installation fee it's only 70 cents per month more, and think of the steps it will save. Perhaps you want this cradle type for some nook down stairs, I'd suggest a clever Chinese red, or perhaps a green. The black ones would be ideal for Dad's study and these are only 25 cents a month more. See the six new colors displayed in the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph office and choose from there. Remembr, too, it's only 50 cents more a month to have any color and only 25 cents for the black. While the extension is an added 50 cents a month after the small installation fee. An attractive gift card explaining your present will be furnished to hang on the tree or put in the stocking.

The Idea That

BARGAINS were only to be obtained after Christmas is fast diminishing. Vance & Holm's are having a pre-Christmas sale of fine fabric remnants. This sale starts Dec. 3rd and continued throughout the week. These, of course are only some of the discontinued numbers of their best lines, and in ideal lengths for pillows, scarfs and seat covers for small chairs or stools. If you utilize some of these in your Christmas presents, your friends will feel indebted to you for ever after. Also in addition to this marvelous offering you may buy (already made) charming pillows and a special discount on furniture. Now this ought to be appreciated for it certainly couldn't come at a more opportune time.

I Pulled Off My

BIG woolly mitten and gazed at the exquisite gloves at Magee's as a cat would queen. Gloves, usually there's not much to tell about them but these at Magee's are so exquisite and charming and I might say well priced that you'll have to forgive my raving. I found the softest of suede in a biarritz pull-on style in delicate shades of egg shell nude and beige. These are six-button length (without the six buttons, you know.) Then the same type in French kid and lovely colors of ivory and white, priced at only $5. For more conservative purses I want to mention those fine French kid ones of brown, black, white and mode, priced at $2.95. When I was pulling on my big mittens preparing to leave with my choicy bit of information, they added something which was indeed news—they told me they were able to procure long ones—I mean 16 button "Musquataire" style in colors of delicate eggshell and white for evening. It takes only a few days after you've placed your order to obtain these and they're only $8.50. The girl who receives these for Christmas will be devinely sure of being one of Lincoln's FIRST to wear these.

Not Only One Item of

INTEREST did I find at Schulte's, but many—many Christmas gift suggestions. What seemed to me the greatest bargain of all, were the electric waffle irons with lifetime guarantee, selling for only $4.95 each. Many things of more personal trend were there also—pretty double chokers of pearls, only 55c; lovely stationery come in huge gay boxes, selling from 25 cents to 49 cents. The clever perfume atomizers were indeed bargains, for these were of many colored glass, dainty shapes, and only 50 cents each. You may shop for days in Schulte's and each day find new treasures. The unique belt and purse sets of many colors would delight the heart of the high school miss, and their cost is only 25 cents each.

If You Were So Oldfashioned

AS to serve cranberries in the usual style Thanksgiving—don't admit it—and don't repeat the offense, when you can obtain the delicious cranberry sherbet at Koser's. I know you'd rather be dead than out of style, so I'm going to tell you of some more festive ices to be obtained there. Brick ice cream with cranberry sherbet centers, bricks with bell centers, also individual bell moulds. Think how the kiddie's Christmas party would pep up with bricks and green Christmas tree centers or better still, the individual green tree moulds alone. I'm terribly old style I guess, for I never dreamed of buying brick ice cream with candle centers. Of course you can always obtain black walnut, orange and nesselrode pudding. This last is so apeptizing I'll have to tell you about it. It is made of a combination of fruits wit ha brandy flavor and it's pink in color. Remember to order your individual ice cream a day in advance, and it will be made up especially for your party.

Proudly We Proclaim

THE news that Mayer Bros. Co. have been appointed the Lincoln headquarters for Keyser silk hose. If you wish hose that give the illusions of almost no hose at all, try their chiffons, for daytime and busy functions, the semi chiffons and for office and sport, the service weight. The alluring fall and winter shades just beckon us their way. "Piccadilli," (a deep bronze); "Aveneu," (a brunette shade); "Riverside," (a subtle blonde shade); "Plaza," (an alluring sun tan); and "Park Lane" is a rich beige tan. All colors as you see, will directly compliment the new gowns.

A new service feature in connection with this smart Keyser shop is the new "Vanitas" hose mending machine just installed. Bring your slightly worn hose in, the initial run is 15 cents and each additional one is only 5 cents more. Be sure to call on Mayer's Keyser shop for this service.

The Card Reflecting

YOUR personality is surely to be found at George Brothers. In their handsome showing I found every type personal card imaginable from father to son, daughter to mother. In fact every one from grand dad to baby has specifically been mentioned in the message to be found—and these cards also are low priced too from 3 cents up. It is time to have yours engraved or embossed for early mailing.

This Is Just a Warning

DON'T wait too long to have those Christmas Photos of the kiddies taken and don't make a mistake about where to take them. Mr. Skoglund at Hauck's has a way with kiddies, and produces portraits of their exact likeness.

ALTHOUGH black has such a strong hold on costume, a report of fashions worn at the Yale-Princeton football game suggested the continuance of bright, dark blues, the increased sponsoring of dark street greens, and an occasional instance of dahlia, in wool. Tweed was quoted the favored fabric for the fur-trimmed suit, which gave evidence of general popularity. Violet and lighter lavender tones were marked in this connection, trimmed with lighter and shorter haired foxes. Broadcloth coats, of course, kept up their quota, and tweed hats in a variety of shapes to match the tweed costume were not forgotten.

FORMAL daytime suits are discussed by fashion authorities returning from abroad, as especially important in such fabrics as broadcloth or other smooth-surfaced lightweight woolens. Black is naturally considered most important in this connection, with Lanvin's treatment of this style phase praised. All-black coats in lightweight cloths are cited as interesting when trimmed with black, flat furs or restrained applications of ermine.

MAKE no mistake, this year marks the renaissance of the corset. That doesn't mean the old long ones, fairly bristling with bones, any more than longer skirts and high waist-lines mean a return to the dresses of 1912. The new corsets are adapted to the modern dresses, just as the dresses are adapted to modern ways. And there are certain features of these models that will make them even more comfortable than the brief girdles most women have been wearing for the last five years or so.

In the first place, they are nearly all longer, which prevents any roll of fat appearing wherever the elastic ends. Secondly, they are cut to accentuate the waist, giving a beautifully fitted effect. And what bones they have are few and far between, and usually light and short. There is no attempt to obtain an hour-glass silhouette—the natural lines of the figure are followed. There freedom for the lungs, for the waist, and for the diaphragm—no shoving or pushing up or pulling down to fit a prescribed formula. And, on the aesthetic side, the fabrics are enchanting—satin, moire, and brocade in all of the peach-pinks, with a few very pale blues and greens. One is tempted to follow the example of the Indian woman who saved her money for a corset and then proudly wore it—pink brocade, lacings, garters, and all—outside her dark Mother Hubbard!

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

It Takes Courage To Make A Change In The Mode Of Living But Fear Is Destroyed Through Determination To Do.

Those who are the bravest in battle are not those who know no fear. They are the men who, fearing and quaking inwardly, dare to do the gallant deed. Fear is destroyed through the will and determination to do the brave thing.

In a letter received this week asking for a personal answer a wife signing her letter "Quaking" tells of her big problem. She has been married five years and all the time has continued her part in the business world making as much money as her husband makes. This was to have been a temporary plan but she has found it increasingly difficult to make a change.

Now she knows that to continue in her outside work means an empty life and that for her own good and that of her husband she must give up her job and become a home-maker. They have reached the goal of owning their own home. Many families live on the salary which her husband makes, and she is convinced that so long as she is contributing money into the family income that her husband will not seek to make more. His creative years are passing. And she wants a family.

But she trembles at the drastic step of giving up her job. She knows that unless she not do so knows that unless she does so now, this year, that they will continue always drifting along in a selfish, meaningless life and will grow more and more apart.

She is convinced in her mind of what she should do. But she says she is a coward and wonders if she has the courage to carry it through.

I advised her to take the first step, give up her job, rearrange their family budget to live upon her husband's salary, and enter into her new job of home making and I hope, raising a family. She may quake and tremble with fear many times, but if she has the courage to live up to her convictions I believe she will win the goal she wants.

The Aopolgy.

To be ready to apologize when in the wrong is an indication of a broad mind.

Many a man and woman have gone through life with an unhappy cloud hanging over their heads, because, as they have thought, they were "too proud" to make an apology.

That is not pride. It is weakness and cowardice. When we make a mistake and know we are in the wrong, the brave act is to confess that we were in error. And with such a confession comes a remarkable clearing away of the clouds and a sense of peace.

A Laudable Desire.

Dear Minerva: I have been living here for nearly a year and in another city about three hundred miles from here is a young man to whom I have been engaged for three years. We have known each other for nearly ten years and I think he is a wonderful man. But I am not as young as I used to be, I am twenty-six and he is twenty-eight, and although I want him to work out his own problems in a business way before getting married, I must confess that I find it a bit lonesome living the life of an engaged girl so many miles from her fiance. He is in business, but says he wants to increase its size before he marries. I am doing nothing but sitting and waiting, and its not a very profitable way to pass one's time. I do not care to become actively engaged in a professional or business way, for I would no more than get started when I would have to drop it. Do you think he is adopting the right attitude toward delaying our marriage? Frankly, I would rather get married and help him, if possible, than to wait until his business has increased. Maybe it will not increase, and then where would I be? Tell me what you think about it. —PEGGY.

A—I think you have the right idea exactly and I certainly do not blame you for your restlessness. On first thought, it would seem that either your fiance is a bit hesitant about accepting the responsibilities of marriage, or else his financial affairs are less prosperous than you suspect. However, it may be, and I hope this is the case, that he hesitates to ask you to become his wife until he is financially able to give you everything which he presumes you would wish. Some men feel they should not ask a girl to marry unless they are able to give her a home, car, lovely furniture and pretty clothes, which, after all, is a rather laudable desire.

But the fact remains, you would be happier married than waiting for his ship to come in, and I would suggest that you tell him your exact wishes. He will at least know how you feel about it and you will probably learn the true reason why he is delaying the marriage. If there is the possibility that he does not care to go through with it, the sooner you learn that the better it will be for you.

Depends Upon The Man.

Dear Minerva: I have been a widow for four years and am the mother of three children, eight, seven and five years old. For the past six months I have been keeping company with a man about two years younger than I am, although he does not know I am older. He is a very industrious man, has enough money to buy a home and has no bad habits. He has asked me many times to marry him, but I have not given him my answer. I do not believe I could ever love any man as I did my husband, but I do feel that I care a great deal for this man, possibly enough to marry him. But here is my problem. Do you think it would be best for the children? As he has never been married, I sometimes fear he does not understand what it will mean to become the father of my three darling children. He seems to like them now, but will they eventually annoy and irritate him? Any advice you can give me would indeed be appreciated.—UNDECIDED.

A.—Your question is almost impossible for me to answer for it all depends upon the man. It would be a wonderful thing for the children to have a father, provided he is the right kind of a father. It would bring nothing but unhappiness and grief if he failed to measure up to the necessary qualifications. And I might say that he is assuming a much greater responsibility than the average man who marries. You are doing right in not hurrying into the marriage and perhaps a few more months will serve to convince you either of the wisdom or folly of such a union.

Sky Rocket Terminal

From this almost completed 100-foot steel tower at the deserted Camp Devens, Mass., another test of a rocket aimed at the heavens will be made by Prof. R. H. Goddard, inset, physicist of Clark university, Worcester, Mass. It has become a tradition that Professor Goddard hopes one of his rockets will reach the moon, but the professor is more interested in obtaining scientific data by merely piercing the atmosphere.

Cotner Notes

The Rev. Jack Leonard, '21, minister to the Havelock Christian church spoke in chapel Thursday on "The Sign Posts of Life." Mrs. Leonard sang three numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Bertha Owings Aydelotte.

Howard Kitchen, '31, Lincoln, was re-elected captain of the football team following the Cotner-Doane game at Crete, when Cotner won the Nebraska College Athletic Conference championship.

The second annual Cotner-Doane day was held Friday, November 22, with Doane college entertaining. A special train carried the students and faculty to Crete and back to Lincoln, A joint chapel meeting at 10:45, a cafeteria lunch at noon, a women's soccer game at 1 p. m., a conference championship football game at 2:30, and a fellowship banquet at 6 p. m., were the events of the day.

The Rev. J. Kinney O'Heeron of the Bethany Christian church spoke at chapel Tuesday on Thanksgiving. Short talks were made by Coach F. B. Moon and Prof. B. E. Ogden, chairman of the athletic board. Coach Moon presented the football used in the championship game with Doane to Dean Breece to be kept as a trophy for the school. The platform was decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins and autumn fruits.

Prof. Earnest W. Lundeen, faculty adviser to Theta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalistic fraternity, has been notified from the national office that he has been elected a life member of the fraternity.

McCook College

The Dramatic club of the McCook Junior college met Monday evening and was entertained by a play, "Dear Little Wife," put on by Miss Margaret Finn, James Corcoran, and Ray Brown.

A clever take-off on the Thanksgiving day game between McCook Indians and Central City college took place at convocation Tuesday. Clyde Bradley, representing McCook was operated upon by John Kahl and Frank Uridil for footballitis. The operation disclosed yards of weiners and a football which were extricated. Then Gladys Wright led the assembly in a snappy rally.

Students of the McCook Junior college enjoyed a pleasant Thanksgiving. Many went home for dinner and returned to McCook for the game in the afternoon. The faculty also celebrated Turkey day. Dean J. R. Johnson spent the day with his family, Superintendent J. A. True, of the education department, spent his time hunting ducks. Dean Eunice Hilton, Miss Gladys Tipton, music instructor, and Miss Anne Marshall of the zoology department had dinner in the country at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Randall. Miss Gertrude Sherk, language instructor, and Miss Helen Shurtleff, history teacher, spent the day in McCook.

The Women's organization of the McCook Junior college had a hard-time party Tuesday night. Miss Edith Stewart won the prize for the tackiest costume. The girls played games and then enjoyed refreshments.

University Notes

A recent issue of the Boston Transcript contained a half page illustrated article on old Thanksgiving customs, written by Mamie Meredith of the department of English of the university. The article was also used by the Milwaukee Journal and the Portland Oregonian. It is the third of a series by Miss Meredith on characteristic American customs in observing holidays, festivals, and anniversaries. Arbor Day and the Fourth of July were discussed in the two previous articles.

"Blue Skies and Red Sunsets," will be the subject of the regular observatory lecture to be given by Prof. G. D. Swezey, Tuesday evening, December 3, at the observatory, at 8 o'clock. The observatory will be open from 7 until 10 o'clock, and pending clear skies, Jupiter may be observed through the telescope.

Equipment has been purchased for use in the mathematical computing laboratory recently installed in Mechanic Arts building. Two 10-bank calculating machines have been installed and a third 8-bank machine will be added soon. At the present time another company has given the use of two 9-bank electrical calculating machines. According to Dr. C. C. Camp, the equipment of the college of business administration had to be used previously. With the calculating laboratory, classes in statistics and insurance can be more adequately handled.

Prof. E. F. Schramm of the department of geology is attending the professinoal interfraternity conference which is being held in Chicago this weekend. Professor Schramm represents all chapters of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary national geological fraternity, at the conference. He is the grand vice president of the fraternity.

"Romance of Rubber," is the title of a new film that will be shown Thursday, December 5, under the auspices of the department of chemistry and the student chemical engineering society, in mechanical engineering 206, at 7:30 o'clock. This film is loaned to the university by one of the large rubber companies. New specimens of manufactured rubber companies. New specimens of manufactured rubber products will also be displayed. Prof. C. J. Frankforter will have charge of the program, which is open to the public.

Dr. M. J. Brown, a graduate of the university with the class of 1905, was on the campus this week interviewing men in the department of chemistry. Dr. Brown is vice president of the Roessler & Hasslaker Chemical company located at Niagara Falls, New York.

F. G. Collins, assistant curator of the museum, will have the regular Sunday program at Morrill hall this Sunday, lecturing on "Scenery" and showing a number of colored lantern slides in connection with the lecture. The slides show scenes in various countries of the world. Preceding this adult program at 4 o'clock, Miss Marjorie Shanafelt will conduct the 2:45 o'clock program for juveniles, giving an illustrated lecture on "Indians of the Plains," and showing a film "Monarch of the Plains," which tells of the buffalo.

The department of geography has just received notice from Dr. W. W. Atwood, president of Clark university at Worcester, Mass., that Miss Esther Anderson, instructor in geography at the University of Nebraska, now on leave of absence, has successfully passed her preliminary examination for her doctor's degree in geography with distinction, and that she has also passed her qualifying examinations in French and German.

The John J. Pershing collection of weapons from the Philippine Islands is being rearranged in Morrill hall this weekend. The collection will be given a permanent case in the lower corridor of the musuem. Since the gift of the Pershing collection several years ago, it has never been definitely placed in any portion of the museum.

Prof. H. E. Bradford, Prof. Florence Corbin, both of the department of vocational education, C. A. Fulmer, state director of vocational education, LeRoy Clements, state superintendent of agricultural education, Miss Birdie Vorheis, state supervisor of home economics education, and Harvey Freeland, state superintendent of trade nad industrial education, will leave for New Orleans Sunday, where they will attend the annual meeting of the American Vocational association. Mr. Fulmer is a former president of the organization and Professor Brandford is a former vice president.

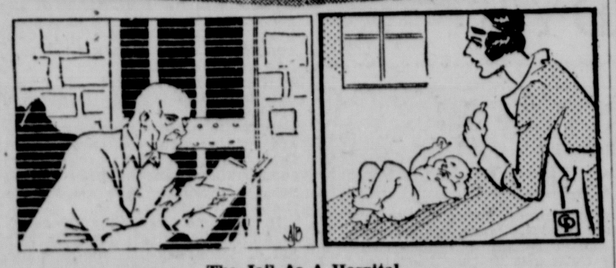
Jail Is Turned Into Red Cross County Hospital Through Faith Of Women



The Jail As A Hospital.

(By Central Press)

WINDSOR, N. C., Nov. 30—A few weeks ago it was the Bertie county jail, famed repository of bootleggers murderers and other participants in Bertie feuds.

Now it is the first county Red Cross hospital in the world, and hailed by John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, as the outstanding achievement of the year by a county chapter.

Bertie county had a big poor farm and not enough able-bodied paupers to work it, so it made the farm a reformatory and put its bad men to work. That made the jailhouse in Windsor, back of the county courthouse, where there are records of deeds going back to 1690, signed by Indian chiefs with marks, more or less useless.

Faith Wins.

Mrs. Francis D. Winston, chairman of Bertie chapter, conceived the idea of making it into an emergency hospital. With no funds but boundless faith, women went to work. Now, where a few months ago there was a cell in which Percy "Foots" Miller, all-around bad man, who slew Chief of Police Pat White of Windsor, was held while a jury decided he should be executed, there is a pure white nursery for newborn babes.

After gallons of disinfectants had been used, and cell doors removed, painters and carpenters went to work. Necessary equipment was donated piecemeal. The hospital, which also serves as a restroom for women visiting Windsor, was dedicated with a county-wide celebration.

"This," said the dedicatory speaker, "shows what you can do when you take the most loathsome thing in the county and pay a little attention to it."

71ST CONGRESS MEETS MONDAY

'TAX REDUCTION BY CHRISTMAS' SOLONS' SLOGAN

Lawmakers Gathering in Capital to Tackle Enormous Amount of Legislation, Which Will Require Four to Six Months of Steady Work—House Hopes to Pass Tax Slash Resolution by Thursday—Senate Starts Off With Long Standing and Colorful Battle Over Seating of Vare.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.) — A congress, theoretically fresh, but actually pretty well battered and bruised by the rough voyage through the Hoover "Honeymoon session," assembled in the capital tonight to undertake an enormous amount of legislation, beginning on Monday. It is the first regular session of the Seventy-first congress.

Ahead lies four months, possibly six, of steady grind. The flowers will be blooming in the spring before President Hoover will be rid of the blocs, the coalitions and the insurgents, who have already caused his administration considerable embarrassment.

The grist of legislation embraces everything from tax reduction to prohibition reform, from tariff revision to a fight over the World court, from the right of a senator to his seat to the appropriation of some $4,000,000,000 with which to run the vast machinery of government another year.

And there will be politics too, for just ahead are the congressional elections of next year, when the entire house membership of 435 and one-third of the senate face the voters again. Primaries begin early in the spring.

The one piece of legislation that seems assured of snappy action is the administration's proposal to cut $160,000,000 off the nation's tax bill, benefiting the "little fellow" and the big corporation alike with a reduction of one per cent.

Prompt Action Assured.

"Tax reduction by Christmas" was the slogan of the gathering legislators today. It is an administration measure, but the democrats willingly have gone along, the insurgents are for it and it appeared

DENSE FOG CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Air Mail Pilot Seriously Injured When Wing Hits Bridge.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 30 — (UP)—C. C. Price, pilot of a Varney air mail plane, was believed fatally injured when his plane crashed into a tower of the Interstate Bridge, between Portland and Vancouver this afternoon. The Columbia river was covered with a fog impenetrably thick and the flier was following the river on his course toward the Swan Island airport at Portland.

Price, who had been with the Varney lines since 1926 and had between 3,000 and 4,000 hours experience, had once gone on to the approximate position on Swan Island, but the fog was so thick he could not land so he headed back toward the Army field at Vancouver barracks.

One wing of the plane hit the north lift tower of the bridge and sent the ship into a spin. It struck a lumber pile on the north bank about 100 feet from the tower, fell off and burst into flames. The plane and mail were burned.

Price was unconscious when pulled from the wreckage and rushed to Clark General hospital here. Hospital attendants said his condition appeared to be serious.

Oil Seeping From Well In Heart Of Bellingham, Wash.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Nov. 30 — (UP) — With oil coming straight up, a temporary derrick was being erected today at the busy intersection of Alabama and Orleans streets.

W. S. Quimby and associates were having the derrick installed further to explore a "well" which was developed while city workmen were excavating for a water main.

Seepage from the hole has mysteriously continued for weeks.

Quimby said it was planned to drill to a depth of seventy-five feet with an augur in an attempt to locate the source of seepage.

Work is progressing in one hole through blue clay at a distance of thirty-two feet, Quimby said.

Work on the well was being carried on by private enterprise after the city council refused to spend more money in solving the mystery of the seepage.

Florence Rockefeller, Divorcee, and George Sloan, To Be Married

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—A marriage license was issued today at the municipal building to Mrs. Florence Lincoln Rockefeller, former wife of William A. Rockefeller, grand-nephew of John D. Rockefeller, sr., and George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute and a native of Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Rockefeller's marriage to the grand-nephew of the oil magnate was the outcome of one of the society war romances of 1917.

After a hectic married life, the Rockefellers were divorced in Connecticut, the wife charging the husband with habitual intemperance. They had three children, who at the time of the divorce were given into the custody of the mother.

MATRON CAUSES 'DEPORTATION' OF SWAIN FROM EAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Thomas Whitridge, 28, son of a prominent Baltimore family, was today ordered deported from the state of California under a six months' suspended sentence for alarming and disturbing a San Francisco society matron.

His deportation and suspended sentence was alleged to have been arranged through the intervention of a group of prominent San Franciscans. He was arrested Thursday night following an unwelcomed visit to the home of Mrs. Mosley Taylor. His real identity at the time was hidden behind the name of Tom White.

PIPE LINE FIRM MAY SELL STOCK

Rail Commission Refuses To Exercise Control Over Issue.

The state railway commission found Saturday that it has no authority to exercise any control over the proposed $2,500,000 issue of stock and bonds by the Nebraska Pipe Line Co.

As a matter of legal procedure, the company recently applied to the commission for authority to issue its securities, but at the same time questioned the commission's jurisdiction on the grounds that it is to operate neither as a public service corporation nor a common carrier. The company is now building a pipe line, beginning at the state line near Chester, through which it will transport natural gas from Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas fields, to a number of Nebraska towns. The company will purchase the gas at the state line and will sell it to other companies, particularly the Nebraska Natural Gas Co., which in turn will distribute it to the consumers.

In its order issued Saturday, the commission holds that "since the company does not hold itself out to carry gas for other persons, and as it does not operate for a consideration, or for hire, it cannot be considered a common carrier," within the meaning of the law.

Numerous previous court decisions are cited as a basis for the commission's decision that the company is not a public utility.

This leaves the company free to issue its securities as it sees fit.

MORROW TO BE NAMED SENATOR IN EDGE'S PLACE

Ambassador to Mexico to Take Seat After London Conference.

BAIRD WILL SERVE IN THE MEANTIME

Envoy Consents to Be Candidate at Election Next November.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, will be appointed United States senator from New Jersey in place of Senator Walter E. Edge, the new American ambassador to France.

Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey tonight announced he will make the appointment. Ambassador Morrow will take up his duties upon his return from the naval disarmament conference in London, which he will attend as a deelgate.

In the meantime, David A. Baird, jr., of Camden, republican leader, will fill the senatorial vacancy, withdrawing upon Morrow's return from abroad.

Governor Larson told the 1,000 republican leaders gathered at a dinner that Ambassador Morrow had agreed to accept the appointment. Furthermore, the governor said that in a long distance telephone conversation with Mr. Morrow in Mexico City, the ambassador had agreed to enter the republican primaries at the next election in the candidacy to succeed himself in the senate.

Governor Larson made his announcement on his arrival here to attend a testimonal dinner to Ambassador Edge, who sails for France on December 6.

Friendly To Hoover Policies.

The governor said that his decision to appoint Ambassador Morrow to the New Jersey senatorial post was largely at the urging of Baird, who suggested that Ambassador Morrow would be the best New Jer-

CONTROL STAYS IN STATE COURT

Woodrough Declines To Name Receiver For Peters Trust.

Says Affairs Can Be Handled By Trade Department.

OMAHA, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Declaring the state department of trade and commerce was competent to handle the affairs of the closed Peters Trust company of Omaha, Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough this afternoon denied the application of Arthur F. Mullen for a federal receiver for the company.

"Appointment of a receiver for the company is not necessary at this time and the affairs can be well handled by the state department of trade and commerce," Judge Woodrough said in ruling against Mullen. "The company does not appear to be bankrupt but is a case of insolvency and therefore subject to the restriction of the state department."

Mullen filed the application for the appointment of a receiver in the interest of three creditors of the company for whom he served as attorney. He had suggested that George H. Pratt of Omaha be appointed as the receiver.

"Our only purpose in fighting for control of the company is to save money for stockholders and creditors," Attorney General Sorensen said. "We came into this case with the sole purpose of setting a new record for economical adjustment of affairs of the trust company. We believe the company should come under jurisdiction of the state department which has been inspecting it for years in the same manner banks are inspected."

The state department took over the trust company early this week because the company's funds were tied up so heavily in farm lands that it could not meet its cash liabilities. If a receiver was appointed by the Federal court the costs of handling the affairs of the company would be $25,000, Sorensen said.

Mullen had argued for a federal receiver on the ground that the company was not a bank, and he said that congress in 1909 and the state legislature in 1911, had held in acts that trust companies are not banks.

Sorensen had filed in Federal court an answer denying that the Peters Trust company had been declared bankrupt and he had challenged the jurisdiction of the Federal court until such action is taken.

Judge Woodrough set December 17 as the date for a further hearing on the question as to whether the company shall be adjudged bankrupt.

EVANS TALKS ON ORIENT PROBLEM

Sioux City Lawyer Sees Need of Controlling Immigration.

Friendly Relations With China Forecast By Speaker.

"It must be the hope of every loyal American citizen that the number of orientals in this country will never increase to the point where they will constitute an economic and cultural menace to our native population," declared H. A. Evans of Sioux City, Ia., before the Lancaster County Bar association Saturday evening. About seventy-five attended the dinner at the Lincoln hotel. Clinton J. Campbell, president of the association, presided and introduced Mr. Evans.

Mr. Evans, who is president of the Iowa bar association, spent a period of over eight months in the orient and has made a study of this country's relations with China and Japan. In the paper which he read, he reviewed in detail the

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Lack of respect for the dead caused the arrest here of James Salmon, St. Louis, credited by police as being one of the sources from which University of Missouri students were supplied with liquor.

Salmon, his car loaded with twenty-seven quarts of gin, broke through a funeral procession here yesterday and attracted attention of motorcycle patrolmen, who pursued him as a reckless driver.

When the St. Louis man finally was overhauled after a chase up paved roads and down side lanes, the officers recognized Salmon as a suspected bootlegger who had been under observation for several days.

Switchman Suffers Badly Sprained Leg

Rumor Pola Negri to Wed Frimi, Composer

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Following filing of divorce proceedings by Pola Negri against her husband, Prince Sergi Mdivani, at Paris, the film colony today discussed rumors that the Polish film star would marry Rudolph Frimi, noted composer.

The composer is said to be enroute to Hollywood to compose the music for a picture to be produced by United Artists.

Easterner Victim Gangland Bullets

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The body of David Altshuler, apparently the victim of gangland bullets, was found today two miles from the city, lying in a ditch. Police declared he had been "taken for a ride" by bootleggers.

BYRD HAS AIDED CLAIMS OF U. S. IN ANTARCTICA

Britain Also Claiming Region as Result of 1912 Discoveries.

CONTINENT MAY BE OF FUTURE VALUE

Seen as New Trade Route, Whaling Center and Mining Area.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Com. Byrd's flight over the South Pole and the great ice-capped Antarctic continent strengthens the United States' claim on this tremendous land of desolation, which may in the future be of great value to the world's people.

Diplomatic discussions with Great Britain over disputed sovereignty of the continent, believed to be larger than all Europe, have been postponed after an exchange of notes, but with the critical question of sovereignty unsettled.

Byrd's detailed survey of the region is expected to make available a greater store of knowledge of the South Polar regions than any previous exploration, and inasmuch as sovereignty claims in such cases rest largely on the extent of exploration, the American claims, according to experts, may be considerably enhanced.

Short Aerial Route.

The great continent is of potential importance as the shortest route of air commerce between South America, Africa and Australia, because it now shelters a large number of the dwindling whale supply of the world, and because large deposits of coal and possibly other minerals are believed hidden far under the ice which covers nearly all of the land. Neither man nor beast has been able to subsist on this desolate wasteland, as far as known.

HALL CASHIER OF LINCOLN BANK

Former Head of State Bankers Joins Local Institution.

To Immediately Assume Duties; Retains Interest at Greenwood.

Phil L. Hall, well known banker of Greenwood, who served during the past year as president of the Nebraska bankers' association, has been elected cashier of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. and will immediately assume the duties of that position. For the present he will continue to reside at Greenwood, giving part of his time and attention to the bank there, but will spend several days each week in Lincoln.

The place which Mr. Hall is taking in the executive organization of the Lincoln National is the one formerly held by State Bank Commissioner George W. Woods, who resigned it several months ago to take up his work as head of the Nebraska banking bureau.

Began Banking Career Here.

The new cashier is by no means a stranger to Lincoln, this city having been his home up to ten years ago. He is a son of the late Dr. P. L. Hall, who until his death was president of the Central National bank. It was under his father's guidance and training that Mr. Hall learned the banking business.

Officers and directors of the Lincoln National have for some time been looking the field over for an experienced banker to take over the cashier's work. From among a number of men who were considered they chose Mr. Hall, because of his experience and wide acquaintance among the business people of Lincoln and Nebraska.

With this addition the official personnel of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. will stand as follows:

President, W. A. Selleck; vice-presidents, Don L. Love, James R. Dougan and E. H. Lulkart; cashier, Phil L. Hall; assistant cashier, H. E. Leinberger.

Mr. Hall is 41 years old and a native of Nebraska, born at Mead in 1888. Dr. Hall, his father, who was in the banking business there, removed to Lincoln in the '90s upon being appointed secretary of the state banking board, which post he held for six years, and the family remained here permanently. Philip, jr., was educated in the Lincoln schools and at the university of Nebraska, being graduated from the state college of agriculture in 1909. He helped to earn his way through the schools by working first as a newspaper carrier and later for the local firms of Henkle & Joyce, Hardy Furniture Co., and Harpham Bros. In

RICE TRIAL SET FOR DECEMBER

Six Criminal Cases On Docket Of District Court Term.

Suit Over Appropriation For Paying Depositors Will Be Tried.

Six criminal and thirty civil cases were set for hearing in District court before the December jury at the call of the law docket in District Judge Shepherd's court Saturday morning. The term will open December 9.

Action of the state aaginst John M. Rice on a charge of performing an illegal operation is the major criminal action set for trial.

Among the more important civil cases is Governor Weaver's test case to settle knotty legal issues over the distribution of the $260,111 appropriated by the last legislature for the payment of depositors in the failed banks while the institutions were being operated by the guaranty fund commission. The case has been set for Thursday December 12.

Two actions against the county for alleged property damage in construction of county highways also are set for hearing. One was brought

Safebreakers Caught After a Gun Battle

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 30—(UP)—A gang of safebreakers was believed to have been broken up today when police captured two men, wounding one of them, during a running gun battle through the streets of Denton, near here.

A third man escaped. The battle followed an alleged attempt of the men to cart away a safe from a Denton garage. One man was wounded in both legs. The pair is being held for investigation concerning several safecrackings here within the last two weeks.

PITT EMPLOYES "WAITING".

$250,000 Stolen Gems Recovered

BUFFALO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Jewels valued at $250,000 which were stripped from party guests by holdup men several weeks ago were recovered here today, according to Fred J. Healy, head of the Buffalo office detective agency.

A $200,000 necklace torn from Mrs. Ray Allen VanClief was not recovered.

Healey announced that four of the seven men held in suburban police cells have been identified as participants in the holdup.

Bernice Frank was arrested in a hotel with Clinton Duke, alleged leader of the gang. Others held are Edward Rogacki and Stanley Stenlick. The names of the others were not revealed by the police, nor where the suspects are being held.

FRENCH ARMY OF OCCUPATION QUITS RHINELAND ZONE

Tri-Color of France Over Ehrenbreitstein Fortress Lowered and Troops Depart in Silence — Church Bells Tolled and Joyous Ceremonies Are Held in All the 2,500 Square Miles of Once Occupied Territory — 1,500,000 Will Live Under "Protection" of Own Flag for the First Time in Years.

BERLIN, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—One of the most enthusiastic celebrations in the history of post-war Germany took place at midnight tonight in commemoration of the evacuation of the Second occupied Rhineland zone by the former allied troops.

Starting with the tolling of church bells on the stroke of midnight, the event was signalized throughout the entire German nation by various patriotic meetings, radio speeches and general joviality, as the black, red and gold colors of Germany mounted the flagstaffs throughout the Rhineland zone where until today the tri-color of France and the emblem of Belgium had floated.

The French flag was hauled down during the day from the ancient fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, headquarters of the occupied zone, in a colorful ceremony participated in by the departing French troops and the joyous populace.

Evacuation Complete.

Hauling down of the flag marked the end of eleven years of foreign occupation that began when American troops entered Coblenz on December 12, 1918. It also signified that evacuation of the Second Rhineland zone is now complete.

As the church bells tolled out a paean of thanksgiving for Germany's freedom from allied military control, the German flag was raised in its stead over the ancient fortress, and similar ceremonies were enacted in all the 2,500 square miles of Germany territory included in the occupied zone.

For some 1,500,000 Germans this was the first time they had lived under the "protection" of the Ger-

TEXAN KILLS WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

PILOT POINT, Tex., Nov. 30—(UP)—Mute testimony of the killing of his wife followed by his suicide was revealed today when the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bowman were found in the kitchen of their farm home near here.

Mrs. Bowman's head was crushed. Her husband's throat was slashed. The bodies were found by their three daughters and Rev. T. C. Harris upon their return from Fort Worth, where they attended a Thanksgiving day program.

Hunt Escaped Convict On Rockefeller Estate

EAST VIEW, N. Y., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—A detachment of keepers from East View penitentiary were searching the Ponantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller, sr., tonight for John Dean, 38, escaped convict.

Dean, holder of a long criminal record, was serving a one year sentence for safe robbery. The bars of the prison library where Dean usually worked under heavy guard were found spread open.

NEW TYPHOID VICTIM.

CLINTON, Ia., Nov. 30—(U.P.)—Clinton's typhoid fever epidemic claimed its eighth victim today when M. E. Albaugh, 52, succumbed to the malady. Seventy-four persons were reported afflicted with the disease by city health officials today, but only a few of the cases are considered serious.

SNOW FALLS AS MERCURY RISES

Precipitation Here Light But Heavy In Other Nebraska Areas.

Light, wet snow which began falling in Lincoln early Saturday evening melted nearly as fast as it came down, but a thin blanket of white flakes had accumulated on the ground by midnight. At that hour the temperature here was just about at the freezing point.

Reports to the Burlington's chief dispatcher here indicated that light snow had fallen throughout the evening rather generally over the four divisions under the Lincoln offices. An average temperature of 35 degrees over this territory prevented much snow from piling up on the ground and was also the cause of some rain being interspersed with the snow at certain points.

The Burlington's reports cover practically all parts of the state except the northwest section.

Agents of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported about 10 o'clock Saturday evening as follows: Hastings—wet, heavy snow falling, with a temperature of 35; Plattsmouth—2 inches of snow on the ground but not snowing at time report made, temperature about freezing; Wahoo—3 inches of snow and still snowing; temperature about freezing; Grand Island—rain and snow falling alternately, temperature 32; Superior — rain falling, temperature 35.

Light southeasterly winds prevailed over the southeastern portion of the state, the reports indicated.

BOY WOUNDED, KEEPS SILENT

Edward Krepps, 14, Shot Accidentally While On Hunting Trip.

Suffers For Over Three Hours Before Tells Of Injury.

Fearing to tell his mother that he had been accidentally wounded while hunting with two companions Saturday afternoon, Edward Krepps, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Krepps, 1718 South Twenty-second street, suffered in Spartan silence waiting for his father to return home for dinner, when he confided details of the accident.

He was rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where Dr. Czar Johnson removed the .22 calibre bullet from the lad's right shoulder joint. The bullet entered the shoulder from the front, coursed along the shoulder blade and lodged in the rear of the joint, according to Dr. Johnson. The bone was not injured, Dr. Johnson said, and except for a slight danger of infection, the wound is not expected to prove serious.

Edward, together with Earl Brown, 14, son of Dr. and Mrs. Corol E. Brown, 1725 South Twenty-third street, and George Hodge, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hodge, 2315 Bradfield drive, all students in the Irving junior high school, left early Saturday afternoon on a hunting expedition south of the city, according to Mrs. Krepps. While the trio was in the vicinity of the Rock Island bridge spanning South Twenty-

Hoover 'Medicine Ball Cabinet' Works Out In 10 Above Zero Weather

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover and his "medicine ball cabinet" gave the old ball some rough treatment this morning. It was 10 degrees above zero and fast action was the result.

While they exercised on the white house lawn, early workers were stamping their feet and beating their chest for warmth and probably thinking, if they were president of the country they would remain indoors in such weather.

The players wore thick sweaters and leather windbreakers.

SAFE INVESTMENTS

CONSIDER SAFETY OF PRINCIPAL AND YOUR INTEREST WILL FOLLOW

The following EDITORIAL appeared in The Lincoln Star, Thursday, Nov. 7th, and should be read and studied by all who have money to INVEST:

WILL NOT CALL FOR MARGIN

A great many folks have learned, to their sorrow, that getting rich quickly is not so easy as it looked. Compared with the few who have played the market profitably, the number who have come out losers is legion.

Through sad experience we learn that the best method of acquiring a competence is by earning, saving, and wise investing, and the last element of this trio is as important as the others. One gets nowhere if the money earned and saved is afterward lost by "taking a chance" on uncertain investments. It is much better to buy something that assures a steady income, though a moderate one, than to gamble with speculative securities which are just as likely to go the wrong way as not.

WHAT COMES FROM "TAKING A CHANCE?"

One of the financial advertisements in The Star last Sunday carried this incisive heading:

"Safe and profitable investments will not call for margin."

There is a thought that should find lodgment in the mind of every man and woman who is trying to get ahead in the world. It is merely another way of saying that in order to build up an estate one must lay a solid foundation, just as he would do if he were constructing a house.

The steady shrinkage of quoted values in the stock market during the past several weeks, culminating in the series of crashes which knocked the bottom out of it in the last few days of October, did not touch many kinds of investments.

If, for instance, you happened to own shares in some well established business enterprise here in Lincoln, your holdings are worth as much today as they were a month or two ago. Your stock has not been boomed and sent up to dizzy heights by an artificial inflation process, and so it did not come down with Wall street securities. It is right on the same basis where it was, and in all probability will continue to bring the same returns as heretofore.

Perhaps you hold a life insurance policy in some reliable company whose stock is not listed on any of the speculative exchanges. If so, your investment has not depreciated one cent; on the contrary it has increased in value, because such a policy gains in worth from day to day, measured by its cash surrender, loan, or paid-up insurance rating.

But if you had put your savings into Wall street stocks "on margin," before the speculative upset came, you received a hurry-up summons from your broker to come through with some more money; and if you failed to do so you lost all that you had put in before [illegible] did respond by ponying up the additional [illegible] found [illegible]

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR IN 'SHORT WEEK'

Volume Of Sales Greatly Curtailed During 3 Trading Days.

A Further Recession In Business Activity Is Noted.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Business activity, despite constructive developments in Washington, appears to be declining at about the same rate as in the past five weeks, with present indications pointing to continued recession of a character and duration which is largely a matter of guesswork.

The president's conferences have unquestionably had some reassuring effect, and it is to be hoped that they have corrected a certain inclination to panic apprehension which clearly existed in the first days after the stock market crash. An excess of pessimism is particularly to be avoided when the actual situation of business had become unfavorable, and insofar as the president has restored a saner point of view in the minds of business men, his conferences have succeeded.

In the three days of trading this week on the exchange, the stock market has turned irregular, with price movements extremely narrow. Volume of sales has been greatly curtailed, with the average sales per day for the full five hour session, the smallest since midsummer. A few important issues were under heavy pressure, but the general list moved downward at only a leisurely pace. Market followers, however, have looked upon the mildly reactionary tone of this week as the familiar secondary decline and have therefore regarded the movements of the week with passing significance.

Smaller Steel Orders.

From the steel industry, The Iron Age reports further reduction in output, producers of both steel and pig iron curtailing production to keep pace with smaller specifications against contracts, and smaller orders. The average rate for the Pittsburgh district has declined to 65 per cent of capacity, and the Chicago rate, in spite of expanding rail production, has dropped to 70 per cent. The Steel corporation's subsidiaries have dropped their rate to 68 per cent as against 72 to 74 per cent a week ago, while the average for Bethlehem is 70 per cent. The marked influence of the small demand from the automotive industries is shown in the 35 per cent rate for the independent Cleveland mills, which depend mainly upon automotive orders.

Curtailment continues in automotive production, although some of the reduction is attributed to preparations for new models. Various leaders in the automobile industry have expressed their belief that sales will pick up after the annual show in January.

Building contracts as reported by the F. W. Dodge corporation continue their downward movement of the past few months. The daily average for the six business days ended November 22 is about $2,000,000 higher, at $12,704,400; but the total for the first nineteen business days is 27 per cent below the contract total for the same period a year ago. The cumulative total of awards through November 22 is 12.2 per cent below the similar total for last year.

Freight Loadings Less.

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended November 16 showed a further decline. Total car loadings of 983,323 marked a decrease of 66,152 cars from the preceding week, and was 72,797 below the total of the corresponding week of last year.

The commodity price level is lower this week, the annalist index of wholesale prices having moved downward to 140.9 from last week's index of 141.5. This is the lowest point since April, 1927, and with one exception the lowest in the last five years.

The decline in short term rates continues. During the week time money fell to 4¼ per cent, as compared wtih 9 per cent only a few months ago. Commercial paper rates have also declined, and call money has been available in the outside market as low as 3 per cent. The reduction in the Chicago Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate indicates an early return of the entire system to the 4½ per cent level and suggests that a 4 per cent rate within the next few months is by no means an impossibility.

Bank clearings are somewhat reduced this week, the total at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review being 5.9 per cent smaller than the amount shown for the corresponding week last year.

Wheat Closes Higher.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Active buying and short covering enabled wheat prices to close 2¼ to 2⅝c higher today. Sensationally bullish Argentine crop news, firmness in outside markets and the slowing up of December liquidation affected the market. Corn closed ⅝ to 1⅛c up and oats ⅝ to ¾c higher in sympathy with the leading cereal.

For the week wheat was up 4¼ to 4½c, corn 1½c higher to ⅛c lower and oats ¼c off to ⅞c up.

Wheat was strong most of the week, with Argentine news the outstanding bullish factor. Weather continues unfavorably hot in the south, while too much rain was reported in the north. Conservative estimates reaching here late in the week placed the Argentine exportable surplus at 100,000,000 bushels. Deterioration was reported spreading into some of the best sections of Buenos Aires province.

Heavy liquidation of December wheat featured trade in that commodity early in the week. Export demand for wheat continues fairly active. The further drop in temperatures caused some regard to the winter wheat crop in this country.

Corn moved within a narrow range during the week. Trade was light, the majority inclined to go slow until developments in December corn are realized. Receipts continue liberal. The cash market displayed easiness. Weather conditions were generally favorable over the belt.

Hog Trade Light.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Hogs closed on a par with last week. Trade was generally light, due to the Thanksgiving holiday, when a considerable amount of fowl and wild game are substituted for pork by many. From a top of $9.40 on Friday of last week a new low for the season was established on Tuesday of the current week when the best obtainable price was $9.10. This was the lowest since January of this year.

The best hogs available today sold at $9.40, with bulk at $9 to $9.35. Receipts for the week were 187,000 against 196,000 last week and 129,000 a year ago.

A drop of 50 to 75c in heavy steers featured trade in cattle. Top for heavy was around $14.50, lowest since last March. Demand during the week largely centered on choice yearling steers that sold steady at $15.50 to $16.50. Arrivals for the week were 55,000 against 47,000 last week and 46,000 a year ago.

Cows and heifers were plentiful and demand slack. Prices eased off 50c on the bulk. Most cows sold at $5.75 to $8.50 and heifers at $7 to $10.

An improvement in the dressed trade and lighter receipts figured in an advance of 25c in lamb values. Week's receipts totalled 58,000 against 72,000 a week ago and 60,000 a year ago. Choice lambs topped at $13.50.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Trade in cotton was light today with final prices 5 points up to 5 down. Prices were: Dec. 17.25; Jan. 17.36; March 17.65; May 17.88; July 18.01; Oct. 18.05.

For the week prices are 24 to 39 points lower.

The market was erratic during the week. Prices were sharply lower early on December liquidation and moderate easiness in stocks and grains. Weakness in outside markets and unfavorable reports from dry goods circles also affected trading here. Later, however, favorable cables and strength in outside markets as well as unfavorable weather conditions over the belt, resulted in a slight price recovery.

PHIL HALL JOINS A LINCOLN BANK

PHIL L. HALL.
Former president of the Nebraska Bankers association who becomes cashier of the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. of Lincoln. He is president of the bank of Greenwood and also head of the regional clearing house association.

HALL CASHIER OF LINCOLN BANK

1907-8 he was employed by a large cattle company in Montana and also worked with a government surveying party there. From 1909 to 1913 he was in the employ of the Central National bank here and worked up to the position of assistant cashier.

Former Adjutant General.

At the age of 25 young Hall was appointed adjutant general of the Nebraska national guard by Governor John H. Morehead in 1913. During the same year he was in command of the state troops on special duty at Omaha following the Easter tornado which devastated a section of that city. He was re-appointed by Governor Neville in 1917. It was under Colonel Hall's command that the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Nebraska regiments were mobilized for war service, he himself resigning as adjutant general to become colonel of the Sixth Nebraska infantry. Later he was made commander of the 127th Field Artillery and was finally placed in charge of the army training camp at Camp Funston, Kansas, with General Leonard Wood as his immediate superior.

Colonel Hall's ability in financial matters was recognized while he was in serve at Camp Cody, where he acted as liberty loan officer and had charge of the drive for subscriptions among the men of the 34th Division stationed there. Under his direction several million dollars was rased for the second liberty loan.

Colonel In Reserve Corps.

After the armistice he was transferred in 1919 to the United States Reserve as colonel of the 355th Infantry, which position he still holds. At the annual training camps, held at Ft. Des Moines and Ft. Crook, he commands this organization, whose regimental headquarters are maintained the year 'round at the Lincoln federal building in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Overholster. In 1928 Colonel all served as president of the Nebraska division of the reserve officers' association of the United States. He organized the American Legion post at Greenwood in 1919 and was its first commander. He is now county commander of the American Legion in Cass county.

Mr. Hall became connected with the bank at Greenwood in 1919 as its cashier and five years ago he was made the president of the bank. In 1924 he was president of the Cass county bankers' association. In 1928 he was made chairman of the executive council of the Nebraska bankers' association and in the following year was elected president of that organization. He is now president of the second Nebraska regional clearing house association organized a few weeks ago by the banks of Lancaster, Cass, Otoe, and Seward counties.

Colonel Hall married Miss Vedah Wiedeman of Greenwood ten years ago. She was vice-president of the bank in which he had become interested. She was born and reared at Greenwood and is a graduate of the University School of Music at Lincoln.

"I am very much pleased to get back into the banking field in which my father was so long engaged," said Mr. Hall, "and I am glad to be associated with such a strong group of men as those in the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co."

Highway Builder Drops Dead During Dedication Program

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—His dream of a first class transcontinental highway realized, George B. Dickerson, dropped dead today, as thousands of persons gathered to do him honor, at ceremonies celebrating completion of the last lap of a road from here to Chicago.

Dickerson, 64, conceived the idea of the highway five years ago. It became U. S. highway No. 66 after he had devoted all of his time to making the dream a reality.

A half thousand automobiles, loaded with officials and citizens from San Bernardino and other points along the last lap of the road ending here, were enroute here to render tribute to the highway's founder when sudden death came to Dickerson.

Dickerson, counselor in the highway construction, was credited with having secured government aid in its completion.

M'MANUS TRIAL WITNESS IN FOR SEVERE GRILLING

Mrs. Marian Putnam Will Return to Stand Monday.

Denies She Was Ever Charged With Theft At Asheville.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Mrs. Marian A. Putnam, attractive widow of Asheville, N. C., will be subjected to a merciless grilling when she resumes the stand Monday in Broadway's celebrated murder case—the McManus trial. For wholly against her will, she has achieved the distinction of being the most formidable witness so far produced against the debonair defendant, George McManus.

McManus, a race track bookmaker, is on trial for the mysterious murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway's "big shot" gambler and "man of mystery." He is charged with having plugged "A. R." with a .38 in Room 349 of the Park Central on the night of Nov. 4, 1928.

Until Mrs. Putnam took the stand and told what she saw and heard in the Park Central on the night of the crime, the betting along the gay white way had been 50 to 1 that McManus would not be convicted, but in the last twenty-four hours the odds have come down. Even so, the defense contends nothing incriminating has yet been pinned on McManus.

McManus Engages Room.

Mrs. Putnam testified that about on the night Rothstein was mortally wounded. Room 349 had been engaged by McManus under the name of "George Richards."

The defense has been trying to show that Rothstein was not shot in this room. He was found, staggering from a bullet wound, near the servant's entrance on the main floor.

Mrs. Putnam testified that tbout ten minutes to 11 p. m., on the night of November 4, 1928, she left her room in the Park Central intending to take an elevator to the main floor to buy some magazines. As she neared the elevator, she heard loud voices— the voices of three or four men, at least—an oath, and then a "crash." The "crash" sounded like the smashing of a bottle against a wall. She could not say whether it was a shot.

Maintains Silence.

And then, staggering down the carpeted corridor, she saw a man whose face was distorted by anger or agony, his hands clasped to his abdomen. She was alarmed by what had happened so she went to bed shortly and said nothing about it, even when she learned of the shooting of Rothstein next day.

Later, back home in Asheville, she even denied she had left her room that night, claiming she "knew nothing about the Rothstein case."

Her explanation on the stand Friday afternoon was that she "didn't want to get mixed up in it."

Mrs. Putnam could not say "definitely" in what room the quarrel took place. She admitted she was unable to identify a photograph of Rothstein as a likeness of the man she had seen in the corridor.

Denies Theft Charge.

On cross examination, Mrs. Putnam spent an uncomfortable and rather embarrassing hour but she maintained her poise. She blushed when she admitted she had registered at the hotel with a man she was engaged to marry. Her husband died in 1913. She denied she had ever been charged with stealing dresses from an Asheville department store. She manages the Putnam Grill, a restaurant in Asheville. She denied liquor was sold there.

Tonight, James D. C. Murray, attorney for the defense, was mapping out questions he proposes to propound when Mrs. Putnam resumes the stand Monday. He told Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., who is presiding at the trial, that he expected affidavits from North Carolina and would examine Mrs. Putnam on them. A number of residents of Asheville are understood to be in New York waiting to be called later by the defense in an attempt to impeach Mrs. Putnam's testimony. The trial will enter its third week Monday.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 30—Mr. and Mrs. John Penner, early residents of Beatrice, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in West Beatrice, Wednesday. A large number of neighbors and friends called to congratulate them and left valuable gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Penner have resided in Beatrice fifty-two years. They were born in Germany.

VIOLENT DEATHS SHOW INCREASE

Suicides, Murders And Accidents In State More Numerous.

Suicides, murders, and accidental deaths in Nebraska increased during the first six months of 1929, in comparison with the corresponding period of 1928, it is revealed in a compilation made up in the vital statistics division of the state health bureau. The record as to each follows:

Suicides, 119, an increase of 23.

Homicides, 18, an increase of 1.

Fatal accidents, 379, an increase of 48.

No detailed tabulation is made showing how the victims of these three classes lost their lives. The various means by which death was inflicted will be catalogued and classified later for the entire year.

Most of the principal diseases in the mortality table also took a greater toll in the first half of this year than in the like portion of 1928.

Total deaths from the different causes thus listed were 7,331 in the six months' period of 1929, against 6,785 the year before—an increase of 546. Herewith is the comparative summary in the disease column:

Typhoid and paratyphoid fever	7	10

Chicago Night Clubs Facing Dry Padlocks

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U.P.)—Temporary injunctions restraining three of Chicago's gayest night clubs from violating the prohibition law were issued by Federal court today.

The clubs include Texas Guinan's Club Royale, where Texas has been inviting prohibition agents all autumn only to poke fun at them in song; Kelly's Stables, where the cooks dance and the waiters sing; and the Beau Monde, which is managed by Frankie Pope, the millionaire newsboy.

Under the terms of the restraining orders, any violation of the prohibition laws will result in padlocking.

Families of Polar Explorers Rejoice At Byrd's Success

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—"All members of the Byrd family are extremely happy," read a message issued at the executive offices of Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia here today commenting on the feat of his brother, Commander Richard E. Byrd, in flying over the South Pole.

The governor left on a hunting trip in celebration of the accomplishment. Two weeks ago Governor Byrd and the commander's mother, Mrs. Elinor Bolling Byrd, talked by radio direct from here to him at Little America, and members of the explorers' own family also sent him greetings.

Captain's Brother Rejoices.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Being younger brother to a man who winged his way over the South Pole with Commander Richard E. Byrd has its disadvantages, W. Kennet McKinley of Kansas City has come to realize.

His brother is Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, aerial photographer, with the Byrd expedition and the night "Ash" was on the flight Kennet said he could not sleep.

"Ash did what you could expect him to do," his brother remarked. "He has always sought out something different. That was why he enlisted in the aerial corps in 1917."

The older brother was a captain at 21 and with him overseas in 1918 was Kennet, 16, a member of the ground crew taking care of planes used by his brother and other fliers. Now Kennet climbs poles for the telephone company. He has lived in Kansas City for the past two years.

Among his relics of the Byrd trip to the South Pole are two radiograms from Little America from his brother. His brother, he said, on returning to this country expects to start an aerial mapping company.

ARNOLD DEFENDS TRAFFIC PLAN

Auto Club Sticking To Proposal for Driving Against Signals.

Reiteration of its belief in the feasibility of permitting right-hand turns of automobiles against red stop and go signals, was expressed in a letter written Saturday by Charles H. Arnold, president of the Lincoln Automobile club, to the city council.

Acknowledging that the automobile club's suggestion had not met with approval that had been anticipated, Dr. Arnold wrote that after additional study, members of the club felt the necessity of further expression on the subject.

The suggestion, Dr. Arnold writes, was not made with any thought of creating further hazards, but in an attempt to solve the problem of congestion.

It would not increase the hazard to pedestrians, he claims, "but most likely would be of greater protection, due to the fact that those turning to the right would come to a complete stop, change gear ratio, and then proceed on their way."

Automobile clubs have worked with the view of protecting pedestrians as well as automobile owners, it was also said in the letter. "This council," writes Dr. Arnold, "has at all times given importance more to the protection of the pedestrian than any other factor."

The letter closed with assurance of the club's entire co-operation in an effort to relieve questions confronting all cities of the class of Lincoln.

The automobile club's first recommendation to permit vehicles to turn against the red light was vigorously assailed when presented to the city council.

Girl Fliers Will Try Sixth Time for Record

LOS ANGELES, Cal., No. 30—(I. N. S.)—Declaring themselves undaunted by five failures, Bobbie Trout, 23, of Los Angeles, and Elinor Smith, 18, of Freeport, L. I., New York, today mapped their sixth assault on the refueling airplane record of the St. Louis Robin.

The sixth take off was tentatively fixed for Monday.

Petroleum Institute Meets in Windy City

Marketing and Conservation Problems To Be Discussed at Annual Gathering.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(AP)—Marketing problems and plans for the conservation of crude oil are expected to predominate discussions at the tenth annual meeting of the American Petroleum institute, according to the vanguard of the 2,500 representatives arriving here today.

The formal program does not begin until December 3, when Sir Henry Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch-Shell companies, will address the meeting, but informal meetings begin tomorrow.

Kansas Youth to Trial For Murdering Family

Repudiates Confession After Starting Life Sentence For Killing Seven.

ELDORADO, Kas., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Women will hurry through their household duties here Monday, merchants will "knock off a little early" and not a few farmers and oil field workers will stop work to enter the cement courthouse where 18-year-old Owen Oberst goes to trial on a charge of murder in the killing of his whole family.

After a year in the state penitentiary, where he had been sent after confessing to slaying his parents and five brothers and sisters, Oberst repudiated the admission and won the unusual privilege to come from prison for a new trial.

Once a stout farm youth, young Oberst returns pallid and soft, the horror of the tragedy weighing upon his youthful shoulders.

On the evening of April 21, 1928, the farm home of his parents was consumed by flames. In the ashes were the charred remains of Oberst's mother, father, sisters and brothers. Oberst said ht discovered the home in flames, his loved ones having died while he slept.

Authorities exhumed the bodies and found each had been slain with a bullet.

The surviving youth suddenly blurted out, "I did it because the old man would not let me have his car."

Later he faced Judge George J. Benson to hear life sentence pronounced against him and repudiated his confession.

TOUGH ON THE CIVILIAN.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Hungarian officers who feel themselves insulted by a mere civilian have the right to run their sword through the offender, according to a law just passed by the Hungarian parliament. The law permits officers to avenge civilian "insults to their honor" by this means.

KUSHNER DENIES HIDING IDENTITY

Claims Gave His Name to Driver Following Auto Accident.

Says Iowan Demanded $700 Under Threat of Prosecution.

Governor Weaver heard the other side of the story Saturday afternoon in regard to an automobile collision that took place on the evening of November 9 on the Lincoln highway north of Council Bluffs, in connection with which a writ of extradition is being sought to have Ben Kushner of Omaha returned to the city on the Iowa side of the Missouri river on the charge of failing to report the accident.

Kushner appeared before the governor with two attorneys, Sam J. Leon of Omaha and R. W. Devoe of Lincoln, and flatly denied that he left the scene of the crash without disclosing his identity or place of residence. On the contrary, he said, he gave that information to Ira Hiers, driver of the other car and also took pains to inquire whether anyone in it had been hurt, and was told that nobody had.

In an affidavit by Mrs. Hires, previously filed with the governor, she asserted that her husband's skull was fractured and she herself was slightly injured. She also claimed that Kushner departed without making known who he was or where he lived.

Officials Not Present.

The sheriff and county attorney from Council Bluffs, who had been here on Friday to present the extradition application, did not appear Saturday.

The matter was taken under advisement by the governor, and as habeas corpus proceedings brought by Kushner in resistance to the application are pending in district court at Omaha, it is possible that a decision there will render gubernatorial action unnecessary.

After the Saturday hearing, an affidavit giving Kushner's version of the affair was made out to be filed with Governor Weaver. Its recital was as follows:

While driving slowly, because of a misty rain that made it hard to see ahead, Kushner ran into the Hires car standing on the road without lights, about 9 p. m. Hires at the time was outside of his car. The only contact beween the cars was their fenders, which were crumpled up against the tires. Kushner and two other men riding with him got out and inquired of the other people if any of them were hurt, receiving a negative reply.

Claims Revealed Identity.

The accident left both cars unfit for further travel, and a considerable time elapsed before an automobile came along with enough room inside it to take the Hires family to Council Bluffs. While the stranded tourists were waiting, Kushner gave Hires his name and address. Ed Simon, one of the men with Kushner, also a resident of Omaha, knew Hires and told him if he lost the address he could get it again from Simon.

Kushner's party was picked up by a car going back to Council Bluffs. Kushner heard nothing more about the matter until nearly a week later when, as he said, he was arrested in Omaha on a complaint from Council Bluffs. On November 22, he deposed, Hires called on him in Omaha and demanded $700, threatening to have Kushner prosecuted if the money were not paid.

An affidavit by Attorney Leon corroborated Kushner's statement about the demand for money and the threat to prosecute, which Leon says were repeated in his presence.

FIVE SAVED BY CUTTER UNALGA

Survivors of Schooner Sea Bird Returned To Juneau.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The coast guard cutter Unalga arrived here this afternoon with five survivors of the wrecked halibut schooner Sea Bird.

The five survivors were Capt. Holton Reitan, Ivan Horn, Martin Carlson, Olaf Kersnas and Alfred Dyb. Dyb, engineer, is suffering from a broken back, received while bailing water from the engine room.

Captain Reitan said a heavy wind off Cape Steiland on November 11 washed two wheelmen and the Sea Bird's wheel house from the craft. It was when he returned to the engine room to bail water that Dyb was injured. He is expected to recover.

The Sea Bird grounded on the rocks of Cape Suckling, but a shifting wind and heavy tide put them off the rocks. The vessel was washed ashore on Wighman Island, November 14.

A fox farmer took care of the shipwrecked men until the Unalga sighted a smoke signal on November 28 and hove off the island. Louis Dyb and Elias Dyb, wheelmen, were not seen after the heavy waves dashed them overboard from their positions at the wheel.

Society of Radio Fans Plans Series Winter Meetings

Thirty members of the Cornhusker Amateur Radio association, an organization of local radio fans will open their winter program Wednesday with one of a series of biweekly meetings, C. O. Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the group, announced Saturday.

Organized in April, the amateur wireless fans plan to hold hour and a half meetings every other Wednesday night during the winter. The meeting Wednesday will be held in room No. 145 at the Lincoln high school. One-half hour code practice beginning at 7:30 o'clock will open the meeting after which Fred Daniels will give a talk on how to make QSL cards, which amateur operators exchange as proof of reception.

Persons interested in radio are welcome to attend the meetings, Mr. Morrison stated. Other officers of the association are H. W. Hurst, president, and Louis Leuck, vice president. The group will meet the first and third Wednesdays of each month. A high school radio group known at the "Radiolinks" with sixteen members will meet on the alternate Wednesdays.

BANDITS ATTACK NATIONAL TROOPS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—A bandit gang of about 30 men attacked a detachment of ten Nicaraguan national guardsmen at a Colonia, north of Magapa, Thursday, and killed three of the guardsmen.

The bandits, who were believed to be under command of Pedro Altamirano, used machine guns, rifles and hand grenades in the attack. The casualties, which included two seriously wounded, were sustained in the first fierce rush of the bandits.

The guardsmen attempted to use a machine gun on the bandits but it jammed and was lost when they fled towards Corinto. The bandits' attack was a complete surprise. The outlaws later fled to the mountains where a national guard detachment was sent after them. There were no United States marines in the ambushed detachment.

STATE MEETING IRRIGATIONISTS

Specialists to Discuss Various Nebraska Water Problems.

(Special to The Star.)

LEXINGTON, Neb., Nov. 30—One of the principal addresses of the nineteenth annual convention of the Nebraska State Irrigation association, to be held here Tuesday and Wednesday, December 10 and 11, will be delivered by Alvah Hecht of the Buffalo county extension division, on "Pump Irrigation." W. A. Crandall, mayor, and R. W. Lape, president of the Lexington chamber of commerce, will welcome the association members and R. O. Canaday, president of the group, will respond.

Crop rotation and orderly distribution of water supply will be stressed in Tuesday's session. State Treasurer W. W. Stebbins will speak on "Irrigation and Present State Finances." "Irrigation in Pioneer Days" is the subject of an afternoon talk by District Judge Fred A. Wright of Omaha.

Dr. George Condra of the University of Nebraska conservation and survey department is scheduled to deliver the main address of the Wednesday morning meeting. Geologic control of the depth, volume, quality and direction of movement of ground water in the Platte valley area will be the subject of his speech. State Engineer R. L. Cochran will talk on "Irrigation and its Relation to Highways" and C. E. Mickey of the state university will speak on "Water Resources of Nebraska."

Gov. A. J. Weaver has been obtained to give the principal address of the afternoon meeting. Attorney General C. A. Sorensen and his assistant, T. F. Neighbors, will explain laws pertaining to irrigation. A report of the treasurer and election of officers will close the assembly.

CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 30—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Blatchart of Fairbury were at home to their many friends at their residence here Thursday afternoon, the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary. They were married fifty years ago Thanksgiving day at Adams. The celebration Thursday was very informal owing to the recent serious illness of Mr. Blatchart. Friends called in small groups during the afternoon and Mr. and Mrs. Blatchart received many beautiful flowers and other remembrances. Their daughter, Mrs. M. C. Whitaker of Lexington, and Mrs. C. S. Voorhees of Omaha, sister of Mrs Blatchart, were present for the day.

MODEL AIRPLANE CONTEST DEC. 7

Recreation Board Is Sponsoring Event At Coliseum.

Embryo Lindys of the city will match model airplanes in the third annual contest of the Lincoln recreation board at 2:30 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 7, at the university coliseum. The competition is open to all boys and girls in the city.

Interest in model airplane building has been stimulated by several organizations which have promoted instruction classes. Among these are the Y. M. C. A., the recreation board, and several of the junior high schools. Such classes have been heartily endorsed by many of the outstanding men in aviation because of the elementary knowledge of the field that is thus disseminated.

The rules for the contest are as follows:

Eligibility.

Boys and girls who are residents of Lincoln are eligible to compete in the contest. The three classes are:

1. Senior—those 16 or over.
2. Junior—those under 16 years of age.
3. Beginners—12 or under and first time in competition.

Events.

The four events in each class are:

1. Duration of flight, hand launched open model.
2. Duration of flight, hand launched fuselage models.
3. Duration of flight, R. O. G. open model.
4. Duration of flight R. O. G. fuselage model.

Scoring.

All entries will be judged for excellence of design, neatness and skill of workmanship.

Points in each class will be awarded on the basis of five points for first place, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth. The contestant winning the most points in his class will be declared the all-round Lincoln champion.

Rules.

All entries must be made between 2:00 and 2:30 o'clock at the place of the contest.

Planes must be made and flown by one boy who may have one assistant. No plane over thirty inches wing spread will be allowed to fly. Contestants in each event will draw for order of flight and each contestant must be ready to launch his plane within three minutes after called or forfeit his turn.

Two flights will be allowed each contestant in each event.

Time will be counted from the beginning of flight until the plane touches the floor or is stopped by some obstruction. Planes which strike beams, girders, etc., but continue to fly will not be considered as stopped.

The contest is under the direction of Earl Johnson, director of the Lincoln recreation board and Frances H. Ash, assistant. Officials of the contest will be announced later.

To Introduce New Prayer Book Today

The new or revised Book of Common Prayer, the result of fifteen years of work by liturgical scholars, will be introduced into all Episcopal churches in the Nebraska diocese, and throughout the country, Sunday.

The date for the book's introduction was designated in the last official document of the Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, late presiding bishop of the church, who just before his death October 3, decided that the new prayer book should be introduced the first Sunday in Advent with a service of thanksgiving.

Special collects, epistles and gospels for July 4, Thanksgiving day and other holidays, and many beautiful new prayers have greatly enriched the book.

Doane College Notes

Dr. Olga Stastny of Omaha who is a member of the board of trustees of the college gave a most interesting and forceful address at chapel Monday morning on her experiences in connection with her trip to Europe last summer in contrast to her experiences in a similar trip in 1918. Dr. Stastny held her audience at close attention during the entire period as she drew concrete pictures from her experiences. The serious purpose of her address was to emphasize the value of peace and international understanding and the responsibility and opportunity of the United States in taking the lead in its realization.

Among the out-of-town alumni visitors at the Doane-Cotner game Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. King, '14 (Helen Buck, '16e) Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Ross, '22 (Ruth Kinney, '23), Fremont; Rev. F. W. Leavitt, '95, Lincoln; L. L. Coleman, '22 ,Belleville, Kan.; and Miss Ruth Sweney, '27, St. Paul, Minn. Among the non-alumni visitors were Rev. William Richards, David City; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Nash, Palmyra; and Trustee G. E. Simon, Cambridge.

The local Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. goupsr met in joint session Sunday evening, Nov. 24, to hear a report from Miss Evelyn Adler of the University Y. W. C. A. on her experience in an industrial experiment which was carried out in Chicago under the auspices of the National Y. W. C. A.

CLEMENCEAU'S WILL FORBADE ANY DISSECTION

Fearless Statesman Made Sure Body Would Not Be Ransacked.

NIGHT FUNERAL TRIP EXPLAINED

Directed Book From "My Dear Mama" Be Placed in Casket.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

PARIS, Nov. 30—Georges Clemenceau, who fought almost everything and everybody without a tremor of fear during a stormy political career spanning three-quarters of a century, went to his death fearful that his body would be ransacked by the curious after life had departed from him.

Details of the aged statesman's will, which will be published for the first time two weeks hence by the magazine, L'Illustration, were learned exclusively by International News Service tonight. Among other things, they reveal Clemenceau's fears that his body would be tampered with by scientists wishing to learn his secret of longevity and to probe his versatile genius by examination of his brain.

In a holograph testament written in a strong, virile hand in pen and ink, France's war-time premier stipulated that his body remain absolutely untouched after death. He forbade any attempts to remove his heart, dissect his brain, or perform postmortem examinations of any sort.

Body Moved at Night.

It was this order that resulted in the aged statesman's body being rushed to its modest burial place in the south of France in the dead of night a few hours after he had passed away.

Clemenceau had known and read of brilliant men like himself who donated their bodies to science after death, and such treatment apparently held terrors for him.

He knew that his amazing virility and mental genius through his long life had been a marvel to the world, and whether his fears were justified or not, he was afraid the inquisitive might attempt to experiment upon him.

Thus his body went to a humble grave, unembalmed and untouched.

In addition, the testament confirmed Clemenceau's now well known and gratified wishes for the simplest possible burial, and stipulated the articles he wished placed in side his coffin.

Cane Placed In Casket.

One was the cane of lignum-vitae he had carried in his youth. Another was a simple souvenir of the world war—a vase wrought from an exploded German shell, filled with withered flowers plucked from a spot on the battlefield which had escaped bullet and shrapnel. It was given to Clemenceau by a poilu on one of his many visits to the trenches during the war.

There was another touch of tender sentiment. The will revealed Clemenceau's hitherto unmentioned desire for the inhumation of "a little goatskin box containing a book from my dear mama." The will directed that the box would be found "on the upper shelf of my wardrobe."

Clemenceau was determined that no alterations should be made in the way he scratched out his testament on coarse paper with a sputtering pen. Around each handwritten page he inscribed a rough circle, indicating that it was complete and satisfactory, and that he desired no deletions or additions.

The testament devoted considerable space to the disposition of his property and the royalties accruing from his published works.

'TAX REDUCTION BY CHRISTMAS' SOLONS' SLOGAN

likely tonight that the lumbering machinery of congress actually will rush the legislation through in the next three or four weeks. Politically it isn't very healthy to oppose tax reduction, anyway.

The tax measure will receive immediate consideration in the house. The house is well disciplined and can act fast when the leaders give the word. The resolution will be introduced on Monday and the leaders hope to pass it by Thursday.

The senate starts off with a colorful battle that has alternately flared and smoldered for two years—the fight over the seating of Senator-elect William S. Vare, republican of Pennsylvania. Vare has knocked vainly on the senate doors ever since presenting his credentials.

This time the senate gives promise of disposing of the issue once and for all—by simply not seating the Philadelphia machine leader. The republican leadership hopes to declare his seat "vacant," which will permit the governor of Pennsylvania to name a successor, thus shutting the door on William B. Wilson, Vare's democratic opponent, who also has been vainly knocking at the door for admission. There will be a real fight on this, however with a week's debate.

Conference Fight Ahead.

The fate of the battle-scarred tariff bill is in doubt, although the leaders were talking hopefully tonight of passing it too by the first of the year. But even if that can be accomplished, it is only the beginning of another fight for the bill must go to conference, and there is about as much similarity between the senate and house bills as there is between a republican from Wisconsin and one from Pennsylvania.

A good deal in the tariff situation depends upon what President Hoover has to say about it in his annual message, which probably will be delivered on Tuesday. Mr. Hoover has steadily withstood all kinds of pressure to make known his position on the rates as written by the house and rewritten by the senate. There is a vast amount of speculation on Capitol hill as to what he is to say on Tuesday concerning the way the senate has manhandled the original bill.

Behind these matters looms a vast array of other legislation that will receive more or less consideration—railroad consolidation, kicking around the halls of congress for eight years; radio regulation; a rivers and harbors bill; reforms in the Indian administration, the result of an investigation during the special session; posibly ome anti-lobbying legislation as a result of the disclosures by the Caraway committee; odds and ends of farm legislation; confirmations of appointments, etc.

And interspersed between these come the great supply bills which will aggregate some $4,000,000,000.

Fireworks Promised.

It promises to be a session loaded with much work—and quite probably considerable fireworks.

The coalition of democrats and western republicans that functioned so well in the emasculation of the house tariff bill can continue control of the senate if it desires to do so.

Moreover, the democrats are militant and alert, in contrast to their attitude a year ago following the great defeat in the 1928 campaign. They now believe that their party fortunes are on the mend, as evidenced by the off-year elections a few weeks ago. They have a militant and aggressive national headquarters, operating on a permanent basis, in Washington.

It is the republicans who now are split. The schism between the republicans of the industrial east and the republicans of the prairies, widened during the tariff fight, is very real and very deep.

Both houses will meet Monday at noon and adjourn for the day after appointing committees to tell President Hoover that congress awaits his message. Mr. Hoover probably will send up his message to be read on Tuesday, and this will be followed on Wednesday by the budget message. Then congress can settle down to the long grind.

Vare's Fate Sealed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The fate of Senator-elect William S. Vare, (republican) of Pennsylvania—a fate that will bar him from the senate despite his 200,000 majority in the 1926 election — was sealed today with an announcement that "Vare's friends" would sponsor a resolution declaring his seat vacant.

This announcement, made by Senator Watson of Indiana, republican floor leader, indicated that Vare's senatorial defenders had given up all hope of seating him. The resolution, declaring a vacancy, would represent an effort to end further action on the contest, filed against Vare by William B. Wilson, democrat, at the same time as Vare is denied his seat.

The democratic-insurgent coalition, which has fought Vare's entry to the senate for the last two years, probably will oppose the substitute resolution while rallying behind the Norris resolution, which simply declares Vare not entitled to a seat in the senate.

The Norris plan would allow a separate decision later on the contest between Vare and Wilson and it is no secret that Senator Norris, the insurgent leader, hopes to put a democrat in the senate from the standpat republican bailiwick of Pennsylvania.

The strategy behind the move to declare Vare's seat vacant would be to terminate the Wilson contest at one smash and enable the republican governor of Pennsylvania to appoint another republican to the vacancy. Unless such a resolution is adopted, Vare may be denied his seat and Pennsylvania kept without two senators for another year, pending a final decision on the Wilson contest.

Byrnes Hits G. O. P.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Adjournment of the special session of congress without action on the tariff bill, was "a confession of impotence" on the part of the Hoover administration, said Representatives Byrnes, Tennessee, chairman of the national congressional committee, in a statement today.

The senate revolt which prevented passage of the bill, however, "helped keep from adding between $600,000,000 and $800,000,000 to the annual living costs of American people," he said.

Democrats and progressive republicans ought to be praised, not blamed, for stopping the bill, he said.

THREE ARE BURNED TO DEATH IN HOME

WYOMING, Ill., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Harry Jones and his wife and Martha Johnson, housekeeper, were burned to death when the home of A. R. Mannon was destroyed by fire here today.

The flames spread so rapidly that other occupants were rescued with difficulty.

The fire is believed to have started from an explosion of kerosene poured into a coal stove fire to accelerate it.

MARRIAGE RECORD FALL.

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Wellsburg's record as an oasis for the matrimonially inclined was broken today when County Clerk Brooke Montgomery issued the 3,334th marriage license this year. The record was 3,333 and Montgomery believes that by midnight December 31 he will have issued more than 3,500 licenses. The 3,334th license issued today was to Lemon Powell and Agnes Elliott, both of Clarksburg.

MORROW TO BE NAMED SENATOR IN EDGE'S PLACE

sey man to be appointed who could aid President Hoover.

New Jersey republican leaders are understood to desire a man who would be willing to run for re-election next year for the six-year senatorial term. Baird is reported as not desiring to become a candidate at the next election, although willing to serve in the interim.

The announcement of the senatorial appointment of Ambassador Morrow came as a distinct surprise as it was understood the distinguished statesman wished to remain in Mexico until he had completed his efforts there to affect better relations between the southern republic and the United States.

When Ambassador Morrow goes to Washington as the New Jersey representative in the upper house, the administration will have a strong advocate of the Hoover policies. The president is known to have the highest regard for Morrow's abilities and their relationships have always been on the friendliest. At the election of Hoover, Morrow was prominently mentioned for a cabinet position.

Ambasador Morrow will arrive in Washington about December 10 from Mexico City. He will sail for London shortly afterward with Secretary of State Stimson to attend the disarmament conference which assembles in January.

Baird will go to Washington within the next week or so to be sworn in as New Jersey senator. When Morrow returns from London probably the first part of February, Baird will resign and Ambassador Morrow will be named for the unexpired term.

Governor Larson revealed his intention to appoint Morrow in a letter to Baird who had stated his inwish that a man be named "who in every degree measures up to the highest tradition of the state of New Jersey."

"I have accepted this view," Governor Larson said in his letter to Baird. "and consider myself fortunate in being able to state to the public my intention to name as your successor in due course and at a time when his duties to the government at Washington will permit, Dwight W. Morrow, at present ambassador to Mexico."

"Meantime, it is most gratifying to me that during the ensuing week of active session New Jersey will be represented in the senate by one like yourself, who so thoroughly commands my own and public confidence," continued Governor Larson.

Praise for Envoy.

. . . and I thank you for having used your own influence in assisting me to persuade Mr. Morrow, after distinguished and effective service to the government, to enter another line of service where we all have reason to believe that his singular talents will be of even greater usefulness to his state and nation.

"The reasons which have led me to secure Mr. Morrow's consent to accept appointment are clear. The situation at Washington calls for the best thought of our wisest men, acting under the inspiring leadership of President Hoover. We are having to assume a large part in problems affecting world development. We must shortly help to carry through the practical details of the declarations of the forthcoming London naval conference.

"Business conditions have recently received a shock, the administration has already taken notable measures to minimize the effects of this; calling for most intelligent co-operation by both business men and legislators.

"Mr. Morrow has had a fine training. He was first an able lawyer and then an able financier. He saw service abroad during the World war, receiving the distinguished service medal for his work.

"The life-long friend and companion of Calvin Coolidge, he was drafted by the president to reconcile the conflicting views in government aircraft development. His power of analysis, art of persuasion and spirit of fairness were displayed to such advantage that the president was eager to draft him for what was perhaps the most delicate diplomatic task of his administration—the mission to Mexico. He quickly became an exceptionally well informed diplomatic adviser. He was instrumental in changing the attitude in Mexico from suspicion to confidence and trust. He has been acclaimed by the Mexican government and people as their friend. His service has gone far to join Mexico and the United States in a new unity of loyalty.

"During the conference at London on naval matters, he will serve as one of President Hoover's commission, which will have a most important part in that great attempt to satisfy the aspirations of mankind in lessening the provocative causes and likelihood of war.

"Mr. Morrow is for progress and for practical measures. He is in step with America and the world of today. He is an admirer and warm supporter of President Hoover and his policies. With his versatility and vigorous personality he has become a vital figure in American politics."

Senator Moses of New Hampshire was the principal speaker at the dinner to Ambassador Edge. Senator Moses reviewed the life of Edge "from newsboy to diplomat."

Ambassador Edge was born in Philadelphia and moved to Pleasantville, N. J., when he was a child.

Washington Surprised.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.) — Political circles greeted with surprise tonight the announcement of Governor Larson of New Jersey that he would appoint Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, senator from New Jersey to fill the unexpired term of Senator Walter Edge, republican, recently named ambassador to Paris.

While comment was generally withheld pending full digestion of the significance if any, of the Larson appointment, it had been generally conceded the appointment would go to David A. Baird, jr., of Camden and that Baird would remain in office until the term expires, after next year's elections. After that, it was believed Representative Franklin Fort republican, would enter the fall elections for the senate berth.

Fort was regarded as the almost certain choice of the New Jersey political chiefs, and in view of his acceptance by President Hoover as secretary of the republican national committee was believed to be in favor for the senate position. However, it was indicated here officials of the party had come to the conclusion Fort could best serve the party in his present place, and that he would again run for the house next year, inasmuch as Morrow was believed to have been prevailed upon to enter the lists for the senate again when his term expires.

FORD PAYS ONLY $6.25 FOR SHOES

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Henry Ford, the country's wealthiest man, wears $6.25 shoes.

This was disclosed today following a visit to a local shoe factory, where he has been buying his shoes.

The visit to the factory was to make sure that hereafter when black oxfords are sent the motor magnate by mail that they will be made a trifle wider than the regular width, size 8.

BYRD HAS AIDED CLAIMS OF U. S. IN ANTARCTICA

of the equator comes from there, just as the United States weather come from northern Canada and Alaska.

The Geographic society, which contributed $50,000 to Byrd's expedition, the rest being provided by private backers and newspapers, issued a statement today explaining the importance of the flight from a standpoint of weather prediction, aerial navigation and map making. North Polar experience is useless there, it was pointed out, because Antarctica is surrounded by seas, whereas the North Pole regions are surrounded by land.

The southern land mass, with its accumulated ice and snow of centuries, is a great reservoir of cold, and the ice covering makes it difficult to know anything of the geological makeup except in a few mountainous regions, the bulletin said.

Ice Covered Plateau.

The vast ice covered plateau at the pole itself is more than 9,000 feet above sea level.

The British claims to the continent are based on discoveries of an Australian expedition in 1912, and first were ascribed to the British imperial conference in 1926. The claim of the United States has been based partly on previous discoveries by Americans, including that of Capt. Charles Wilkes, who found land on the edge of the continent which was named after him in 1840.

Byrd's flight was followed from Washington as a glorious adventure and an important event in aviation and science, as well as an attempt to conquer new lands for America.

President Hoover and Assistant Navy Secretary Jahncke sent messages of congratulation, and Assistant Navy Secretary Ingalls and Admiral Moffatt, who together direct the navy's aviation activities, expressed enthusiastic praise.

Resting At Base.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—To the glory of his country and the world of science, Comm. Richard E. Byrd tonight rested at his ice-jacketed base in the Antarctica after planting the American flag at the South Pole even as he had done at the North Pole.

The safe return of the famous aerial explorer following a 1,600-mile flight to the South Pole and back was announced by the New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and newspapers affiliated with them.

The commander was accompanied in his historic air trial by Pilot Bernt Balchen, aerial surveyor Capt. Ashley C. McKinley and Harold June, navy radio expert. The round trip was accomplished in eighteen hours and fifty-nine minutes. The Byrd flight over the North Pole took fifteen hours and thirty minutes.

In the Byrd flying saga over the heel of the world, land never before seen by man was surveyed from the air. Scientists predicted that the photographic and geologic data gathered would contribute important facts to the knowledge of humankind.

In addition, the measurement of the South Polar winds and temperatures by the Byrd expedition may add vital statistics to the science of meteorology and the every-day science of the man in the street—the weather.

The flight was made in the Antarctic summer (which still means plenty below zero). It is the time when the blanket of fog hanging over the ice-packs is wafted away by cold southwestern winds and the most favorable opportunity for the great aerial adventure.

Dangers Were Great.

The dangers from a possible forced landing were considered worse in the Antarctic than in the Arctic. In the latter there is some animal life, and in certain regions villages of Eskimos. But at the subway of the world there are no human beings nor, as far as is known, any vegetation.

Whether any open water was discovered by the Byrd party was a scientific question furnishing much interest to geologists.

The grim hazard of a forced landing by the Byrd plane can be imagined from recalling the fate of Captain Robert F. Scott, British explorer, when Scott and his comrades were frozen to death in a blizzard in 1912 after reaching the South Pole on foot.

The ill-fated Scott expedition followed the successful feat of Captain Raold Amundsen, who a few weeks before had been the first man to reach the South Pole.

The new land surveyed by Commander Byrd may ultimately furnish diplomatic exchanges between the United States and Great Britain. Great Britain claims considerable territory in the Antarctica through exploration by their country's representatives. It is known that British statesmen have watched the progress of the Byrd expendition with keen interest.

Mother Proud of Dick.

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—"I am awfully proud of Dick."

This was the comment today of the mother of the only man who ever flew over the South Pole.

Mrs. Elinor Bolling Byrd read to friends who called to congratulate her in the little town where Richard Byrd spent his boyhood a radio message "Dick" sent after completing his flight.

"Back from the fine flight," Byrd's radio said. "It was full of thrills. A world of love to you all. DICK."

"He always remembers me," Mrs. Byrd said.

"I was more anxious during this flight, though, than during any other he ever made. I believe it was more dangerous than the rest."

Norway Praises Byrd.

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The successful flight of Com. Richard E. Byrd and his companions to the South Pole prompted nationwide expressions of satisfaction and congratulation.

The press praised Byrd and his men for their venture.

WALTON YOUTH WINS 4-H PRIZE

Theodore Anderson Gets $100 Scholarship Given By Union Pacific.

Theodore Anderson, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson of Walton, was announced Saturday by County Extension Agent Purbaugh as winner of the Union Pacific $100 cholarship from Lancaster county for attendance at the college of agriculture.

The winner was selected for his general all-around club work, not only for this year, but for a period of years accordinging to Purbaugh, who certified his selection to the railroad. Similar winners are selected in thirty-nine counties in the state.

Young Anderson has a record of having won thirteen achievement certificates while in 4-H club work. These represent the satisfactory completion of thirteen distinct club projects. He was this year a member of three clubs, the Walton pig club, the Walton dairy club, and the Waltonian agricultural engineering club. Previously he had put in several years as a corn club member.

He is a freshman at the college of agriculture. The cholarship will probably be made available to him for the second semester, according to Mr. Purbaugh.

FRENCH ARMY OF OCCUPATION LEAVES RHINE

man flag since the republic was founded. For the first time in eleven years, the brilliant emblem floated from schools and public buildings.

Signal for Celebrations.

Official notification from the allied ambassadors' council that the Rhineland had been liberated came through shortly before midnight, and the German commissioner in the occupied territories immediately informed the various burgomeisters that military control had been lifted. This notification was the signal for the stort of the celebrations.

The last of the 16,000 French troops which had been quartered in and about Coblenz for more than a decade took their leave this afternoon when a small color guard reverently furled the tri-color which had flown from the Ehrenbreitstein mast, loaded it aboard a military truck, and departed for France.

Depart in Silence.

COBLENZ, Germany, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The tri-color of France over the once famous Ehrenbreitstein fortress—an ever present symbol of the presence of French soldiers on German soil—was lowered today and the army of occupation departed in silence from the Second zone of the Rhineland.

Tonight the cities of Coblenz, Aachen and Duren were filled with rejoicing crowds as thousands of persons from the entire area celebrated the departure of the blue-coated poilus and the Belgians who had occupied the Second zone almost since the war.

There was but one incident to dampen the spirit of the celebration. The French military commission announced that only the military was being evacuated and that the French would retain judicial and political control pending decision of the ambassadors conference at Paris. After a hurried conference, municipal authorities decided to proceed with the jubilation program tonight and tomorrow despite the announcement.

The tri-color was lowered at 11:15 a. m. There was no cheering and no demonstration. Thousands of persons watched in silence as the flag came down.

BOY WOUNDED, KEEPS SILENT

seventh street, the weapon, belonging to the Brown boy, was accidentally discharged, Mrs. Krepps stated, sending the missle into the boy's shoulder about 2:30 o'clock.

Although suffering intense pain, Edward walked back to his home. Believing that "Dad" would prove more sympathetic than mother, who did not approve of the hunting trip, the boy maintained a stoical silence until the father came home about 6 o'clock.

Edward was recovering nicely from the operation, hospital attaches reported late Saturday night.

THIEVES RANSACK LUMBER OFFICE BUT GET NOTHING

After two previous unsuccessful attempts to enter the office of the Independent Lumber Co., 943 North Twenty-seventh street, thieves finally got a break Saturday evening, forced their way in, and ransacked the office and safe, but left without getting a thing. O. E. Skold, manager, discovered the break-in about 8:30 o'clock. The office was closed at 6 o'clock.

Lieutenant Davis investigated and found that the intruders had jimmied a side window after making their way into the grounds by by forcing a gate. Nothing was taken and the safe, which had been left open, was not damaged. The two other attempts to enter the office were made sometime Wednesday or Thursday, Lieutenant Davis declared.

legislation and treaties regulating and prohibiting immigration and citizenship of orientals in the United States. These culminated in the complete exclusion under the immigration act of 1924, as well as disbarment from privileges such as land-owning in California.

Japan's Progress Remarkable.

The oriental nation which has constituted the greatest problem, said Mr. Evans, has been the Japanese. He characterized this people as the most remarkable of any in the world in point of progress, showing the rapidity with which Japan has in little over half a century risen from obscurity to the position of a real world power.

Mr. Evans pointed out that the number of Japanese in the United States has increased from about 2,000 in 1890 to about 150,000. These, because of their low standards of living, extraordinary thrift, and willingness to work any number of hours per day, afford economic competition to the native whites which the later cannot meet. Before the most stringent of the California laws was passed, the truck-farming industry in that state was practically monoplized by Japanese, and in other fields they were rapidly displacing white labor, according to Mr. Evans.

The Chinese, on the other hand, were not classed in the same category. According to Mr. Evans, the Chinese population in the United States has decreased from 107,000 in 1890 to about 50,000. In view of prohibited immigration and the excessive death rate over the birth rate of the Chinese in this country, their number will probably never constitute a serious problem, he said.

Opposes Interference.

Declaring that relatively little protection is afforded Americans living in China by the United States government, Mr. Evans said that the disinclination to interfere was justifiable in view of the fact that the United States had no imperial prestige to maintain as does England because of her dependence upon foreign trade. He prophesied that the relations between the United States and China would always be friendly because of America's leadership in restoring China's sovereignty in the matter of withdrawing extra-territorial rights and armies.

Missionaries are the greatest menace to Chinese friendship, according to Mr. Evans. Resentment over the implied superiority of missionaries and over the real estate which missionaries acquire for their work constantly threatens trouble. Evans admitted, however, that missionaries had done considerable good through the establishment of schools and in aiding the people in other ways. Education, he said, will remove the danger arising from this source.

Girl Sues Doctor After Her Nose Is Remodeled

CHICAGO Nov. 30—(INS)—Dr. Henry J. Schireson, self-styled plastic surgeon, who has faced more suits than a busy tailor, today found himself defendant in another one—this time for $25,000, filed by Miss Yvonne Harmon of Madison, Wis.

The young woman claimed in her suit that she applied to Dr. Schireson to remodel her nose and that the physician injected "plastine" in her face which raised large lumps upon her forehead.

Her nose was not improved, she said.

Nebraska Educator Dead In California

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Dr. O. C. Hubbell, 85, former president of Fairfield college, Nebraska, was dead today following an injury in a recent automobile accident.

The funeral will take place Tuesday. Dr. Hubbell left a daughter, Mr. G. R. Hinchman of Pasadena and three sons, Rev. T. W. Hubbell, Denver; Dr. A. T. Hubbell, Wood River, Neb., and J. C. Hubbell of Deweese, Neb. Burial will be at Fairfield, Neb.

May Become Premier

Arabella Susan Lawrence, appointed chairman of the executive committee of the British labor party, may become the first woman prime minister. At least that's a remote possibility, as she stands in line for the position, and who can tell what the years will bring.

NEW COLD WAVE IS SWEEPING ON WEST NEBRASKA

Rising Temperature In Wake of Storm Over Rest of Midwest.

Death List Totals 21; Lake Ships Held Up; Many Fires Occur.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Close behind the cold wave which broke November temperature records throughout the middlewest, another blizzard was booming southward out of Saskatchewan tonight.

According to the United States weather bureau, the new wave will break over the Dakotas and in western portions of Nebraska and Kansas by Sunday and leave a new trail of zero temperatures. The storm which paralyzed the west yesterday was sweeping into the St. Lawrence valley today with temperatures rising in its wake. Chicago, which shivered in zero weather this morning, was promised a rise to 14 degrees above on Sunday.

The few days of warm weather will give residents and transportation companies a chance to repair the damage of the last forty-eight hours. Fires originating from overheated furnaces kept firemen busy. Indianapolis reported forty-seven within the last twenty-four hours. Chicago and Cleveland also had unusually large numbers of alarms.

Lake Traffic Paralyzed.

Lake shippers stand to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars if they do not get their vessels into the lower lakes before the next blizzard. The "gambling season" for shippers begins at midnight tonight when regular insurance on lake shipping cargoes expires.

Authorities still were checking the death list today. At last reports it stood at eleven in the United States and at least ten more in Canada. Most of those frozen were fishermen, trappers or vagrants.

Suffering was intense in the slum districts of cities. In Chicago police stations provided shelter for hundreds of homeless who usually prefer to "batter back doors" rather than accept municipal aid. The biting northwest wind was too much for their courage and the city's lodging house was crowded with 600 men.

Cheap Meals in Demand.

In other cities the same conditions prevailed. Groups of scantily clad men shivered on furnace ventilator gratings and in front of employment bureaus in New York's bowery, while some restaurants sold more cheap meals at 5 cents each than ever before.

Snow drifts impeded rail traffic in some parts of the country. A greater part of Colorado was blanketed under one to five inches, while Cleveland, O., and Cheyenne, Wyo., reported heavy falls. The drifts may be augmented throughout the upper Mississippi valley when the thermometers begin to rise tonight, according to the weather bureau. A few of the November cold records broken were:

Chicago, zero; a low mark for fifty-four years; Terre Haute, Ind., zero, lowest in sixty years; Harrisburg, Ill., three below, an all-time mark, and Mexico, Mo., and Cleveland, O., one above, lowest in more than a decade.

Ten Dead in Canada.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 30—(U. P.)—Arctic weather that has taken ten lives in the Canadian northwest this week hung over Winnipeg and Manitoba province today with temperatures of from 16 to 18 degrees below zero.

The official recording here was 16 below, while Minnesota had 18 below. Rising temperatures were predicted for Sunday.

Storm Strikes In East.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Long delayed winter had penetrated through the east today, and although the ground still was bare of snow thermometers registered subfreezing temperatures and established a new low mark for the season. New York's minimum was 11 above zero, only 4 degrees above the lowest on record for the date. It was a drop of more than 10 points since yesterday.

One death was attributed to the cold here. Mrs. Gladys Todd, 53, fainted in the back yard of her Staten Island home and froze before she was found, two or three hours later. Several subway delays were caused by cold weather.

Pays Dime; Ends Life

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—A well dressed unidentified man walked into a shooting gallery here this afternoon, handed the attendant a dime, seized a revolver and shot himself. He died instantly.

YOUTH'S DEATH STILL UNSOLVED

Physicians Find Poison In Stomach Pajama Clad Student.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The mystery of how Paul Ott, 19-year-old Baltimore student at Carnegie Institute of Technology, met his death in the bitter cold winds that swept the campus early today, remained unsolved tonight after homicide detectives spent a tedious day in checking and in rechecking a few meager clues.

Evidence of a slaying or suicide was revealed in a postmortem examination of the student's body. City physicians said that poison had been found in Ott's stomach, but Dr. J. W. McMeans, who performed the postmortem, was unable to determine its nature. Chemists were to make an analysis.

No important clues were found in the youth's room at Welch hall, a dormitory. All that police knew was that Ott's body was found lying face downward on the steps leading into Welch hall. He was clad only in pajamas in spite of the near zero weather.

Police were told by a student who entered the dormitory at 2:45 a. m., that Ott's body was not at the entrance at that time. Fifteen minutes later Matthew Fairchild, 19, of Monterey, Mexico, visiting another student, found Ott sprawled over the steps.

Fairchild summoned his friend and they carried Ott's still warm body indoors. A neighborhood physician was summoned and pronounced the youth dead.

FLEAGLE TRIES TO BRIBE JAILER

Lamar Robber Offers Chef $10,000 For Aid to Escape.

DENVER Colo., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Denver police today made public details of an attempt by Ralph Fleagle, Lamar bank bandit, to escape from jail by a $10,000 attempted bribe.

The honesty of Orville Newman, a jail chef, who once was a prisoner in the same jail, prevented development of Fleagle's plans. Newman turned over to Warden Thomas C. Lennan notes that Fleagle left for him in dishes and the warden carried on a correspondence with Fleagle who thought he was writing to Newman.

Fleagle was hurried out of the Denver jail yesterday after the plot was unfolded. Sheriff Alderman took Fleagle to Lamar and placed him in jail there.

In his notes, Fleagle proposed to pay $10,000 to guards if they would arrange to permit him to escape from the jail at night, provide him with a hiding place for a few days and an automobile to transport him after the escape "blew over."

A jury already has decreed that Fleagle shall hang for the murder of A. N. Parrish, president of the bank. His arguments for new trial will be heard in Lamar December 10.

TEXAS POLITICS WILL BE AIRED

Creager, G. O. P. Chief, Ready for Libel Trial Against Collier's.

Case is Outgrowth of Patronage Probe By Senate Committee.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Modern politics as practised in the southernmost section of the United States may be dissected and analyzed beginning here next Monday in a court trial that involves $1,000,000 and several reputations.

Whether the practical politician in this instance has been innocent and virtuous, or the subject of selfish motives is the question at issue in two suits for $500,000 each which R. B. Creager of Brownsville, nationally prominent republican and national committeeman of Texas, has filed against P. F. Collier and Son, publishers of Collier's Weekly, and A. P. Collier and son, a distributing company. Creager's suits are for libel. He charges that two articles in Collier's injured his reputation.

The suits are to be tried in Federal court, but Federal Judge Hutcheson has disqualified himself for the main hearing, explaining he has great confidence in Creager's integrity. As his successor has not been named, only preliminary motions are expected Monday, when a date may be set for the main hearing.

Charged Wholesale Patronage.

The petition of the plaintiff related Collier's article, "Jobs for Jack," by Owen P. White, falsely charged wholesale dealing in federal appointments, and that "High Handed and Hell Bent," by the same author, alleging dishonorable practices in Hidalgo county, "did defame and injure" Creager's reputation.

"Jobs for Jack" was published during the time that the Brookhart senate patronage committee was inquiring into conditions in the south. The hearings on the libel suits are expected to deal with many of the charges made by Senator Brookhart and others.

Collier's attorneys have filed motions to quash service against men in Dallas and Houston, saying they are not agents for the company.

Depositions have been taken by Creager from a dozen prominent Texas democrats, testifying to his good reputation. It is planned to use these statements at the hearings.

In the article, "Jobs for Jack," the plaintiff's petition showed it was charged that the "pay as you earn plan has been extended to federal office seekers in the south," and that congressional investigators are studying in an effort to locate and punish the job merchants.

(The Brookhart patronage investigating committee is subject to call, and may reopen the probe at any time.)

Creager's Complaints.

Creager's petition asserted among other things:

In the article, "Jobs for Jack," Creager was called the "republican referee," and that it charged in Texas that patronage is dispensed through "Craeger's republican organization."

In the article, "High Handed and Hell Bent," "a partnership of Baker, (Sheriff A. Y. Baker of Hidalgo county,) Creager and company," was charged falsely, the plaintiff said.

"An advanced course is vote switching, jail dodging, plain and fancy grafting" was allegedly conducted in Hidalgo county, in the Rio Grande valley, the article set forth, according to the plaintiff. Hidalgo adjoins Cameron county, of which Brownsville, Creager's home, is the county seat.

The plaintiff said the article falsely charged that "in Hidalgo county, graft and grapefruit have been brought to their very highest and juiciest state of perfection. The Texas Tammany boys not only tell the taxpayers to go to hell, but provide a handy, heavily bonded highway and an expressive toll that lands them at the very door of the place."

Doane College Notes

Regular class work at Doane closed Wednesday afternoon for the short Thanksgiving recess. Regular work will be resumed Monday morning.

Miss Alice Anderson, '23, who has been taking a course in nurse's training at the General hospital of Lincoln is now herself a patient in the hospital recovering from an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Doane college is to be host to the Nebraska College Forensic association for its annual state oratorical contest which will be held in Lee Memorial chapel Friday evening, Dec. 13. Doane's orator is Kenneth W. Heyhoe, '31 of Crete.

A group of Doane people including Mr. Byler, Mr. Burlingame and Mr. and Mrs. Hunt attended the concert recital given at Omaha Wednesday evening, Nov. 27, by Horowitz, a noted pianist.

PLAN A LARGE LOAN.

MADRID, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Continuing the movement to establish Spanish currency on a sound basis, the banks have notified the government they are contemplating flotation of an internal loan of 450,000,000 pesetas.

Grateful

Mrs. Thomas Spence of Milwaukee, first national president of the American war Mothers (above), presented Frank Hering of South Bend, Ind., editor of the Eagles magazine (below), a Gold Mother's thanks for Mr. Hering's original sponsorship of Mother's day, now a nationally recognized event.

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt will conduct the juvenile program at 2:45 o'clock.

Assessor Still Checking.—Checking of automobiles which have not been recorded for assessment is still going on, O. C. Bell, county assessor, announced Saturday. He estimates that more than 2,000 automobile owners failed to record their cars for assessment. Half of the alphabet has been completed with the work moving steadily forward. A careful but not harsh investigation will continue, according to the assessor, to round up for assessment machines not previously noted.

To Settle Road Case — District Judge Chappell expects to have a decision ready during the coming week on the $96,000 road case brought against the state by Peterson, Shirley & Guntner. The case was heard early in the fall, requiring more than two weeks to take testimony. Following arguments of opposing counsel, written briefs were filed over a period of nearly six weeks. With the November jury dismissed, Judge Chappell expects to complete examination of the case and have a verdict before the end of the week.

Demurs to Bank Action.—Guy O. Seaton filed a demurrer in District court Saturday to a suit brought against himself and E. S. Rasmussen, by Van E. Peterson, as receiver of the Republican Valley bank at Riverton, Neb. Peterson's suit was an attempt to force the two men to pay sums equal to the amount of stock they owned in the Riverton bank at the time it went into the receiver's hands. Peterson charged that Seaton had $5,000 and Rasmussen $2,500 in stock at that time and that they had not paid equivalent amounts as required by law.

Case Under Advisement. — After hearing testimony and arguments Saturday in an automobile damage suit appealed from Municipal court, District Judge Shepherd took the case under advisement. Phillip T. Smith was suing Harry Williams and William Gruenig, doing business as the Harry Williams Cadillac Co., and H. J. Phillips for $280 for alleged damages to his car and $10 a day alleged damages while it was in the garage for repairs as the result of an accident June 26, 1928, at Thirty-fifth and D streets. He was given an award of $204.30 in Municipal court but the defendants appealed.

TAX REFUND ON CATTLE SMALL

Heaviest Expense to the County Will Be In Changing Records.

Computation of tax refunds because of the Supreme court's reversal of the 10 per cent increase in tax on cattle allowed by the state board of equalization has been completed, O. C. Bell, county assessor, announced Saturday afternoon.

The chief loss to the county as the result of the court's decision, according to Mr. Bell, does not rest in the amount of the refunds. Instead it will lie in the expense of changing valuations, tax lists, and machinery for paying the rebate to those who had paid the tax before the high court's action.

Figures on rebates on taxes already paid for half the county showed that only $43.24 would have to be paid back by the county. As this is distributed among eighty-six cattle owners, it is believed that only a small proportion of the excess tax will ever be claimed.

The amounts which could be claimed in the half of the county computed Saturday by Assessor Bell range from 10 cents to $7.90. The latter is by far the highest figure, the next being $2.33. The $7.90 rebate is in favor of George Bainbridge, 89-year-old Lancaster county pioneer.

Possible rebates will total less than $100, it is estimated, on the basis of the figures for half the county. The county, of course, will also lose some additional tax from those whose assessments were changed after the Supreme court action but who had not paid their tax.

Candy Merchant No Sugar Daddy

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—"I may be in the candy business, but I'm no sugar daddy," said William N. Telgman, wealthy candy manufacturer, when informed today that Patricia Moore of the "Follow Thru" company had sued him for $100,000 for breach of promise.

"Just a Broadway shakedown," said Telgman.

Miss Moore, who is Genevieve O'Connor, 21, and blonde, stated in the suit she had met the candy merchant in a New York night club in Jnue, 1928, and that four months later he proposed to her. When she learned he was married, the suit says, Telgman declared he would divorce his wife and marry her. He failed to carry out his promise, Miss Moore said, and last January she returned gifts he had given her.

"I'm in the right. All my life I have worked hard. This is just a shakedown," said Telgman.

SUIT FOR STOCK IS UP ON APPEAL

Former Employe Claims Fairmont Creamery Owes Him $100,000.

Reed Claims Based On Purported Agreement Made In 1893.

A suit involving the claim of a former employe of the Fairmont Creamery Co. to $100,000 of the capital stock of that corporation, under an agreement made with its superintendent nearly 37 years ago, is to come before the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Louis, Monday. Some time ago the proceeding was dismissed by Federal Judge Woodrough at Omaha, and it is now pending on appeal from his decision in favor of the company.

George L. Reed of Denver is the plaintiff in the case. He alleges that in 1893, while he was employed in the Crete plant of the Fairmont Creamery Co., he and four other employes there were promised by the superintendent, E. F. Howe, that if they would remain with the company five years it would give each $1,000 of its stock. This was to be in lieu of increases in their salaries which the men were asking.

Letter Introduced.

A letter written by Howe at Fairmont on February 4, 1893, to C. C. Dempsey, one of the five employes at Crete, was introduced in the trial of the case. It contained this paragraph:

"The proposition is that we put $5,000 of the capital stock, which is $100,000 in the safe at the office —$1,000 each for you, Reed Green, Stuart, and Hapgood—and as soon as it earns dividends and pays for itself it is turned over to you. The earnings ought to be 20 per cent a year, at which rate the stock would pay for itself in five years, or in other words it is $200 a year increase in your salary, in the shape of stock that in all probability will earn that much more thereafter and will be worth more than $1,000 at the end of the five years, while we get the energy and care you each can add to the business and the surety that you will stay with us."

Reed claims he stayed with the company more than five years, but never received his $1,000 of stock; and that Dempsey also remained the full period and longer, but he likewise failed to get his quota.

Demand Made by Dempsey.

In 1911 a formal demand was made by Dempsey for the stock he claimed was due him in 1898, and the accretions thereon from subsequent stock dividends. He was unable at that time to find the letter from Howe, and the company declined to recognize an oral contract.

Dempsey died in 1923, having never succeeded in locating the letter. Some years afterward, however, his widow came across it in going through the contents of an old trunk. She communicated with Reed and he filed suit in his own behalf, introducing the letter as evidence. Mrs. Dempsey will press a similar claim against the company if Reed should win.

Claim Case Outlawed.

In the trial before Judge Woodrough, the case hinged largely upon whether the statute of limitations—four years under the laws of Nebraska—had run against the claim. A rule of equity is that this statute cannot be invoked as against a specific trust. Reed's contention was that the creamery company has held the stock and its accumulations as trustee for himself and his fellow employes, ever since the agreement was made in 1893.

Opposing that theory, the company maintained that when it refused Dempsey's demand for a settlement in 1911 its action was equivalent to a disavowal and repudiation of the trust, and that the statute of limitations began to run from that time. Since no suit was filed within four years, the claimants are without recourse now, it insisted.

The latter view was upheld by Federal Judge Woodrough, who sustained the company's motion to dismiss the suit.

Company's Growth Rapid.

The Fairmont Creamery Co., has grown since 1893 from a comparatively small corporation operating within a local area to one which covers a number of states and whose products annually run into hundreds of millions of dollars. Its $100,000 of capital stock in the '90's has increased to $10,000,000.

If the former Crete employes, or their heirs, should be able to prove ownership of the original $1,000 shares that were supposed to have been "put into the safe for you, Reed, Green, Stuart, and Hapgood," each of those shares would today be worth $100,000 of the present stock, figuring the same ratio of increase as the total amount.

Attorney Leonard A. Flansburg of Lincoln will represent the Fairmont Creamery Co. in the St. Louis court of appeals. Several Omaha lawyers are in the case for the claimants.

EX-OFFICIALS OF BORGER HELD

Nine Citizens of Texas Town Arrested On Liquor Charges.

STINNETT, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Former Mayor Glenn A. Pace of Borger, oil boom town shorn of bright lights after a siege of martial law, three former peace officers and five Borger citizens were held in the county jail here tonight on federal charges of conspiracy to violate liquor laws. The group was arrested on charges issued in Amarillo.

The former peace officers arrested were Jim Crane and Cal Beard, deposed deputy sheriffs, and C. A. Mitchell, ex-constable. The mayor and officers were ousted after the recent "clean-up" of Borger in the wake of the assassination of John A. Holes, United States district attorney.

The Borger citizens arrested were Jack Payne, E. L. Lantron, H. O. Taylor, Louis Crim and Louis Wietzman. Lantron, Taylor and Crim are now under indictment in District court here for violations of the Texas liquor laws.

Although Sam Jones, former Borger constable charged in the death of Holmes, had bond approved he is still being held on federal warrants on the same charge as the others.

EIELSON SEARCH TO START SOON

Weather Hinders Aerial Hunt for Flier in Siberian Wastes.

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.) Weather permitting, an aerial hunt for Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, missing since Nov. 9 in the Siberian wastes, will get under way tomorrow.

Joe Crosson, well known Alaskan flier, arrived here today from Fairbanks in his Waco plane enroute to Teller to join Frank Dorbandt, who has been weatherbound.

Strong northeast winds and poor visibility still prevail on the route from Teller to North Cape, where the fur trading ship Nanuk, to whose rescue Eielson was flying, is icebound.

Russian Flier Quits.

A radio message today from Captain Dublitsky of the Russian icebreaker at Emil Harbor, Siberia, announced that owing to the lateness of the season he is returning at once to Vladivostok and will be unable to participate further in the search for Eielson. One Russian plane on a trial flight developed engine trouble and it was decided to abandon flights to North Cape.

A searching party with dog teams from the Nanuk has returned to the ship after covering a range of fifty miles. They reported no trace of Eielson or his plane.

A Russian trapper reported seeing Eielson seventy miles east of North Cape on the day he left Teller. The trapper said the plane was heading towards shore in a northwest direction.

Obituary

AMENZO SETH VEDDER.

Amenzo Seth Vedder was born December 7, 1859 in Little Falls, Ia. He was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Vedder who preceded him in death. On January 22, 1890 he was married to Berniece C. Stricker of Bennet. She died January 8, 1920.

Mr. Vedder was a well-known veterinarian in Lancaster county, having followed this vocation for many years. He had served as mayor of Bennet for several years. He was also one of the oldest members of the Knights of Pythias lodge in Hickman.

He suffered a stroke of paralysis a year ago and this, combined with another illness, caused his death at the Bryan Memorial hospital, November 20, 1929.

He leaves three children, H. D. Vedder of Hickman, Darrel L. Vedder of Walton and Mrs. Alice E. Kenney of Milford and eight grandchildren. He was 70 years, 10 months and 20 days old at the time of his death.

COMPENSATION CASE TO COURT

Earl Marler Appeals From Decision of the State Bureau.

Orders Issued in Number of Cases Involving Lincoln Men.

When doctors disagree as they did in the compensation case of Earl Marler of Lincoln vs. Grainger Bros., it takes the lawyers to decide; so the question whether Marler is suffering from hernia as the result of an accident has been taken to the District court of Lancaster county.

In September a year ago he claimed to have injured the muscles and ligaments of his groin, and several doctors gave affidavits to the effect that he had sustained a rupture. Compensation was paid him for 8½ weeks, but further payments were refused. When the matter came before the state compensation bureau recently it was referred to the new medical advisory board, comprising several Lincoln physicians, who made two clinical examinations and declared emphatically that no such injury existed. Accordingly, the claim was turned down, whereupon Marler appealed to the District court.

Other Lincoln Cases.

In another Lincoln case, where Neal Wash, a minor, employed as an elevator operator at the Lindell hotel, had his hand cut on a broken window pane, a bill of $12 presented by the doctor who treated him was cut to $3.50. The youth was not disabled by the accident and kept on working.

Orders have also been issued in these cases from Lincoln:

Frank Smith vs. George Strasheim (Strasheim Coal Co.); injury due to falling on icy pavement while unloading coal; temporary compensation amounting to $460 heretofore paid; additional allowance of $1,081, at the rate of $4 per week, for 25 per cent permanent disability to back.

Charle H. Pate vs. W. J. Assenmacher Co.; injured by nail piercing foot while working on state fair grandstand; $120 already paid as compensation; two weeks' additional allowance, at $15 per week, ordered.

Claim Is Denied.

Henry Kolb vs. W. J. Assemacher Co. and surety; back injury suffered in accident last April and $105 compensation paid therefor; request for additional compensation on account of permanent partial disability denied, subject to renewal of application should it develop in future. Case appealed.

Archie M. Crone vs. Nebraska Lumber & Millwork Co. and surety; injury received in a fall a year ago when a railing in the lumber yard gave way; disability of left knee now claimed as an after-effect of the accident; compensation allowed at $14.40 per week from September 7, last; surgical treatment ordered.

George Kubetzki vs. A. N. Robertson; claim dismissed on finding that disability is due to disease and not to an accident.

TRAIN SCHEDULE ISSUE IN SUIT

Plaintiff In Action For Damages Wants Railway to Show Records.

Petition of Magnus Martinson to require the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co. to produce its schedule of trains at the time of an alleged accident to Martinson was taken under advisement by District Judge Chappell Saturday after hearing the arguments of opposing counsel.

The issue was submitted on the pleadings and statement of counsel. The parties were given a week in which to file written briefs on the matter.

Martinson is asking damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered in a fall from an engine while in the railroad's employ. He is asking damages under a statute which requires proof tha tthe injury happened in employment relative to a train engaged in inter-state commerce.

He is unable to remember the number of the engine from which he fell, His counsel, W. B. Comstock, asked for production of the schedules to assist in establishing his claim that he fell from an engine running from Missouri Valley to Omaha. Defense counsel offered to permit him to take depositions.

Indiana colleges wind up their football schedules only to get ready for basketball, the big sport in that state.

National Magazines Give Space to Symphony Orchestra and Capital

Articles in three national magazines concerning the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra have appeared recently, commenting favorably upon the financial condition of the orchestra. The November 18 issue of Time devotes three inches of space to the state capitol and the symphony orchestra.

Musical Digest, a recognized authority on all things musical, congratulated Lincoln for maintaining "such a splendid orchestra." In Musical America for October 25 is found the headline "Lincoln, Nebraska, Runs Orchestra At a Profit." A quotation from the article follows:

Starts Fourth Series.

"The Lincoln Symphony orchestra, starting its fourth season, takes pride in the fact that among orchestras, it is distinctive in its business organization. Here is an organization of forty-five men giving four concerts with nine rehearsals each for the sum of $6,500. Each musician is paid the union scale, and the conductor is a graduate of the Vienna Conservatory and former first oboe player of the Minneapolis Symphony.

"In organization, it is a municipal orchestra defined by city ordinance, but not supported by city funds. It is sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce, a board of directors and a symphony association of several hundred members, all of whom are boosters for the orchestra. The symphony association consists of members who contribute $25 a year, and half of the orchestra players are such patrons and guarantors to the extent of $25. There is no deficit; there never was one, and this past year the season ended with a $500 profit.

All Lincoln Musicians.

"Members of the orchestra are all local musicians, theater players and music teachers. They play for the love of it, and as rehearsals and concerts are on Sunday it does not interfere with their regular activities. The soloists are local musicians. In fact every point is considered that will make the orchestra a self-supporting organization. It is improving rapidly as an artistic body, and this city believes it can tell the world haw to manage a symphony orchestra that is not costly and which does not have deficits for a few individuals to make up. It may some day be known as the Lincoln method."

In commenting upon the article appearing in Time, Walter S. Whitten, secretary of the chamber of comemrce said, "When Time, with a million and a quarter circulation and a class of readers that includes both the commercial and the cultural worlds, remarks on the virtues of such achievements as are represented by the capitol and the orchestra, we may feel that we are building, and building well. The capitol, representative of Nebraska as a whole, is a fit symbol for the state that ranks second in low illiteracy. The Lincoln Symphony orchestra, with a financial organization that marks a milestone in musical circles, is a worthy subject for national publicity."

FIVE HELD FOR TORCH MURDER

Ignorant Hill Folk to Be Called as Witnesses to Solve Crime.

War Veteran Is Burned Alive by Alleged Clan in Arkansas Ozarks.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Women who can't count the number of their own children and others who can't reckon time of day will be called to solve the Ozark country's most atrocious crime—the burning alive of Connie Franklin, war veteran.

This illiteracy, coupled with alleged clan rule which has gripped the cabin homes of St. James, Ark., will, according to copyrighted reports of the Kansas City Journal-Post, hinder the prosecution of five men held for Franklin's flaming death in the hills last March.

Although Arkansas state officials deny knowledge of such conditions, The Journal-Post investigator sent into the hill country of northern Arkansas reported "clan rule" and the belief that Franklin, a newcomer, "was too smart," resulted in his murder.

Alleged Clan Leader Held.

The men held, including Alec Fulk, alleged leader of the Cabin and Cagin creek gangs supposed to have inflicted a life of terrorism upon the ignorant folk of the hills, will be tried in Mountain View, Ark., December 16.

According to the investigator, threats of clan violence have been made against Sheriff Sam Johnson, who, aided by the gossiping tongue of Bertha Burns, herself a victim of the floggers, traced Franklin's disappearance to a pile of charred bones in a thicket at the end of a deer trail.

Mrs. Burns, flogged by the raiders and warned to be silent when they discovered she had heard the screams of Franklin, began a campaign of gossip about "that awful happening last March," which led the sheriff to the scene.

Franklin was killed as he started with Tiller Ruminer, 16, his fiance, to be wed by the justice of the peace.

Sheriff Threatened.

The sheriff fears, according to the article, that the silence which clothed the crime for months may be imposed by other alleged clan leaders. Johnson has been threatened to quit "monkeying" in these parts.

He is dubious of the effectiveness of the hill folk as witnesses when the trials are called.

These people, living from generation to generation in wooded glens untouched by railroads and roads, compute time by "sun-up and sun-down." It was "right smart after sun-down" that "Uncle Lou" Saunchisee, a hermit, revealed he witnessed the band's mutilation of Franklin.

Tiller, the girl and main witness, has never been to school and in her hill country life had never known of Thanksgiving day.

Her mother, Mrs. Charles Rumlyner, cannot count her own children. "Thar's Floyd and Hoyd and Lloyd," she began, while visitors counted out seven as they stepped up. The mother is now 30.

ANNUAL BALL OF TRAINMEN TO BE HELD DECEMBER 4

Two hundred and fifty couples are expected to attend the annual ball for Burlington engineers and conductors at the Cornhusker hotel December 4.

Besides members of the two brotherhoods railway officials from Wymore, Omaha and Lincoln are planning to attend the affair.

The commitee in charge is composed of three members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and three members of the Order of Railway Conductors for the Burlington. The engineers are: A. R. Gilman, William Ottens and Frank Coffman. Conductors are: W. C. Manske, C. E. Fuller and F. P. Toogood.

Blames Senators

Fred I. Kent, New York bank director, reiterated his charge before the senate lobby investigating committee that the tariff debate was partly responsible for the stock market crash.

Hears Self Called "Extorter"

Mrs. Olga E. Edwards is snapped in New York magistrate's court listening to arguments over a lengthy complaint, drawn up by Nathan L. Amster, left above, financier, in which he charges extortion, saying he contributed $178,000 to her support. Mrs. Edwards charges, in turn, that Amster is the father of her 6-year-old son, Lee, lower left.

SHIP EXPLOSION KILLS SCIENTIST

Captain Ault Loses Life Aboard the Carnegie at Samoa Island.

Craft on 4-Year Cruise of Oceanography; Blast is Mystery.

APIA, Samoa Island, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—This little settlement, metropolis of the British Samoas, tonight joined in mourning the death of Capt. James Percy Ault.

Captain Ault was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when his vessel, the scientific yacht Carnegie, exploded in the harbor.

Scientists aboard the yacht tried to smother out the flames. The fire gained too much headway and they were forced to flee for their lives.

None of the scientists, renowned throughout the world for their discoveries, could explain the cause of the explosion. Neither could members of the crew.

Tony Olson, a cabin boy, was trapped by flames aboard the burning vessel. Other members of the crew were unable to reach him.

Funeral services for the captain and the cabin boy were held at 11 a. m., today.

Blast Comes Suddenly.

The blast came with terrific suddenness. Hundreds of natives gathered in shore to watch the strange white vessel, saw a sheet of flames shoot skyward.

Then came a tremendous explosion, followed by dense clouds of black smoke. Members of the crew and the scientific men aboard could be seen swarming over the decks.

Small boats put out from shore, but when they neared the Carnegie they were warned back, for those aboard feared there might be another blast.

Captain Ault, unconscious, was lowered to one of the vessel's small boats, rowed ashore and taken to the settlement hospital. There he died.

Scientific data obtained in practically all parts of the world, as well as instruments valued at thousands of dollars, were lost. It was a sad group of scientists here tonight. They had lost one of their own. Captain Ault was noted for his scientific studies and endeavor.

On Four-Year Cruise.

The Carnegie was engaged in a four-year cruise around the world, gathering information in oceanography and other scientific subjects.

Leaving Washington, D. C., May 1, 1928, the vessel cruised in the north Atlantic until October. Later the vessel came to Pacific waters.

Calls were made at Papeete, Pago, and Hawaii. Then the Carnegie came into San Francisco bay last June. In September the ship sailed for Hawaii and then proceeded to Samoa.

Among the scientists aboard when the explosion occurred were: Wilfred C. Parkinson, senior scientific officer; Oscar W. Torreson, navigator; F. M. Soule, electrician observer; H. R. Seiwell, chemist and biologist; J. H. Saul, surgeon; W. E. Scott, observer, and Lawrence A. Jones, radio operator and observer.

Four members of the crew were injured, but none so seriously that they were expected to die. Eric Stenstrom was the most seriously hurt.

Mrs. Ault Grief Stricken.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Mrs. Mamie Alice Ault, wife of Capt. James Percy Ault, who died of injuries received when the scientific yacht Carnegie exploded in the harbor of Apia, was grief stricken at the home of her brother-in-law here tonight.

COUNTY EMPLOYES ERECTING 75,000 FEET SNOW FENCE

Erection of 75,000 feet of snow fence on county roads, more than three times as much as was put last year, probably will be completed within a week, County Engineer Edgren announced Saturday.

County employes have been at work throughout the fall during times when other road work could not be carried on, getting the snow fences up. Since the recent cold weather, work has been carried on more rapidly as the ground is too hard for other road improvement.

Approximately 25,000 feet of snow fence was erected for the winter of 1928. The amount of increase this year is still very inadequate according to both Arthur Edgren, county engineer, and J. R. Bennett, chairman of the board of county commissioners. It is all that the county could afford, however, Mr. Bennett stated Saturday.

Commenting on the county's needs, Commissioner Bennett said Saturday that five times as much fence could be used if the county could afford it. Engineer Edgren commented that fifty times as much could really be used.

Sun Spots Increase

PARIS, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Considerable interest was expressed by astronomers today in an exceptional increase during the last ten days in the umber of sun spots, reported by the Talence observatory near Bordeaux. Many of the spots are visible with the naked eye. Meteorological officials say they presage strong atmospheric disturbances and magnetic storms.

CHESTS REPORT GIVING AS USUAL

Officials Feel Returns Indicate Basic Soundness of U. S.

"Giving as usual" continues to be the rule as additional reports are received from community chests throughout the country which have held campaigns this fall in face of disturbed financial conditions.

Two weeks ago J. H. Agee, president of the Lincoln chest, received a report from the National Association of Community Chests and Councils in New York revealing that sixteen chests which had held campaigns up until that time had almost uniformly surpassed their totals of last year. This week Mr. Agee received a supplementary report from the same source embodying reports from fifty-two chests in all parts of this country. Analysis of these reports reveals that the chests have raised a considerably larger aggregate total than they had last year. The total for these fifty-two campaigns to date for this year is $16,667,817 as against $16,312,011 for last year, making an increase of $355,806.

Officials of the national association express themselves as being highly pleased with the situation, feeling that the returns to date are indicative of the basic soundness of the country to which President Hoover has made reference, according to Mr. Agee. These figures also give assurance, in the opinion of these officials, that any retrenchment which the people generally might be exercising is not being made at the expense of essential philanthropics.

The analysis of the campaigns further reveals that, of the fifty-two from which reports have been received, thirty-five have already exceeded their totals of last year, fifteen are within easy reach of last year's results, and only two are definitely below. From these two, Atlanta and Detroit, special messages have been received assuring the association that supplementary campaigns are now in progress which are certain within two months at the most to bring in at least the equal of last year's totals.

Among the other facts revealed are that no city having a community chest has found it necessary to postpone its campaign and in no instance has a chest committee despaired of reaching the amounts set up as goals. Only one of the cities studied has decreased the amount to be asked. In Washington, D. C., where the chest in its first year of existence last year raised $1,487,000, the budget committee this year has fixed $1,700,000 as the goal for the campaign which is to be launched in January. In Minneapolis, where the intensive period of the campaign occurred during the height of the stock market break, $1,307,000 has been raised this year, as against $1,360,254 last year.

The returns from which the analysis was made, were as follows:

ITALY'S OLDEST WOMAN IS DEAD

ROME, Nov. 30—(I.N.S.)—Luigia Caselli, Italy's oldest woman, is dead at the age of 108. She lived under nine popes and saw five sovereigns. The old woman was remarkably able up to the last, and ould thread a needle without glasses. She boasted she never took medicine in her life.

JASPER ASKED TO TRY AGAIN.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Henri Jasper, who reently resigned as Belgian premier, has been asked by King Albert to try and reconstruct his government. The statesman has not given a definite reply.

All evidence stresses the fact that today's new Multi-Range Chryslers rule the road. By developing, with characteristic genius, many new advancements headed by the sensational Multi-Range four-speed transmission and gear shift—Chrysler engineering has lifted these latest cars to a new plane of performance.

The Multi-Range transmission introduces a new quiet acceleration gear that combines the best features of both the ordinary "second" and "high"—and achieves a new kind of swift, silent pick-up. It also makes possible faster car speeds at SLOWER engine speeds. The Multi-Range gear shift assures a non-clashing ease and quickness of gear-shifting such as never before has been attained. And a new principle of Down-Draft carburetion, based on aviation practice, adds marvelously to power, smoothness and economy.

New bodies of greater width, length and headroom combine the most fastidious luxury with smart distinction of design. Today, more than ever, the saying is true: "Chrysler ownership brings a pride all its own."

Elder's Long Sprint Gives Victory to Irish Over Army

Rocknemen Pushed Win From Cadets

Intercepted Pass On Ramblers' Goal Converted Into Only Touchdown of Evenly Contested Grid Game.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Notre Dame, the fighting Irish of Rockne, climbed upon the Mount Sinai of intercollegiate football this afternoon and looked down upon a world that was conquered.

Before 85,000 frigid human beings, it finished an all-conquering season by winning from the Army by a score of 7 to 0, the seven being the result of Jack Elder's 99-yard run on an intercepted pass and the nothing being the result of a determined die-hard defense that wouldn't yield an inch at various times when the Army was only a matter of yards away from a score.

Horsemen Well Hobbled.

For, truth to tell, this wasn't Rockne's 1929 "Horsemen" that had ridden so blithely over Indiana, Navy, Wisconsin, Georgia Tech, Carnegie Tech, Drake, Southern California and Northwestern in successive games. If they were horsemen at all, they were distinctly of the draught or Percheron variety. They could pull a load of short hauls, but seldom for a sustained distance and, with a single, game-saving exception, never for long gains.

The exception was furnished by Elder's run for almost the length of the field and even that play was initiated by the opposing team. It came on the end of a poorly thrown pass by Cagle, who stood on the 15-yard line and hurled the ball on a sharp diagonal to Carlmark. His aim was none too good and his trajectory was worse.

Up Bobs Elder.

The ball hung in the air for a dramatic moment while Carlmark waited on the goal line for it to fall into his arms. He still was waiting for it when, up from nowhere, like a bat out of Borneo, came Elder, the sprinter extraordinary.

He took the ball in full stride on the one-yard line, juggled it for a tense instant, righted himself and was off for the distant goal line and posterity.

Hardly a restraining hand was laid upon Elder's form as it flitted like a shadow up the sidelines. Twice he was threatened, but he outran his opponents. Once he was clutched by the shoulders, but this time he brushed aside Carver, the Army defense man, and went right on about his business. He wasn't even challenged in the last 50 yards.

Fate's Cruel Thrust.

This was the Army's nearest approach to a touchdown through a long afternoon of forced marches in that direction and it was fate that its nearest approach was to result only in Notre Dame's single winning effort of the game. For not once before this were the Irish able to go anywhere in particular with their attack and never afterward were they able to do so.

Truth to tell, they were generally outplayed. The second team backfield did march 34 yards in the first period, but when Carideo, Mullins, Elder and Brill went in, the marching stopped and pretty well stayed stopped. Carideo handled punts brilliantly and ran the team like the genius he is, but, except for short gains by Savoldi in the third period and a 11-yard dash by Elder

Manly Chair Vacant At Big Six Meeting

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 30—(UP)—"Big Six" conference officials, meeting next Friday in Kansas City to transact the routine business of the season, must select a new secretary.

It will be the first time in 25 years of Missouri Valley and "Big Six" history that the name of the late Prof. W. G. Manly of Missouri university has not been on the roll of officers as scretary of the conference.

Professor Manly died here Thursday afternoon after a sudden heart attack.

Emil Beck Retained As Eastridge "Pro"

Emil Beck has been re-elected golf professional at Eastridge club, according to announcement made Soturday. Prospects are bright for a busy golf year at the Eastridge club.

Sloan and Richards May Play On Coast

Clair Sloan, halfback, and Raymond Richards, tackle, are being given serious consideration for positions in the east-west game on the Pacific coast Christmas day, according to word received in Lincoln Saturday.

Contest rules arranged last season fix the Mississippi river as the dividing line for player selections, but it is understood the coach of the east team has asked the coast to waive this to permit "two Nebraskans to join the east squad."

"Y" BASKETBALL SEASON AT HAND

Church and Commercial Leagues to Organize This Week.

The basketball season will get under way at the Lincoln Y.M.C.A. with meetings of Sunday School and Commercial leagues managers scheduled for this week. The church league magnates will assemble at the "Y" Monday night to complete entry lists and make official drawings for opening games. The Commercial league managers will congregate at the "Y" Wednesday evening.

The Sunday School teams will be divided into three groups this winter. Players of any age are eligible to compete in the Class A league. Players of 18 years and under may compete in group B and players of 15 years and under may play in the Class C circuit.

Entries Close Monday.

Entry books will close Monday night on the Sunday league with play in the three circuits to open the week of Dec. 9.

Officers of the Sunday School league are Harry Reid, Grace M. E., chairman; J. H. Martin, College View Union, vice-chairman; O. B. Anderson, secretary.

The Commercial league (formerly the Industrial league) will open its season Tuesday, Dec. 10. The managers will arrange the schedule at the Wednesday meeting of the organization.

Post-Season Series.

According to the rules the top four teams will play a championship series at the close of the regular playing season—all games to count on the total percentage. The second four teams will play a division B championship series—all games to count on the total standing.

Entry books on the Commercial league close Wednesday, Dec. 4. Teams expected to enter include Piggly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply, State Oil Co., Continental National Bank, Lincoln National Bank, Lincoln Telephones, Continental Oil, Evans Laundry, Central Cafe, Martin Baking Co., Standard Auto Parts, John Hancock Life Insurance Co.

Ace Rated as Outstanding Middle.

Announcing its official list of ring champions, the National Boxing association declares middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight thrones vacant, but names Ace Hudkins, middle; Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavy, and Jack Sharkey, heavy, outstanding in their classes. Hudkins is named over Mickey Walker, middle title-holder, but permanently suspended by the association. Champions named are Frankie Genaro, flyweight; Panama Al Brown, bantamweight; Battling Battalino, featherweight; Tod Morgan, junior lightweight; Sammy Mandell, lightweight; Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight, and Jackie Fields, welterweight.

DEADLOCK DUEL ON TEXAS FIELD

T. C. U. Captures Title in 7-7 Grid Conflict At Fort Worth.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Texas Christian university won the championship of the Southwest football conference here today by holding Southern Methodist university to a 7 to 7 tie before 25,000 spectators.

The Christians were not defeated this season. The tie cost the Methodists the title.

Battling from end zone to end zone in the first two periods, when spectators stood breathless hoping one or the other of Texas' prize elevens would unleash a scoring attack, the teams reached the half with a nothing to nothing tie.

Mustangs Score First.

Late in the third period, the Methodist Mustangs got up their scoring blood. Gilbert passed from his 42-yard line to Mason on the Christian 36-yard line whence he dashed across the T. C. U. goal line. Neely kicked goal for the extra point.

The Frogs of T. C. U. entered the final period with a brilliant passing and center-smashing attack which carried the ball, shoved further by Moleskins Put Away. Football In Big Six. No Husker Regrets. That 1930 Outlook.

COLLEGE moleskins generally have been packed away for future service in the pigskin realm, but the interest probably will continue until after a few combats scheduled for the holidays season and the climactic New Year's day east vs. west classic at Pasadena, in the land of orange blossoms and realtors.

Followers of Cornhusker football, surveying and analyzing the season's performances by the Biblemen, have excellent license to rub hands and slap backs over a satisfactory campaign. The record discloses that the Huskers won four games, tied three and sustained a single reverse.

That record, of itself, might have a drab appearance, when compared with achievements of numerous former Nebraska teams, but when the scores are carefully scanned and the competition the Cornhuskers met all along the trail is taken into the reckoning, the Bible-coached squad's accomplishments stand forth to merit a full measure of praise.

RETENTION of the Big Six conference championship, a prize for which four worthy opponents were striving, is the high spot of the season. Cornhusker teams of a dozen or more years ago had the habit of rough-shodding conference opposition, but that sort of thing passed out with a general improvement in the coaching and quality of football in rival conference camps.

Missouri, for instance, is a notable example of the betterment that has been wrought. The Columbia Tigers were easy annual pluckings for the Cornhuskers in the gridiron sport, but the installation of Gwin Henry as coach in 1923 brought a complete change at the Bengal in-

HUSKER OUTLOOK FOR 1930 SEASON

Material Apparently On Hand for Strong Team At Nebraska U.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Two Big Six conference football championships have been hung up on the walls of the University of Nebraska's trophy room, but the campaign of 1929 has passed into history and Cornhusker followers generally are asking: What about 1930?

The question is pertinent for numerous reasons, two of which are that Missouri and Kansas are reasonably sure to be in the field next September with gridiron aggregations of sufficient class to give the Huskers all sorts of worry.

Missouri, for instance, held Nebraska to a tie this fall and started a team against the Biblemen which had only three veterans in the line-up. The eight others were sophomores and juniors, meaning that the Tigers will have no less than eight veterans for first-string purposes in 1930.

Kansas Also Formidable.

Kansas will be similarly fortunate. Big Jim Bausch, selected generally as all-Big Six fullback, has at least another year of conference competition and Husker fans are quite willing to concede that Jim is apt to be a constant source of trouble for Big Six opponents next year, as will a string of K. U. regulars available for 1930.

Oklahoma also may be expected to enter a formidable eleven, as the Sooner institution ranks a close second to Nebraska in total enrollment and is coming ahead in football zipp and interest at fast strides.

Reports from Manhattan and Iowa State rate the Kansas Aggies and the Cyclones slightly below their conference rivals, due to the fact that both schools are to lose a string of regulars by graduation.

Encouragement Justified.

The Nebraska situation, scanned from every angle, apparently justifies encouragement. For one thing, Coach Bible has his plans outlined for a season of spring practice that will be quite as real as the 1929

SAILORS PERK UP; WIN FROM GREEN

Navy Downs Dartmouth, 13 to 6, In Battle On Quaker Sod.

BY HENRY McLEMORE.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Downright embarrassed, not to mention humiliated, by the idea of being remembered as the team which blew every major game during the season, Navy's 1929 football fleet hove into Franklin field here this afternoon, to do or die.

Thanks to a backfield which suddenly emerged from the thick fog surrounding it all year and a line which did likewise, the Midshipmen did the doing and let Dartmouth do the dying, as the final score—Navy, 13; Dartmouth, 6—testifies. Thus a season was saved and the first Navy-Dartmouth encounter in history written on the nautical side of the ledger.

Polar Weather.

Just to prove their seaworthiness, the midshipmen chose Philadelphia's coldest November day in 49 years to stage their rejuvenation act. Dartmouth, situated in the heart of the snowball industry, was thought to have an added edge by the 16 above weather, but such was not the case, the sailors revelling in the Arctic atmosphere.

Before going any further, time out must be taken to tell of Louis Kirn, comparatively unknown back, who, more than any other individual, deserves credit for the Navy's win.

Up From Obscurity.

So inconspicuous that his name was not included in the official pro-

Honors Bestowed Big Six Gridders

Sloan and Richards of Nebraska U. Only Cornhuskers to Rate As Members of First Team.

BY CLYDE E. McBRIDE.
("Big Six" Conference Football Official.)

There is many a story between the lines of an All-Star eleven from almost any college or university conference. Some are not true stories, perhaps, others give an accurate line on a situation that may have caused comment through the season and still others are vagaries, the unwinding of which lead to nowhere.

Big Six All-Stars.

FIRST ELEVEN.

Ends—Hursley, Missouri; Churchill, Oklahoma.
Tackles—Richards, Nebraska; Tackwell, Kansas Aggies.
Guards—Bauman, Kansas Aggies; Brayton, Missouri.
Center—Smith, Missouri.
Quarterback—Crider, Oklahoma, co-captain.
Halfbacks—Sloan, Nebraska; Waldorf, Missouri, co-captain.
Fullback—J. Bausch, Kansas.

SECOND ELEVEN.

Ends—Hokuf, Nebraska; Campbell, Missouri.
Tackles—Schpplin, Kansas; Broadstone, Nebraska.
Guards—Atkeson, Kansas; Gentry, Oklahoma.
Center—F. Bausch, Kansas.
Quarterback—Dills, Missouri, captain.
Halfbacks—Cox, Kansas; Derry, Missouri.
Fullback—Wiggins, Kansas Aggies.

THIRD ELEVEN.

Ends—Cronkite, Kansas Aggies; Lewandowski, Nebraska.
Tackles—J. Lee, Oklahoma; Armstrong Missouri.
Guards — Rost, Kansas; Kern, Iowa State.
Center—Fields, Oklahoma.
Quarterback—Fisher, Kansas.
Halfbacks—Nigro, Kansas Aggies; Lyman, Kansas, captain.
Fullback—Farley, Nebraska.

Only Two Cornhuskers.

In the recent thrilling campaign of the Big Six teams Nebraska won the championship, yet only two Cornhuskers found places on the first eleven of a composite choice of well informed football men, including coaches. Missouri, generally rated as being all powerful in material and reserve strength, won four positions, indicating perhaps the truth of this rating. On the other hand, Kansas, also rated as being powerful in material, made only one first team place, yet hit for four on the second team and three on the third, tieing Missouri with a total of eight players on the three elevens, Nebraska getting six.

Standings Play No Part.

Then there is the case of the Kansas Aggies, playing in a championship game, next to the last of the season, but landing only two men on the first team, one on the second and two on the third. The following list of team places, showing how the experts rated the playing material of the Big Six members, will be especially interesting when it is considered that the final rating of the teams played absolutely no part in the selection of the material for these mythical elevens:

	Positions
	First	Second	Third	Tot
Missouri	4	3	1	8
Kansas	4	3	1	8
Nebraska	2	2	2	6
Kansas Aggies	2	1	2	5
Oklahoma	2	1	2	5
Iowa	0	0	1	1
	11	11	11	33

Waldorf and Crider.

Waldorf, Missouri and Crider, Oklahoma, captains of their respective teams, are named as co-captains of the first eleven. This method has been adopted by numerous colleges, and seems only fair with these two fine sportsmen and performers on the first squad. Crider would be the signal caller, could this mythical eleven be called together.

The ends, Hursley, Missouri and Churchill, Oklahoma, would be about the heart's desire of any coach. Each a powerhouse. Hursley a quarter-miler in track, and Churchill an all-round champion. Each a 6-footer, a pass receiver and good under punts, fair blockers and smart on defense; 3-year men. Almost ideal wing men.

Just What Coach Ordered.

Richards, Nebraska and Tackwell, Kansas Aggies, tackles—just what the coach ordered when he sent his scouts out. Richards, a third-year man, 205 pounds displacement, with the necessary speed and aggressiveness, an outstanding Valley football lineman. Tackwell, also a senior, embodying all the experience of full

Creighton Lands On Kansas U. Schedule

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30—University of Kansas will play Creighton university football at Omaha, Oct. 4, according to announceemnt today by Athletic Director Art Schabinger of the Bluejays. The game will be played at night.

The Creighton schedule will be completed at the Missouri Valley meet at Grinnell, Dec. 6. and 7.

ATHLETIC GROUP HERE THIS WEEK

High School Assembly to Convene In Lincoln Next Saturday.

High school athletic problems will be up for discussion this week with the control board and delegate assembly of the Nebraska High School Athletic association meeting in Lincoln. The board will assemble Friday night, while the assembly will convene Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the Hotel Lincoln.

Assignment of the location of the official basketball tournaments, district and regional, will be discussed and probably settled at the meeting of the control board Friday evening. Selection of the tournament centers will be made largely on the accessibility of the town, size of the court and seating capacity of the gymnasium. The board also is confronted with everal problems of eligibility.

General management of basketball tournaments and tourney finances will be considered differet than last year acording to present plans. The association control board Friday evening will pass on the proposition of providing trophies, basketball and officials at the different meets. Neutral officials will be assigned to work the various tournament games, this group being selected from the approved list.

Forty Centers Listed.

Forty centers have filed applications with Secretary Walter I. Blak of the high school association requesting a district or regional tournament.

This list includes Ainsworth, Alliance, Alma, Beatrice, Beaver-Crossing, Bellevue college, Blair high school, Dana college, Columbus, Curtis, Dorchester, Geneva, Gordon Gothenburg Grand Island, Harrison, Hastings, Hebron, Holbrook, Johnstown, Kearney college, School of Agriculture at Lincoln, Lodgepole, Long Pine, McCook, Mitchell, Mullen, Norfolk, North Platte, Creighton university of Omaha, Ord, Peru college, Roseland, Scottsbluff, Spalding, Stella, Tobias, Trumbull, Waterloo, York college.

The delegate assembly, a new wrinkle in association procedure, is a legislative body, members being selected at the recent district association meetings. Forty-one delegates will be in attendance Saturday.

Legislative problems expetced to be discussed by the assembly include the basketball tournaments and eligibility matters.

Lincoln High In Grid Spotlight With Brilliant Record

Brownies Glittered In Football; Three Years Without Defeat

Completing one of the most successful seasons in Lincoln high school grid history, Coach W. H. Browne's eleven's annihilation of St. Joseph Central to the tune of 20-6 Thanksgiving day brought to a close a campaign during which Lincoln chalked up eight victories and one tie, scored 347 points as to the combined total of the nine opponents' 12, and broke the previous all-time Lincoln record for point total in one game.

Walked On Hastings.

The Hastings Tigers were the first team met, Browne's Brownies walking over, through and around the Adams county team until they were in a daze and then proceeded to cross the Hastings goal line seven times. Continuing the devastating processes, Lincoln trampled on Tee-Jay of Council Bluffs for the same number of touchdowns, but added five extra points, thereby outscoring the Hastings point total by two.

Beatrice proved the stumbling block for one of the Lincolnites' avowed intentions—that of keeping their goal line uncrossed, Wade Traylor, fleet halfback, racing 60 yards for a touchdown after receiving a surprise 15-yard pass from Seibert.

Beatrice Hard to Beat.

Beatrice fought gamely and succeeded in holding off the Capital City youths the entire first period and most of the second canto before the Lincoln gridders punched over a score in the last three minutes of the half. During the second half, the Red and Black athletes scored 25 points, while Beatrice failed to count. Beatrice was saved having another touchdown scored against her when the half ended with the ball in Lincoln's possession, first down, on the Gage county team's one-yard stripe.

Ran Wild Over Central.

The booster day fracas with Omaha Central lived up to advance expectations, the Lincolnites running wild at the expense of Coach Knapple's crew.

Next on the program was Omaha Tech, the game in which the selection for the mythical state championship was expected to be settled but the scoreless tie left it more muddled up than before. Lincoln came the closer to scoring, reaching the Omaha six-inch line, but a stonewall defense by the Techsters held the Brownemen for downs. Tech reached the Lincoln 15-yard marker a pair of times, but the Lincoln defense tightened and Tech's advance was stopped.

Victory In Iowa.

A sally into Hawkeye territory netted a 27-0 victory over the Tigers from Washington high of Cedar Rapids. Lincoln's aerial attack was functioning on all cylinders Armistice day, most of the gains being made by that route.

An invasion of Nebraska by Vermillion, South Dakota, in a game which was expected to be close, resulted in a 79-0 victory for Lincoln, the highest score a Lincoln high school football team has ever piled up, surpassing the record made a few years back when Beatrice succumbed, 77-7.

Conquered Grand Island.

The next week Grand Island invaded Lincoln intent of scalping the home team, but returned to the Third City that night with a 46-0 defeat adding to the pain of bruises and what not.

Concluding with St. Joseph Central, Lincoln rolled up 20 points in the 60 minutes playing time, as against Central's six. Central counted on almost a perfect replica of the Beatrice happening, Mason receiving a flat zone pass from Stuber and outrunning the Lincoln eleven for 60 yards to score the second and last touchdown against the Lincolnites.

Masterson and Sauer.

The work of Big Bernie Masterson and George Sauer in the backfield was a potent threat all season, while Harold Schmitt, Bruce Kilbourne, Clair Bishop, Gerhard Prestegaard and Bob Joy were the cream of the line performers during the 1929 schedule.

Nineteen performers have hung up the moleskins for all time at Lincoln high, but eight veterans will be back in 1930 as the backbone for the galloping Brownies of that season. The entire regular eleven will be gone, but with a strong reserve squad due to advance, 1930 promises to be another good season.

Three Years Without Defeat.

Lincoln's record sheet, as now stands, does not show a reverse since the 5-0 upset at Grand Island about midway in the 1926 schedule. Since then Lincoln has won all but two games, both scoreless engagements—one with Cedar Rapids on Lincoln soil in 1928 and then the Tech game in 1929. During this period of conflict, the Browne gridsters have accounted for two undisputed state championships, 1927 and 1928, and are rated with Omaha Tech and Omaha North as the three strongest in the state this season.

Sauer High In Points.

George Sauer, fullback, who scored the first touchdown in the final game at St. Joseph, was high man for the season, lanky George accounting for the total of 87. Bernie Masterson was 21 points behind, scoring 68. Joe Luchinsger and Henry Bauer copped third and fourth places, respectively, "Luke" scoring 54 points and Henry 42. The remainder of the men who scored and their totals are: Bruce Kilbourne, 25; Bill Weir, 18; Alden Martin, 13; Bob Joy, 12 (accounted for the safety at St. Joseph); Virgil Yelkin, 7; Art Kneeland, 7; Cecil Fulcher, 6; Harvey Lanman, 6; and Harold Schmitt, 2.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Nov. 30—Credited they handed Tecumseh a 6-0 defeat, Pawnee City gridders finished the 1929 Southeast Nebraska conference season in second place.

Coach Dean Higgins' Tecumseh eleven, champion for the past two years, apparently had the runnerup position in their circuit clinched with five victories to its credit in six starts. Coach Cork's pawnee Indians, however, upset the dope when Roach gained 50 yards on a tackle-around play to turn the trick.

Falls City swept through the conference competition without a reverse.

ARAPAHOE DEFEATS RIVAL.

ARAPAHOE, Neb., Nov. 30—Arapahoe won its last game of the season by defeating Republican City high here, 41-0. Arapahoe opened with a fast running attack and scored 25 points during the first half.

Riepe and Olinger, playing their last games for Arapahoe, were the outstanding players.

Coach Claude Reynolds' Arapahoe eleven has won five games, had one tie contest and suffered two defeats this season.

FALLS CITY LOSES FIVE.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Nov. 30—Five members of the Southeast Nebraska conference champion football team wound up their high school football careers Thursday. This quintet includes Captain Al Fisher, half; Cecil Stump, quarter; Virgil Wiltse, center; L. Huston, guard; Warren Prather, end.

Coach 'Jug' Brown, however, will have a letterman for every position next season according to present indications.

Twenty-three of the 28 varsity players of the West Virginia team this year are West Virginia youths. Three of the other five are from nearby points in Pennsylvania and one each from Ohio and Kentucky.

Rocknemen Pushed Win From Cadets

off tackle, the Irish couldn't break a man loose.

Army's Strong Defense.

For one thing, Elder's game-saving play came in the second period and the team played it as safe as possible thereafter, for another, the freezing temperature made the field as hard as a corrugated roof and the Irish backs were skating around as though ice, and not turf, was under their feet.

But, largely, the horsemen were cut down to mere footmen by as inspired a defense as ever an Army team has sponsored.

Outclassed on paper, held to be no better than one to four in the betting, the Cadets builded better than they knew today. They were so good, in fact, that Biff Jones made not a single substitution in 60 minutes of football that was almost berserk in its fury. Their defense kept the Irish running attack out side the 25-yard line. Their attack, led by Cagle and Murrell, kept the Irish on the run all the way.

Not One Forward Pass.

This attack was so insistent, in fact, that it actually out-yarded Notre Dame by 144 yards to 126 on the running attack. This represented about the difference in the teams, too, for not a forward pass was completed by either team. Maybe it was too cold to throw them; maybe it was too cold to catch them.

Anyway, a lot of football was played this afternoon and only a very little of it was other than stodgy and uninspired. So much for what the muggs saw for the $50 and $75 they were alleged to have paid for speculators' tickets.

Tight Rein On Cagle.

The players saw and felt the blows of a game that was as fiercely played as any this year. Cagle, making his last appearance in the east, was seldom able to get away from scrimmage. Once in the second period, he turned Conley's end for 31 yards and, late in the game, he picked up a bounding punt on the 25-yard line and, with fine disregard for life and limb, literally bruised his way for 39 yards through a gauntlet of Irish tacklers.

This effort carried the play deep into Notre Dame's territory as it had been nearly throughout the entire last half. But Notre Dame turned back this threat as successfully as it turned back all others. It ended when Cagle passed to Hutchinson in the clear, but the latter couldn't hold the ball.

Irish Great On Defense.

Yes, the Irish were offensively great this afternoon if nothing else. Cannon, Twomey and Law were virtually a three-man line on defene. They were nothing much on attack, but neither were the French at Verdun.

"They shall not pass," they said, and this was enough.

"They shall not pass," was the slogan that kept the Germans out of Paris. It was sufficient to keep Notre Dame out of the depths of defeat today, a defeat that would have nullified the achievements of a great season.

Play-By-Play Details.

FIRST PERIOD.

Cannon's poor kickoff went out of bounds on Army's 45-yard line and the play was recalled. Hutchinson took the next kickoff on Army's 21-yard line. He was downed in his tracks by Cannon. Murrel got 5 yards at right end. Murrell's quick kick sailed to Notre Dame's 27-yard line. Notre Dame fumbled the kick and when an Army man fell on the ball it was given to West Point at the point of recovery. Murrell and Cagle lost 5 yards in two plays. Cagle lost 2 yards at left end.

Cagle's forward pass was grounded on the fourth down and Notre Dame took the ball on downs on its own 35-yard line. Savoldi and O'Connor made 8 yards in two plunges. Savoldi added another yard. Schwartz punted out of bounds on Army's 33-yard line, but the play was recalled and Army was penalized 5 yard for offside.

Savoldi Around End.

Savoldi turned left end for six yards. O'Connor added two yards through center. Savoldi missed the first down by inches on Army's 43-yard line, but made the necessary yard on the next play.

On a spin play, O'Connor slipped off right tackle for 9 yards. Savoldi made it first down on Army's 30-yard line. O'Connor was stopped and so was Savoldi. Gebert's pass to O'Connor was incomplete. So was Schwartz's long pass on the fourth down.

Army took the ball on downs on its own 30-yard line. Murrell gained 2 yards through right tackle. He was stopped by Cannon on the next play. Leahy stopped Murrell again. Murrell sent a long punt to Notre Dame's 24-yard line.

First Down for Irish.

Savoldi gained only a yard at the right side of the line. Savoldi plunged through center for 8 yards on the next play. Savoldi made it a first down on the 34-yard line on the next play.

O'Connor plunged a yard and Schwartz furnished 4 yards more. O'Connor gained 2 yards at right tackle. Then Schwartz punted out of bounds on Army's 26-yard line.

Cagle got 2 yards at right end. Murrell added a bare yard. Murrell punted to Notre Dame's 26-yard line. Schwartz was stopped at left end. O'Connor could make only a yard through the center of the line. The period ended before another play could be made.

Score: Notre Dame, 0; Army, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

O'Connor lost a yard on a wide end sweep, Cagle making the tackle. Schwartz punted poorly to Notre Dame's 47-yard line. Carideo was substituted for Gebert, Brill went in for O'Connor, Elder went in for Schwartz and Mullins for Savoldi. Murrell cracked the line for 13 yards in two plays. Then Notre Dame was penalized 5 yards for offside.

Murrell got a yard at center and Cagle slipped through right tackle for 5 yards. This gave Army a first down on Notre Dame's 34-yard line. Donoghue was substituted for Leahy for Notre Dame.

Cagle's plunge was good for 1 yard. Murrell was able to add 2 yards in as many plunges. Cagle's pass was grounded on the fourth down and Notre Dame took the ball on downs on its own 19-yard line.

Mullins Fumbles.

Mullins fumbled, but recovered for a loss of 2 yards. Elder was stopped by Murrell. Mullins gained a bare yard at center. Carideo's punt was blocked by Perry and recovered by Army on Notre Dame's 12-yard line.

Cagle was stopped at right end, Donoghue making the tackle. Murrell plunged at Cannon for 2 yards. Cagle's pass was intercepted by Elder on the 1-yard line and the Notre Dame speed merchant dashed 99 yards for a touchdown.

Elder Eludes Carver.

Elder was challenged at mid-field by Carver, but broke loose and ran unimpeded to the goal line. Carideo kicked the goal.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

Cagle fumbled the kickoff on the 10-yard line, but recovered and came back 13 yards. The play was recalled, however, because Notre Dame was offside. Carideo then kicked off from the 35-yard line. Cagle gathered in the kickoff on the 13-yard line and rushed back to the 37-yard line.

Cagle and Murrell gained 3 yards in two plunges. Notre Dame was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness. On the next play, Mullins intercepted Cagle's pass on Notre Dame's 25-yard line. Elder advanced 2 yards and this time the Army was penalized 15 yards for illegal use of the hands.

Pass By Elder Fails.

Elder's long pass was broken up by Carver, Brill gained a bare yard. Elder cracked center for 4 yards. Carideo punted to Carver, who was downed on Army's 27-yard line.

Murrell gained a yard on two plunges, but the last play was recalled and Army was penalized 5 yards for offside. Cagle turned Notre Dame's right end for 31 yards. Murrell added a bare half-yard. Cannon stopped Cagle at left end. Murrel cracked the right side of the line for 5 yards. Murrell sent a quick kick to Notre Dame's 3-yard line. Carideo picked the ball up and dashed back 22 yards.

Mullins was stopped by the line. Brill lost two yards. Mullin's failed to gain. Carideo's punt went to Army's 43-yard line. O'Brien was substituted for Colerick. Murrell's plunge was good for 1 yard and Cagle added 6 yards at right end. Murrell hit the line for 1 yard.

The half ended before another play could be made.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

THIRD PERIOD.

Army's lineup was the same as at the beginning of the game. The Notre Dame lineup was the same as that which left the field at the end of the first half.

Cagle caught Carideo's kickoff behind the goal line and came out 24 yards. Murrell gained a yard at center and added 2 yards at the same place. Cagle was stopped. Collins replaced O'Brien and Savoldi went in for Mullins for Notre Dame.

Murrell sent a short punt to Notre Dame's 45-yard line. Carlmark threw Elder for a 4-yard loss. Savoldi could not gain. Carideo punted out of bounds on Army's 33-yard line.

Army Forced to Punt.

Cagle was stopped by Twomey. Murrell hit the line for 4 yards. Cagle added 2 yards at left guard. Carideo took Murrell's punt on Notre Dame's 20-yard line and came back 16 yards. Brill punched the right side of the Army line for 8 yards. Savoldi made it first down on Notre Dame's 47-yard line. Savoldi turned right end for 8 yards. Savoldi punched out another first down on Army's 40-yard line.

On the next play Brill fumbled and the ball was recovered by Humber on Army's 38-yard line. Cagle ripped off 7 yards. Murrell plunged for 2 yards. Murrell cracked center for a first down at midfield. Cagle was forced out of bounds for a gain of 2 yards, but the play was recalled, both teams being offside. Cagle got only a yard at center. Murrell added another yard. Cagle gained 3 yards through Law.

Murrell Forced to Kick

Murrell sent a short punt to Notre Dame's 20-yard line. Elder gained 2 yards off tackle. Savoldi rounded right end for 4 yards. Carideo was forced out of bounds after gaining 3 yards. Carideo sent a nice punt out of bounds on Army's 31-yard line.

Murrell was stopped in the center of the line but made two yards. Cagle swung around right end for 11 yards. Murrell lost one yard on the next play. Cagle's pass was intercepted by Nash on Army's 42-yard line.

Elder cut into the line for a bare yard, but lost a yard on the next play. Savoldi cracked center for two yards. Carideo then punted over the goal line. It was Army's ball on its own 20-yard line. At this point the period ended.

Score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

FOURTH PERIOD.

Murrell punted to Carideo who received the ball on Notre Dame's 40-yard line and came back 12 yards. Colerick replaced Collins.

Elder crashed right tackle for 12 yards, Savoldi hit the same spot for 2 yards, Brill added 3 yards at center. Elder's long pass to Colerick failed. Notre Dame sent in Mullins for Savoldi. The last play was recalled and Notre Dame penalized 5 yards for off-side.

Mullins was forced out of bounds for no gain. Carideo sent a pretty punt out of bounds on Army's 7-yard line.

Cadets Unable Gain.

Murrell gained 2 through the middle of the line and added two more outide right tackle. Cagle spun around right end for 2 yards. Carideo made a running catch of Murrell's punt on Notre Dame's 45-yard line and came back 12 yards.

On the next play, Nash purposely threw the ball out of bound for a loss of a yard. Mullins hit left tackle for 2 yards. Brill added a yard on the next play. Carideo kicked out of bounds on Army's 21-yard line.

Cagle's pass was intercepted by Brill on Army's 40-yard line. However, the play was recalled and Notre Dame penalized 5 yards for off side.

Penalty Nullifies Play.

Cagle got two yards at right guard. Cagle was tackled by Cannon for a 3-yard loss. The last play was nullified by a penalty against both teams, the ball remaining as it was. Murrell punched the center of the line for six yards. Cagle was stopped by Law. Murrell sent a long punt to Notre Dame's 22-yard line.

Brill crashed the line for 8 yards. Carideo repeated for 2 yards. Mullins was stopped without gaining. Carideo punted to Cagle, who took the ball on Army's 25-yard line and rushed back 39 yards.

Cagle Injured; Stays In.

Cagle was injured on the play, but recovered. Law also was hurt, but returned to the lineup. Murrell swung outside right tackle for 3 yard. Cagle was stopped by Twomey. Murrell gained 2 yards at right tackle. Cagle's pass was muffed by Hutchinson with a clear field.

This gave Notre Dame the ball on downs on its own 30-yard line. Elder failed to gain at left end. Brill slipped and fell and lost two yards. Brill turned right end for 2 yards. Carideo punted out of bounds on Army's 35-yard line.

Cagle's Pass Broken Up.

Notre Dame sent in Culver to replace Twomey. Culver threw Cagle for 4 yards loss. Murrell hit the line for 3 yards and Cagle's long pass was broken up.

O'Connor replaced Brill for Notre Dame. Murrell sent a brilliant punt out of bounds on Notre Dame's 10-yard line.

Carideo failed to gain at center. He added a yard on the next play when time was called.

Final score: Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.

HONORS BESTOWED BIG SIX GRIDDERS

time in the college ranks, a powerful line performer, both on offense and defense, and with it all a potent point factor. Tackwell it was who came into the game and, with Tiger forwards rushing into his very toe, booted the ball across the Missouri crossbar for that brilliant and unexpected Aggie victory over the Tigers. Again it was Tackwell who negotiated a drop kick that carried his team to a 3 to 2 victory over Iowa State.

Bauman and Brayton.

In the guard positions with Bauman, Kansas Aggies and Brayton, Missouri, any Valley coach would be contented alomt to turn the middle of the line job over to them and worry about something else. Especially would this be true when Smith, Missouri, is added to the center of the line. This trio is big enough to stem the tide of almost any offensive directed at the center of a line. Each is a player of tackle propensities, quick to break through the opposing wall and bring down a ball carrier before his interference is under way. In the Missouri game Bauman, Aggie guard, spent much of the afternoon back of the Tiger line. Brayton was following suit for Missouri in the Kansas game.

So with Smith, the Tiger center, who was mixed up in almost every play of the Kansas game, making numerous tackles and somehow occasionally managing to be around in time to break up a forward pass or down the man who took the ball. He played that kind of a game all through the season. So also with Bauman and Brayton. Bauman and Smith are three-year men.

Crider of All-Around Merit.

Crider, Sooner captain, switches from his regular halfback position to the quarterback task on the All Star. In modern backfield play the positions do not count as heavily as in the old days, and Crider would make an excellent quarterback. He is a 172-pounder and a six-footer, a good pass receiver, a good ball lugger, handles the ball with skill, a good blocker and a hard tackler, a line backer of extraordinary merit and a fighter to the last ditch. Just the type to share the captaincy with a player of the Waldorf type.

Linked with Crider in he backfield, Sloan, Nebraska; Waldorf, Missouri, and Bausch, Kansas. Sloan with his brilliancy in end dashes, broken field running, his passing, his kicking, his constant tripie threatening. Waldorf with his hard ball running, wicked line bucking and his forward passing ability. Bausch, the 200-pound fullback of Kansas, rated by some critics as the best back to have entered Valley ranks in years, a power on offense, a catapultic battering ram. Both Sloan and Bausch were held in check by injuries, otherwise they would have flashed the most brilliant ball-carrying play across the Big-Six films in the short history of the new circuit.

Versatile Backfield.

Tackwell and Sloan would provide meritorious and game-winning kicking for this mythical eleven. Sloan would provide a triple threat and Waldorf a double one. Sloan would make a great safety player, ever dangerous and a scoring threat in the returning of punts. Crider, Waldorf and Bausch would present a formidable line back array and an alert secondary defense when spread farther back on the lookout for passes.

Space forbids going into the merits of the second and third team positions, but there isn't a great margin of difference between the first and the second teams, and the jump from the first to the third is not far. In fact, were it possible to assemble these three all-star elevens it wouldn't be a safe bet that the first eleven would finish in front of the third in 60 minutes of competition.

All Merit Praise

Schopflin, Kansas; Atkeson, Kansas, and Gentr, Oyklahoma; Dills and Derry, Missouri; Wiggins Kansas Aggies, second team names that flash almost as much fire as their first team brothers. And on the third eleven J. Lee, Oklahoma, and his teammate, Fields; Rost of Kansas and Armstrong Missouri; Nigro, Kansas Aggies, all football monikers with which to conjure.

For the matter of that, not a name on the three elevens that fine words of honest praise might be woven about, and the fact that the name is there shows the player has done excellent work and rated a high valuation from his own coaching staff and the scouts and coaches of the friendly enemies.

Last year Iowa spoiled the chances of Wisconsin for the Big Ten championship and this year the Hawkeyes stopped Minnesota when it had a clean slate.

Bassett High School Has Good Record.

Rock county high school of Bassett took its first plunge into the Nebraska football world this fall. Under the direction of Rex Gay, former Verdon and Pawnee City coach, Bassett succeeded in winning seven of nine games and rolling up 83 points to 42 by opponents. The squad:
Lower row—Chestnut, F. Estes, C. Spann, Patch, McCance, L. Estes, Keller.
Middle row—Lucy, Powell, Spann, Bennett, Jeffrey, Smith, Betts.
Upper row—Coach Rex Gay, Estes, Hornby, Lyman, Turpin, Duffy, Oamek, Maurer, Hart.

Brass Tacks

stitution and the Missouri of the present age is one of Nebraska's most important battles.

Meantime, Kansas continued to be a push-over for Nebraska until the recent season, when the Jayhawkers bounced into the race with a formidable aggregation, shook off their inferiority complex and gave the Huskers as fine a fight as one could care to see. Oklahoma was similarly improved, the Kansas Aggies also perked up to hold Nebraska fairly level and only Iowa State was turned back to a decisive margin.

THE marked improvement in the quality of football in the Big Six circle during late years should inspire no regrets in the Nebraska camp, as it means keener competition, increased interest and growing crowds flocking to games between the Huskers and their natural rivals.

Nebraska's management may be able to arrange attractive intersectional games with desirable opponents, but the Huskers seldom can be sure as to that, whereas conference competition always is available and, in the run of the passing years, is the most desirable of all.

To have gained another championship of the Big Six conference, made up of as many state institutions in this region of the middlewest, is an accomplishment which Nebraska followers should appreciate. Most assuredly, it would be appreciated by the five rivals of the Cornhusker school in this field.

NEXT in value to that conference championship achievement is the reflection that the one aggregation able to take Nebraska's measure during the entire campaign was a team which rates in the national championship class. To bow in defeat to the Pitt Panthers by a margin as tight as one touchdown to two, to have held the same Panthers to the most creditable score of the season is, in truth, a gaudy feather in Nebraska's cap.

Against strong opposition in the east, pitted against grid aggregations of the class of Ohio State, West Virginia, Washington & Jefferson, Carnegie Tech and Penn State, the Panther pack seldom failed to compile a substantial score.

Yet against the Cornhuskers, the Pitters had their toughest test of the campaign—a trial so severe that Nebraska's fourth period forward passing rally lacked but the successful completion of a single pass to have converted the defeat into a victory.

Meantime, I suggest to Husker followers that they give the list of Pitt's eastern successes a second scanning in disposing of the absurd claim by certain eastern cynics that the Panthers did not face serious opposition.

TO those who may not feel inclined to give the stamp of their full approval to the Cornhuskers' accomplishments during the 1929 campaign, I beg to suggest that the Biblemen did quite as much, perhaps more, than a casual critic should demand. My opinion in this regard, I maintain, is not in the nature of a "second guess."

Months ago, I ventured the prediction—and did it in print—that Nebraskans had no license to anticipate any astonishing performances by the Huskers of 1929.

It was apparent to me that the graduation of such stellar gridsters as Howell, James, McMullen, Holm and Ashburn, together with the loss of Munn and Russell, would tear a yawning gap in Husker ranks that the new coach could little be expected to fill.

DEPARTURE of veteran stars was not the only handicap with which Bible was compelled to grapple. The most exacting schedule in Nebraska's history, a succession of eight major games making up the list, certainly was a disadvantage in that it compelled the coaching staff to drive at top speed from the opening day of practice, rather than to adopt the more desirable plan of building slowly, reaching the peak by gradual degrees.

Still another handicap resulted from the toll taken by the injury jinx. Clair Sloan, a ball-carrying triple-threater second to nobody in American football, was lost to the Nebraska squad during the second day of scrimmage drill, while Claude Rowley, super punter and a halfback of rare potentialities, passed out of the picture during the opening game.

Sloan was missing not less than two-thirds of the season and Rowley was not again in condition until the final day of the campaign. With Sloan and Rowley in prime fettle in every game of the race and with the Pitt game coming two or three weeks later, I am not at all prepared to concede that the Cornhuskers of 1929 would have lacked the essentials necessary to the achievement of an all-victorious year.

WHAT about 1930? The outlook, as I see it, is encouraging. Coach Bible will start with a veteran line, and his chief problem will be that of developing the backfield. As to that department of the 1930 Huskers, I am not lacking in confidence that the stuff will be there to enable the new Nebraska mentor to build another creditable crew.

However, I am sure that the close comradeship and good feeling between coach and squad which Nebraska followers most desire will not be lacking.

Dana Bible came to Nebraska highly recommended as a man of fine character, as an ideal leader of young men, and the opportunity to inspect his methods on the Lincoln campus during the past few months has impressed me with the conviction that the Cornhusker authorities made no mistake when they looked to the southland for their football coach.

COUGAR BOWS TO TROJAN ELEVEN

Washington State Goes Down Before U. S. C.; Score, 27 to 7.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Troy's thundering herd, stung by the claws of the Washington State Cougars, rose in wrath today and trampled the northerners under a 27 to 7 score. It was the season's greatest local demonstration of Trojan driving power.

The Cougars scored and kicked the extra point in the first period.

University of Southern California scored in the second, third and final period, piling up four touchdowns, John Baker, substituting for Captain Nate Barrager at guard, converting thrice.

Washington State sprung a surprise in scoring their touchdown and leading 7 to 0 at the end of the first period. Their score was made on a long forward pass.

Old Master and Boy Wonder

Golf's winter campaign is now under way with the American Professional Golfers' association championship being played this week at the Hillcrest club near Los Angeles. Champion Leo Diegel is defending his title against as fine a field of pro talent ever assembled, including Walter Hagen, the Old Master, and Horton Smith, the Missouri Boy Wonder, whose winter campaign of 1928-29 set the links world ablaze.

Hagen and Smith, since returning from abroad with the United States Ryder cup team last June, have turned in more than seventy exhibition games during the longest and most prosperous two-man tour in golf history. Old Master and Boy Wonder, they constituted a potent gallery magnet wherever they played. All accounts agree that most of this exhibition golf was superb; they shattered par on scores of courses.

For all too many years, the "Haig" has missed winning important American championships. Four times winner of the British open, Walter has made comparatively weak showings in the United States. He would like nothing more than to become A. P. G. A. champion. That title would be of unusual value in the extensive foreign tour which he is planning for 1930.

Joplin's tall blonde, who will be all of 32 next May, has hopes of even surpassing that dazzling winter campaign which stamped him as a links prodigy. The P. G. A. title would furnish an ideal start in that direction.

Horton Smith is modest almost to a fault. But he does make it quite clear that he hopes to prove during the 1929-1930 tourneys that he is more than what many critics call him—"a great mechanical player." That estimate, it's whispered, heats Horton up far more than does the "houn' dawg yapping" of "Haig," who sometimes likes to "kid" his "Missouri farmer" partner.

Win or lose, leading or in the ruck, Haig the sophisticate and the unspoiled boy from the Ozarks will draw big galleries—for each has tons of sporting 'IT.'

Pro Packers of Green Bay Rated as Greatest In History

Critics In East Place Stamp of Approval On Verne Lewellen Team

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Those who scatter their enthusiasm between collegiate and pro football are arising these days and proclaiming like this:

"The greatest team ever welded together is the Packers, a professionalized group of former collegians, who represent Green Bay, Wisconsin, in the pros' big league."

All the Good Ones.

And that comes from persons who have been squinting at gridiron activities for three decades and have seen all that Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Carlisle, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and all the others ever had to offer in the way of a "matchless eleven."

These hurrahers for the Green Bay Packers do not hedge their statements with "ands," "ifs" and "buts." They leap constantly to the rostrum and repeat:

"The greatest ever!"

They will tell you with fevered words that when it comes to possession of brains, speed, power and football skill, all welded into one perfect unit, there never was anything like these Packers.

Amazing Coordination.

"Never a wasted motion, never a foolish move, never a definite error, never anything but amazing coordination of eye, mind and muscle of "men at the same time," they exclaim.

Who are they? What men make up the football crew that is rated as the best of the ages?

Well, here are the lads!

	Wt.	Pos.	College
Dilweg	202	L. E.	Marquette
Kern	187	L. T.	Pittsburgh
Michaeleski	209	L. G.	Penn State
Earpe	245	C.	Monmouth
Bowdoin	220	R. G.	Alabama
Hubbard	250	R. T.	Geneva
Nash	210	R. E.	Georgia
Blood	185	Q. B.	Minnesota
McCrary	213	L. H.	Georgia
Lewellen	181	R. H.	Nebraska
Molenda	207	F. B.	Michigan

Team Averages of 211.

Eleven men—and only three under 200 pounds!!

A line that averages 222 from tackle to tackle!!!

Never was there a team like this in weight and strength and dynamic power. And, certainly, as one gazes at the names, there probably never was a team which had so many mighty and instinctive footballers grouped under one standard.

McCrary lives in the memory of southern football enthusiasts as one of the most wonderful backs the south has ever known; Molenda gained immortality at Michigan; Bowdoin was great among the greatest collegians of his day, and Hubbard was brilliant through all his college years. Kern was an ace among Pittsburgh's aces and Nash was a hero among the heroes of Georgia.

All Together Now.

Now they are all together—as the Green Bay Packers!

Is it any wonder that these eleven warriors on rampage smashed all opposition into inglorious defeat in the first ten games this year?

Is it any wonder that they met the New York Giants headed by Benny Friedman and a cast of stars, and yet made the Giants seem almost like high school lads in comparative play?

This is an era of speed football. Speed usually is associated with small, light men. The Packers have no small men. Their lightest regular is the 181-pound Lewellen, a punter extraordinary. All the rest are giants in size.

And What a Machine.

Yet all have speed. There isn't a man from the 250-pound Hubbard right down to Lewellen who cannot show a burst of speed equal to some of the whirlwind sprinters.

Those lads then have speed plus power. They demonstrated their ability and gameness and generalship through their college years. They gained in experience and rose in greatness. Now they are at their athletic peak and still young. They seek no individual glory. They act merely as cogs in a machine.

And what a machine the Packers have become; one that is the superteam of professional football history, and one which the old and the young, the expert and the near expert, point to with enthusiastic gesture and declare:

"The greatest football team of all time!"

'JEFF' PRAISES COAST PHENOM

Old Champ Likes Looks of Campbell, Far West Latest Prodigy.

By LEE LEWIS.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—James J. Jeffries, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, has his ideas, idols and ideals of this fisticuff business, and when asked to express his opinion of present-day fighters he shoots back an answer that frequently carries as much sting as those short right-hand punches that brought him fame more than two decades ago.

In company with Frankie Campbell, of San Francisco, Italian-American heavyweight, the writer visited Jeff at his Burbank ranch, and during the ensuing chat gleaned many frank expressions of "the days when—"

Praise for Campbell.

Campbell flattened Alex Rowe at Hollywood stadium recently and as a result won for himself the praise of the former champion.

"Is Campbell too small to become a successful heavyweight?" was the question put to the fighter-rancher.

"H—, no," came the curt reply. "Bob Fitzsimmons was always skimpy in build, but he gave me some of my toughest battles. If he'd had 20 more pounds I really believe that he'd have knocked the devil out of me, and he's the only man that I ever felt that way about."

"Has Campbell the makings of another Dempsey?"

Too Old to Come Back.

"That depends upon himself. Jack was great, different though, from Fitz, Corbett and Sharkey, and I hope that he never is as foolish as I was to try that comeback racket. I did it, you know, when I met Johnson at Reno, and six years away from the game was too long.

"Too many fighters today are nothing but cheap actors. They want to do a song and dance turn and get away with it. Campbell showed me that he is willing to get in there and take a chance just to put over a punch.

Fighters Must Not Drink.

"This boy can stop any man he can hit, and for this reason he must take hold of himself. I am not a rabid prohibitionist. I've had my drinks, but that was when liquor was liquor and not embalming fluid. Drinking for fighters now is kidding one but themselves."

This fighting game is a business in which a fellow must cash in on and then get out of, according to Jeffries, whose keen eyes have not been dimmed through the years.

A fighter, if he makes the grade must never take any opponent lightly," Jeff continued. "They're all tough, and anyone who, even though he wins the title in a division, ever should harbor the notion that he is the world's greatest man at that weight. The fellow who upsets that kind of notion may be just around the corner, or he may be hiding out in the sticks."

Very few tackle-around and end-around plays have been seen in American football in the last decade.

SLOAN, RICHARDS FIRST-TEAM MEMBERS ON A. P.'S "BIG SIX" ALL-STARS.

Missouri placed three men on the all-star Big Six conference team selected by The Associated Press and based upon the opinions of officials, coaches and sports writers. Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Kansas Aggies each landed two places. Ames was not represented. The players are: 1, Ray Smith, Missouri, center; 2, George Atkeson, Kansas, guard; 3, Keith Hursley, Missouri, end; 4, Frank Crider, Oklahoma, halfback; 5, Tom Churchill, Oklahoma, end; 6, John Waldorf, Missouri, quarterback; 7, C. O. Tackwell, Kansas Aggies, tackle; 8, K. C. Bauman, Kansas Aggies, guard; 9, Clair Sloan, Nebraska, fullback; 10, Raymond Richards, Nebraska, tackle; and 11, James Bausch, Kansas, halfback.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

JOHN WAKI, Grace, Idaho, has a two-year-old filly sired by Patrick Silk, 2:24¼, that he has named Maxim Silk. That filly was trained some the past season and pleased her owner so much that he intends racing her in 1930. Patrick Silk was the first foal of Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, and was taken to Idaho by Warren Dennis when that trainer resided in that state. His record of 2:24¼ was given Patrick Silk by Mr. Dennis and since that time the horse has evidently changed ownership several times, as we have learned of at least three men owning, or claiming to own the horse.

Writing of Bingen Silk brings to mind the fact that few Nebraska horsemen ever learned that Nell Cord, dam of Bingen Silk, was also dam of another 2:10 trotter, but such is true. L. E. O., 2:07¼, by Toddington, 2:20, was out of Nell Cord, 2:26¾, by Silk Cord 34878. By the way Silk Cord also sired the dam of The Laurel Hall, 2:06¼, one of the most popular sires of 1929 and a stallion much sought after by owners of breeding establishments.

Silk Cord is dam of a three-year-old trotter racing in Germany this season and winner of a recent event. That filly was sired by Viney Bingen, 2:03, a trotting stallion gaining his record at Omaha, Neb. Silk Cord and Viney Bingen are both owned in Germany, but should never have left America, where such mares and stallions are badly needed.

ANOTHER matter of interest to Nebraska horsemen should be the winning of a trotting race at Vienna, Austria, early in October, by the six-year-old bay mare Osiris, by Ossory, 2:14½, son of Constantine, 2:12½. Ossory was bred by Rev. Thomas Barden, Tecumseh, Neb., and sold by that gentleman for export in the early summer of 1914.

"Columbus" labored under the impression that Ossory was lost at sea at the beginning of the world war and so stated in The Star. Father Barden sets us right on that subject and writes as follows:

"You doubtless had Ossory confused with Red Lac, 2:07¼, by Allerton, 2:09¼, which was lost at sea in the early days of the world war, when the vessel he was on sank after attacked by a German submarine. Ossory was sold to a Mr. Metcalfe of Berlin, Germany, and was about to be purchased by the German government when war was declared and the deal fell through. A few years ago he was represented in Europe by the good trotter Moron, a horse that was inferior to no other trotters racing that season at European meetings. I am pleased to learn that Osiris, by Ossory, has developed into so good a trotter as published reports indicate."

WHILE writing of horses bred by "Doctors," I did not mention several good trotters known to readers of The Star that were bred by veterinary surgeons and for the reason that at the time we were only thinking of physicians.

Dr. C. C. Hall, Omaha, a capable veterinary surgeon, bred Silk Aubrey, 2:10¼; Tom Dennison, 2:11¼; Sweetnot, 2:13¼, and other trotters. He also owned Sweet Aubrey, 2:08¼, during all the years that good trotting mare was raced and later owned Sweetwood, 2:17¼, dam of Sweet Aubrey and Sweetnot.

Dr. J. D. Sprague, V. S., David City, Neb., bred Dr. Igo, 2:13¼, 2:13¾, sire of Dr. Nick 2:04¼; Virginia Dare, 2:12¾; John Igo, 2:16¼, etc. Dr. J. N. Deiling, V. S., Dallas Center, Ia., bred Shamrock E. p. 2:04¼, by the Nebraska-bred stallion Percentage, 3, 2:26¼, son of Sorrento Todd, 2:11. In addition, Dr. Deiling bred other pacers and trotters with fast records.

THE list of veterinary surgeons breeding or owning fast trotters and pacers might be continued at length, but we will now refer to a few dentists that were and still are, admirers of the trotting-bred horse. Dr. Grant Williams, Omaha, has owned a number of good young horses and bred others. He still is interested in the industry.

Dr. J. D. Davis, Solomon, Kan., is another capable dentists that loves the light harness horse. Dr. Davis owned until recently the fast pacing stallion Shadeland Silk, 2:07¼, by Bingen Silk, purchased of E. D. Gould as a yearling by Dr. Davis.

Over at Manson, Iowa, lived until his death in 1928 Dr. Griffin, a very successful dentist that for many years was interested in the trotter and pacer and at Concordia, Kan., lives Dr. Eagleson, dentist, owner of the pacing mare Emmalander, 2:16¼ during the years that daughter of Scottlander was raced by Andrew Noe, Concordia. We might add many names to these two lists of doctors other than physicians that were admirers of the trotting-bred horse, and may do so in the future.

UNQUESTIONABLY the most prominent breeder of trotters among American physicians was Dr. L. Herr of Lexington, Ky., breeder of that famous stallion Mambrino Patchen 58. Dr. Herr also bred Lady Thorn, 2:18¼, one of the truly great race trotters of her era. He likewise bred Mambrino King 1279, son of Mambrino Patchen, and numerous other noted stallions, mares and geldings.

Mambrino Patchen 58 never sired a pacer, although his greatest son, Mambrino King, did. Mambrino Patchen was a much older horse than Almont, Belmont, Onward, Red Wilkes and other successful sires bred in Kentucky, and for that reason his opportunities in the stud were inferior to those stallions named, and yet he sired 25 trotters with records of 2:30 or better. Of his sons, 57 became sires of speed and 110 daughters were dams of speed.

His reputation rests largely with his daughters, even though Mambrino King was a much greater sire than any member of the Mambrino family. The most fashionable cross for many years with American breeders was what the public was pleased to call the Wilkes-Mambrino Cross and had its inception after George Wilkes, 2:22, was taken to Kentucky and was given access to daughters of Mambrino Patchen.

SOME of the most successful sons of George Wilkes were out of daughters of Mambrino Patchen, as for example Alcantara, 2:23; Alcyone, 2:27; Baron Wilkes, 2:18; Constantine, 2:12½; Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Patchen Wilkes, 2:29½; Simmons, 2:28, and Wilkes Boy, 2:24¼.

As previously stated Mambrino Patchen's most noted son was Mambrino King, which was likewise the most successful show stallion exhibited in America for many years, or until defeated by Stamboul, 2:07½, a much younger horse owned by E. H. Harriman, railway magnate.

Last-At-Law, p., 2:06¼, fast and handsome pacing stallion bred by Al Farrens, Hastings, Neb. was the only high-class member of the Mambrino Patchen family owned in this state. Last-At-Law was a son of Heir-At-Law p., 2:05¾, by Mambrino King, and was the last foal by that stallion, hence his name. Heir-At-Law sired Minor Heir, p., 1:58½, and a number of other 2:10 performers.

THE most successful breeder among western physicians was Dr. M. W. Hicks, living at Keokuk, Iowa, when he began breeding light-harness horses. Later, the doctor moved to California, where he gained world-wide fame as a breeder.

His first success came about when he shipped his brood mare Prairie Bird, by Flaxtail 8132, to Indiana and mated that mare with Blue Bull 75, then a very popular sire. The foal resulting from that mating was Prompter 2305, which in time became a noted sire of dams.

Dr. Hicks also bred Buccaneer 2656, by Iowa Chief, son of Green's Bashaw, and that horse later acquired fame as a sire after being taken to California by his breeder-owner.

Tinsley Maid, dam of Buccaneer, was also a daughter of Flaxtail, a stallion that started Dr. Hicks on his way to success as a breeder.

The doctors best known brood mares were Fern Leaf, Mary and Prairie Bird, by Flaxtail, and Flirt by Buccaneer, and that quartet of producing dams were bred by Dr. Hicks at Keokuk.

THE pioneer stallion of southeast Iowa was Flaxtail, a stallion whose breeding was never traced. Nothwithstanding that handicap, Flaxtail established a family that still is making its influence felt. A friend once asked this question:

"How does it happen that Flaxtail was registered under the number 8132, when his breeding was unknown? And how did it come that Buccaneer and Prompter were registered before Flaxtail, sire of their dams, was?"

Flaxtail became standard through two sources, or for two reasons. He sired two trotters with race records faster than 2:30, while his daughters became dams of 12 trotters and nine pacers.

Those are the two reasons why Flaxtail was eligible to registry as standard, but he was not eligible at the time Buccaneer and Prompter were registered.

DAUGHTERS of Flaxtail, as well as granddaughters, became dams of speed and among his descendants through the female line are found several champions. That was true of Fern Leaf, dam of Goldleaf, 2:11¼, champion four-year-old pacer in 1891. Flirt, by Buccaneer, dam by Flaxtail, was dam of Frou Frou, 2:25¼, champion yearling trotter in 1891. Black Silk, 2:09¼, and Joe Bowers, 2:09¼, by Symboleer, p., 2:09½, traced to Flaxtail through their dams, and Bill Barleycorn, p., 2:08, a hardy race horse known to practically every reader of this column, also traced to Flaxtail through a daughter of that stallion brought to Stockton, Kan., by Mr. French.

In addition to those mentioned, other fast performers trace to Flaxtail, that unknown sire of speed and head of a successful family of harness horses. In California such stallions as Wayland W., 2:12½, sire of Bolivar, p., 2:00¾, and Welcome, p., 2:10½, sire of Harold Welcome, p., 2:08¼, and Welcome Boy, p., 2:10, trace to Flaxtail through their grandam Mary, a daughter of that pioneer stallion.

IN a recent issue of The Star we wrote concerning the death of John E. Madden, most successful (in a financial way) of American breeders and owners. While it is true that Mr. Madden's greatest success so far as money matters are concerned came with his association with the thoroughbred horse, his affection for the trotter far exceeded that for the runner.

Doubtless that was the result of his first investment in horses, something referred to in a previous item. As then stated, Robert McGregor, 2:17½, was his first purchase of a high-class horse and that stallion started him on the way to fame and fortune.

John E. Madden never cared for a pacer and why, we never learned. We do know that he bred 23 trotters with records of 2:10 or better, the fastest Periscope, 2:03½, which was a great colt trotter and matured into a high-class aged trotter.

Even though caring little or nothing for the pacer, it is a strange bit of irony that the fastest harness horse bred by Mr. Madden was the pacing mare Guesswork, 2:02¼, a mare that raced without hopples. That mare, as many look at it, deserved the name "Clockwork" rather than "Guesswork," as she raced consistently.

THE fastest trotter ever raced by Mr. Madden was Hamburg Belle, 2:01¼, by Axworthy, 3, 2:15½, holder of the race record for trotters many years. That mare also brought to John E. Madden the largest sum ever received for a trotting-bred horse as he sold her to M. H. Hanna, Cleveland, O., for $50,000.

As previously stated, Mr. Madden was a thorough student of breeding problems, being excellen in that respect by no man in America. Although breeding five winners of the Kentucky Derby during a period of 12 years, something no other man ever has done, John E. Madden accomplished other noted things with the running-bred horse.

For nine years he headed the list of winning breeders of thoroughbred runners, during that time breeding hundreds of winners. Still, he thought so much of the trotter, that he established a cemetery for Nancy Hanks, in which have since been buried many great trotters and runners.

Gus Tebell of North Carolina State and Bob Neyland of Tennessee may not be in the Southern conference ranks next year. Both are said to be considering changes.

No charge is made for admission to games played by the Navy at Annapolis. When Georgetown played there 40,000 Washington fans asked for free tickets, but only 15,000 were given to that city.

OWNING HOSSES COSTS A-PLENTY

King George Big Loser in Game of Racing Nags On Oval Tracks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—Hoss galloping is called the "sport of kings." But if you ask George of England whether it's true or not, he may shake a negative head. It may be sporty, yes. But a sport? Well, if losing and losing and losing is a sport—yes!

They've sort of swapped up the horses over in England and stored them away for the winter. That procedure usually gives the statisticians a chance to find out what happened during the season just agone. Naturally, the first thing is to ascertain how the King fared with his oat gulpers.

That Sad Story.

It's a sad story. The King lost planty! He has a big stable. He thought he had some awfully good horses. But it was merely a thought. The nags fooled George and done wrong by him, yes, sir. They accepted free board and room, lots of petting, sugar lumps and carrots—and then, when called to do some running and winning, they became ingrates.

They defiled the royal colors upon almost all occasions and then never did so much as to offer an apology for their doleful efforts. The king could have got himself a gun and shot the lot, or he could have sold them for laundry waion purposes. But he didn't.

Still Paying Bills.

His majesty just kept 'em around, those loafers ,and continued to feed and house them and even has put them into comfortable quarters for the winter, instead of ordering them transformed into French porterhouse steaks.

Thus the king proves that he is now different than any other horseman. No matter how indifferently a horse performs, his owner never loses faith and figures he will do right by him the next time—or the next, or the next.

Almost from the day since King George inherited the stable from his father, the late King Edward, his racing ventures have been costly. Rarely has he made a profit; rarely has he broken oven. Usually he has been a loser and some folks estimate that since his reign began, King George's horses have cost him between $500,000 and $750,004.

Intends to Carry On.

Asked recently if he was a bit disgusted with the "Sport of Kings" and whether he intended to dispose of his stable of ingrates, the king shook his head. He will carry on, not so much because of his own desire, but because he feels that continuance of a royal stable was one of his father's wishes.

But if you were to ask George of England whether he regards racing as a sport, arranged especially for kings, the likelihood is that the frank and honorable George would shake his head and hand you his check book as proof of his assertion.

When Chicago was national champion in 1899, two halves of 45 minutes each were played, with only 10 minutes rest between. Today's four 15-minute periods, with 15 minutes' rest between halves, is somewhat lighter work.

Eight Nebraska Highs All-Victorious In 1929 Campaign

Lincoln, Omaha Tech In Scoreless Tie; Belong In Upper Prep Circle

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Eight Nebraska high schools closed the 1929 Nebraska high school football campaign without a defeat or tie score in Cornhusker competition. These eight schools are:

Falls City.	Randolph.
Imperial.	Albion.
Nebraska Deaf.	Cozad.
Omaha North.	Crawford.

Added to the all-victorious group should be the names of Lincoln and Omaha Tech. The Maroons and Capital City elevens finished an undefeated season, but locked horns in a scoreless tie in a mid-season game.

Five More Undefeated.

In addition to the 10 football aggregations whose records were spotless in Nebraska competition, there are five other schools that failed to dip their colors in defeat this year, but were held to tie scores by football teams that had met defeat at the hands of a Cornhusker prep team.

This group includes Crete (tied by Ashland,) Leigh (tied by Osceola,) Sterling (tied by College View,) Sidney (tied by Lodgepole), and Alma (tied by Franklin.)

Sterling, with an undefeated record, is scheduled to have several of its verdicts reversed for use of an ineligible player, according to the word going the rounds in Nebraska high school circles. This fate was meted out to Scottsbluff early in the season and cost the western team a clear claim to the Western Nebraska title as well as an all-victorious season in Cornhusker prep circles.

York Once Defeated.

During a program of cold Thanksgiving day games, in which battles between rival elevens featured nearly every section, one member of the undefeated class fell by the wayside.

The team to lower its colors for the first time this year was York. The Gautsch eleven, held to a tie score by Kearney last week, suffered an 8-0 reverse at Grand Island and thereby passed out of the Mid-state title picture.

Defeat of York left Beatrice and Grand Island to argue the Mid-State situation. Beatrice, one of the speediest teams in the state this fall, appears to have slightly the better of the argument. Two tie scores are written on the Grand Island book, while but one deadlock is on the Beatrice sheet.

Fairbury and Fremont.

Fairbury and Fremont won other Mid-State encounters Turkey day. Fairbury turned back Kearney, 14 to 7, and Fremont spilled Columbus, 13-6.

Crawford, Albion and Imperial are undefeated and clear of ties as a result of Thanksgiving day wins.

Coach Wayne Binfield's Crawford eleven traveled to Gering and handed the Bulldogs a 12-0 trimming. This was a distinct feather in the cap of the northwest champions. A post-season game with Scottsbluff was swept away by cold weather and snow.

Albion and Imperial.

Albion, coached by Bill Putman, waded through Newman Grove, 32-0, as a fitting finale to an all-victorious season. The Albion lads cleared nine hurdles without a skip.

Coach "Buck" Fruhling's Imperial eleven closed a second consecutive season with a reverse Thursday when the Chase county high eleven beat Wauneta, a neighborly rival, 14-0.

Sidney high won the Western Nebraska conference title with a 6-0 victory over Chappell. Fumbles cost Sidney its chance for scores on several occasions, but Coach Leo Black's warriors managed to cash in with the needed touchdown.

Alma and Crete.

Alma kept its slate clear of defeats by beating Orleans, 7-0. Crete finished an undefeated season by trimming Wilber, 13-0, to cop the Saline county title.

Lincoln high crushed St. Joseph Central, 20-6. The convincing victory of the Red and Black was a big boost to Cornhusker prep football, as the St. Joseph team was undefeated in Missouri circles.

Broken Bow edged out Ansley in the game deciding the Custer county title, 7-6. Callaway spilled Mason City, 12-6, and Comstock beat Sargent, 14-0, in other Custer county games.

Lexington scored a lone touchdown and beat Gothenburg, 6-0, in the tradition battle between the Minute Men and Swedes. Omaha South and Central City played without a score.

Havelock Wins Title.

Coach Paul Delaporte's Havelock high team outscored an inspired Jackson high eleven, 12-6, to make sure of the Greater Lincoln league title. College View won a nip-and-tuck affair from Bethany, 16-13.

Harvard swept through undefeated in the Southern league by polishing off Sutton, 18-0. Nelson won from Edgar, 6-0, in another Southern loop game.

In the southwest, Imperial's victory over Wauneta was the feature. Holdgee showed plenty of strength in drubbing Minden, 41-0. Franklin turned back Gibbon, 25-0.

Pawnee Spills Dope.

Pawnee City upset the dope in the southeast Nebraska sector when a tackle-around play netted 50 yards and the touchdown which beat Tecumseh, 6-0. The win shot the Indians into second position. Auburn and Peru played without a score, while Humboldt and Table Rock came to no decision.

Scottsbluff wound up a splendid season in the western circle by winning a 7-0 game from Morrill.

Tekamah high trimmed Blair, 13-0, to capture the East Central Nebraska conference title. It was the fifth consecutive championship won by Tekamah since H. A. Greutzmacher has had charge of the Burt county team.

Neligh Tied Norfolk.

Neligh and Norfolk played to a 6-6 tie in the northeast. Wakefield swamped Walthill, 40-9; Clarks spilled Polk, 14-0; Lyons won an 18-0 victory over Oakland; and Newcastle finished ahead 8-0 at Ponca.

In other games with historic settings, Falls City dropped a 12-7 decision at Hiawatha, Kas., and Schuyler and David City played without a score.

TUFFY RATED AS 'BIG MONEY' BOY

Win Over Basque Places Sioux City Slugger Among Elite.

BY BERT DENBY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(UP)—It begins to look as though Tuffy Griffith will be in on some of the "big money" the promoters expect to pay heavyweight fighters during the coming winter.

Little more than an unknown a year or so ago, Tuffy has fought his way through three divisions, has been highly successful in each, and now has become something to be reckoned with as a heavyweight.

Last night he crossed the hardest obstacle of his life by winning a ten-round decision from Paolino Uzcudun, the Basque. Tuffy's margin wasn't a particularly wide one, but it was wide enough to leave no doubt as to who had won. The fight probably was the best thing which could have happened to Griffith, since it taught him that a good offense isn't always to best defense.

Paolino Able Take It.

Accustomed to tearing in and beating down opponents, Griffith finally found a man who could take everything he had and not only stay on his feet but fight back hard enough to make Tuffy resort to boxing. As a result Griffith probably will put in some work developing a defense.

Never before had any one taken Griffith's right cross repeatedly on the jaw and stood up. Paolino took it and smiled.

The Griffith victory was something of a surprise. Paolino was a 7-5 favorite. Tuffy's cleaner hitting and boxing ability won him the fight. He never let the Basque get set for the wicked body punishment which Paolino has handed most of his opponents.

Three Good Ones In West.

Already there is talk as to what the next heavyweight match here will be. There are three good heavies in the middle west. Besides Griffith there are Otto Von Porat and Hein Mueller. The latter is a German, who fought his first fight in this country last night and won a 10-round decision over Salvatore Ruggirello, the "one punch knockout man" from Italy.

There is talk about Griffith getting the match with Sharkey in Florida and there also is talk of matching him with anything else the east has to offer.

Drawing Cards Needed.

Admittedly, a Von Porat-Griffith match would sell out the 25,000 seats in the Chicago stadium but it is quite likely that the stadium will refrain from matching them for a while since both are great drawing cards and the stadium needs drawing cards badly enough not to wait to kill one of them off by allowing the other to defeat himat this time.

But at any rate the victory last night put Griffith in the "big money" class and he middle west has high hopes of his eventually assuming the heavyweight title which Gene Tunney left vacant.

NODAKS ON LINE TO MEET DAVIS ELKINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Davis-Elkins football team will travel to Grand Forks, N. D., Oct 3, 1930 for a game with University of North Dakota and the western team will return the game at Elkins, W. Va., in November 1931, according to a two-year agreement announced here tonight by Jennings Randolph, athlethics director at Davis-Elkins.

JOPLIN PHENOM DOES HIS STUFF

Horton Smith Rushes Up From Rear and Wins Berkeley Open.

BY TOM LENNON.

BERKELEY COUNTRY CLUB, Calif., Nov. 30—Ripping the shirt off par, Horton Smith, famous Joplin, Mo., professional, today shot 69 and 66 for a total of 280 to win the Berkeley $5,000 open golf tournament here today.

Smith went the final 36-hole jaunt in five under par. He was putting perfectly except for three holes, where he three putted. His four rounds were 74-71-69-66. His 66 was one stroke above the course record held by Al Sais, Berkeley pro.

Billy Burke Second.

Second was Billy Burke of Westport, New York. He had a 283 total. Then came Johnnie Perelli of Oakland, Cal., with a 288 for third place. Other scores:

W. H. Cox, Chicago	290
Al Espinosa, Chicago	291
Al Watrous, Chicago	292
Abe Espinosa, Chicago	293
Ed Dudley, Delaware,	294
C. Beer, Bakersfield, Calif.	295
Morte Dutra, Tacoma, Wash.	297
Tom Creary, New York	297
John Black, San Francisco	299
Craig Wood, New Jersey	299
Willie Hunter, Los Angeles	300
Louis Nadi, San Francisco	300

John Dawson, Chicago and Jack Wolf, San Francisco, were tied for first place among the amateurs. Each had a score of 301.

Pro Golfers In Clash For National Title

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—One of the annual attractions of the golfing world will start here Monday when more than 60 leading golfers of the country tee off in the qualifying round of the national professional championship tournament.

Most of the entrants have been on hand for several weeks playing the Hillcrest Country club course where the tournament will be held.

Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, the defending champion, Johnny Farrell, open champion in 1928, "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, Horton Smith from Joplin, Mo., and one or two others are favorites.

HUSKER OUTLOOK FOR 1930 SEASON

workouts were disappointing. The new head coach was unavoidably late in getting on the job last April, but he will be on the ground all winter, devising plans to give Husker footballers a spring campaign the like of which never has been witnessed in the Nebraska camp.

Nebraska prospects point to the development of a formidable aggregation of forwards as only Richards, tackle, and Lewandowski, end, will pass out via graduation. A survey of the situation suggests that Bible will have at his command the following varsity squad for 1930:

Varsity Men Available.

Center—Maasdam and Morrison.

Guards—Koster, Justice, Gilbert, Jeffries, Greenberg and Burgeson.

Tackles—Rhea, Broadstone, Kroger, Peterson, Jenkins and Eno.

Ends—Morgan, Hokuf, Prucka, Byrnes, Fisher, Still and Milne.

Backs—Young, Rowley, Frahm, Paul, Perry, Marrow, Kreizinger, Packer, Marquis and Long.

With but few exceptions, every Cornhusker thus listed is first-string material and most of them will be granted letters in reward for toil in 1929.

Freshman Additions.

Acquisitions from Coach Choppy Rhodes' 1929 freshman squad are expected to add materially toward brightening the outlook for next fall. As a plain matter of fact, Choppy had at his command a glittering outfit of yearling prospects and their addition to the varsity next September may rightfully be expected to round out a Husker squad of rare potentialities.

A partial roster of the freshmen who will be coming up to the varsity lists the following:

Partial Roster.

Backs — Roby, Mathis, Dunn, Miller, Shirley, Stansberry, Drewelow, Barnes, Penney, Hinkle, Staab, Brown and Manley.

Centers — Ossowski, Sandahl and Leffel.

Guards — Hulbert, Rosen, Witt, Minnick, Farner and Harmon.

Tackles—Fogarty, Ely, Behrends; Dunkak, Nuttleman, Allison and Woodward.

Ends—Durkee, Nesmith, Martin, Holtzendorff, Hulbert, Christian and Swanson.

Winter Study Sessions.

Development of not less than two first-string quarterbacks is an important detail that will engage Coach Bible's attention during the school year and it assured that the tutor of the Cornhuskers will not wait for that until the spring practice period.

His present plans include a series of football study sessions with the most promising candidates for the pilot's job, the list including Mathis, Staab and Manley, in event the latter returns to school at the start of the second term.

Mathis and Staab are youngsters of fine promise and Coach Bible is hopeful that the Huskers of 1930 will not lack intelligent direction from the quarterback station.

ONE PUNCH LOSER IN GOTHAM FIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York light-heavyweight, decisively defeated "One Punch" Williams, Harlem negro, in a ten round bout at Olympia A. C. tonight.

Rosenbloom battered Williams about the ring and scored a knockdown in the eighth round.

DEMPSEY WINS IMPROMPTU GO

Novelty of Ex-Champion Fighting Gratis Is Seen in Gotham.

BY SID MERCER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.) As the bell rang for the first round, Dempsey advanced, bobbing and weaving, and after a brief flurry of gloves, backed off, measured his man drove a terrific right to the jaw and a left to the body for the knockout.

Think we're kidding? Not a bit of it. It actually happened.

And so the ring record of Dempsey does not show a blank for 1929 after all. It reads as follows:

November 29, John Tomaford, K. O., one round.

Whole Affair "Big News."

Any time Dempsey smacks a man down that's news, and when he does it for nothing—as he did yesterday—that's a novelty. And when his victim gets nothing for being on the receiving end of one of old John's "iron mikes" that's poor business.

The Dempsey punch was demonstrated at Stillman's gymnasium before a small but select gathering of boxers, trainers, rubbers and about a hundred cash customers, who were taxed the modest sum of 25 cents each.

Dempsey Gets Nothing.

And Dempsey didn't even get one per cent of the gate, which went to Lou Stillman, the genial proprietor of the upper Eighth avenue knuckle foundry.

John Tomaford, the gent who flirted with the old champion's punch is a young Scandanavian heavyweight who has been battling in the armories this season. He is managed by "three-fingered Jack" Dougherty, who will not include this fight in Tomaford's record.

It seems that old John, coming on from Chicago to attend the Muldoon testimonial dinner, felt in the need of some eercise late yesterday afternoon. Summoning the faithful Jerry Luvadis he repaired to Stillman's, donned heavy woolen tights and proceeded to get up a sweat. The photographers flashed old John doing his stuff but packed up and left before he entered the ring, thereby missing a great shot.

Big Gloves Not Big Enough.

Dempsey's fists were thoroughly concealed in a pair of sixteen-ounce gloves and that may have induced Tomaford to take a chance. He finished upon the floor in less than two minutes. Then Dempsey boxed a round with Jack Shupack and called it a day. Shupack demanded a guarantee and got it. He was not knocked out.

Dempsey's base of operations for the next few weeks will be New York. He has closed down his Chicago coliseum boxing club until after the holidays and will appear here in vaudeville next week.

HOLY CROSS BOWS TO BOSTON ELEVEN

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Impregnable defense in the pinches and an ability to capitalize its opponents' lapses gave Boston College a 12 to 0 victory over Holy Cross in the annual football game between the rival Jesuit colleges here today.

Dixon's punting was outstanding. The end's kicks were exceptional both with and against the wind and kept Holy Cross in its own territory or at midfield almost throughout the game.

PITCHER ED ZINK HAS BROKEN ARM

STERLING, Neb., Nov. 30—Ed Zink, former Nebraska league baseball pitcher with the Lincoln club, will carry his left hurling arm in a splint for several weeks as a result of a bone fracture sustained here while witnessing the Thanksgiving day football game on the local high school field. Zink stumbled and fell while following the play along the sideline, breaking a bone near the elbow. He was taken to Lincoln for medical treatment.

ENGINEERS MAY JOIN NEW LOOP

Report Havelock to Join In Formation League Of Six Teams.

Announcement in Havelock school circles the Engineers contemplate withdrawing from the Greater Lincoln league revived talk Saturday of the formation of a new high school conference.

Havelock decision to pull out of the Greater Lincoln loop was influenced by the action of the Lincoln school authorities in refusing to permit Jackson, College View and Bethany to play night football at Ballard field.

Drop Lincoln League.

Night football was introduced at the shoptown this fall and proved a huge boost to the financial coffers, a factor not to be overlooked in interscholastic athletics which in many schools are forced to be self-supporting.

The proposed league, which may be organized in time for a track meet next spring is reported to include Havelock, Crete, Seward, Wahoo and Ashland. These five schools have been exchanging athletic relations and it is pointed out a league would provide championship competition and increase interest.

Need Sixth Member.

A sixth member is desired for the proposed loop. Wymore and David City are among the schools suggested to compete the circuit.

An attempt was made to organize such a league a year ago but the Lincoln school system frowned on Jackson's entrance into the circuit and plans were dropped.

SAILORS PERK UP; WIN FROM GREEN

gram, Louis ran, passed, blocked and kicked in a highly sensational manner. It was this young man who, playing his first year on the varsity, scored both of Navy's touchdowns.

Following a scoreless first half, in which the balance of power was fairly evenly distributed, Kirn and his comrades opened up in the third and before half time was reached had plowed through for a touchdown. The score followed a continuous 75-yard march up the field, the feature of which was a 20-yard sprint by young Mr. Kirn.

Kirn Drives Across.

Navy's second touchdown came on a break. Morton's punt from his own 35-yard line was blocked by Gray. Moret, snatching up the ball, raced to the 12-yard line before being downed. The Navy then gave the ball to Kirn and, in four successive drives into the line, he took it over. Bauer forward passed to Clifton for the extra point.

Dartmouth waited until seven minutes before the end of the game to score, taking advantage of one of Bowstrom's few poor punts to shove across its lone tally.

Poor Punt Brings Punishment.

Kicking from his own 15-yard line, Bowstrom's boot rolled but to the 35-yard stripe. A five-yard penalty aided Dartmouth to get a first down on the Middies' 21-yard line. After two weak line plunges, McCall made a beautiful running catch of Wolff's pass for a touchdown. Martin's drop kick for the extra point was blocked.

From this point on Navy assumed a defensive attitude and spent its time knocking down Dartmouth's long and desperate passes. Some 45,000 people were in the stands.

COAST BOBS UP BID FOR GAME

San Francisco Planning Match St. Mary's and Eastern Team.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The undefeated St. Mary's college football team of Moraga, Cal., today was selected to represent the west in an intersectional game which the Junior Chamber of Commerce here is seeking to arrange for Saturday, Dec. 21.

Invitations were sent to Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Tulane and Southern Methodist university of Texas, as first, second, third and fourth choice teams to represent the east.

Rockne Talks of 1930.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Knute Rockne closed the greatest football season of his career here this afternoon with a smile as the news was relayed to him that Notre Dame had defeated Army 7 to 0.

Rockne was kept at home because of an infected leg. His first thought when it was over was for the seven players he loses next spring by graduation—Captain Law, Cannon, Twomey, Nash, Monyihan, Elder and Colerick, all of whom played their last game in New York today except Monyihan, out with a broken ankle.

"The loss of those seven boys looks irreparable," said Rockne, propped up in his bed, "but we have lost fine players before and, in due itme, I hope that their places will be filled.

"This year's team had as stout a heart and fine determination and courage as any team we have ever had.

"They probably reached the high spot in the Southern California game."

Martin Lang, southpaw pitcher, has been bought by the Pirates from Omaha.

Doubled for Rockne in Fine Style

To Tom Lieb is due much of Notre Dame's success on the gridiron this season. While illness kept Coach Rockne on the sidelines most of the year, Lieb carried on successfully. Lieb is a former Notre Dame star.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The matter of the 1929 football championship in the Nebraska Intercollegiate conference will be the subject of much discussion in Chadron and Peru circles during the winter season.

The Eagles and Bobcats are deadlocked in a tie for the conference leadership in the N. I. A. A. circuit and attempts to get the two teams together in a post-season combat have been to no avail. Final disposition of the football situation will be made at the December meeting of the conference and the collegiate dads are expected to decide it a draw and congratulate both elevens.

Comparative Scores.

The Chadron-Peru championship dispute shows just how much confidence can be placed in comparative scores. Kearney, a team which Chadron beat, 18-7, was swamped by Peru, 45-0. The Bobcats polished off Omaha university, 50-0; while the best Chadron culd do was 33-13. Chadron lost to Wayne Teachers, a team which Peru swamped, 39-0.

The fact remains, however, that the Eagles stopped the Bobcats on Armistic day and turned in a 9-2 victory—the only reverse of the season for Coach Lon Graf's Pedagogues.

Win Outside State.

Chadron and Peru each carried the conference banner victoriously in outside contests. The Eagles beat Spearfish, South Dakota Mines, Mt. St. Charles and St. Regis. The Bobcats bowled over Tarkio and St. Benedict. Each looked good in comparison with N. C. A. C. competition. Chadron smeared the Hastings record wtih a 27-0 defeat. Peru played Wesleyan a scoreless tie and beat the Methodist 7-0 in the second game.

Chadron was at its peak in midseason, playing its best ball against Peru, after a very fine early season start in which the Eagles spilled Mt. St. Charles and St. Regis.

Peru got away to a slow start and uncorked a particularly strong offensive in the Kearney and Omaha games.

Omaha Has Good Season.

University of Omaha, under Warren Howard, had a good season. The Cardinals enjoyed some improved material this year and, aside from the Peru game, the Omaha collegians gave a good account of themselves.

Wayne Teachers played in-and-out football, reaching their peak in the 7-0 victory over Chadron Teachers in the final game. Dana college failed to engage in any conference competition.

Coach F. B. Moon's Cotner college eleven swept through to an undefeated season in the Nebraska College Athletic conference. The Bulldogs won over Wesleyan, Doane, Central, Grand Island and York.

Cotner's Veteran Crew.

The Cotner mentor started building his championship team last year and, with a plentiful supply of veterans on the 1929 roster, the Blue and White breezed through the conference schedule without a skip. A 12-0 reverse at Chillicothe (Mo.) Business college was the only defeat on the Bulldog slate. This was prior to the championship game with Doane and the Bulldogs were devoting all their attention to the titular tilt.

Coach Roy Pierce's Doane eleven was the surprise of the circuit. The Tigers were shy veteran performers in important positions, but the Congregationalists presented a defense which was plenty powerful and the offense had sufficient power when the breaks presented themselves. Doane lost only to Cotner, brushing aside all other conference opposition.

Midland Up and Down.

Midland college was up and down during the season, the Lutherans playing their best ball at Wesleyan when they turned in a 12-0 victory over the Methogists, the first time a Midlad eleven ever was able to lift the Wesleyan scalp.

Hastings college was hard hit by graduation and injuries. Loss of McCrady by graduation left Coach "Brigham" Young with the task of developing a new triple-threater. Injury to Tower, who filled McCrady's shoes, cost the Bronchos in the late season games.

Wesleyan closed a rather disastrous season in surprising shape. The Methodists upset Hastings, 13-7, in a Turkey day battle at Hastings and that went a long way toward removing the sting of previous defeats. Wesleyan also turned in a good game in playing Peru Teachers to 0-0 and 0-7 scores. Coach F. F. Alabaster was handicapped by a persistent injury jinx.

York college won a lone victory by edging out Grand Island in the Thanksgiving day finale. It left the Zebras without a victory, although they gleaned some satisfaction in being able to cross Cotner, Midland, Doane and Wesleyan goal lines.

Central got its only conference victory at York's expense. These three institutions had little material and were destined from to the start to finisn well down the ladder.

DR. J. R. CAMPBELL DEAD.

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Dr. J. R. Campbell, 81, professor of education at Oklahoma A. & M. College, died late today. He became unconscious at noon. Physicians said death was caused by a stomach ailment. Dr. Campbell was the first president of Southwestern State Teachers college at Weatherford, Okla. Rapid growth of that institution has been credited largely to the work of the pioneer Oklahoma educator. He came to A. & M. college in 1921 and has been affiliated with the education department here since that time.

Gridiron Letters At Havelock High

Twenty-three team football letters and one student manager award will be made by Havelock high school this year, Coach Paul Delaporte announced Saturday. Five members of the 1929 squad will be lost next season, only three of which were regulars. This group includes Capt. Austin Mellen, guard, who will receive his third letter, Orville Smith, center, and Gus Frueaf and John Bourke, guards, who will receive their second letter, and Will Haberlan, halfback, who is to receive his first award.

John Frueauf, tackle, is the only returning gridster who will receive his third letter, while Ed Finning, fullback; George Haberlan, quarterback; Merle Headrick, end, and Robert Harrison, center, will be given their second letters.

Letters to first-year men who will return next fall follow: Bud Young, tackle; Sterling Helvey, Murrell Herling and Dave Smith, ends; George Bailey, Herbert Hill and Frank Medine, guards; Harold Huslach, center; Dan Dormer, Harley Law and Hal Smith, halfbacks; Harold Jones, quarterback; Hervey Ewing, fullback; and Ralph Erickson, student manager.

Letters will be presented at a school convocation later. A captain for the 1930 team will be selected this week and announced at the annual football banquet Thursday night.

OLIVER WILSON BROUGHT BACK

Prisoner Faces Charges Of Escaping Custody And Stealing Car.

Declares Visited Here Twice Since Made Getaway.

Oliver P. Wilson, who escaped from county officers September 17, was returned to Lincoln late Saturday night, from Gillette, Wyo., by Deputy Sheriff James Davis. Wilson escaped a day after being sentenced to serve from 1 to 20 years in the state reformatory on a forgery count.

Charges of escaping custody and of automobile theft will be filed against Wilson, County Attorney Towle announced Saturday afternoon. Both are penitentiary offenses.

Wilson visited Lincoln twice after he escaped and started to work on a Wyoming ranch, he revealed Saturday night. He made the trip here by bus two times in October in company with the owners of the ranch on which he was working, he declared.

Escaped Over Roof.

He escaped in September while waiting to be examined in the clinic at the city jail, by going through a window and then climbing down a roof. He secured a car near the Burlington station which he was forced to abandon two miles west and one-half mile south of the reformatory because of car trouble.

Then for several days he hid in a corn field and raided the summer home of Dr. W. H. Griffiths, one and a half mile west of the state hospital, to secure provisions. Three days after his escape he took a car belonging to Ralph Raikes from in front of the state hospital and headed for Buffalo, Wyo. He secured fuel by siphoning gas from tractors.

Used His Own Name.

Although he changed the license plates on the car Wilson went under his own name while working in Wyoming. He came with his employers to Lincoln so that they would not become suspicious that he was an escaped prisoner. While here he stayed at a hotel and at a rooming house.

Wyoming officers finally discovered his identity by means of pictures and of the car. The auto, which had been driven less than 2,000 miles, now has gone over 8,000 miles.

County Sheriff Hensel and Deputy Sheriff Hulfish were at the train when Wilson arrived at 11:45 o'clock Saturday night in custody of Deputy Sheriff Davis.

EDMISTON SAYS OUTLOOK GOOD

Predicts Favorable Year At Meeting Of Life Insurance Agents.

The outlook for sales of life insurance in the next year is most rosy A. R. Edmiston, general agent of southern Nebraska for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., told twenty members of his sales force in attendance at an all-day agency meeting Saturday. The belief that when stock speculation ends life insurance will increase in favor among investors was also stressed.

Because of increased value of crops, farmers are spending more liberally and will do so in the future. Agency business in the last month was the largest in five years which would tend to bear out the prediction for next year, according to Mr. Edmiston.

T. B. Strain, vice president of the Continental National bank, addressed the agency members at a luncheon which followed the morning session. He stressed that disagreeable results of stock speculation would end as soon as people went back to work and ceased dreaming of easy money.

Details of the company's expansion program were furnished by Mark S. Trueblood of Cincinnati, agency supervisor of the company. At the morning meeting short talks were made by F. H. Eldredge, R. H. Edmiston, George C. Hill, Sepeca B. Yule and E. L. Hevelone.

Japanese Depart For Naval Parley

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Nov. 30 —(UP)—The Japanese naval delegation, headed by former Prime Minster Reijero Wakatsuki, sailed today for Seattle, enroute to London.

The delegation conferred with Premier Yuko Hamaguchi yesterday to complete final preparations for the five-power conference, which will be held in London in January.

HUNTER WITNESS FOR M'CORMICK

Says Improvement Shown By Incompetent Heir 'Almost Miracle.'

Hearing to Oust Brother and Sister as Guardians is Delayed.

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The Stanley McCormick guardianship hearing stood adjourned tonight until Thursday because Judge William Dehey found that he was required to return to his home in Inyo county to transact other business.

The last witness heard today was the most important placed on the stand—Robert Hunter, who knew the incompetent heir to $50,000,000 of harvester wealth when both were young artists in France.

Hunter testified after being called to the stand by attorneys for Harold McCormick, brother, and Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, sister of Stanley, that his friend appeared normal during their artist days. He said they were acquainted in Paris from 1897 to 1904.

The brother and sister are contesting the efforts of Mrs. Katherine McCormick, wife of the millionaire heir, to oust them from his joint guardianship.

Hunter next saw McCormick at the latter's estate in 1918, he said. He was refused admittance, but saw McCormick peering from a barred window, he testified.

The next day, on an order from the doctor, he was permitted to see McCormick. McCormick was excited and fairly leaped toward him, appearing deranged, said Hunter.

Almost a Miracle.

"Almost a miracle," was the contrast when Hunter saw McCormick again in June of this year, he said. McCormick was described by the witness then as poised, an exceptional conversationalist and apparently normal in all respects.

Cross-examination brought out that Dr. Kempf, whose treatment of McCormick is attacked by his wife, arranged the time of the 1929 meeting, carrying out the implication in Mrs. McCormick's attack that the doctor selected a time when the patient was enjoying one of the best periods.

Kenneth McKillip, nurse and guard for McCormick for sixteen years, was recalled to the stand to resist an implication that the millionaire once sought to hurl himself under a train.

McKillip's story said that a friendly dog joined them one day in the fall of 1927 when they were walking near a railroad track. McCormick became nervous, said McKillip, when the dog ran onto the tracks as a train approached and whistled at the animal.

When it did not respond, the witness related, McCormick started to run forward, but was restrained by attendants, while the dog escaped of its own volition.

EX-PASTOR GETS $20,000 DAMAGES

Jury Gives Illinois Man Large Sum in Libel Case.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 30—(INS)—John A. L. Warren, unfrocked Methodist minister of Durand, Ill., was awarded $20,000 damages by a jury here today, who found five members of Warren's former parish guilty of slander and libel. Defense counsel immediately made a motion for a new trial. Judge A. E. Fisher said he would hear arguments within two weeks.

Warren's attorneys, meanwhile, announced their intention of filing a second sut for $100,000 against the Rev. Frank Sheets and the Rev. C. K. Carpenter, Judd Van Sickle and George Fritz. The latter two were defendants in the first suit of $50,000.

Rev. Mr. Sheets acted as Warren's prosecutor at the Rock River Conference at Oak Park in 1927, while Rev. Mr. Carpenter, former secretary of the conference, received Hazel Lamb's charges and placed them before the conference.

In filing the suit charging the five defendants, Warren declared that they "framed" the charges brought against him by Hazel Lamb, maid in his parsonage, which brought his expulsion from the church.

Those found guilty today were Judd Van Sickle, George Fritz, Albert E. Swinson. The case went to the jury today after defense counsel waived final arguments.

INSTITUTE WILL CONVENE HERE

Professional Group To Hold 1930 Meeting In Lincoln.

The next national convention of the American Inter-Professional Institute will be held in Lincoln, October 10 and 11 of next year, according to an announcement of H. H. Wilson, president of the Lincoln chapter at a meeting of the organization Saturday at the Lincoln hotel. The announcement was made in a report of the proceedings of the national board of directors' meeting held at Sioux City, Ia., November 17 at which Dr. B. F. Bailey of Lincoln, national president, presided.

He declared that the institute will endeavor to procure a charter from the federal government to place it on the same basis as the National Red Cross and the National Geographic society. It was stated that a committee had been appointed to attend to plans of expansion and organization of other societies.

Selections from an editorial in The Star of November 26 concerning the recent statement of Dr. H. von W. Schulte, dean of Creighton medical college, before the Omaha institute when he declared that more could be accomplished by the club if reporters were barred from meetings was read by Dr. Bailey. "We not only welcome the representatives of the press at our meetings but are glad to have our proceedings made public," he said. "We have nothing to conceal."

BANDITS GET $4,000.

SAUK CITY, Wis., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Two youthful bandits, working with casual precision, locked Lawrence Sprecker, cashier of the Blackhawk, Wis., bank, in the vault late today and escaped with $4,000 in cash. Several thousand dollars in securities were not touched.

Nine Lost In Storm; Many Are Stranded

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Nine hunters are missing and thirty-three parties in automobiles are stranded in deep snow in the heart of the deer country.

Fear is felt for the missing men, who were in the launch Betty B., on the Tahquamenon river. The auto expeditions are caught in snow twenty-eight inches deep twelve miles north of Eckerman, Chippewa county. Conservation Officer Fred Sanderson reports some of the men nearly frozen.

Three teams of horses and sleds are battling their way through the snow and blizzard from the Sheldon lumber camp in an effort to rescue the hunters.

Similar plights are reported in other hunting areas. The county to the aid of the snowbound.

to the aid o fthe snowbound.

Ships Bottled Up.

Ninety-one steamers and 1,800 men also are feeling the full force of a terrific blizzard sweeping over upper lakes. Other ships are bottled in Lake Superior harbors. These carry millions of dollars worth of grain.

The storm is one of the worst on record for November. Snow has been falling for thirty-six hours. Traffic in the St. Mary's river from the Sault to Detour has been at a standstill for forty-eight hours.

Thirty-five steamers, days overdue, are clinging to the coast at Whitefish Point.

Repetition of 1926 and 1927 ice blockades, costing shippers millions, is regarded as a certainty.

COLLEGE TEAMS JUDGE ANIMALS

Students Grade Entries at Chicago International Exposition.

Emma Goecke in Line to Keep Grand Championship in Family.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30—(U. P.)—The cream of collegiate livestock judges from the United States and Canada passed judgment today on the best the world has produced in the way of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs at the opening of the thirtieth annual international livestock exposition at the Chicago stock yards.

One hundred and forty-one college men and one co-ed made life miserable all day for the test animals in the arena as they poked and prodded the herds and then marked their judgment down on little white cards.

Tonight the judges started their long task of tabulating the result and hoped to finish by tomorrow afternoon.

Twenty-one universities and agricultural chools, including two Canadian institutions, were represented in the crowds of serious-faced students.

Lone Co-Ed Judge.

Miss Evangeline Simmons of the Colorado State agricultural college team was the lone co-ed in the ring. Clad in a fur coat, patent leather pumps and a green silk dress, she elbowed her way to the circles around the animals, viewed them from all sides and marked her judgment on a white card. Only once did she wrinkle her brow before she put her judgment on paper.

Three huge perchons were led into the arena and Miss Simmons, along with the rest of the collegians, gathered about. She walked slowly around the horses, chewed the end of her pencil, frowned and seemed hesitant. Another collegiate looked at the horses' teeth and Miss Simmons looked over his shoulder. Then she wrote her opinion.

Have Miserable Day.

The cattle bawled, the sheep baaed and the hogs grunted when the collegians with their canes, the universal accoutrement of all stock men, poked at their ribs. By the time the entire 142 had inspected them to their hearts content, the animals had spent a miserable day and voiced it to their keepers.

In another arena, boys and girls from farms all over the country, exhibited the calves they had fed and nutured to win a prize. Little fellows, hardly tall enough to see over the backs of their animals, tugged and pulled at the lead ropes to get the calves into line.

The program said the animals were calves, but to the city man they appeared to be full sized cows, or rather cattle—there are no cows at a livestock show, the veterans remarked.

Judging of the many entries according to class began today.

Miss Goecke Wins.

Chief among the girl entries was Emma Goecke, State Center, Ia., sister of Clarence Goecke, who last year won the grand championship with his steer and went home with almost $16,000 jingling in his pockets. Emma, who was forced to exhibit his calf last year when he got so bashful he wouldn't enter the ring, took part of that prize money and went this year to Iowa State at Ames.

Today she won the blue ribbon in both the senior and junior hereford class, which puts her in the running for the prize her brother took last year.

Emma, who is 16 and pretty, took the plaudits of the crowd modestly, saying she did not think she "had any chance" to duplicate the feat of her brother.

"Two championships in the same year are too many for one family," she said.

Mix is Operated Upon For Shoulder Injury

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Tom Mix, screen cowboy, today was reported to be resting easily following an operation on his shoulder here last night.

Doctors reported it was necessary to wire his shoulder blade into place and sew several ligaments. Mix suffered a broken shoulder when thrown from a horse at Dallas, Tex., on September 9. After Mix had complained of pains in the injured shoulder, physicians deemed an operation necessary.

Doctors said Mix would be in the hospital for at least three weeks.

RUSSO-CHINESE DISPUTE STIRS POWERS TO ACT

Four Nations Join U. S. In Trying To Prevent Further Hostilities.

Report No New Clashes On Strife-Torn Border.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 — (I. N. S.)—The world powers signatory to the anti-war treaty were understood tonight to have decided the grievance between China and Russia has reached such a stage that further inaction on their parts would be unwise.

Four nations, Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany, have pledged their wholehearted co-operation with the United States for the prevention of hostilities. Japan has not decided what method she cares to follow in the war-prevention move, it was understood.

Possibility of the world powers sending a reminder to the disgruntled nations that they are signatories to the Kellogg-Briand treaty for the renunciation of war, or employing some other method designed to still their guns was discussed tonight in diplomatic circles despite the meager announcement of the state department.

Stimson Issues Statement.

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, issued the following statement at 6 p. m.:

"A series of conferences and discussions with various of the principal powers are continuing over the situation in Manchuria."

The half-year controversy in the far east flared up when China seized the Russian-built Chinese Eastern railway and arrested some of the Russian rail officials. Intermittent fights and bombings by soviet airplanes along the border has followed.

Stimson's program today indicated to observers that he is not regarding the possibility of combat between the countries with mild concern.

In the morning he and Assistant Secretary of State Nelson T. Johnson conferred with President Hoover. They spent the remainder of the day holding conferences with executives of the department's far eastern service and finally the ambassadors of Japan and Germany and the charge d'affaires of Great Britain called to see Stimson. Later C. C. Wu, Chinese minister, called and conferred with Johnson and Peter Norbeck, chief of the far eastern service of the department.

Earlier in the day the department believed the Mukden government was ready to negotiate direct with soviet Russia in an attempt to settle the dispute. What developments that were later that might have changed the situation was still obscure when Stimson closed his desk tonight.

TRAIN WRECKED FEAR SIX KILLED

Report Between 50 And 60 Injured In Accident Near Onley, Va.

NORTHAMPTON, Va., Dec. 1—(U. P.)—Six persons were reported killed and between fifty and sixty injured early this morning when a Pennsylvania railroad express train from Norfolk to New York was wrecked near Onley, Va.

The dead and injured were being brought here by emergency crews of workmen. Details of the wreck were meager and due to confusion of aiding the injured, trainmen were unable to give information.

The train was running on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk division of the Pennsylvania lines.

No further estimate of the dead could be obtained, but hospital attendants here said "at least six were killed."

DRYS OPPOSING SHEPPARD PLAN

Proposal to Punish the Buyers of Liquor Faces Defeat.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Legislation to make buying of liquor, as well as selling, a violation of the national prohibition act probably will be blocked in the forthcoming session of congress as a result of dissension in the ranks of the drys.

With Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, prepared to introduce the bill penalizing liquor buyers, many pronounced drys in both senate and house are either opposed to the measure or unwilling to bring the issue to a head this winter.

The split in the dry forces, which became pronounced among the leaders of the many national prohibition societies, is declared to be especially pronounced in the house, which is overwhelmingly dry. The house drys have usually followed the administration's policy in liquor legislation, and opposition of Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran to the Sheppard proposal has had a telling effect.

Strong Opposition.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, titular leader of the house drys, declined to endorse the Sheppard plan today. He refused to make any comment on the proposal and many other house drys have declined to commit themselves. Representative Graham, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the house judiciary committee, which would handle the bill, is strongly opposed to it.

The contest over the Sheppard plan may prove to be a contest for leadership of the dry forces of the country. Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America and Wayne B. Wheeler's successor has refused to sponsor it. On the other hand Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist board of temperance and morals, and Bishop James Cannon jr., leader of southern dry forces, are strongly for it.

The overwhelming vote by which congress passed the Jones-Stalker law providing a maximum five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine for liquor law violators is said to have encouraged the extreme dry leaders in their fight for an air-tight prohibition law.

POLICE SEEKING SENDER OF BOMB

Explosive Mailed From Coast Mangles Young Man in Tennessee.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Police and federal authorities late today believed they were close on the trail of the Los Angeles sender of a bomb which mangled a man in Knoxville, Tenn., and injured three other persons.

Investigations revealed a letter which the bomber sent to the Western Union Telegraph Co., along with a telegram which was intended to stop the receiver from opening the deadly package in the distant city.

"If you want to save a life send this telegram," read the letter to the Western Union main office. "I am broke."

The sender signed his name "Dementia."

Enclosed with the letter was a telegram to Donald Scott, 26-year-old railway mechanic, who formerly lived in Los Angeles. The telegram read:

"Do not open package. It will explode. Throw it in river."

The telegram likewise was signed "Dementia," the medical name for a form of insanity known as "dementia praecox."

The telegram which would have saved Scott from serious injury, arrived in Knoxville twenty-five minutes after Scott opened the package and was felled by an explosion.

AUTOMOTIVE NEWS

EUROPEAN DEMAND FOR STATES' CARS SHOWS INCREASE

The people of Europe are turning to America for the latest developments in automotive design and performance because they recognize the engineering improvements and value incorporated in American-built cars, according to E. C. Morse, president of the Chrysler Export corporation, who has just returned to Detroit—after a four months' stay in Europe.

"Regardless of tariff or national prejudices, European motorists will buy their cars where they can get the best values. From my observations, there will be a continued increase in the demand for American automotive products in the overseas market," Mr. Morse said.

"European buyers are insisting on style, performance, economy and dependability in the operation of their automobiles, and they demand an established dealer organization marketing the cars they purchase. At different meetings held with Chrysler, Dodge, DeSoto and Plymouth distributors representing all the larger cities in Europe, there were definite well-founded expressions that 1930 would mark a profitable and increased market for American-built passenger cars and trucks that fill every requirement of European motoists."

BUSINESS IS ON SOUND FOOTING, SAYS C. W. NASH

In a personal letter to the Nash dealer organization, C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors Co., states that "there is nothing wrong with general business conditions in our country at all," and predicts that next spring will see a very normal business.

"I am willing to admit that in some sections of the country the automobile business is suffering a little. In other parts of our territory sales are running ahead of last year at this time.

"I have never known a time when general business conditions were on a more sound footing than the present time. The country has been blessed with a bountiful harvest; prices of farm products are at a very satisfactory point; stock has done exceptionally well and brought a splendid price. Other commodities coming from the ground, such as copper, iron, etc., are at a very good price The history of the American people is that when they have money they spend it. There is no shortage of money; the banks are loaded with cash. The indications are that we are going to have cheaper money in 1930 than in 1929; and just the moment those who have been intoxicated with speculation are sufficiently sobered up, you will find that business will go along about in a normal way."

The strain caused by rough spots in the street, uneven car tracks nad other obstructions can be avoided by releasing the clutch and allowing the car to coast over these places.

DESOTO ACHIEVES HIGH RANKING IN PERIOD 17 MONTHS

Emulating the success of Hernando DeSoto, dauntlets explorer and discoverer of the Mississippi river, the DeSoto automobile has achieved a remarkably high ranking among automobiles in the comparatively short period of time that it has been manufactured, declares L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the DeSoto Motor corporation.

"Starting in August, 1928, a new car, unknown to the general public and with no sales organization to sell it, the DeSoto today has reached a commanding position in the field of low price sixes," declares Mr. Peed. "In addition to building up a gigantic merchandising organization that covers not only this country but every civilized country in the world, 81,065 cars had been built and sold. The one hundred thousandth car was produced during the fourteenth month of manufacture and now, at the end of seventeen months, the production and sales figures are still rising rapidly.

"During 1930, DeSoto expects to sustain the remarkable pace it has set thus far," Mr. Peed continued. "The DeSoto is a tried and proven product and the sales organization is no longer in the formative stage. DeSoto justifies the faith that the automobile-buying public has put into it."

Auto Notes

An improperly adjusted brake wears quicker and is far less efficient than one that is in adjustment.

When parking, greater leverage is given by pulling on the rim of the steering wheel instead of the spokes.

Regular 30-day inspection of brakes whether two or four-wheel insures a driver of being able to "stop" when necessary.

The wiring of a car should be inspected every so often to insure against defects which may prove serious on the road.

If the speed of the car cannot be increased beyond ten miles an hour in second on a hill, the engine is laboring and it is best to shift to low.

A thin layer of vaseline spread over the battery posts and terminals will prevent corrosion that causes loose connections and finally eats away the metal.

Because of wear and tear, it is a good plan to replace the ignition cable about once a year.

Never turn the steering wheel the slightest degree when the car is in motion unless the road is clear to the right or left of the car.

The efficiency of a fan is reduced after the car has been in service for more than a year. Have the blades adjusted at a proper angle.

A slipping clutch is due to a weak or improperly adjusted spring, or to the condition of the clutch facing. Oil may have soaked into the leather or asbestos facing.

The principal parts which have a direct bearing on the starting of an engine are: Battery, starting motor, carburetor, spark plugs, ignition system and valves.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Engine Efficiency at High Temperature.

Running the car at low temperature results in wasted fuel, crankcase dilution, increased wear and poorer all-round performance. Most engines operate with greatest efficiency when the temperature of the fluid in the cooling system averages about 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

Vibration Injurious to Cylinders.

An engine that is subject to considerable vibration is liable to have its cylinders work loose on the crank case through the loosening of the holding-down bolts, or nuts if they are not watched. A wrench should be applied occasionally to make sure that everything is tight. The trouble that arises from loose cylinders runs all the way from leakage of oil to a wrecked engine.

Oil Ruins Wire Covering.

Because oil has a disintegrating effect, not only on rubber but on cotton and fabric as well, care should be taken to see that the wiring for electric lighting and engine starting system is well protected. If oil is permitted to remain on the wiring, the insulation will in time be softened so that the slightest chafing will cause the bare copper to be exposed and a short circuit or a leakage of current follow.

To Get Dents Out of Fender.

A slight dent in a fender may be remedied without damage to the paint with a little care. Two hardwood blocks should be obtained, one shaped to the curve of the under part of the fender at the dent and the other curved to the contour of the upper surface of the fender. While the one block is held under the dent, the other is held above it, and hit with a hammer until the dent is smoothed out. It may be well to heat the underside of the fender with a blow torch to prevent the paint cracking. The heat should not be too great or the paint will be burned.

Lighter Oils for Winter Months.

Lighter grades of both engine and chassis lubrcants are needed in cold weather. With the first signs of cold weather the car owner should change the fluid or solid-bodied lubricant in the transmission and differential. Before the fresh lubricant is put in these parts, they should be flushed thoroughly.

Wise Stoppers.

Reckless stopping is becoming recognized as a large part of reckless driving. The motorist who comes to an abrupt stop without giving plenty of warning to the car or the truck behisd him is courting a lot of trouble. It is a wise plan to keep brakes in good repair and adjustment. The car can be stopped very abruptly. The driver behind may not be so wise. Perhaps his wits move a little sluggishly and his brakes do not take hold as quickly. A heavily loaded truck cannot be stopped as readily as a passenger car. It is a good idea, therefore, to imagine that all cars behind are "slow stoppers," and act accordingly.

Accidents the Good Driver Avoids.

Crashing into the car ahead, because he keeps back his proper distance and allows himself time to stop.

Rear-end collisions, because he uses his rear-sight mirror to keep a check on the man behind and signals him his intention of stopping in time.

Sideswiping, because when he decides to pass the car ahead he announces his intention with the horn, to make sure the road in front is clear and then swings out and around in a wide, easy curve that leads the other car plenty of room.

Being sideswiped, because when the man behind sounds the horn to pass, the good driver gives him the road and does not speed up in an attempt to "freeze him out" or swing over toward the middle of the road to squeeze him out.

Head-on collisions, because good drivers are sure the road ahead is free from oncoming cars before trying to pass a car traveling in the same direction.

Going into the ditch usually occurs at night, and good drivers carry road lamps or spot lamps which enable them to keep on the road, in spite of fog or the glare of oncoming cars.

Grade crossing smashups are avoided by good drivers not trying to beat a train across and by never merrily sailing around the car ahead whichhad the good sense to stop when it saw an approaching train which was hidden from the cars behind.

Danger Shines Through Wet Windshield.

A driver who attempts to operate his car when rain flows over the surface of the windshield faces danger, especially at night when light from aproaching cars is magnified by raindrops blinding the driver. If the car is not equipped with an automatic windshield wiper, apply a solution to the glass to clear the vision. One that has proved satisfactory contains a mixture of two ounces of glycerine and one ounce of water and one dram of salt. Apply with a soft cloth, rubbing up and down.

Choice of Anti-Freeze Solutions.

Denatured alcohol is cheaper than glycerin as an anti-freeze solution for the radiator, but is more volatile. It evaporates at a temperature of 180 degrees. Glycerin, on the other hand, is nonvolatile up to a temperature of 225 degrees. A temperature of 180 degrees is not beyond the efficient operating range of any modern engine. Only in case of some mechanical defect would a temperature of 225 be reached. This means that, while alcohol costs liss initially, it may cost more in the long run, depending upon a number of conditions.

Causes of Hot Radiator.

There are various reasons why the water in the radiator becomes hot and boils. Foremost is the condition of the hose connections. If loosens and partly stops the circulation. A loose fan belt will cause a reduction of air circulating around the cells of the radiator. Scale and sediment in the water will also cause the circulating system to get hot. An advanced spark, poor quality of oil, and dragging brakes can be figured in the other causes of this trouble.

Dirty Fuel Line Causes Carburetor Trouble.

Very often trouble with the carburetor can be eliminated by removing the pipe line and cleaning the same. Usually there is a strainer at the base of the carburetor, or at some point in the fuel line. This strainer, or trap, frequently becomes clogged to such an extent that the carburetor does not obtain sufficient flow of gasoline. Before changing the adjustment of the carburetor it is advisable to determine whether there are any obstructions and remove same from line.

Short Circuit in Electrical System.

A short circuit gives more trouble in the electrical system than anything else. This may be caused by a worn or oil-soaked wire, to defects in the units themselves, but also they are found at the ends of the wires and binding posts. The ends or terminals of the wires are necessarily bare, and often they are so bent or attached to their binding posts so that a small portion comes in contact with the metal of the instrument or engine. A drop of water, due possibly to the condensation of the moisture in the air, will often cause a short circuit, especially in the secondary or high tension system.

Cleaning the Car.

Get accustomed to having the car cleaned at frequent intervals. It would be best, of course, to have this done each time the car comes from the road and really requires washing, but often owners allow mud to accumulate. Small particles of sand make their way to the moving parts, especially those of the running gear. The steering knuckles, the drag link and steering cross rods, the universals and brakes, etc., are parts which never should be allowed to remain covered with dirt and mud. A good washing may save twice as much in repairs. Have a hired washer do the work, for he has the equipment and knows how best to remove all the dirt.

Attention to Muffler.

The muffler deserves careful consideration every once in a while, if the operator cares much for efficiency and economical operation. This exhaust silencer has a great number of very small openings on the inside of the chamber which become clogged with soot and carbon from the cylinders. The deposit collects very rapidly, especially when the grade of the oil is poor or too much oil is used. It also results when the carbureter is adjusted to give too rich a mixture. When these small openings become clogged the exhaust gas cannot escape readily and naturally the cylinder of the engine is not clean at the exhaust stroke. Result: It is impossible to bring in a full cylinder of new gas on the next intake stroke. There is not a full charge to explode an dthis means a loss of power to the engine.

Prolong the life of the car by studying the oil needs of the engine.

Always open the throttle slowly to give the engine a chance to pick up gradually.

The battery is weak if headlights are very dim at low car speeds and very bright when going faster.

Be prepared for bad weather by having the skid chains in good condition and ready for use when needed.

Look carefully over the steering connections. Especially if the car has been used several years, there may be a weak part that needs replacing.

The drip pan under the engine should be kept clean. The absence of old oil and gasoline may prevent a destructive fire should there be a back fire, due to lean mixture of the carburetor.

Because there is more vibration in light cars, there will also be found more loose nuts, bolts, etc. To overcome this condition ,it is wise to consider lock washers, split pins and other trouble preventers.

Sudden starting and stopping is not only hard on tires, but it is bad for the whole car.

Have the mixture enriched when the engine begins to "cough," or there is a popping of the carburetor.

When parking in a storm, always point the car away from the direction of the downpour of rain. This will prevent the ignition from getting wet.

Cold gasoline needs a hot spark, and because of this condition the battery, ignition cables and spark plugs should be in efficient working order for the winter months.

Their Honeymoon by Parachute

Wedding 2,500 feet above Roosevelt field, L. I., Donald Babcock, of Mineola, L. I., and Marjorie Klinger, 18, of New York, begin their honeymoon by jumping overboard from the bridal plane with parachutes. Here's the happy couple on the ground with other principals. Left to right: Pilot Harold McMahon, Eugene Kraus, best man, the bride and the bridegroom. The marriage ceremony was performed by Eugene L. Flanagan, Bayville, L. I., justice of the peace.

Our Battery
heads the procession again this year

Once more our batteries have won first honors in the original equipment field. Seventy-six makers of cars, trucks and tractors are using Willards in their 1929 product. No other make of battery occupies such a position.

There's a reason. A Willard Battery of the correct electrical size for the owner's car, always does a better job. Why not try our good inspection service and get acquainted with Willard quality?

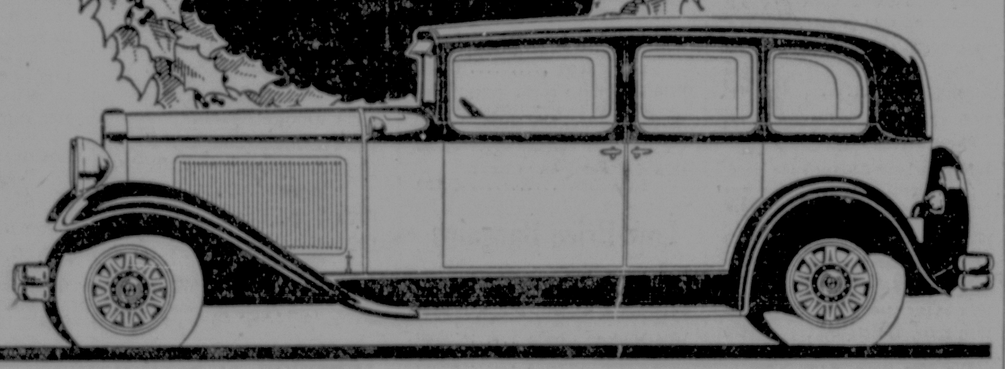
IF ONLY THE BEST IS GOOD ENOUGH
GIVE A 1930 NASH "400"



IF you think you've experienced all the pleasure Christmas has to offer, give your family a 1930 Nash "400" on December 25. There's a thrill in giving or receiving a car so different from the rank and file of motor cars. In the Twin-Ignition Eight, the Twin-Ignition Six, and the Single Six, Nash engineering has introduced one new feature after another to add pleasure to the pleasure of motoring. Here are refinements hitherto confined to very costly motor cars and others that are entirely new. When only the best is good enough—give a 1930 Nash "400."

What could please your family more than to find a smart, new De Soto Six standing at the curb Christmas morning?

Surely, no gift could be more appropriate. And it so happens that right now is the best time of all the year to trade your old car for a new one.

In a few weeks, calendars will read "1930"—and the appraisal value of your old car will be materially reduced. Right now, used car stocks are relatively low, and the wisdom of December buying is being rewarded by more attractive trade-in allowances.

Drive your old car in today for an appraisal. This will not obligate you to buy—but if you want delivery of a new De Soto Six by Christmas, an order placed this week will assure it.

Lincoln People Busily Planning For Christmas

Although Majority Will Spend Holidays At Home With Their Families And Close Friends, A Few Are Arranging To Visit In Warmer Climes During Yuletide.

With Christmas just three weeks and three days in the distance, plans for the holiday season are already beginning to take shape. Some more fortunate persons are going to warmer climes for the holidays, while the majority are remaining at home where they will spend Christmas day with their families and close friends.

Among those who are spending the Christmas season away from Lincoln are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brooks, who will leave the Saturday preceding Christmas for Richmondmond, Va., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Brooks' mother, Mrs. S. V. Merriman.

Mrs. Will H. Dorgan and little daughter, Annette, will leave in about ten days for California where they will spend the holidays and the remainder of the winter. Judge and Mrs. Charles Goss will go to Chicago for Christmas unless their daughter, Miss Catherine Goss, returns to Lincoln for the holidays.

Much Activity In Prospect.

There will be plenty of activity in Lincoln, however, judging from the number of affairs that have been planned for Christmas day.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart, for instance, already have invited their house party guests for Christmas eve and Christmas morning breakfast. In their list they have included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Talbot and two children, Nan and Harriett; Mrs. Helen Burnham and two daughters, Helen and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimball and son, Billy; Miss Anne Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder and daughter, Anne, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dierks and daughter, Ruth Louise. The guests will all arrive Christmas eve.

Mrs. M. W. Folsom is to entertain the members of her family at Christmas dinner this year. The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Folsom, Arnot Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Folsom, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ricketts and son, Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller and children of Omaha.

Family Groups to Entertain.

Judge and Mrs. C. B. Letton will have as their Christmas guests, their son, Harry B. Letton, Mrs. Harry Letton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kirby, Mrs. W. M. Morning and Mrs. N. A. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carlsen expect to remain at home for Christmas, with relatives as guests, as do Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Rowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Grainger will preside at dinner Christmas day for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grainger, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chenoweth and daughter, Justyn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods and children, Shirley and Thomas, jr., and Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Ladd.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Roberts will have as their Christmas guests, Mrs. Roberts' mother, Mrs. F. E. Hyde, her sister, Mrs. T. A. Kieselbach, Prof. Kieselbach and family, and her brother, Dr. J. F. Hyde and Mrs. Hyde of Omaha.

Woods To Visit Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woods and Frank Woods, jr., of Chicago, are expected to pend the holidays in Lincoln wtih their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods, although no definite plans have been made, due to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Woods are just returning from a trip to Shanghai.

Miss Margaret Ames, who is attending an art school in Washington, D. C., will return to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ames. Warren Pershing, who is attending Yale, will also spend the holiday season in Lincoln.

Mrs. Helen Burnham and children, the R. H. Talbots, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Chapin, will spend the Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Chapin.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Towle will entertain at Christmas, their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Cozier and Mr. Cozier, of Cleveland, Curtis Towle, who is attending Princeton university, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Varney, jr., and Thomas Tiffany Varney III of Broken Bow.

Prenuptial Courtesies To Be Held

Grace Lintt Honoree at Shower Friday; Georgia DeVriendt to be Feted.

Gay parties which mark the interim between the engagements of popular girls and their weddings are adding a great deal to the jollity of the early winter season.

Miss Grace Lintt, who is to be a December bride, will be the honoree at a linen shower which Mrs. O. I. McGrew will give at her home, 2611 Y street, Friday evening. Contests will be the entertainment for the twenty-five guests and a supper is to be served informally. Mrs. McGrew plans to carry out a pink and white color scheme in the appointments.

A pantry shower for Miss Lintt is being arranged by Mrs. W. D. Lawrence at her home, 3903 Garfield street, Wednesday evening. Twenty-five guests will be bidden to spend the time informally. Holiday decorations will prevail and at the close of the party, a supper will be served.

Letitia Speice Becomes Bride of Stuart Hadley

Former Nebraska Students Married At First Congregational Church in Omaha; Minnie McCord To Become Bride of Egbert Ryan; Miss Bergsten Weds Edward A. Boerner.

Miss Letitia Speice, daughter of Mrs. Alice Speice of Columbus, became the bride of Stuart S. Hadley, son of Mrs. S. S. Hadley of Lincoln, Wednesday at 4 o'clock at the First Congregational church in Omaha. Only immediate relatives were present for the reading of the lines by the Rev. F. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Boardman E. Speice of Columbus were the only attendants.

Mrs. Speice wore old blue silk crepe, with flared tiers falling in an uneven hemline, and fashioned with collars and cuffs of eggshell crepe. With her frock, she wore a felt hat in the same shade, and a corsage of pink Ophelia roses.

The bride was gowned in gold flat crepe, made on the princess lines, and the circular skirt ended in an irregular line, longer in the back. Double inserted crepe frills were used on the close bodice, with a large back bow, and the long sleeves were finished with self-color buttons over folds of the material. Her hat was of leaf brown felt, and her flowers were formed into a corsage of English violets, lavender sweet peas, and sweetheart roses. Her only ornaments were an etched gold brooch and ear pendants, heirlooms her grandmother, Mrs. C. F. Elias, wore on her wedding day more than fifty years ago.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at Hotel Paxton. Covers were laid for the members of the bridal party and the relatives.

Mrs. Hadley attended the University of California and the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mr. Hadley is a member of Phi Gamma Delta at the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadley will make their home in Columbus.

McCord-Ryan.

The marriage of Minnie E. McCord to Egbert Ryan will be solemnized Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Goodwin, 3220 O street. The Rev. Victor West of Elm Park M. E. church will read the lines before a bower of greenery, with twin candelabra of tall tapers on either side. Miss Madeline Jackson will play the wedding music.

The bride will be attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jack Goodwin. She will wear lavender georgette, and will carry an arm bouquet of Columbia roses. Mary Louise Goodwin, a cousin of the bride, will be frocked in pink taffeta, and will carry the ring in a red rose. George Marion of New York City will be the groomsman.

The bride will wear eggshell chiffon and Chantilly lace, made with a basque and a bouffant circular skirt, with uneven hemline. She will carry Ophelia roses.

A reception follows at the home. Mrs. C. C. Goodwin will preside in the dining room, and she will be assisted by Misses Maurica and Erma Adkins.

Mr. Ryan and his bride will leave late in the evening for Chicago, after which they will be at home in Lincoln. The bride is traveling in brown transparent velvet, with accessories to match.

Mrs. John Campbell Meakin To Be Honored During Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Herman James Are Among Lincoln Guests Of Past Week For Whom There Has Been Much Entertaining.

The social lull forecast for the week may be nothing more nor less than a hang-over from a mid-week holida" which always takes its toll of activities, and again it may be prophetic of what the season will be until the holidays.

However some interesting guests arriving during the week may do much to liven things up. Mrs. John Campbell Meakin of Montreal, Canada, arrives Wednesday to spend a short time with her brother, Fred G. Caldwell and Mrs. Caldwell. Dr. Meakin will join her on Friday, and they will leave again on Sunday. Even though the visit is short, a number of informal affairs have been crowded into a brief period.

Children's Theater Plans Second Play for Saturday

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" Is Production Selected by Lincoln Junior League and Miss Alice Howell; Miss Katherine Masterson Will Direct Play at Temple.

Lincoln Junior League and Miss Alice Howell will present for the children of Lincoln, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," Saturday afternoon, December 7, as the second of a series of plays to be given this winter at the Children's theater. The play is under the direction of Miss Katherine Masterson.

That there is a desire for good plays for children in Lincoln was proved at the opening of the theater two weeks ago. Youngsters who came a bit late had to be turned away and every available seat and chair that could be put into the Temple theater in safety was used before the curtain rose on the first act of "Snow White."

Children's Theater Plans Second Play

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" has been dramatized from the story by Alice Hegan Rice, which has delighted both children and grown-ups for many years. The play has been simplified and cut in length in order to appeal to young children as well as older children and is full of funny scenes and characters that have an appeal for little children. It will be presented in three acts, the curtain to rise promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Entertainment will be furnished between acts as it was the last time in order to help keep small people from growing restless during the shifting of scenery.

The cast of characters will be as follows:

Mrs. Wiggs—Josephine Douglas.
Little Tommy—Gail Jenne.
Lovey Mary—Katherine Masterson.
Miss Hasey—Valerie Worrell.
Miss Lucy—Betty Evans.
Mrs. Eichorn—Charlotte Wells.
Mrs. Schultz — Helen Knollenberg.
Asia—Doris Hosman.
Australia—Katherine Gallagher.
Mr. Wiggs—Max Jones.
Mr. Bob—Kenneth Threlkeld.
Billy Wiggs—Joe Tomisca.
Mr. Jones—Paul Thomson.
Deputy Sheriff—Paul Calhoun.
Chris Hasey—James Ayres.

Lincoln school children who will have minor parts in the play for this week will be Lula Belle Emerson, Virginia Emerson, Janet Smith, Paul Jones and Carl George.

Regional Women's Business Club Meet At Manitou, Colo

Grace A. Trott, District Chairman, Begins Laying Of Plans For Conference Next June; Preparations For Norfolk Sectional Meeting December 8 Nearly Complete.

Miss Grace A. Trott, chairman of the west central regional conference of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, has received word from the national organization that the conference will be held on June 16, 17 and 18 at Manitou, Colo.

Miss Trott received her appointment as chairman of the regional district from the national president last spring. She has been a club worker and organizer for a number of years, and was one of the first to work in the state organization, last year serving as state president. She is a past president of her local club and is active vice-president of BR, P. E. O. of Lincoln.

The west central division includes the states of Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico. The state presidents will form the program committee to work with Miss Trott. They are:

Wyoming, Miss Julia B. Freeborn, Cheyenne.

North Dakota, Miss Eleanor Bryson, Minot.

South Dakota, Miss Lilliam English, Yankton.

Colorado, Miss Hester M. Smith, Denver.

New Mexico, Miss Grace Bowman, Santa Fe.

Miss Mollie Lamb of Omaha was recently appointed transportation chairman. Other appointments for credentials and registration, finance, hospitality, local arrangements and publicity committee officers will be made within a few weeks.

The conference program will include federation activities along the following lines:

Officers' training class.
Parliamentary law practice.
Club mechanics.
Committee round tables.
Song leaders training class.
Emblem pageants and ceremonials.
Thrift activities, international relations, and degislature problems will also be discussed.

Plan Norfolk Sectional Meeting.

Following the plan of the national federation, the Nebraska Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs has organized five sectional meetings. The first to be held at Norfolk on December 8.

Miss Amy Wolt, president of the Norfolk club, is the 4th Division chairman. She is being assisted by Miss Dorothy Nott, state chairman of resolutions and public relations.

The object of the meeting is to acquaint business and professional woman with the advantages of the state and national federation. State President Anna T. Lisson will be present and will preside at the good fellowship dinner which will be held at 12:30 o'clock. Registration will begin at 10:30 o'clock and the meeting will convene at 11 o'clock. Miss Grace Trott, state chairman, will give talks on federation work. A member of the Norfolk club will speak on the topic, "What my club membership means to me."

The towns and their presidents that will be represented are:

Wayne, Miss Ethel Stephens.
Madison, Miss Nelle Palmer.
Columbus, Mrs. Myrtle Nanninga.

Girl Reserves Plan City Christmas Vesper Service

Camp Fire Girls To Be Guests At Holiday Event December 8 At First Presbyterian Church; Irving High Club To Give Christmas Pageant At Orthopedic Hospital Thursday; New Leaders Announced.

The Girl Reserves of Lincoln will entertain the Camp Fire Girls at the city-wide vesper service at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon Dec. 8. A Christmas candle-lighting service in which many girls will have a part will be presented and carols will be sung by a chorus of Girl Reserves. Martha Hershey, president of the high school inter-club council, will preside.

The service had been previously arranged for Sunday afternoon, Dec. 15, but due to the conflict with the traditional candle-lighting service of the First Presbyterian church, which large numbers of people attend annually, the event has been changed to the earlier date.

Jackson high and teacher's college clubs have charge of making the programs, which will contain the complete order of service. Lincoln and Bethany high school clubs will furnish the ushers in uniform.

The Lincoln high school club is sponsoring a series of five meetings on charm and personality. Last week Dean Fordyce from Nebraska university gave an illustrated lecture on personality, emphasizing the way in which faces express inner worth. Numerous slides of well-known people demonstrated the well-received lecture. Wednesday afternoon a style show will be presented under the direction of Una Jean Davis. Mrs. H. M. Parmalee will give a talk on "Feminine Foibles," and a skit will be presented by four girls of the music committee under the direction of Ana Margaret Brehm.

Jackson high Girl Reserves surprised their membership last week with an impromptu program of initiation stunts which were thoroughly enjoyed.

The Whittier members made one hundred turkeys out of pine cones and crepe paper for the Thanksgiving party which was given by the Woman's club at the Orthopedic hospital last Friday afternoon. Carolyn Davis, Vivan Everett, Beth Burr, and Nellie Brundige who took the favors out to the hospital were also guests at the party. At their regular meeting next Tuesday afternoon at the school, plans will be made for the fox and goose chase which is to take place next Saturday.

Present Christmas Pageant.

Dorothy Smith as chairman of the service committee at Irving junior high school has charge of the Christmas program which will be given at the Orthopedic hospital next Thursday afternoon at four o'clock. A toy orchestra will play several numbers, in addition to readings, dances, and a talk by Miss Ruth Easterday on Christmas spirit. A Pageant in four scenes, depicting the celebration of Christmas in Russia, Syria, Italy, and Mexico will be given by Iola Alger, Dorothy Smith, Jane Jeefer, Lotus Hastings, Ilene Powell, Maren Dobson, Margaret Werner, Margaret Stanford, Virginia Zemer, Ila Fern Hullstrom, Edne Jane Forney, and Virginia Smith. Vera May Peterson will be the reader.

The eighty members in the Irving Girl Reserve club have chosen hobbies and are divided into hobby groups. The members of the drama group are Janet Austin, Elinor Farrell, Esther Goodman, Betty Gronquist, Helen Hewitt, Luella Hunt, Ruth Irish, Dorothy Jahn, Henrietta Kortlang, Margaret Munger, Roberta Pruitt and Bessie Stine. The handicraft hobby group is composed of Kathryn Adams, Elizabeth Christian, Florence Daggett, Margaret Johnson, Margaret Lanphere, Lotus Miller, Elizabeth Moomaw, Vera Oxenford, Winona Pearson, Kathryn Simpson, Beth Taylor, Mae Tharker, Ruth Turner, Naomi Walker and Betty Woods. The music group which sponsors an orchestra and other activities consists of Constance Baker, Margaret Baker, Dorothy Bates, Doris Buell, Kathryn Cartney, Carol Clark, Ramona Gahn, Lotus Hastings, Helen Pauley, Eileen Powell, Hope Probasco, Wilma Riggle, Margaret Shaner, Fauna Sorensen, Margaret Staneisforth, Nadine Wheller and Virginia Zemer. The sports hobby group is the largest one, consisting of Catherine Adams, Roberta Albers, Iola Aulger, Irene Bachman, Adella Burkard, Claudine Burt, Dorothy Card, Shirley Diamond, Ina Clarke, Maren Dobson, Edna Forney, Helen Groves, Betty Haynes, Ila Fern Hullstrom, Ada Harding, Janet Hoevet, Jane Keefer, Betty Knox, Elizabeth Lein, Vera May Peterson, Dorothy Smith, Virginia Smith, Helen Spain, Marlan Staley, Theresa Stava, Louise Stephens, Susan Elizabeth Stoll, Mae Thomas and Margaret Werner.

The sports group held a hobo hike yesterday afternoon, marking the trail of their wanderings with tin cans labelled with characteristic symbols. The entire supper was cooked over a camp fire, at Belstew to which each girl contributed mont park and included vegetable some vegetable, baking powder biscuits cooked on sticks, pop corn and taffy apples.

The Girl Reserves at Twenty-sixth and O streets, under the leadership of Miss Bernice Peterson, are preparing a Christmas play which will include all of the members as characters, costumers, property managers and stage setters. The play will be given at several institutions in the city as well as before other Girl Reserve groups.

New Leaders.

Miss Louise Plageman will be the adviser for the new group which has been organized at Saratoga school. There are nineteen little girls in the club. They are Marjorie Wiederspan, Eileen Weirvint, Virginia Van Winkle, Evelynne Trigg, Grace Thomas, Betty Thielen, Angela Matthai, Viola

—Bucklin Photo.

Fifty little boys and girls of the primary department of the Hawthorne community church Sunday school and twenty mothers were present for the Thanksgiving party at the church Wednesday afternoon. Games were played. Late in the afternoon, corn was popped, and the hot corn and lolly pops were served the little folks. The rooms were decorated with bright colored balloons, which were given the small guests as favors.

Mrs. C. E. Saal is in charge of the primary department, which has an enrollment of eighty-one youngsters. The Sunday school has a weekly attendance of about 200 children from all parts of the city. The school is departmentalized, with sessions from the nursery age through the adult. W. M. Bryant is superintendent of the Sunday school, and the Rev. G. H. Main is pastor of the church.

Regional Business Women's Clubs Meet In Colorado

June Neiman told of many of the different subjects discussed at the state meeting held at Aurora this month and Miss Leola Richert, club president, spoke of the club growth contest, outlined at the state meeting, each club participating in the contest on a membership basis.

One of the topics offered by the committee in charge of the evening was the "Pal" or "Heart Sister" idea. This suggestion is to be carried out by the club for the next three months.

Miss Catherine Deines, registered nurse of Lincoln, was a guest for the evening and gave several demonstrations and a number of ideas on first aid work.

The next meeting, the business and social monthly meeting, will be held December 10 at the club rooms.

Hears Investment Talk.

The Business and Professional Women's club of Grand Island met table decorations were suggestive of Thanksgiving and sixty members and guests enjoyed dinner together, after which Miss Ruth Shaw, president, introduced Clarence Newell, who favored the group with two piano solos, "Impromptu" by Schubert and one of ach's "Two Part Inventions."

Miss Shaw then introduced I. R. Alter who addressed the club members on "Safe Investments". Mr. Alter began by quoting a saying from Patrick Henry, "There is no light which lights the pathway like the lamp of experience," and he said that he would like to add that there is no substitute for experience. Many persons find it hard to find an authority on investments and Mr. Alter stressed the point that after one who is supposed to know has been consulted, it is always best to check that authority before investing. Friends may be sincere but their judgment is sometimes very poor. According to Mr. Alter, government bonds are the safest investment. He then placed first mortgages on real estate and then industrial bonds. The investment must be suited to the investor, of course, the investor taking the largest risks may have the biggest returns, but some investors are not in a position to assure large risks. After presenting the club's library with a bulletin published by the Better Business bureau of Kansas City and stating that he would send this bulletin, which stresses clean advertising and protects against promoters, to the club regularly, he closed with the remark that before investing, investigate.

After the address, a business meeting was held at which Miss Laura Dunlop reported on the meeting of the officers, chairmen and presidents, representing the twenty women's clubs which she and Miss Shaw attended Sunday, Nov. 17, at Aurora. Miss Dunlop said that the state convention would be held in Hastings in April. The Hastings president, Miss Angeline Wood, and the state program chairman are now making arrangements for a national federation speaker. A tentative plan was arranged by which four district, meetings are to be held before the state convention. The state membership has grown so extensively that it is impossible for all members to attend meetings when they are held at too great a distance from local clubs. The district meetings, which are to be held at Crete, Fremont, Norfolk and Grand Island, will keep the members in closer touch with the work of the state federation. She also announced that the west central regional district convention which includes the state of Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico will be held at Manitou, Colo., next June.

Miss Delphia Taylor was apointed as the club's representative for the local Christmas Cheer work.

Saline County Pioneer Eighty-four Years Old

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 3—Mrs. Adelia Wheeler of Crete will celebrate her eighty-second birthday anniversary next Tuesday when she will be the guest of honor at a birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Dudley, Lincoln.

When Mrs. Wheeler with her husband, Daniel, and baby migrated from Rockford, Ill., to Saline county in 1868, they settled four and one half miles northeast of Crete. The pine floors, siding and shingles for their little cabin were hauled from Nebraska City.

After their dwelling was completed, this young couple had but fifty cents left with which to start house keeping, although they did have a supply of provisions. Mrs. Wheeler says that there was no city of Crete here at that time. However there was an encampment of about five hundred Indians less than a mile from their home.

Grandma Wheeler is still very active both physically and mentally. On October 29 she was an honored guest at the American Legion auxiliary banquet, at which time she addressed that organization and presented to it the historic gavel which was received by the ladies of the G. A. R. when she was their president. Her husband, who was a Civil war veteran, passed away ten years ago.

Mrs. Wheeler is the mother of eight children, six of whom are living. They are Mrs. J. E. Dudley, Lincoln; Charles Wheeler, Chicago; Mrs. Fred Mair, Mrs. H. E. Field, George and Thomas, all of Crete. Thomas is now residing on the old homestead. There are 11 grandchildren and 10 great grand children.

Weddings At Crete.

A very pretty wedding occurred Wednesday morning at nine o'clock when Miss Marie Muff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muff, became the bride of Dennis Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Murphy of Friend. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Mosier, at the Sacred Heart church, before a large number of relatives and friends. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Dolores Algermissen, cousin of the bride, and by Allen Murphy, Dubuque, the groom's brother. The white satin gown adorned with seed pearls, in which the bride was attired, was of the fitted princess type with a long skirt of uneven hemline. A wreath of orange blossoms held the long tulle veil in place. A shower bouquet of roses was carried by the bride. The bridesmaid wore an orchid satin dress made in the bouffant style with fitted bodice and uneven hemline.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a honeymoon in St. Louis Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside upon the Murphy farm near Friend.

A simple service marked the marriage of Miss Audry Gannon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oley Gannon, Seward, to Robert F. Warkow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Warkow, Crete, solemnized last Sunday, by Rev. Adolph Schrein, at the John attended the bride and groom. Bethelehem Lutheran parsonage. Miss Libby Havlicek and Ralph St. Mr. and Mrs. Warkow will make their home in Crete and will live at the Cosmopolitan hotel.

Music Club Meets.

The Crete Music club was entertained Monday at the home of Mrs. A. S. Lefferdink. Prof. Charles V. Kettering portrayed the life of Wagner and gave the plot of his opera, Die Valkgries. His lecture was interspersed with music taken from the opera. Mrs. W. H. Ferguson reviewed, briefly, the lives of famous German composers and their types of music. These included Mozart Bach, Schumann, Schubert and Brahms. Mrs. Thomas Dredla played "Prelude in C," by Bach, as a piano number. Mrs. Fred Boekel, jr., with Mrs. L. F. Klein accompanying, sang three selections, Ave Maria, Serenade, and Hark, Hark, the Lark, by Schumann. Miss Lois Lefferdink, with Miss Ruth Taylor at the piano, played a violin solo, Largo, by Handel. Following the meeting, a reception was held complimentary to Mrs. W. H. Ferguson, who leaves Crete soon to make her home in Lincoln.

Week's Club Activities.

The Axis club held its regular social meeting Monday evening and enjoyed an especially arranged radio program, with station A-X-I-S broadcasting. The program consisted of reproduced musical numbers, a talk on salesmanship by Mrs. Iola Wilding, one on life insurance by Myrtle Benne, and a bed time story by Bernice Brabec, with Mrs. C. E. Beals as comedian. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. A. Burrus had as her luncheon guests on Friday, the members of the Sorosis club. Yellow and white chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece of the luncheon table and were also used through the living room. Chocolate turkeys and a "bushel" of corn were seasonal favors. The program was in charge of Mrs. George Dunlap. Her topic was, "Stories of Famous Songs." Mrs. C. E. Bender and Mrs. C. L. Anderson sang, "Juanita," and Mesdames O. L. Bassett, C. E. Bender, C. L. Anderson and H. J. Matzke sang a medley of national airs. The program was brought to a close with a vocal duet, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," sung by Mrs. Dunlap and Mrs. Mary Johnston.

Thanksgiving Bride.

Mrs. Dennis Murphy was formerly Marie Muff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muff of Crete.

Is 82 Years Old.

Mrs. Adelia Wheeler, Saline county pioneer, will celebrate her eighty-second birthday on December 3, in Lincoln.

Holiday Observed In Realistic Fashion

Armistice day in the kindergarten of Park school was celebrated successfully in a most realistic manner. It would seem, according to the pictures, that the hospital idea was featured. There was a hospital equipped with beds and bedding, to say nothing of a score of Red Cross nurses more than willing to do their bit by bandaging wounds, serving food and taking the pulse. There were some soldiers who were able to be out of their beds, and these were provided with crutches. A stretcher made of gunny sacks and iron rods was used by the nurses to carry crippled soldiers if it were necessary to move them. There was also a large tent constructed of gunny sacks, with flags marking the two entrances. One of the special features of the program was the signing of the armistice by two young soldiers, thus making sure that the World war was at an end.

A parade around the playground led by a band, and with all in the procession wearing either soldier hats or Red Cross caps, and each small child carrying a flag, completed the celebration.

The pictures of the kindergarten group were taken by T. V. Goodrich. Miss Jessie E. Keller is kindergarten director, and Miss Grayce Leighton is assistant director.

The No Host Dinner Bridge club was entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Collins. Places for eight were found at a table decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and yellow tapers. All other appointments carried out the same color scheme. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wygant received high are ten real daughters of the Revo scores in the evening's game of bridge.

Mrs. R. L. Wygant entertained the Crete Bridge club and three guests, Miss Mary Katherine Ward, Mrs. Ed Wilding and Mrs. Waldo A. Keitges, at a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday. The guests were seated at one large table centered with a bouquet of white daisies and small yellow button chrysanthemums. Miniature aeroplanes were the combination place cards and tallies. At the bridge game Mrs. Earl Hardeman made high club score and Mrs. Keitges high guest score.

Members of the K. O. club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Olivette Wednesday evening for bridge. There were two tables of players. Mrs. Floyd Segleke and Walter Bilhorn won the prizes. A two course supper was served at the card tables at the close of the game.

The Security Benefit association entertained the juvenile members Tuesday evening. There were forty-five in attendance. hTe time was spent playing games, after which refreshments were served. There were favors for the children.

Early Luncheons Feature Social Club Gatherings

One o'clock luncheons at downtown hotels and at the homes of members, were a feature of the past week's social club meetings. Pastel shaded chrysanthemums rivaled the Thanksgiving decorational scheme for popularity at the luncheon tables of hostesses. Several clubs met in the evening, and the FF. F. C. club was entertained at breakfast Wednesday at 10 o'clock by Mrs. T. J. Hohman, 3752 Everett street. Covers were laid for nine at one table. Mrs. Melvin Beech and Mrs. W. H. Carson of Minneapolis were the guests.

Entertainment for this affair was bridge, at which Mrs. W. H. Carson made high score. Mrs. William Vidlock was second. The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. F. L. Turner, 2816 Q street.

Club Plays Cards.

Miss Kate Field entertained the London Bridge club at her home, 1954 A tsreet, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Twelve guests attended and spent the evening with bridge. The hostess served supper at the bridge tables at the close of the evening. The club will meet again in two weeks.

Observe November Birthdays

Patsy Ruth Perkins, upper left, is the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Perkins, 901 South Fortieth street. She celebrated her first birthday November 13. The dinner for Patsy also honored her aunt, Miss Ruth Frost, who has her birthday the same day.

Fourteen friends were present for the fifth birthday anniversary dinner of Betty Jane Stewart, upper right, at the home of Mrs. Elmer Lindholm, 1900 N street, Havelock, Wednesday. Betty Jane, whose birthday was Tuesday, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart of Chattanooga, Tenn., and with her parents is visiting in Havelock.

John Richard Fischer celebrated his fourth birthday November 30. John, lower left, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Fischer, 519 South Second street.

Irma Rose Tingelhoff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Tingelhoff, 3614 J street. Irma was 7 years old November 29.

Millions of Marvelous Modern Toys Being Manufactured For Santa Claus' Orders This Year

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Merry old Kris Kringle and his jolly reindeer make their annual trip to fill the stockings of boys and girls a few weeks hence and a survey today showed that already his thousands of assistants in this Santa Claus-land have constructed millions of marvelous modern toys from his blue prints.

Iceless refrigerators, airplanes that actually fly under their own power, fire trucks, racing fire engines with aerial ladders and little men rescuing a girl from a blazing orphan asylum are among the wonderful toys for this Christmastide.

The survey disclosed that New England, to a large extent, has supplanted Germany as "Toyland."

The survey was made by the Boston and Maine railrad and revealed carload after carload of toys, which will gladden many a small heart on Christmas day moving west and north, south and east.

Original Toy Town.

Just a peep behind the curtains of these Santa Claus freight cars in this area today disclosed that in this year's parade almost every conceivable sort of invention is included.

Rocking horses, tool chests, drums, ring-toss games, doll's furniture, miniature pool tables, miniature pianos and many other things, including the very latest in the furnishing of the doll house,—"iceless refrigerators,"—are being loaded by the thousands. The miniature "iceless refrigerators" complete even to "ice cubes" have been produced for the young lady "house-keepers" and their doll families.

Where toys that "wind up" and "go places" are produced, freight cars were being loaded with airplanes that fly, racing automobiles that reproduce the "Golden Arrow" and other famous racing cars, toy soldiers, fire engines, motor coaches of all colors and sizes, and scores of other things that whizz about and make childish delight. The airplanes actually fly—some as far as 900to 1,000 feet—with wings of balsam wood from South America.

Wonderful Contraption.

Perhaps the most wonderful contraption from a child's point of view is the new fire-engine-huse combination. A metal fire house with an aerial ladder truck inside is shown with a replica of an orphan asylum some distance away. On the outside of the fire house is a tiny alarm box. Opening the door discloses a hook. Pulling the hook sounds a bell. The bell taps off a box number. There is a whirring noise and the fire house doors fly open. The ladder truck dashes forth, speeds to the orphan asylum where the arrival is marked by the big ladder being raised to the roof. Up the ladder scramble two miniature men with a line of hose. The child is found and rescued—all in the matter of a minute or two. The whole is a most intriguing operation.

Escape From Chinese Bandits Recalled As Lincoln Man Meets Fellow Adventurer

More than the usual significance of a meeting between close friends after long separation attended the chance meeting of Roy A. Brehm, Lincoln, and C. J. Jensen, Minneapolis, here Friday, for it was three years to the day since their reunion at the close of the siege of the city of Sain Fu, province of Schensi, China, where both were missionaries of the Scandinavian Alliance mission, an interdenominational undertaking.

Mr. Brehm, who returned to America for the first time in five years in time to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brehm, 2134 Lake street, had left Sian Fu with a party of fifteen missionaries and students for a neighboring town one week before it was surrounded by an army led by a former Schensi province governor, who failing in his attempted conquest of the neighboring province of Honan, tried to regain his former authority in Schensi, which meanwhile had come under control of the "second army," comprised chiefly of bandits who systematically pillaged the town, according to Mr. Brehm.

A week later Mr. Brehm's party returned to find the gates of the town closed to them. That was early in May. Followed what was probably the longest and most disastrous siege in modern history, Mr. Brehm declares. About 30,000 persons perished in its 195 days' duration.

By a curious twist of fate, neither attackers or defenders emerged victorious but a third army, Christian Chinese troops commanded by Marshall Feng, forced by reversals in battle to flee from northern China and on their way to the interior, routed the besiegers and entered the city, amidst wild acclaim of the inhabitants, to make Sian Fu the headquarters for the Christian Chinese army. Two days later the exiled missionary group was reunited with their marooned comrades. Brehm had been a member of the group shut out of the city; Jensen had been unable to leave because of business, although several missionaries, under terms of a temporary truce arranged with leaders of both armies, had been permitted to quit the city October 11.

Meet In "No Man's Land."

October 11, 1926, will always be a red letter day for Mr. Brehm. "With each group of missionaries carrying Red Cross flags, we met halfway between both armies in what might be called "no man's land." Bullets whined overhead as our little group of twenty-five met for the first time in five months. Several returned behind the lines with us, but Mr. Jensen, business manager of the mission, was one of the few who returned to the city. Mrs. Jensen was the only foreign woman left in the city."

Mr. Brehm did not know that Mr. Jensen was to be in Lincoln Friday until told that the former missionary was delivering an address at the Swedish Mission church Friday night.

For 14 months, beginning May 1, 1927, date of the evacuation of missionaries as result of the communistic influence fostered by Russia, Mr. Brehm was the only Protestant missionary in Sian Fu. Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, fearing for the safety of their two daughters, had sailed for America and Mr. Brehm had assumed the business manager's duties.

The Russian influence reached its peak in China in 1926 when propaganda of Russian advisors of northern Chinese armies penetrated Chinese ranks with telling effect. Southern China, with its feudal system of land tenure, had all ready been effectively communized.

The wave of communism was anti-Christian in character, but Russian agitators feared to take the lives of missionaries. Atrocities perpetrated by the bolsheviks was the cause of the downmall of communism in China, Mr. Brehm says.

Break With Russia.

The final break came when Marshall Feng, described by Mr. Brehm as the most patriotic Chinese, and Chiang Kai Shek, present Chinese president and military leader against whom two rebellious factions are now battling, decided that China was being used as a "stepping stone" for a world revolution destined to establish Russian supremacy even at expense of destruction of China, and ordered exile of Borodin, leader of Russian propagandists.

On his way to Russia Borodin and his party stopped at Sian Fu and Mr. Brehm came face to face with the famous Russian leader, noted for his seclusion. Mr. Brehm sent English-printed Chinese newspapers the first authentic news that Borodin had actually departed, thus quieting fears that Borodin would remain in China to stir up trouble in the northwest, where Sian Fu is located.

their struggle to overthrow the nationalistic government of Chiang Kai Shek, successor to Sun Yat Sen, "the Washington of China," and who was Sun Yat Sen's chief military aide.

Ten Per Cent Rule.

Illegal appropriations of government monies and the fact that officials did not get their positions according to the provisions of representative government are the two chief causes of the revolt, according to Mr. Brehm, who states that the nationalists are harder pressed than they have been since the capture of Peking two years ago. Popular sentiment, he explains, is usually with the faction that has the most money, which in this case is the nationalist party.

Despite these allegations, China's government is more representative and dependable than ever before, he thinks. "For governmental improvement, morals of the Chinese must be elevated. Chinese, easily influenced and governed by mob rule, have an inherent distrust of each other."

The wealthier ten per cent comprise the ruling class, according to Mr. Brehm, who declares that the other ninety per cent are agriculturalists and peace-loving, used as "cannon fodder" by those in power.

Educated Respect America.

The educated class, the only one capable of thoughts has far more respect for America than any other country but America's innovations have proved both detrimental and beneficial, he says. American movies have been the chief offender, with a resultant derrogatory effect upon Chinese womanhood, Mr. Brehm stated.

Business is improving on the coast but warfare makes business impossible in the interior. The land is the most fertile of the globe, he believes.

Sian Fu has an important place in Chinese history, having been the capital for hundreds of years and possessing the strongest wall of any Chinese city. It was the center of the Chinese revolution of 1911 when its 10,000 Manchus, comprising the ruling class, were massacred. Sian Fu was also the haven for English refuges during the Boxer rebellion.

Starvation Takes Toll.

Famine conditions near Sian Fu are probably the worst in China, Mr. Brehm believes. It is not an unusual sight to see streets of Chinese cities littered with dead bodies, the toll of starvation. In many cases food is only a day's journey away but inadequate transportation facilities and guerilla warfare prevent its shipment.

After a two weeks stay here Mr. Brehm will go to Chicago for further religious work, having surrendered his Chinese post. He graduated from Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, having taken preparatory work at Northwestern college in Napierville, Ill., and at Nebraska Wesleyan university. He went to China in August, 1924, teaching the first three years in the school for missionaries' children.

University Notes

Two etchings and two wood engravings by B. A. Benson, instructor in the school of fine arts, have been accepted by the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and Philadelphia Water Color clubs and placed on exhibit at the annual exhibition of the work being shown in Philadelphia, November 3-December 8. Three of the contributions were deer prints and the fourth a landscape. Mr. Benson was also elected to membership in the Print club at Philadelphia.

Lasting Freshness
--Made In Lincoln

Lulu S. Wolford, Nebraska Educator, Writes of Beauties and Possibilities Of Rocky Mountain Region After Trip

BY LULU S. WOLFORD.

After a lapse of several years a visit to the Rockies is a source of ever changing and never ending pleasure.

Colorado in mid-October is at its best. Its mountains are remarkable for variety and ruggedness and are the most picturesque on the continent.

Five highways lead into their vast solitudes and wind in and out ever turning and doubling back until the heights and passes are scaled.

The varying shades of green of pine and cedar form a background for the gorgeous tints of blue spruce, crimson and scarlet sumac and the quivering gold of the aspen tipped in orange and flame. Crystal clear are the streams effecting the colorings of autumn and the turquoise of the sky.

Red Rocks Near Denver.

Just a short drive from Denver are the Red Rocks, rising obliquely from the plains and traversed in every direction by newly-constructed roads laid down like red ribbons.

Denver is a beautiful city, well groomed, populous and busy. Here we meet a number of former Lincoln, Nebraska, people, among them Frank Farmer and Charles and Joseph Reed, who are members of the only quartet in the world employed full time by a mortuary. The beauty of their music is not soon forgotten.

Longmont, Boulder and Fort Collins are especially attractive because of their proximity to the mountains. There are a number of lakes in this section of the state, the fields are irrigated and produce car loads of sugar beets which were being harvested and stacked in great ricks for shipment to the sugar factories.

Tall Men In Casper.

The outstanding town of eastern Wyoming is Casper, an oil city. Great reservoirs of crude oil surround it on two sides and there is an awakening interest in rumored prospects of further discoveries in the "Salt Flats." A conspicuous feature of Casper is its many tall men. Its cordiality and hospitality makes the veriest tenderfoot feel welcome.

Leaving Casper one traverses beautiful Wind River Canyon to Thermopolis, boasting of hot mineral springs and mud baths and well established as a health resort.

The water pours through the irrigation ditches from Shoshone Canyon to water the rich valleys around Powell. Sugar beets, alfalfa, small grains, vegetables, especially potatoes, honey and sheep hold the interest of the farmers. There is considerable oil excitement near Powell, several good wells being recently "brought in" in the vicinity. One at Frannie is producing 2,500 barrels daily with a potentiality of 5,000.

Cody Is "Buffalo Bill's" Town.

Cody, at the entrance of Yellowstone Park is best known of Wyoming's towns, being founded by the famous Colonel William F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill."

With the founding of Cody he built the Irma hotel, named for his daughter, which is still maintained by the present owner with but little change. A great fireplace of native stone, surmounted by a buffalo skull is in the eastern end of the great lobby and many fine oil paintings interspersed with mounted animal heads adorn the walls of the lobby, dining room and halls. The great bar with its splendid mirrors still extends across the end of the dining room flanked by fine cabinets whose original purpose may be left to the imagination.

The Cody family and the townspeople have recently erected a museum as a monument to Colonel Cody. His neice, Mrs. Mary Jester Allen, is in charge.

Hears of Escapades.

Another niece, Mrs. Harry Thurston, entertained me in her home one evening wtih a recital of many interesting and thrilling escapades of the intrepid old scout. She exhibited a picture of him mounted on his horse. This picture is fashioned entirely from birch bark by Merrill Concord.

She told of the old home at North Platte, Neb., known as "Scouts Rest Ranch" and of his duel with the Indian, Yellow Hand, in which the latter was slain and Cody wounded, although this latter fact was known to but few. This occurred in 1875 and Yellow Hand was the only Indian Cody ever scalped. This scalp is still in the possession of Johnny Baker, at Lookout Mountain, Colo., where Colonel and Mrs. Cody are burried.

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney designed and gave to Cody a fine bronze statue of Buffalo Bill which guards the entrance to the Shoshone Canyon. He is mounted, turning toward his men to issue an order while his right hand is thrown high in the air grasping his gun which is pointing westward and upward towards the mountains.

Photographed With Sitting Bull.

Buffalo Bill is the only white man with whom Sitting Bull would consent to be photographed, no other being able to command this austere Indian's respect.

In the museum is the old muzzle-loading goose-gun weighing fourteen pounds used by Cody in hunting geese in the vicinity of Braconville, Neb. He hunted by boat and was often accompanied by John Dehn, sr., who built the first hotel in Braconville, and by Joe Opelt, part Indian, who ran this hotel, and later built the Opelt hotel on Ninth and P streets in Lincoln. These incidents were related by the county assessor, H. A. Phillips, formerly of Firth, who secured and donated the gun to the museum.

Colonel Cody promoted the first irrigation project in Wyoming. He later organized and traveled throughout the country with an animal show for the education of children.

Colonel Powell, Cody's close friend is buried on Red Rocks overlooking the city and rumor has it that Cody was to have his final resting place on his beloved Cedar mountain or on Rattlesnake mountain. Why he was buried on Lookout Mountain, near Denver, is a matter of conjecture.

"Dude" Ranches Flourish.

Wyoming is the state of rodeos and "dude" ranches. These ranches are seldom in evidence from the highway as it is customary to build them back far enough that they may not detract from the wild natural scenery.

But we must leave Wyoming for the state that is third in area and estimated as relatively the most sparsely populated, Montana.

This too, is a picturesque mountainous state with many small thriving towns nestling in valleys among the mountains. Men who profess to know, estimate the population of the entire state as below 650,000.

Springs Feed Missouri.

It is in this state that the mighty Missouri has its beginning, and not far from Three Rivers is Great Falls. Here are several smelters. Here also is the largest spring (feeding the Missouri), to be found in the United States. Walks are built in several directions over these springs that one may stand above the waters surging up through the cleft rocks. It is blue green like the sea in appearance, so clear you can see the pebbles and fish in the stream-bed. The springs maintain a uniform temperature of fifty-seven degrees.

The "Big Muddy" that we know the Missouri to be is quite in contrast to its limpid purity as a mountain stream.

Montana's capital city, Helena, is unique. It follows the gulch where placer gold was discovered and as the gold was panned and mined the city was built over the mined ground, following the contortions of the gulch. Its streets were precipitous, tortuous, apparently without beginning or end, and cardinal points are unknown. The only directions one can be sure of are up and down and there are plenty of both! "Up and down" together with "left" and "right" form the vocabulary of direction.

Here reside Frank Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, formerly Susie Wallace, and Penelope Ring Harris, all of whom were reared in Lincoln.

Old-timer Reminisces.

Mr. Johnson delights to tell how as children he, Penelope Ring and Ruth Bryan used to ride over the streets and sidewalks in the vicinity of Seventeenth and H streets, on a wonderful vehicle of his construction, a pair of wheels from a vaby cab forming his "rolling stock."

Mr. Johnson is vice president of the American National bank and Mrs. Harris' husband is connected with the federal government survey.

Butte is Montana's metropolis and is unique in many respects. The city never has an absolute check on population because it is so shifting and because so many are underground in the mines. It is estimated at 70,000.

A gold miner from Virginia City came prospecting for gold and in disappointment and disgust drove his pick into a mountain top and threw down his shovel and left. Some months later his tools were found oyxized with copper and hence the discovery of the richest copper mines in the world.

A Hodge-Podge Town.

It is a hodge-podge town. The miners building their homes around the shafts into the earth, so that homes, dumps, business houses and refuse, slag, streets and tracks are all mixed up together as if dumped out of a sack.

The old home of United States Senator Clark, a large brick house, was pointed out with the information that the shaft to his mine is in the back yard. The tall smoke stacks belch out clouds of gray smoke that settle down over the town like a pall obstructing the view until a breeze springs up and blows it away. Dirt and grease prevail and yet Butte is one of the most interesting and exciting cities imaginable.

We drove up the mountain side among the mines, a tortuous, steep climb. Many of the shafts extend into the earth 5,000 feet, and there are "levels" every one hundred feet where landings from the cage may be made. From these landings are "drifts" and "swopes" where the miners follow and blast out the veins of ore. The ore is mined upward from a "level." It is handled by man power but once. Air pressure drills, dynamite and blasting powder are used in breaking loose the ore.

There is so much sulphur in the ore that when well ignited it will smelt itself. This leads to fires in some of the mines.

Fires Are "Walled Off."

A fire that cannot be controlled is walled off and firemen stationed to keep it under constant surveillance, Should smoke or flame be discovered the mine is immediately cleared and the damage repaired.

Every precaution is taken for the safety of the men and most accidents are said to be due to carelessness on the part of the miners themselves.

The ore is shipped to Anaconda about twenty-five miles distant, where it is refined. The Anaconda is said to be the greatest mining company in the world, and Montana is reputed to produce the richest copper ore.

It is estimated that there has been about 5,000 persons coming into Butte during the past six months. Owing to the high wage scale minimum wages are said to be about six dollars a day and maximum fifteen dollars, the increase depending upon the degree of responsibility assumed.

Virginia City Once Great.

Virginia City was once a teeming city of upward of 75,000 souls in the days when millions in gold placer was mined there. Now it has a census of two hundred.

Prospectors are ever on the hunt for rich veins and one sees the evidence of explorations in every direction. Some of these prospectors are financed by eastern capitalists and some are "grub-staked," which means that the prospector secures the necessities of life by bargaining with some individual to so provide for him, in return for a fifty-fifty interest in his findings should he strike "pay dirt."

There are usually plenty who are willing and ready to take the chance and provide a "grub-stake" of approximately fifty dollars a month.

Several Lincoln Families There.

Among the former Lincoln people living in Butte, are Rev. and Mrs. Cole of the Mountain View M. E. church, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Person. Mrs. Person will be remembered best as Mildred Sampson. The doctor is a member of a hospital staff and has several times gone down a deep shaft to administer aid to an injured miner.

A state convention of women was held in Butte last summer and one of the entertainments was a visit to a mine. The visitors were placed in a cage and dropped down about 5,000 feet. Since the drop occupies somewhat less than three minutes and is in utter darkness, it is small wonder many emerged from the cage in tears. There is no end of thrills for the tenderfoot.

Montana is unsurpassed for beauty and natural resources and there are thousands of acres of land open to homesteads. It has millions of opportunities for investment, adventure, discoveries and wealth. It is an inviting place for summer resorts, "dude" ranches and homes.

In the words of Horace Greeley, "Go West, young man, go West."

FIRE CAUSES $200,000 LOSS.

HOOVER PLAN TO GUIDE C. OF C.

National Conference Meets in Washington On Thursday.

Spokesmen of Industries To Present Their Views.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—Spurred on by the recent economic conferences held by President Hoover, 250 men, representing leadership in nearly every branch of commerce carried on in America, will gather at the United States chamber of commerce next week to plan next year's work.

Dedicating their work to preservation of a normal economic balance, they will be led by President Hoover and Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, nationally known economic expert, and others. They plan to conduct an exhaustive survey of business and industrial conditions throughout the country, and on this build up a structure calculated to carry the ship of commerce through the next twelve months safely and profitably.

Meet Thursday.

The group will assemble on Thursday, December 5. Mr. Hoover will open the series of conferences with an address stressing the important factor of co-operation and teamplay in business. Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Klein will attend all through to aid in working out the problems confronting the business leaders. The group expects to get a cross-section view of the country's work, and with this as a basis strengthen the weak spots and maintain the balance of those going well at present.

Already a preliminary survey of the business and industrial field has been made by leaders attending the conferences called by Mr. Hoover during the past two weeks. This group found conditions gratifying and in need only of a balance wheel to maintain them at their present status.

Prospects Bright.

"The preliminary survey shows surprisingly favorable factors, and these largely due to the growth of high standards and wise practices within organized business itself," the U. S. chamber of commerce commented in a bulletin announcing the conferences today.

"For example," the bulletin continued, "there are no accumulated inventories, thanks to wise manufacturing and merchandising practices, and to efficient transportation service.

"The study which we have made of the present business position and its outlook indicates the possibility of assistance at some points of weakness, so that it is reasonable to expect a continuance of business activity, generally."

Spokesmen for a number of important industries will be asked to present their views on the present condition of the business. Leaders in foodstuff manufacturing, industries, construction, coal, chemicals, implements, hardware, insurance, iron and steel, leather and leather products, lumber, advertising, amusement, exporting and financing, electrical, and mining and metallurgical industries will be among those to speak.

YOUNG PLAN IS UPHELD IN VOTE

Bill Against Reparations Proposal Loses 312 To 60.

Action of Reichstag Is Expected to Affect Public Vote.

BERLIN, Nov. 30—(INS)—Public opinion throughout Germany was ranged into two distinctive camps tonight over the action of the Reichstag in defeating the proposed bill directed against the Young plan for reparations payments.

By the overwhelming vote of 312 to 60, the Reichstag threw out the bill on its second reading. The defeat was a decided blow for the nationalist party, whose leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, prominent German publisher, had sponsored the measure.

The action of the Reichstag is expected to have a salient effect upon the public vote on the measure, which will be taken in a plebiscite scheduled for December 22. The plebiscite was obtained by Dr. Hugenberg through the medium of his newspapers and publications.

While many thousands of persons throughout Germany favor the measure, on the grounds the Young plan is detrimental to Germany's best interests, there is also great opposition to it, and the subject has resulted in a wide breach between the political factions in the country.

The German government, as represented by its cabinet and President Von Hindenburg, is unanimously opposed to the measure, which has been characterized by government spokesmen as "suicidal and chaotic."

Opera Secrets Bared?

Mme. Frances Alda, Former Wife of Metropolitan's Director and Radio Star Now, Writing of 22 Years Behind the Scenes.

MME. FRANCES ALDA.

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—Whether or not Mme. Frances Alda will tell "all" about the Metropolitan opera is a question debated in the best operatic circles these days.

Mme. Alda, deserting opera for the radio, until last year was the wife of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan opera. Then she obtained a divorce.

Now Mme. Alda is writing a book of her 22 years' experience at the opera. It will be ready in the spring, following completion of her last season at the Metropolitan.

Title Changed.

"I had intended calling the book 'Gatti-Casazza's Wife,'" Mme. Alda said. But the title is to be "Coming of Age With the Metropolitan."

"It is written, however, from the point of view of Gatti-Casazza's wife," Mme. Alda added. "I have selected a number of details behind the scenes at the Metropolitan that I think are of the greatest interest." Her eyes flashed.

Secrets.

"How many of those who attend the opera know that one of the popular operas always is sung one-half tone lower than it should be—to accommodate a favorite principal who cannot reach the high notes?" Mme. Alda went on. "And why, to the bewilderment of the public, are some principals given certain roles when other singers are more suitable?"

All of which is accentuated by the collapse and resignation of Josef Rosenstock, conductor brought from Germany for Wagnerian operas after conducting only three times.

Mme. Alda is singing six Puccini operas over the radio—one a month.

LAST REPORT OF GOOD IS ISSUED

War Secretary Reviews Militia, Waterway and Relief Projects.

Says River Transportation Has Been of Great Benefit To All.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)—The annual report of the late Secretary of War James W. Good, the final touches of which worried him on his deathbed, was made public today. It was the final chapter in a long and notable public career.

The report disclosed the secretary of war has more functions of a non-military nature than military. Good reviewed the flood control activities, inland waterways and river and harbor projects, and discussed insular possessions and canal projects. About one-third of the report dealt with army activities.

Good declared there has been created for the first time in the nation's history an efficiency military establishment" spread widely over the country, yet finely co-ordinated and capable of swift and united action."

He cited regular army activities, development of the national guard, organized reserves and training camp activities as contributing to this development. He said the war department has a war reserve supply sufficient to equip two field armies, approximately 1,000,000 men. The department had sought equipment for 1,500,000 men but congress reduced this figure.

Stresses Waterways.

Concerning the civilian activities of the war department Good declared:

"There can be unreasonable doubt that the Inland Waterways corporation has been of incalculable benefit to the people at large; that it is continually increasing its effectiveness and that it will eventually demonstrate that the development of our interior waterways and the proper utilization of such developed navigable streams will offer through co-ordination with railways and highways, a system of transportation furnishing cheaper freight rates to all people who have been taxed to create them; that each participating carried by joint routes will receive a reasonable return upon the money invested, and that before long the government can pass over the corporation's facilities to private capital for operation, with the assurance that they are so safeguarded by laws, precedents and decisions that their profitable operation will indicate to private enterprise the desirability of their continued operation."

Army Relief Work.

Good also called attention to the relief work done by the army during the past fiscal year, citing the Porto Rico hurricane of September 13, 1928, which three days later swept across Florida and inflicting great damage between Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach. The army afforded relief amounting to $953,766.35 in supplies, the report said. The army also afforded relief in Cumana, Venezuela, when it was razed by an earthquake in January, and the next month in Duncan, Miss., when that town was struck by a tornado. During last March when rivers overflowed in Florida and Alabama the army again went into action for civilian relief.

In April tents, blankets and cots had to be sent into Georgia when a tornado struck there. The army also did yeoman service when the Cleveland clinic was wrecked by fire May 15. The department also assisted in flood and storm relief work in Illinois, Indiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

CO-ED IS FREED IN THEFT TRIAL

Accused $2,000 Gem Robbery While Working in Oklahoma Home.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 30—(UP)—Alma Lee Couch, attractive University of Oklahoma co-ed, was acquitted tonight of a charge of a $2,000 jewel robbery.

The jury deliberated fifty minutes. The state had attempted to prove she stole the jewels while employed as nursemaid in the John B. Frederickson home. The trial opened Wednesday.

Miss Couch, calm and composed during attorneys' arguments that lasted the entire afternoon, broke into tears as the verdict was read. She fastened her eyes on the jury chamber during the brief deliberation and said not a word.

Courtroom Packed.

The courtroom, which has been packed with crowds during the three-day trial, was only one-fourth filled when the report was made. Accompanied by her parents, she left the room and planned to return to Norman, seat of the university.

The state charged Miss Couch faked the bandit story and, during the absence of her employers, took the jewels to a terminal station, where she checked them in two hat bags. The loot was recovered eighty-nine days later in the unclaimed hat bags. W. E. Davidson, check stand agent, identified Miss Couch as the person who checked the bags the afternoon of April 11. The Fredericksons returned home that midnight and found the house ransacked and Miss Couch lying prostrated in an upstairs closet.

With a firm voice, Miss Couch answered attorneys' questions. She told of her school life, how she had never been tardy or absent from grade school for thirteen consecutive years, of her two years' teacsing experience at intervals while she attended the university working for a master's degree in education.

She wept twice during her two hours of testimony. Both times were when attorneys asked her why she accetped a $10 a week position as nursemaid when she previously had made $125 a month teaching school.

She told the court illness caused her to abandon teaching a year ago. Not wishing to be dependent on her parents, she was willing to "take any employment."

Admits Slaying Of Pretty Wife

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 30—(INS)—Said by police to have confessed to the crime, Nathan Burton, 26, tonight was held on a first degree murder charge in connection with the brutal murder of his attractive 21-year-old wife, Ellen.

The woman was beaten to death at her home near Waldo, Fla.

According to authorities, Burton admitted that following a quarrel over "another man," he first beat his wife with his fists and then struck her over the head with a stick of wood.

An 18-month-old baby of the couple was also injured in the scuffle.

Uncle Sam Mobilizes Forces for Annual Rush of Christmas Mail

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(U.P.)—A peace time army of nearly 75,000 persons, mobilized by the federal government within recent weeks, was ready tonight to go "over the top" in a great winter drive that will reach virtually every home in the land before Christmas eve.

Unlike most military outfits the coming of this army was eagerly awaited by the inhabitants of the land. Most of the population, indeed, is contributing heavily to the ammunition kits of the men comprising this army.

Commanded by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, the army of extra postal carriers and clerks will augment the more than 360,000 regular postoffice employes in the annual rush of delivering the Christmas mail.

New Record Expected.

Christmas mail is expected to reach record proportions this year by the postoffice department, which last year delivered nearly 2,100,000,000 parcels, letters and yuletide greeting cards.

Annually the postoffice department expends sums aggregating about $5,000,000 to deliver the Christmas mail and the 1929 cost is expected to reach an even higher figure. Extra help alone cost $4,979,000 in 1928.

Illustrating the magnitude of the task facing the postoffice department, it was learned tonight that nearly 4,000,000,000 stamps are being distributed to postmasters for use on the holiday mail.

Post office statisticians estimate that about one-eighth of all the mail carried during the year is distributed in the brief period of the Christmas season. On this basis there were 92,480,000 parcels and about two billion letters and cards in last Christmas mail bags.

Dogs Deliver Mail.

Far in the frozen northland the Alaskan dog sled mail is now plodding its way through snow, ice and sleet with Christmas mail for the lonely inhabitants of trading posts in the Arctic circle.

One month ago the dog sled mail carrier left Kotbebus on the southern end of the 650-mile route to Point Barrow where he is expected to arrive by Christmas day. So regular has been the coming of this mail that it is called "the Christmas mail." Airplanes may soon plant the dog sled, however, for transportation of mail over this isolated country where trails are few and difficult.

NEBRASKA LEADS IN MUNY POWER

Berg Declares 240 Public Power Plants in State; Thorne Says 204.

Nebraska still leads the union in the municipal ownership of light and power plants, City Clerk Berg, secretary of the Nebraska Public Ownership league, said Saturday upon receipt of statistics from the national headquarters of the league.

The number of municipally owned plants in the state at the present is given as 240, two less than the number quoted for 1927 in a survey for that year published in a recent issue of the American City magazine. Kansas is second.

Texas boasts of a record of no municipally owned plants sold in the past two years, according to Mr. Berg. This record has not been duplicated by any other state.

Figures quoted by Thorne Browne, director for the National Electric Light association, place the number of municipally owned power plants in Nebraska at only 204. He states that there are 260,000 persons in the 204 towns publicly served, and 573,000 in the 347 cities and towns supplied by private companies.

Here and There

Modern Woman.

(Kansas City Star.)

In some recent magazine articles similar views have been expressed forcibly by women writers who described themselves as "disillusioned feminists." Freedom and equality, said those disappointed women, had undermined the old-fashioned home and menaced the family and were responsible for the steady increase in the divorce rate. Women were advised to return to their previous status and be content with supremacy in the home—a sphere that might seem narrow and circumscribed but was vitally important to society and to progress.

Such advice is, of course, absolutely futile. Great economic and social revolutions do not retrace their steps. The modern woman is what she is less from choice than from nesessity. The millions of women who are employed in factories, shops and offices are thus employed because of great industrial changes, mechanical inventions and other factors beyond their control. Political equality came to women as an inevitable corollary of legal and economic equality. With rights and privileges came civic duties and the civic social opportunities. Women have not shirked their obligations in the political and civic spheres, and freedom has meant work and sacrifices as well as personal satisfaction.

Today women own vast amounts of property, tangible and intangible. Women wield enormous influence in business directly and indirectly. They are the chief consumers of the modern world. They cannot abdicate. If freedom and equality have brought in their train certain difficult problems, women will contribute their full share to the solution of those problems. Questions of marriage, divorce, education, crime, vice and social welfare are discussed as ably and philosophically by the women as by men. It is as idle to ask women to "go back" to older conditions as it would be to ask the men to return to barbarism.

Maoris Wont Settle.

(New York Sun)

"I could no more settle down to a roll-top-desk life than Cherokee Indians can run farms," says a character in a story by Jesse Lynch Williams. The United States has had no great success in converting the red man into an agriculturist: Australia early realized that to try to make its aboriginals run farms would be futile, yet New Zealand continues to work doggedly at the task of turning its Maoris into successful tillers of the soil.

Members of the race still own four million acres of land in the North Island, a large proportion of which is lying idle. This is an anomalous situation at any time, and it becomes acute in a period of economic depression and unemployment such as now exists in the dominion. White settlers naturally desire to get their hands on that idle land and raise profitable dairy produce or crops. They argue that in the process many men now out of work could be employed as farm laborers. The government, however, has always treated the natives fairly, and rather than invade their rights by taking the land away from them it prefers to encourage the present owners to utilize their holdings.

The best results have been obtained on the east coast, due to the inspiration of Sir Apirana Ngata, M. P., who has devoted his life to leading his people to a higher civilization. Sheep farming suits the Maoris well enough, because the sheep can be left for weeks at a time, and the rush at shearing period adds zest to life. Dairying, with its steady daily work throughout the year, they do not take to so kindly. They are making progress, however, as shown by the production of 285 tons of high-grade butter by one Maori-owned dairy last year.

Wordless Poetry.

(Chicago Examiner.)

Abbe Ernest Dimnet (author of "The Art of Thinking") is now lecturing in America. One of his topics is "Poetry and the Community." He feels that people generally, and Americans in particular, are too much inclined merely to regard poetry in its narrower aspect—poetry of the pritten word.

Poetry, he reminds us, is a mood, a state of mind, which should and does lift humanity into a state of ecstasy. And this state of mind is above meanness. Our western civilization eternally stresses the virtue of doing things—buying and selling, "carrying stones hither and thither." Somehow we fail to recognize fully the supreme joy of meditation.

There was a time when Arabs found delight in merely watching birds. And from this attitude developed a certain nobility of spirit which somehow was lost when the western influence started putting these people to work in overalls and turned their eyes from the skies to the ground.

Most of us struggle frantically for material gain and in the end find ourselves spiritual.

Man Believed to Have Been Murdered Thirty Years Ago Back Home

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 30—(I. N. S.)— Believed dead for thirty years, Al Artrip, Cumberland mountain farmer, was reunited with his family tonight.

Artrip returned home when he learned of the death of Hunt Hall, a neighbor, who died ten years ago after making a deathbed statement in which he confessed to having murdered Artrip.

Arrtip mysteriously disappeared thirty years ago while on a fishing trip with Hall.

Hall, at the time of his death, declared he had murdered Artrip and robbed him of $100, after which he burned the body.

It was only recently that the "dead" man heard of his confessed "slayer's" death. He then returned home.

Artrip confirmed Hall's story about the robbery and attempt to burn his body. However, Artrip said, he came to consciousness just as the flames reached his body and he managed to escape.

Afraid to go home in fear that Hall might aftr all carry out his plans to murder him, Artrip left the vicinity.

"I heard a few days ago of old man Hall's death and decided to come home," Artrip said.

SEVEN PERSONS OVERCOME.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 30—(I.N.S.)—Seven persons, ranging in age from 3 to 50, were overcome by gas fumes today as the first touch of winter was felt in San Francisco. The temperature dropped to 52 degrees.

DROUTH WORRIES CALIFORNIANS

Forest Fires Greatest Hazard Of Dry Spell.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 30—(U. P.)—Weather bureau records show that California has had drier winter seasons than the present one, but the agriculturist with one eye cocked at the cloudless skies doesn't feel at all comfortable over that fact.

Residents in cities are none too well pleased, either, because the long continued state drouth has brought an every increasing hazard of the past.

All authorities are agreed that peril of a water shortage is not acute or immediate—"but," they say, "we'd better have some rain pretty soon or there's going to be trouble for everyone."

The greatest economic factor in the past sixty days because of lack of rainfall, has been the forest and brush fire losses, mounting in perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars.

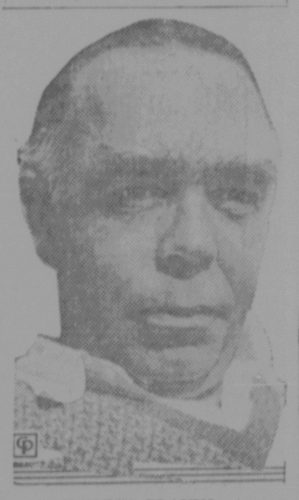
Sun parched hillsides offered ready prey to flames and thousands of acres have been swept, with many fine stands of virgin and second growth timber sacrificed.

The peril continues so long as there is no rain and state and federal forestry officials are admittedly nervous over the situation. California even has appropriated extra funds with which to carry on the fight against fires, extending almost three months past the dry season.

Both United States weather bureau officials and Dr. Jerome S. Ricard, noted Jesuit sun spot scientist of Santa Clara university, see no immediate prospect of rain.

MODEST

Writer With Three Plays on Broadway Doesn't Believe in Personal Publicity.



MARTIN FLAVIN.

BY CENTRAL PRESS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—He has three plays on Broadway — almost unprecedented—has Martin Flavin. Yet little is heard of him.

One merely hears he is middle-aged and that one of the three plays, "The Criminal Code" (on injustices of the law), is being considered for this season's Pulitzer play prize, to be awarded next April.

Yes, Martin Flavin's so quiet one begins to wonder whether there is a Mortin Flavin. But there is.

He's 46, was born in San Francisco, lives in New York, was graduated from the Universityl of California in 1903, once was a lawyer and otherwise has been in business (making wall paper, somebody said), but now he's too busy seeing plays to do anything except write them.

His first "Children of the Moon," was produced in New York six years ago or so. It was recorded as a sincere, serious effort. Then he had "Service for Two" and "Lady of the Rose."

"Broken Dishes," second of his plays to be produced this season, a comedy of the home, was written in Paris in 1927. "The Criminal Code," first to reach the stage this season, was written the same year in California. It is a serious work. "Cross Roads," a study of college life, was written following a visit to New Haven, Yale's home town, in 1928. [Yo(hm" 789 0$6..6 ..6..6..6

It's no wonder, though, that Flavin has a great deal to write about, for not only has he lived in California and New York, but in Chicag—and he knows Asia and Europe "like a book."

And he does not believe in personal publicity—as you have guessed.

Lincoln High School Students Celebrate Book Week With Prize Contests and Unique Exhibits of Rarities

Eleven years ago, when it became the custom to have a week set aside for this or that, several large organizations originated a book week. It was to be observed every year sometime in November.

The libraries and schools immediately took this up. It seemed the ideal way to interest the children in books. There were programs, exhibits and contests, with the common aim of interesting the children in as many different types of books as possible.

This year book week was observed from November 17 to 23. For the first time in the past four or five years Lincoln high school observed this week.

With the help of Miss Price, Miss Wilson, Miss Mayhew, Miss Mary Dunlap, Miss Miller, Miss Eaton and Miss Montgomery, exhibits, contests and a program, given Friday, were arranged.

Unique Book Exhibit.

Many different types of interesting books were arranged in the three show cases in the front hall of the second floor. Books varying from small tablets, only a few inches square, to a large English Law Record about the size of a large Webster's dictionary were an exhibit. They dated all the way from 2400B. C. to the latest and most popular books. Some of the collections are the works of Nebraska writers.

The University of Nebraska loaned a collection of five clay tablets which were on display. One of these was a Temple record and the others were bills from the butcher and other merchants.

Several books purchased in France and dated from 1598 to 1696 were loaned by Miss Mariel C. Gere. They have old parchment bindings and were mostly written in Latin.

Early Speller Loaned.

Miss Nellie Putney loaned a spelling and reading book which was published in 1844. There were many rules given, while the spelling starts with one syllable words and goes through a list which would be difficult for a well-educated person.

A book published in 1817, while Nebraska was still a territory, and bought in England by the father of Miss Ruth Price, gives an account of the travels of John Bradbury in the interior of America.

A priceless possession of Miss Price is "Uncle Tom's Cabin," published in 1852 and one of the first editions.

Had Franklin Facsimile.

Grace Marie Phillips loaned an interesting book called "Poor Richard's Almanac," produced in facsimile of the one published in 1773 by Benjamin Franklin.

There were several bound copies of Harpers, published during the Civil war and in the possession of Miss Gere. Almost every event of the war is illustrated with pen drawings.

Some of the Nebraska authors represented in the display were Keene Abbott, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Hartley Burr Alexander, Elizabeth Atkins, A. L. Bixby, William Jennings Bryan, Willa Cather, Richard Faulkner, Annie Louise Miller, John G. Neihardt, Louise Pound, Addison Erwin Sheldon, and Myrtle C. Tellman.

Books from Scotland, France, Spain, Italy, Bohemia and Germany were also on display.

Displays In Library.

In the high school library there were two displays of books. One of the displays is the process a new book has to go through before it can go into circulation.

The first step is the inspection of the book to see if all the pages are in it and the stamping of the edges of the book and backs of pictures with the library stamp.

The date the book is received and the number of it is stamped on the fly leaf. The book is then classified according to its contents. An author's number is given to it.

A card pocket is pasted in the front while a date slip is put on the fly leaf. The book is given a call number and then a coat of shellac.

Last of all two cards are made, one for the book and the other for the index files. The book is then ready for circulation.

Favorite Books Shown.

On another table a group of books that have been voted on by the sophomores as their favorite books. There were twenty-three of them.

The following books recently purchased by the library were reviewed by members of the writers' club and were on display:

"Flying the Arctic," by Capt. George H. Wilkins reviewed by Jean Kirkpatric.

"The Story of Marco Polo," translated by Noah Brooks—Marie Davis.

"I Escape," J. L. Hardy—Margery Merle Wishnow.

"Lincoln or Lee," William E. Dodd—Maurice Garrison.

"A Gentleman of France," Stanley J. Weyman—Leslie Witte.

"Mistress Madcap," Erith Bishop Sherman—Bernice Riseman.

"A Lantern In Her Hand," Bess Streeter Aldrich—Geraldine Moses.

"In the Clutch of Circumstances," the Burglar of Mark Twain's—Evelyn Diamond.

"Captain John Smith," Vernon Quinn—Mildred Stanley.

"Union Portraits," Gamaliel Bradford—Grace Marie Phillips.

Still another table held books selected by the whole school as the most popular.

Contests Held.

Anyone in high school had the privilege of entering either the essay or poetry contest. The suggested subjects for the essays were: Ten Books I Would Like to Own and Why; How to Take a Trip Abroad via Book Land; Modern Book Illustration; Recent Biographies Worth Reading: Why I Like ———'s Books; Why I Like to Read; The Most Attractive Book I Saw at ———'s Bookstore; My Favorite Author; A Tour of Bookland; My Book Chum and Taking My Book Chums Sight Seeing. Other suggestions were writing of slogans for book week, writing of "Blurbs" for book jackets, writing of original poems concerning books, preparing of lists of favorite books and consolidating the lists from all classes and posting in the library.

Some suggestions for material to appear in the Advocate, the school paper, were original essays and poems, book riddles, sketches of authors, reviews of new books, news of book week activities, a hidden title story to be used in English classes with special notice to the pupil who could locate the most titles.

Awards Presented.

Awards for the best poem and essay submitted to the four judges, H. C. Mardis, Miss Francis Duncomb, Miss Belle Farman and Miss Sarah T. Muir, were presented by Anne Bunting, vice president of the writers' club, at the assembly Friday morning.

A book on "Modern Comedy" by Galsworthy was awarded Frank Greenslit for his essay on Why I Like Hugh Walpole's Books." Others who received honorable mention were Beth Schmidt and Breta Peterson. There were nine entries.

Elizabeth Regan won a Book of Nebraska Verse for the best poem which was called "Evening Musing." Anne Bunting and Aldridge Buckner won honorable mention. There were eight entries in the poetry contest.

Winning Poem.

The following poem was written by Elizabeth Regan.

Evening Musing.

When evening in her grey cloak
Announces the coming of night
Riding on a black steed,
The trees seem like priests
Bending over the earth
Giving their benediction
In the twilight.

The following essay was written by Frank Greenslit.

Why I Like Hugh Walpole's Books.

"The constant perusal of novels is a waste of time. It gives rise in the mind of the reader to a sort of morbid, passive interest in the lives of persons who never existed. Especially when, as often happens, the characters are extravagantly over-done and the plot is impossible, does the novel exert a harmful influence on it's reader. The greater part of current fiction is like this; and it is avidly devoured by the greater part of the reading public.

Two Novel Types.

"Present day novelists are, for the most part, prone to class themselves in one of two categories. They are either realists or romanticists. The former always try to depict life as it really seems to them; that is without much glamour and adventure. In their efforts they exaggerate the pathos and hard-knocks and the tragedy of life; and consequently their books are flavored with a somber, morose cynicism which inhibits the wholesome enjoyment for the reader.

"The romanticists are just the opposite. They impart to their books a fanciful, visionary atmosphere. Their characters are always having all sorts of wonderful things happen to them at just the proper time. They are saturated with the spirit of melodrama. Reading many of their books is just like eating too many candy-bars. One soon sickens of it.

"But out of all the turmoil and antagonism that goes on between the adherents oft the two schools there appear certain writers who have not yielded to either. They stand out preeminently above the rest. They are neither realist or romanticist. They have a struck a happy medium. Such artists as Sherwood Anderson, Galsworthy, Erich Remarque, and for me, Hugh Walpole, have captured the tastes or intelligent readers because they are temperate in their use of the imaginary, and moderate in portraying the trials of human life.

Walpole Fascinates.

That is why I like Walpole. No other author has ever fascinated me so completely. His are the only contemporary novels I enjoy reading twice. They are so alluring, so compelling; and their glamorous realism makes one feel that life is fair and that there is a certain beautiful happiness in store for everyone.

Of course he is an Englishman. He writes the language faultlessly. His style is admirable, but it did not come as a gift. Back of his books are years of intensive, concentrated cultivation of the mechanics of writing. As a result he is master of the novel, the most difficult form in literature to perfect; difficult because of the many subtle variations in plot and characterization it demands. He is recognized by the literary world as an authority on phraseology and idiom. He has a keen appreciation of the element of rhythm in prose, fostered, no doubt by his love of music.

Yet 'all beyond these mere intellectual accomplishments Hugh Walpole is a man. I am sure that unlike many artists, he could mix with his fellow beings on terms of equality; that he could perform real manual labor without shirking; that he could converse with a working man in such a way as to make the latter exclaim, 'I'd like to have a friend in that fellow.'

Athletic Appearance.

"He is close to six feet tall and of massive build. His complexion ruddy in hue, is more like an athlete's than a man in letters. Always in the peak of health he is amiable, lovable, a truly magnetic personality.

"If you prefer phantasy with a capital 'ph' read his 'Portrait of A Man With Red Hair;' if you wish a novel classical in its descriptions of rural life read "Jeremy.' Would you rather see life stripped of its romance, and yet worth while, read 'Fortitude.' Walpole's books are always unique, always worth one's time.

"Yes . . . I am admittedly, decidedly a Walpole fan; nor am I alone. Thousands of people buy his books each year; countless editions of his books are ever published. Hugh Walpole is among that selective group of writers whose fiction fully rewards and merits the time it takes to read it."

Art Prizes Given.

The art club also gave prizes to both the advanced and beginning student who made the best poster. Sidney Dewey won first place in the advanced group with a poster on "Books on the Orient," while Harriet Woods won first place in the beginning group with a poster on "Books about Drama."

In the advanced group Lucile Lampert and Genive Mastalka received honorable mention while Phil Yost and Robert Grady received honorable mention in the beginning group. Books of artists illustrated in colors were the prizes. Phil Yost received a block print instead of a book.

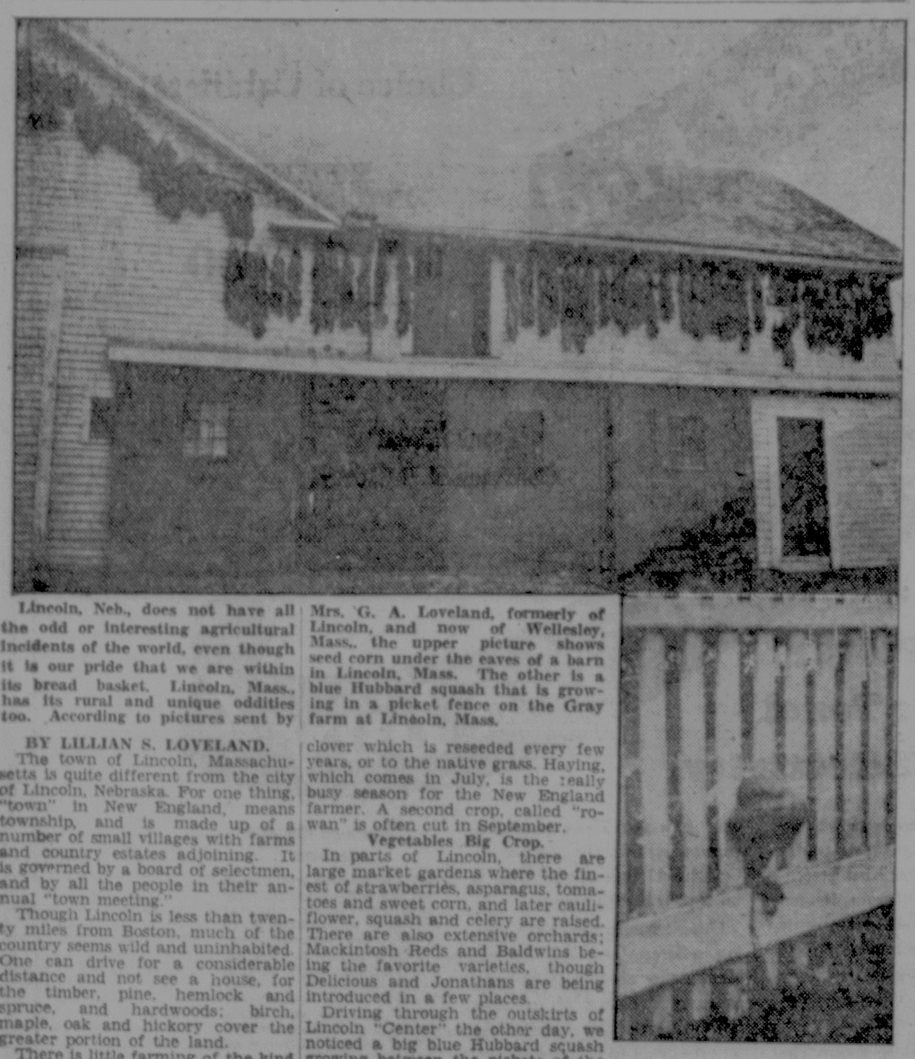
Sees Vivid Contrast Between Lincoln And Its Eastern Twin



Lincoln, Neb., does not have all the odd or interesting agricultural incidents of the world, even though it is our pride that we are within its bread basket. Lincoln, Mass., has its rural and unique oddities too. According to pictures sent by Mrs. G. A. Loveland, formerly of Lincoln, and now of Wellesley, Mass., the upper picture shows seed corn under the eaves of a barn in Lincoln, Mass. The other is a blue Hubbard squash that is growing in a picket fence on the Gray farm at Lincoln, Mass.

BY LILLIAN S. LOVELAND.

The town of Lincoln, Massachusetts is quite different from the city of Lincoln, Nebraska. For one thing, "town" in New England, means township, and is made up of a number of small villages with farms and country estates adjoining. It is governed by a board of selectmen, and by all the people in their annual "town meeting."

Though Lincoln is less than twenty miles from Boston, much of the country seems wild and uninhabited. One can drive for a considerable distance and not see a house, for the timber, pine, hemlock and spruce, and hardwoods; birch, maple, oak and hickory cover the greater portion of the land.

There is little farming of the kind we are familiar with in Nebraska: the fields of corn seem but small patches, and the corn itself is of a different variety; small and flinty. Usually the corn stalks are cut while still green and piled up in tepee-like stacks. Later it is hauled into barns and husked, the stalks being kept for fodder. The finest ears are saved for seed-corn, and it is a common sight to see long chains or tassels of corn ears hung under the eaves of barns. There is no alfalfa and practically no wheat. Most of the cultivated land is given over to the raising of hay, usually timothy and clover which is reseeded every few years, or to the native grass. Haying, which comes in July, is the really busy season for the New England farmer. A second crop, called "rowan" is often cut in September.

Vegetables Big Crop.

In parts of Lincoln, there are large market gardens where the finest of strawberries, asparagus, tomatoes and sweet corn, and later cauliflower, squash and celery are raised. There are also extensive orchards; Mackintosh Reds and Baldwins being the favorite varieties, though Delicious and Jonathans are being introduced in a few places.

Driving through the outskirts of Lincoln "Center" the other day, we noticed a big blue Hubbard squash growing between the pickets of the front fence. Mrs. Gray, the farmer's wife, told us that it just happened to grow that way, and not, as we first supposed, that someone had put the squash there when it was small.

Speaking of driving, the roads around Lincoln, Mass. are very different from those around Lincoln Nebraska, for they curve and twist and turn in and out through dense woods—gorgeous now in their autumn coloring; between stone walls or rail fences—never barb-wire, beside some clear, sparkling brook—one never hears "crick" in these parts, past gray rocky ledges and stony upland pastures, on the edge of green hay meadows, smooth as lawns after the late mowing, skirting the short of a blue, shining lake or pond—Walden Pond, beloved by Thoreau is partly in the town of Lincoln—and on into charming villages of elm-shaded, clean white, green-blinded houses. The roads for the most part are hard surfaced, but the back roads are covered with the natural sand and gravel of this region, and though sometimes a bit rutty and stony are perfectly passable even in rainy weather.

A Fellow Just Can't

GO on doing the same thing year after year and be in style. Take Christmas cards. Even those Holiday greetings have a new style this year, at least I discovered some at Latsch Brothers, which are entirely different. Your own personality may be decidedly developed in the unique folders, the illustration on the outside and a space for your own personal note within. Then, they have some cleverly engraved with the Christmas message in the type print they will employ in adding your name. Some in parchment, some with old-time metal seals, distictive and modest ones too. Many are direct imports from France and England. Now don't get the impression that these are expensive. This exquisite showing includes those priced as low as two for 5 cents up to a dollar. As an added feature for those selecting early, they will print your name on as many as 25 up to 150 for only one dollar. So you see it would pay to take advantage of this within the next few days.

For Years

MOTHERS of musically inclined daughters and sons have chosen their instruments at Crancer's, so I know it will be good news to you to know that the new Christmas shipment is bigger and better this year than ever before. See these at the Altstadt Instrument Co., in Crancer's.

When You're Searching

FOR just the right Christmas gift—one that wouldn't usually be thought of and one that is useful and ornamental too. Did it ever occur to you that a clever hand-set telephone for her boudoir might be just the thing? Especially since they may now be obtained in color to harmonize with that room. While you're about it why not have the extension put in too? After the small installation fee it's only 70 cents per month more, and think of the steps it will save. Perhaps you want this cradle type for some nook down stairs, I'd suggest a clever Chinese red, or perhaps a green. The black ones would be ideal for Dad's study and these are only 25 cents a month more. See the six new colors displayed in the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph office and choose from there. Remembr, too, it's only 50 cents more a month to have any color and only 25 cents for the black. While the extension is an added 50 cents a month after the small installation fee. An attractive gift card explaining your present will be furnished to hang on the tree or put in the stocking.

The Idea That

BARGAINS were only to be obtained after Christmas is fast diminishing. Vance & Holm's are having a pre-Christmas sale of fine fabric remnants. This sale starts Dec. 3rd and continued throughout the week. These, of course are only some of the discontinued numbers of their best lines, and in ideal lengths for pillows, scarfs and seat covers for small chairs or stools. If you utilize some of these in your Christmas presents, your friends will feel indebted to you for ever after. Also in addition to this marvelous offering you may buy (already made) charming pillows and a special discount on furniture. Now this ought to be appreciated for it certainly couldn't come at a more opportune time.

Not Only One Item of

INTEREST did I find at Schulte's, but many—many Christmas gift suggestions. What seemed to me the greatest bargain of all, were the electric waffle irons with lifetime guarantee, selling for only $4.95 each. Many things of more personal trend were there also—pretty double chokers of pearls, only 55c: lovely stationery come in huge gay boxes, selling from 25 cents to 49 cents. The clever perfume atomizers were indeed bargains, for these were of many colored glass, dainty shapes, and only 50 cents each. You may shop for days in Schulte's and each day find new treasures. The unique belt and purse sets of many colors would delight the heart of the high school miss, and their cost is only 25 cents each.

I Pulled Off My

BIG woolly mitten and gazed at the exquisite gloves at Magee's as a cat would queen. Gloves, usually there's not much to tell about them but these at Magee's are so exquisite and charming and I might say well priced that you'll have to forgive my raving. I found the softest of suede in a biarritz pull-on style in delicate shades of egg shell nude and beige. These are six-button length (without the six buttons, you know.) Then the same type in French kid and lovely colors of ivory and white, priced at only $5. For more conservative purses I want to mention those fine French kid ones of brown, black, white and mode, priced at $2.95. When I was pulling on my big mittens preparing to leave with my choicy bit of information, they added something which was indeed news—they told me they were able to procure long ones—I mean 16 button "Musquataire" style in colors of delicate eggshell and white for evening. It takes only a few days after you've placed your order to obtain these and they're only $8.50. The girl who receives these for Christmas will be devinely sure of being one of Lincoln's FIRST to wear these.

If You Were So Oldfashioned

AS to serve cranberries in the usual style Thanksgiving—don't admit it—and don't repeat the offense, when you can obtain the delicious cranberry sherbet at Koser's. I know you'd rather be dead than out of style, so I'm going to tell you of some more festive ices to be obtained there. Brick ice cream with cranberry sherbet centers, bricks with bell centers, also individual bell moulds. Think how the kiddie's Christmas party would pep up with bricks and green Christmas tree centers or better still, the individual green tree moulds alone. I'm terribly old style I guess, for I never dreamed of buying brick ice cream with candle centers. Of course you can always obtain black walnut, orange and nesselrode pudding. This last is so apeptizing I'll have to tell you about it. It is made of a combination of fruits wit ha brandy flavor and it's pink in color. Remember to order your individual ice cream a day in advance, and it will be made up especially for your party.

Proudly We Proclaim

THE news that Mayer Bros. Co. have been appointed the Lincoln headquarters for Keyser silk hose. If you wish hose that give the illusions of almost no hose at all, try their chiffons, for daytime and busy functions, the semi chiffons and for office and sport, the service weight. The alluring fall and winter shades just beckon us their way. "Piccadilli," (a deep bronze); "Aveneu," (a brunette shade); "Riverside," (a subtle blonde shade); "Plaza," (an alluring sun tan); and "Park Lane" is a rich beige tan. All colors as you see, will directly compliment the new gowns.

A new service feature in connection with this smart Keyser shop is the new "Vanitas" hose mending machine just installed. Bring your slightly worn hose in, the initial run is 15 cents and each additional one is only 5 cents more. Be sure to call on Mayer's Keyser shop for this service.

The Card Reflecting

YOUR personality is surely to be found at George Brothers. In their handsome showing I found every type personal card imaginable from father to son, daughter to mother. In fact every one from grand dad to baby has specifically been mentioned in the message to be found—and these cards also are low priced too from 3 cents up. It is time to have yours engraved or embossed for early mailing.

ALTHOUGH black has such a strong hold on costume, a report of fashions worn at the Yale-Princeton football game suggested the continuance of bright, dark blues, the increased sponsoring of dark street greens, and an occasional instance of dahlia, in wool. Tweed was quoted the favored fabric for the fur-trimmed suit, which gave evidence of general popularity. Violet and lighter lavender tones were marked in this connection, trimmed with lighter and shorter haired foxes. Broadcloth coats, of course, kept up their quota, and tweed hats in a variety of shapes to match the tweed costume were not forgotten.

FORMAL daytime suits are discussed by fashion authorities returning from abroad, as especially important in such fabrics as broadcloth or other smooth-surfaced lightweight woolens. Black is naturally considered most important in this connection, with Lanvin's treatment of this style phase praised. All-black coats in lightweight cloths are cited as interesting when trimmed with black, flat furs or restrained applications of ermine.

MAKE no mistake, this year marks the renaissance of the corset. That doesn't mean the old long ones, fairly bristling with bones, any more than longer skirts and high waist-lines mean a return to the dresses of 1912. The new corsets are adapted to the modern dresses, just as the dresses are adapted to modern ways. And there are certain features of these models that will make them even more comfortable than the brief girdles most women have been wearing for the last five years or so.

In the first place, they are nearly all longer, which prevents any roll of fat appearing wherever the elastic ends. Secondly, they are cut to accentuate the waist, giving a beautifully fitted effect. And what bones they have are few and far between, and usually light and short. There is no attempt to obtain an hour-glass silhouette—the natural lines of the figure are followed. There freedom for the lungs, for the waist, and for the diaphragm—no shoving or pushing up or pulling down to fit a prescribed formula. And, on the aesthetic side, the fabrics are enchanting—satin, moire, and brocade in all of the peach-pinks, with a few very pale blues and greens. One is tempted to follow the example of the Indian woman who saved her money for a corset and then proudly wore it—pink brocade, lacings, garters, and all—outside her dark Mother Hubbard!

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

It Takes Courage To Make A Change In The Mode Of Living But Fear Is Destroyed Through Determination To Do.

Those who are the bravest in battle are not those who know no fear. They are the men who, fearing and quaking inwardly, dare to do the gallant deed. Fear is destroyed through the will and determination to do the brave thing.

In a letter received this week asking for a personal answer a wife signing her letter "Quaking" tells of her big problem. She has been married five years and all the time has continued her part in the business world making as much money as her husband makes. This was to have been a temporary plan but she has found it increasingly difficult to make a change.

Now she knows that to continue in her outside work means an empty life and that for her own good and that of her husband she must give up her job and become a home-maker. They have reached the goal of owning their own home. Many families live on the salary which her husband makes, and she is convinced that so long as she is contributing money into the family income that her husband will not seek to make more. His creative years are passing. And she wants a family.

But she trembles at the drastic step of giving up her job. She knows that unless she not do so knows that unless she does so now, this year, that they will continue always drifting along in a selfish, meaningless life and will grow more and more apart.

She is convinced in her mind of what she should do. But she says she is a coward and wonders if she has the courage to carry it through.

I advised her to take the first step, give up her job, rearrange their family budget to live upon her husband's salary, and enter into her new job of home making and I hope, raising a family. She may quake and tremble with fear many times, but if she has the courage to live up to her convictions I believe she will win the goal she wants.

The Aopolgy.

To be ready to apologize when in the wrong is an indication of a broad mind.

Many a man and woman have gone through life with an unhappy cloud hanging over their heads, because, as they have thought, they were "too proud" to make an apology.

That is not pride. It is weakness and cowardice. When we make a mistake and know we are in the wrong, the brave act is to confess that we were in error. And with such a confession comes a remarkable clearing away of the clouds and a sense of peace.

A Laudable Desire.

Dear Minerva: I have been living here for nearly a year and in another city about three hundred miles from here is a young man to whom I have been engaged for three years. We have known each other for nearly ten years and I think he is a wonderful man. But I am not as young as I used to be, I am twenty-six and he is twenty-eight, and although I want him to work out his own problems in a business way before getting married, I must confess that I find it a bit lonesome living the life of an engaged girl so many miles from her fiance. He is in business, but says he wants to increase its size before he marries. I am doing nothing but sitting and waiting, and its not a very profitable way to pass one's time. I do not care to become actively engaged in a professional or business way, for I would no more than get started when I would have to drop it. Do you think he is adopting the right attitude toward delaying our marriage? Frankly, I would rather get married and help him, if possible, than to wait until his business has increased. Maybe it will not increase, and then where would I be? Tell me what you think about it. —PEGGY.

A—I think you have the right idea exactly and I certainly do not blame you for your restlessness. On first thought, it would seem that either your fiance is a bit hesitant about accepting the responsibilities of marriage, or else his financial affairs are less prosperous than you suspect. However, it may be, and I hope this is the case, that he hesitates to ask you to become his wife until he is financially able to give you everything which he presumes you would wish. Some men feel they should not ask a girl to marry unless they are able to give her a home, car, lovely furniture and pretty clothes, which, after all, is a rather laudable desire.

But the fact remains, you would be happier married than waiting for his ship to come in, and I would suggest that you tell him your exact wishes. He will at least know how you feel about it and you will probably learn the true reason why he is delaying the marriage. If there is the possibility that he does not care to go through with it, the sooner you learn that the better it will be for you.

Depends Upon The Man.

Dear Minerva: I have been a widow for four years and am the mother of three children, eight, seven and five years old. For the past six months I have been keeping company with a man about two years younger than I am, although he does not know I am older. He is a very industrious man, has enough money to buy a home and has no bad habits. He has asked me many times to marry him, but I have not given him my answer. I do not believe I could ever love any man as I did my husband, but I do feel that I care a great deal for this man, possibly enough to marry him. But here is my problem. Do you think it would be best for the children? As he has never been married, I sometimes fear he does not understand what it will mean to become the father of my three darling children. He seems to like them now, but will they eventually annoy and irritate him? Any advice you can give me would indeed be appreciated.—UNDECIDED.

A.—Your question is almost impossible for me to answer for it all depends upon the man. It would be a wonderful thing for the children to have a father, provided he is the right kind of a father. It would bring nothing but unhappiness and grief if he failed to measure up to the necessary qualifications. And I might say that he is assuming a much greater responsibility than the average man who marries. You are doing right in not hurrying into the marriage and perhaps a few more months will serve to convince you either of the wisdom or folly of such a union.

Cotner Notes

The Rev. Jack Leonard, '21, minister to the Havelock Christian church spoke in chapel Thursday on "The Sign Posts of Life." Mrs. Leonard sang three numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Bertha Owings Aydelotte.

Howard Kitchen, '31, Lincoln, was re-elected captain of the football team following the Cotner-Doane game at Crete, when Cotner won the Nebraska College Athletic Conference championship.

The second annual Cotner-Doane day was held Friday, November 22, with Doane college entertaining. A special train carried the students and faculty to Crete and back to Lincoln, A joint chapel meeting at 10:45, a cafeteria lunch at noon, a women's soccer game at 1 p. m., a conference championship football game at 2:30, and a fellowship banquet at 6 p. m., were the events of the day.

The Rev. J. Kinney O'Heeron of the Bethany Christian church spoke at chapel Tuesday on Thanksgiving. Short talks were made by Coach F. B. Moon and Prof. B. E. Ogden, chairman of the athletic board. Coach Moon presented the football used in the championship game with Doane to Dean Breece to be kept as a trophy for the school. The platform was decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins and autumn fruits.

Prof. Earnest W. Lundeen, faculty adviser to Theta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalistic fraternity, has been notified from the national office that he has been elected a life member of the fraternity.

McCook College

The Dramatic club of the McCook Junior college met Monday evening and was entertained by a play, "Dear Little Wife," put on by Miss Margaret Finn, James Corcoran, and Ray Brown.

A clever take-off on the Thanksgiving day game between McCook Indians and Central City college took place at convocation Tuesday. Clyde Bradley, representing McCook was operated upon by John Kahl and Frank Uridil for footballitis. The operation disclosed yards of weiners and a football which were extricated. Then Gladys Wright led the assembly in a snappy rally.

Students of the McCook Junior college enjoyed a pleasant Thanksgiving. Many went home for dinner and returned to McCook for the game in the afternoon. The faculty also celebrated Turkey day. Dean J. R. Johnson spent the day with his family, Superintendent J. A. True, of the education department, spent his time hunting ducks. Dean Eunice Hilton, Miss Gladys Tipton, music instructor, and Miss Anne Marshall of the zoology department had dinner in the country at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Randall. Miss Gertrude Sherk, language instructor, and Miss Helen Shurtleff, history teacher, spent the day in McCook.

The Women's organization of the McCook Junior college had a hard-time party Tuesday night. Miss Edith Stewart won the prize for the tackiest costume. The girls played games and then enjoyed refreshments.

University Notes

A recent issue of the Boston Transcript contained a half page illustrated article on old Thanksgiving customs, written by Mamie Meredith of the department of English of the university. The article was also used by the Milwaukee Journal and the Portland Oregonian. It is the third of a series by Miss Meredith on characteristic American customs in observing holidays, festivals, and anniversaries. Arbor Day and the Fourth of July were discussed in the two previous articles.

"Blue Skies and Red Sunsets," will be the subject of the regular observatory lecture to be given by Prof. G. D. Swezey, Tuesday evening, December 3, at the observatory, at 8 o'clock. The observatory will be open from 7 until 10 o'clock, and pending clear skies, Jupiter may be observed through the telescope.

Equipment has been purchased for use in the mathematical computing laboratory recently installed in Mechanic Arts building. Two 10-bank calculating machines have been installed and a third 8-bank machine will be added soon. At the present time another company has given the use of two 9-bank electrical calculating machines. According to Dr. C. C. Camp, the equipment of the college of business administration had to be used previously. With the calculating laboratory, classes in statistics and insurance can be more adequately handled.

Prof. E. F. Schramm of the department of geology is attending the professinoal interfraternity conference which is being held in Chicago this weekend. Professor Schramm represents all chapters of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary national geological fraternity, at the conference. He is the grand vice president of the fraternity.

"Romance of Rubber," is the title of a new film that will be shown Thursday, December 5, under the auspices of the department of chemistry and the student chemical engineering society, in mechanical engineering 206, at 7:30 o'clock. This film is loaned to the university by one of the large rubber companies. New specimens of manufactured rubber companies. New specimens of manufactured rubber products will also be displayed. Prof. C. J. Frankforter will have charge of the program, which is open to the public.

Dr. M. J. Brown, a graduate of the university with the class of 1905, was on the campus this week interviewing men in the department of chemistry. Dr. Brown is vice president of the Roessler & Hasslaker Chemical company located at Niagara Falls, New York.

F. G. Collins, assistant curator of the museum, will have the regular Sunday program at Morrill hall this Sunday, lecturing on "Scenery" and showing a number of colored lantern slides in connection with the lecture. The slides show scenes in various countries of the world. Preceding this adult program at 4 o'clock, Miss Marjorie Shanafelt will conduct the 2:45 o'clock program for juveniles, giving an illustrated lecture on "Indians of the Plains," and showing a film "Monarch of the Plains," which tells of the buffalo.

The department of geography has just received notice from Dr. W. W. Atwood, president of Clark university at Worcester, Mass., that Miss Esther Anderson, instructor in geography at the University of Nebraska, now on leave of absence, has successfully passed her preliminary examination for her doctor's degree in geography with distinction, and that she has also passed her qualifying examinations in French and German.

The John J. Pershing collection of weapons from the Philippine Islands is being rearranged in Morrill hall this weekend. The collection will be given a permanent case in the lower corridor of the musuem. Since the gift of the Pershing collection several years ago, it has never been definitely placed in any portion of the museum.

Prof. H. E. Bradford, Prof. Florence Corbin, both of the department of vocational education, C. A. Fulmer, state director of vocational education, LeRoy Clements, state superintendent of agricultural education, Miss Birdie Vorheis, state supervisor of home economics education, and Harvey Freeland, state superintendent of trade nad industrial education, will leave for New Orleans Sunday, where they will attend the annual meeting of the American Vocational association. Mr. Fulmer is a former president of the organization and Professor Brandford is a former vice president.

Jail Is Turned Into Red Cross County Hospital Through Faith Of Women

The Jail As A Hospital.

(By Central Press)

WINDSOR, N. C., Nov. 30—A few weeks ago it was the Bertie county jail, famed repository of bootleggers murderers and other participants in Bertie feuds.

Now it is the first county Red Cross hospital in the world, and hailed by John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, as the outstanding achievement of the year by a county chapter.

Bertie county had a big poor farm and not enough able-bodied paupers to work it, so it made the farm a reformatory and put its bad men to work. That made the jailhouse in Windsor, back of the county courthouse, where there are records of deeds going back to 1690, signed by Indian chiefs with marks, more or less useless.

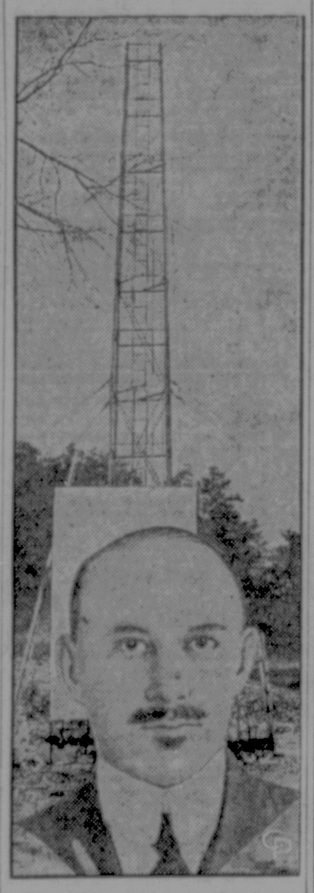
Faith Wins.

Mrs. Francis D. Winston, chairman of Bertie chapter, conceived the idea of making it into an emergency hospital. With no funds but boundless faith, women went to work. Now, where a few months ago there was a cell in which Percy "Foots" Miller, all-around bad man, who slew Chief of Police Pat White of Windsor, was held while a jury decided he should be executed, there is a pure white nursery for newborn babes.

After gallons of disinfectants had been used, and cell doors removed, painters and carpenters went to work. Necessary equipment was donated piecemeal. The hospital, which also serves as a restroom for women visiting Windsor, was dedicated with a county-wide celebration.

"This," said the dedicatory speaker, "shows what you can do when you take the most loathsome thing in the county and pay a little attention to it."

Sky Rocket Terminal



From this almost completed 100-foot steel tower at the deserted Camp Devens, Mass., another test of a rocket aimed at the heavens will be made by Prof. R. H. Goddard, inset, physicist of Clark university, Worcester, Mass. It has become a tradition that Professor Goddard hopes one of his rockets will reach the moon, but the professor is more interested in obtaining scientific data by merely piercing the atmosphere.

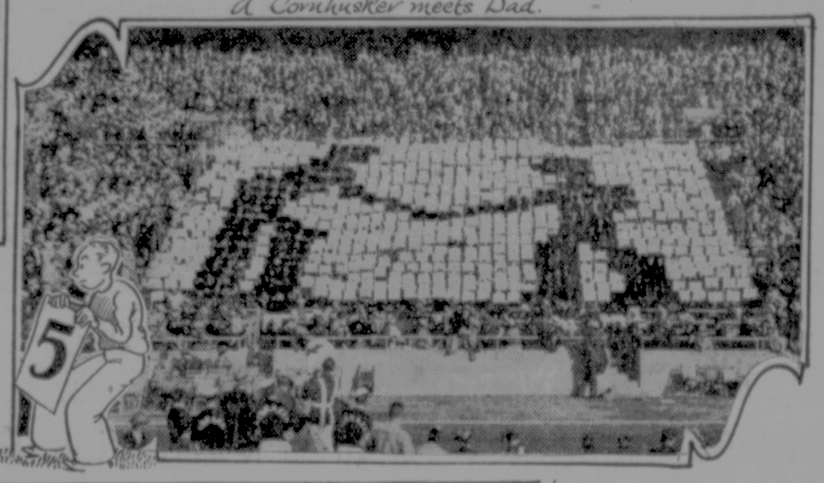
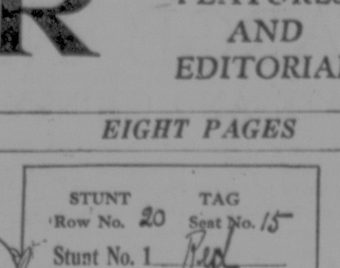
A Cornhusker meets Dad.





By LULU MAE COE.

"Yeah, an' believe me, that's some job to learn all about that. A fellow told me that knows somebody who's in it, I guess, that they rehearse all the time. Why, the week before the game they are out here most every afternoon. You know they couldn't make all those things if they didn't practice."

"Re-all-ly! My, that does take a lot of time, doesn't it? But it's worth it. I like that kind of entertainment between halves, don't you? It would be sort of fun to be over there, but I'm afraid it's too much work for me."

So he to her. So she to him.

And they turned serenely to watch a group of students form a turkey and give a lettered greeting to Ames.

A nearby member of the athletic department staff merely smiled. As he had smiled so often at similar and previous conversations.

N-e-bras-ki
Oh-h my!

A double quartet of pigskin warriors have for the last time removed their amateur moleskins. The red and white cheer leaders are gone. The bouncing-about ushers have become just students again. The stands are empty.

The 1929 football season is a part of history.

Intercollegiate football was sixty years old this November. The sport is one of the oldest in the world, but as a game of American college youths it has endured with increasing popularity and prosperity for three score years.

First Played in 1869.

Rutgers and Princeton met on the gridiron in November, 1869, for the world's first inter-college game. Stadia yet belonged to the glory that was Greece, and enthusiastic fans of the potentially powerful sport sat precariously on a board fence. They found it so, indeed, for it went down when a couple of players bumped it.

The years have changed many things. Carrying and passing the ball were among the prohibitions. Twenty-five men composed a side sixty years ago. Later, when the number of participants was reduced, a team was a team. Each college didn't have a couple of substitute back fields, an equal number of ends on the bench, and two or three waiting lines.

Nebraska now plays with a squad of about thirty. Games have been played here with ten men. The eleventh one was injured, and he had no sub.

Open play has come in. The forward pass, seven men on the line of scrimmage, subs, time out, off-tackle thrusts, prevention of illegal shifting have been devised and accepted.

Seat 100,000 Crowds.

Sand lot football may yet have its wooden fences. Not the colleges and universities, which have provided properly for the throngs that come with blankets and cushions for six or eight autumn Saturday afternoons. Great masses of concrete have been formed into stadia, which seat 30,000 to 100,000 spectators.

With the coming of the stadium the football boys don't provide all the entertainment. While they are languorously spread out on benches or receiving a few pointed remarks from captain and coach, as the movies would have us believe, the erstwhile spectators, or a part of them, are providing a little diversion for those who remain mere spectators.

For the last three or four years, a portion of Nebraska's student section has been forming pertinent figures or offering greetings to the visitors or making its own letters while the team was off the field. The means by which the students accomplish their little play has been less well known than that the students do it rather well.

Their efforts have achieved rather wider attention than they anticipated. In an effort yet adopted by few colleges, Nebraska students are gaining noted attention.

Cheering Ranks High.

The best known broadcaster of them all has announced on several occasions in his radio remarks that the Cornhuskers' organized cheering sections rank second only to those of the Trojans. With the Trojans having an asset or two that Nebraska can never have, the recognition is acceptable.

The University of Southern California home games are played in a municipal stadium, which has on balcony, and this particular cheering section is about sixty rows deep. The ramps in no way interfere with the width of the section, so that about 2,000 students take part in this portion of the day's game.

This form of cheering began on the coast, but it has not been at all widely adopted in the central west or in the east. Stanford, California and Southern California have devoted considerable attention to this work, but as far as has been observed, Pitt, which makes a gigantic P as its contribution, is the only eastern school indulging.

840 In Student Section.

Nebraska first adopted the custom to make the student activities between halves more dignified, to direct attention to the student section in the stands, to entertain the spectators, and to show courtesies to visiting teams. It has maintained the custom because of favorable comment.

About 840 of the student section of 3600 participate. To make it possible to use this large a number, two aisles were taken out to provide for greater width, and moved farther north and south. The depth is determined by the ramps, and the width is now proportionate to the greatest depth that can be secured.

This section is capable of doing almost anything desired. It has twisted the Tiger's tail for the spectators. It peeled the Orange to make an N. A huge Cornhusker student shook hands with an equally large Dad on Dad's day. It said "Hi Dad," "O. K. Okla," and formed an O and an N.

Gave Kansas Yell.

Quite effective was an arrangement for the Kansas game. The formation was in a series of three, certain colors for the Rock Chalk on the red and blue for the Jaw Hawk, and other colors for the K. U. As they showed the three parts, the card holders gave the Kansas yell, an innovation for this group, which is usually silent during its demonstrations.

While the enthusiastic comments of the west stand and those of the east that can see the students are being tossed about, those of the inner circle smile. This performance takes careful planning, but not of the kind generally described by the onlookers.

The performers have no practice. The long rehearsals are myths. The students have never previously seen the cards with which they work. They are quite as surprised at the results as the spectators—or would be if they could see the results.

This work is sort of like a moving picture. The actors have little idea of the plot. The students don't know what word or figure they are making.

The performance depends upon them. But te work depends upon others.

Innocents Sponsor Project.

Members of the Innocents sponsor this project, and Douglas Timmerman of Lincoln, a member of the organization, suggests the figures to be used. Robert Charters of Lincoln, the head cheer leader, conducts the different stunts of this section. When he whistles—these students obey.

To plan for this student formation Jimmy Lewis, assistant director of athletics, has a chart, drawn to scale, and marked with squares to represent each seat in the rows. Nebraska generally has six stunts,

LARGE NEBRASKA GROUP ATTENDING 4-H CLUB CONGRESS

STATE AND COUNTY CHAMPIONS COMPETING WITH BOYS AND GIRLS FROM OVER ENTIRE NATION IN CONTESTS HELD AT CHICAGO

Eight state champions, seven judging and one demonstration team are now in Chicago representing Nebraska 4-H clubs at the national congress of 4-H clubs which opened Saturday and continues all next week.

The animal judging team left Lincoln on Thanksgiving day and the others departed Saturday. Besides the state champions a number of other individuals made the trip as guests of the railroads, eighteen of the North Western lines and nine of the Rock Island. State Club Leader L. I. Frisbie accompanied the boys and girls to Chicago.

Lloyd Vance of Cass county, the Nebraska champion poultry club leader, made the trip to Chicago with the rest of the 4-H club boys and girls. Vance is from Eagle and a freshman at the college of agriculture in Lincoln now. He has won nine achievement certificates during his club career and has two more years for club work.

During the past year Lloyd has been raising White Leghorn and White Wyandotte chickens. By using the utmost care in sanitation, feeding a well balanced ration and keeping the feed before the birds at all times he achieved success in his production, he says. He got a 90 per cent production on his chicks last spring and during his project year has made $271.31 on his flock of chickens.

Romberg Is Poultry Champ.

The poultry club member champion, Harold Romberg, comes from Scribner, Dodge county. He has earned three certificates during the time he has been in club work.

This year Romberg exhibited birds at the Dodge county fair and at the state fair, winning firts at both shows. He has helped several neighbors to cull out their flocks and helped to build up the poultry industry in his community in different ways. "I attribute my success in poultry club work to a good leader and the knowledge gained from the club lesson," Romberg declares. The poultry folk went to Chicago as guests of the poultry interests of Nebraska.

Doris Hafer of Strang, Fillmore county, was the state Kerr canning champion in 1929 and made the trip to Chicago as guest of the Kerr Canning Co. She has always been an outstanding club girl in her community and in the state.

During Miss Hafer's club career she has earned seven certificates of achievement. She was on her club's demonstration team at the state fair last year which placed fifth on meats. Two years ago Doris had a meat exhibit at Chicago that won first prize.

Waverly Boy Making Trip.

From Lancaster county comes one of the remarkable and outstanding club boys in Nebraska. He is Lester Snyder of Waverly and the 1929 Nebraska state club crops champion. County Agent J. F. Purbaugh has this to say about Snyder: "He is a real crops champion, has the true spirit and a wonderful club record. He was easily our county champion this year."

The crops champion has been in corn club work for five years and has earned certificates of achievement in pig clubs, garden clubs, and baby beef clubs. This year he made $265.10 from his ten-acre plot of corn, which yielded 75 bushels to the acre. This average was considerably above the thirty-bushel average of the community. He nsed no fertilizer on his plot.

In explaining the wonderful yield that he received from his plot, Snyder says that he planted on a fairly rich bottom land and that he disked, harrowed before planting. He will show a sample of his corn at the club congress.

The Waverly Corn club of which Snyder is a member, won first with its exhibit at the state fair in 1927, and second in 1928. For three years Lester has been a member of Lancaster county crops judging teams that participated at the state fair. In 1927 the Lancaster team placed third, in 1928 second and this year, it was first, winning the trip to Chicago.

Member of Uni Team.

Erwin Hutchinson, the leader of the Waverly Corn club, was a member of the University of Nebraska crops judging team last year. Lester went to the "big show" as guest of Ma- Seed Co.

To Charles Donaldson of Albion, Boone county, 1929 baby beef champion, goes the honor of having the most club experience. He was a member of the first baby beef club in Boone county nine years ago and has won seventeen certificates of achievement during his club career. This is his last year in club activities for he will be too old next year to participate.

This year's baby beef winner was a member of the Boone County Shorthorn Calf club of which his father, J. E. Donaldson, was the leader. His bull calf was first place winner at the Boone county fair this year. Donaldson earned money to purchase his beeves this year from previous club activities. His pig club record also has been an outstanding one in the past few years, winning many prizes at the Boone county fair. He won the Armour trip.

Seward county will be represented at the club congress vy Claude Tipton, state swine champion. Tipton has been in club work for three years and his pig club work has been outstanding. This year he had some of the best club pigs in the state as was proved by the fact that he won first on his boar at the state fair and first on his litter. He scored the same award at the Seward county fair. Claude made the trip on the Wilson prize.

A group of Nebraska's champion 4-H club members is attending the National Club congress, which opened in Chicago Saturday and continues until Friday. Lucille Cooley of Waverly, Home Ec. champion, is shown on the upper left. Charles Donaldson, upper right, brought fame to Albion and Boone county as the baby beef champ. The club poultry champion, Harold Romberg of Scribner, is shown on the lower left. Lloyd Vance, Nebraska champion poultry club leader, whose home is in Eagle, is on the lower right.

Tipton has been raising Duroc Jersey hogs and plans to go into the breeding business. He made $343 on his litter of Durocs this year and he put his gain on the pigs at four cents a pound. Young Tipton received the money to buy his hogs this year from raising club pigs last year. He was a member of the Big Elm Pig club this year and Harry Fuller was the club leader. K. C. Fouts is the county agent in Seward county.

The Webster county animal husbandry team represents Nebraska 4-H clubs at the national club congress, having won the trip by its showing at the state fair. The team is composed of Gilbert Kort, Blue Hill; Harvey Spilker, Blue Hill and Robert Crowell, Red Cloud. Oscar Ramey has been the leader of the clubs this year.

Gilbert Kort of Blue Hill has been in club work for six years and has been an outstanding member. He says that the Webster county team won the state title at the state fair by its own judging experience, plenty of practice, the determination to win and the coaching of the county agent, Paul Tag-Fom Blue Hill comes another member of the championship animal husbandry judging team, Harvey Spilker. He has had five years in baby beef work. Harold had the reserve champion Hereford at the state fair this year and his two calves made him $146.63.

Spilker is a most enthusiastic club boy and plans to feed baby beeves again next year. "I intend to become a farmer," he says. "Club experience is going to help me a lot, especially since I have learned how to feed and care for livestock and get greater and cheaper gains and know good stock when I see it."

The other member of the animal husbandry judging team is Robert Crowell of Red Cloud. He probably put his gains on his club beeves this year cheaper than most club boys as his final report shows that each pound of gain cost him, but 11 cents. Crowell first entered club work in 1920, when he enrolled in the first heifer club organized in Webster county. He was a member of the county judging team in 1927. The Nebraska Improved Livestock Breeders and Swift & Co., finance the team's expenses.

Another outstanding club girl to make the trip to the club congress is Lucille Cooley of Waverly, Lancaster county. She has had five years of club work and is now a sophomore at the college of agriculture where she is majoring in home economics.

Active In Club Work.

During Lucille's club life she has earned certificates in pig, clothing and cooking clubs. She has also been the club leader of the O. U. R. Cooking club of Waverly the last two years. She was the Lancaster county home economics champion this year and a member of the championship demonstration team at the state fair in 1927.

"Miss Cooley has shown exceptional ability as a leader and a member, both in club work and in her community. She has been a faithful club girl, upholding 4-H club ideals and has shown herself to be of outsanding personality," Mrs. Blanche Hill, assistant county agent in Lancaster county, says about the 1929 champion.

The 1929 clothing judging team at Chicago comes from Saunders county. Viola Woodworth and Roberta Hledik are on the team.

Miss Woodworth has been a member of the Lucky Eleven Sewing club of Wahoo during the past year which was her third in club work. Viola was the high scorer in the Saunders county judging contest at the county fair last year, making better than four hundred points out of a possible five hundred. This year at the state fair, Miss Woodworth was the high scorer on the championship Saunders county team.

Won In Style Show.

The other member of the clothing judging team, Roberta Hledik, is also a member of the Wahoo Lucky Eleven Sewing club and has had three years of club work. Roberta has been an outstanding clothing club member in Saunders county this year. In a county wide style show, Miss Hledik won first place this year and was also the style show champion at the state fair.

Ione Gibbs, Johnson county, and Aileen Albers, Thayer county, represent Nebraska 4-H clubs in the girls room judging contest.

The Johnson county girl, Miss Gibbs, participated in the state judging contest at the state fair. She was awarded the trip to Chicago as a result of her winning.

Miss Albers of Thayer county has been a club member for seven years. She belonged to three demonstration teams and to three judging teams that have participated in county and state fairs. She has attended club week at the college of agriculture once and club camps in her district three times.

Poultry Team Makes Trip.

Nebraska 4-H clubs are represented at the National club congress by a poultry judging team. It comes from Dodge county and is composed of Harold Romberg, Elwin Diedrickson and Allen Buscholt. Romberg is also the poultry club member champion for the year.

Buscholt is from Ames and has been a real poultry club member during the past year. He won first at the state fair this year on birds exhibited and other prizes at the county fairs in his section of the state.

The other member of the championship poultry judging team, Elwin Diedrickson of Scribner, has had three years of poultry club work. He was a member of the Dodge county poultry club judging team last year when it was first place winner at the state fair.

Helen Nunns, Fillmore county, and Marion Snyder, Lancaster county, made the Chicago trip as the Nebraska canning judging team.

Organized Canning Club.

The Fillmore county member of the canning team was probably one of the county's most outstanding club members last year. She organized a canning club in her community and was selected as leader to make it one of the best in Fillmore county. Miss Nunns' club won first on club budget at the state fair, second in the health contest. In addition, the club won eleven prizes at the county fair.

Marion Snyder, the other canning judging team member, was a member of Lucille Cooley's Waverly canning club during the past year. She was a member of the club canning judging team which participated in the county contest where she was elected with another club member to represent Lancaster county at the state fair. She won first place in the state canning contest and the trip to Chicago.

William Pokorney, Glen Marolf and Lester Snyder compose the championship grain judging team at Chicago. All are from Lancaster county and have been outstanding club members during the past year. Snyder is also the 1929 crops club champion. The Nebraska Improved Crops Growers assisted in financing this team's expenses.

The clothing demonstration team to Chicago comes from Custer county. The Myers sisters, Mildred and Helen, are on the team. Both girls represented their club at the county fair and won first place in the clothing division this year. The two girls were awarded a trip to club week at the college of agriculture last spring in reward for their outstanding club work in Custer county.

Win in State and County.

This year the Myers sisters again won the clothing demonstration at the Custer county fair. They then entered the state fair contest and were declared the state clothing demonstration championship team. These girls won the Chicago mail order award.

Milton Gustafson of Holdrege and Frances Axtell of Fairbury are entered in the health contest at the national club congress. Both won the right to go to Chicago by winning the state boys and girls health title at the state fair last fall.

The Phelps county representative, Milton Gustafson, has been in club work for two years. He received a trip to state fair by winning first place in the Phelps county junior fair held at Holdrege this year. He then entered the state contest at the state fair where he was a first place winner and declared Nebraska's healthiest club boy. Gustafson received a gold medal for winning the state contest and the trip to Chicago.

Health Champ to Compete.

The Fairbury girl, Frances Axtell, won the Jefferson county health title. She has been in club work for several years. She was declared the champion health girl at the state fair contest this year and awarded the trip to Chicago. The health champions and style show representative won their trips through the state board of agriculture.

Lucille Cooley of Lancaster county and Norma Peterson are the baked goods judging champs who are going to Chicago. Miss Cooley is also the state home economics champion.

Norma Peterson has been a member of the Uneeda Cooking club during the past year and helped represent her club at the Phelps county junior fair where she won second place in the judging contest. She was a member of the Phelps county judging team that competed in the state fair contests and won third place. However, Miss Peterson was the high individual in judging baked foods and thereby won the Chicago trip. Each of the high individuals in the four home economics contests was assisted in the trip by the State Home Economics association.

The results of the various contests will be heard by radio over WLS at 12:45 and 2 p. m. each day of the show as the various events close.

Average Nebraska Farm Yields Nice Profit Above Interest On Investment, Study Shows

Three hundred and seventeen Nebraska farmers kept business records in co-operation with the agricultural college extension service in 1928. A summary of these findings has just been published by A. W. Mediar and Arthur C. George of the rural economics department, and Ralph H. Cole, state extension agent in farm management.

The 317 had an average return of $1,291 for the year's family labor, risk, and management, after paying all expenses and allowing 5 per cent interest on investments, the latter figure computed on the basis of a tenant or an owner-operator. That sum is the labor and management wage. In addition, it was determined these families received between $500 and $600 from the farm in produce and shelter.

The labor and management wage graduated for 251 farms from the $1,781 of Cass county, downward through Fillmore, whose farmers considered in these figures made $1,391, to Douglas, with $1,340, then, in order, Clay, Hamilton, and Webster, considered as a unit because of widely scattered reports, but having rather similar conditions, Phelps, Saunders, Madison and Custer, with a labor-management wage of $264.

Cass Returns High.

For Cass county, the 20 most profitable of the 102 farms had an average of $4,135 to pay the operator for his family labor and management. The corresponding number of least profitable undertakings lacked an average of $23 per farm of returning 5 per cent interest on the investment. Expenses per $100 gross income were $45 on high income, and $66 on low-income groups. The same general trend of profit and loss was true of the five most profitable in the group of three, of the five of Custer, the five of Madison, the eight of Phelps, and the six of Saunders. In Douglas and Fillmore counties the five least profitable returned minor profits.

Of the farms considered, Custer county was first with 418.1 acres for the average size, but Saunders puts 80 per cent of its acreage in crops. Phelps came to the fore with 244.5 acres in crops on these particular farms, Douglas, with 132 acres cropped, bringing up the rear, on these farms.

In these studies, Cass county farms yielded 44.4 bushels of corn per acre, based on the average yield of 46 for the most profitable farms, and 42.6 on the least profitable. Fillmore had the same average yield of oats per acre, with 51.7 bushels per acre on the paying farms and 41.9 on those that did less well. Saunders county farms in this instance yielded 28.1 bushels of wheat per acre, 27.8 on the prosperous farms and 27.4 on those that didn't return their 5 per cent.

Livestock Profitable.

Returns per $100 invested in all productive livestock, that is, except horses and mules, is fairly steady, $129 in Cass, $126 in the three, $111 in Custer, $123 in Douglas, $123 in Fillmore, $129 in Madison, which ranks it with Cass, $108 in Phelps, and $116 in Saunders. Cattle brought the best returns for each $100 in Douglas, hogs in Madison, and poultry in Clay, Hamilton and Webster, grouped. The investment per acre in productive livestock varies from $4.67 in Custer to $14.70 in Madison. The receipts from producing stock in these records graduates from $5.55 in Custer to $19.72 in Madison.

To run these farms, these special farms pay $51 per $100 gross income in Cass, $58 in the three, $67 in Custer, $51 in Douglas, $59 in Fillmore, $72 in Madison, $64 in Phelps, and $54 in Saunders. The machinery cost per acre in crops for Madison, the highest, is $3.62, for Phelps, the lowest, $1.83.

These records of the 102 farms in Cass county studied show gross receipts per acre of $23.05, total expenses per acre, $11.69, with the net receipts, per acre, $11.36. The value of land and buildings per acre is $157, and the total investment per acre, $182.

For the 20 farms in Clay, Hamilton and Webster, the gross receipts per acre are $15.05, the total expenses per acre, $8.74, the net receipts per acre, $6.31, the value of land and buildings per acre, $93, and the total investment per acre, $113.

Douglas Leads.

The gross receipts for the fifteen Custer county farms studied was $6.79; for the eleven of Douglas county, $26.34; the twenty-four of Fillmore, $19.60; the eleven of Madison, $21.80; the thirty-eight of Phelps, $11.78; the thirty of Saunders, $23.80; the total expenses per acre for Custer, $4.52; for Douglas, $13.39; Fillmore, $9.57; Madison, $15.64; Phelps, $7.54; Saunders, $12.87. The net receipts per acre on these farms in Custer amounts to $2.57; Douglas, $12.95; Fillmore, $10.03; Madison, $6.16; Phelps, $4.24; Saunders, $10.93.

On these same farms, the value of land and buildings per acre in Custer is $52; in Douglas, $188; Fillmore, $119; Madison, $112; Phelps, $81, and Saunders, $205. The total investment per acre amounts to $63 in Custer, $221 in Douglas, $145 in Fillmore, $141 in Madison, $98 in Phelps, and $240 in Saunders.

The total capital investment represented in the farms on which accounts were kept was $42,201 in Cass, second to Saunders, which had investments of $44,020, $34,000 in the three. $26,194 in Custer, $37,778 in Douglas, $30,293 in Fillmore, $31,988 in Madison, $32,488 in Phelps. Land and farm improvements of course form the bulk of this investment, with livestock making investments of several thousand dollars.

Compute Labor Wage.

As deduced from the account records, the Cass county farms showed total receipts of $5,343; Clay, Hamilton and Webster, $4,521; Custer, $2,840; Douglas, $4,509; Fillmore, $4,095; Madison, $4,955; Phelps, $3,919, and Saunders, $4,374. The total expenses on the farms studied were in Cass, $2,710; Clay, Hamilton and Webster, $2,626; Custer, $1,891; Douglas, $2,92; Fillmore, $1,999; Madison, $3,555; Phelps, $2,509, and Saunders, $2,366.

Taking the expenses from the receipts and taking out the interest on the investment the labor and management wage is reduced. It has been given for Cass, Fillmore, Custer, Douglas, and for Clay, Hamilton, and Webster, is $1,067; for Madison, $571; for Phelps, $842 and for Saunders, $771.

The second part of the report is devoted to data obtained from each of five Nebraska areas, as follows: Northeastern, southeasten, central, south central and western Nebraska. It is treated in much the same way as was that of the individual farms, but some of the more general conclusions will be given.

Three Reasons.

The data for the northeastern area, according to the report, included a total of 20 farm accounts secured from Madison, Burt, Platte, Thurston, Cedar, Knox and Dakota counties. The five most profitable of the twenty farms after allowing 5 per cent interest on investment, had an average of $2,007 to pay the operator for labor and management, but the five least profitable lacked $1,093 of returning 5 per cent interest on investment. The average labor-management wage on the twenty farms of this area was $673 per farm. The investigators determined that the wide difference in average labor and management return from the high and low income farms was due to three factors, higher crop yield on the more profitable farms, livestock returns per $100 invested and per $100 worth of feed fed were higher on the best paying farms, and expenses, especially machinery, hired labor, and food purchases too high on low-income farms.

Sixty-three farm accounts from Saunders, Douglas, Otoe, Lancaster, Saline, Jefferson, Johnson, Nemaha, and Seward counties, supplied the figures for the southern area. The average labor and management wage made by twelve most profitable firms was $3,250, but the twelve firms in the least profitable group of this area not only failed to return anything for the operator's labor and management, but lacked $635 of returning 5 per cent on the investment. Greater crop yields and larger volume of business due to larger average acreage and higher average investment in livestock on a 50 per cent higher return on livestock, per $100 invested and twice as great profit on each $100 of feed given, and high labor and machinery costs on the low-profit farms, accounted for the wide difference in average earnings. The average labor and management wage in this study was $1,246.

Central Counties Lower.

In central Nebraska, twenty-seven records from Custer, Buffalo, Merrick, Sherman, Howard, and Boone counties were tabulated. The average labor and management wage on the twenty-seven farms in this area was $348 per farm. The six farms of the most profitable group made a labor-management wage of $2,281, and the six least profitable lacked an average of $1,782 of making returns large enough to pay 5 per cent interest on the investment. The principal reasons for the difference of $4,009 in average labor and management returns for the two groups follow. the average returns per $100 invested in cattle were $120 for the top farms and only $49 for the six farms of the lower group. the average labor and machinery costs per acre in crops were much lower on the most profitable farms, and heavy purchases of feed, later fed at a loss in some cases, were made by those operating the low income farms.

The data used in the report for the south central area was obtained from accounts kept on 31 farms in Hamilton, Webster, Clay, York, Nuckolls, and Phelps counties. These showed a labor-management wage of $994, with the eight most profitable returning 5 per cent and, in addition, an average of $2,054 to pay the operator for labor and management, but the eight at the bottom of the list lacked $221 per farm of returning 5 per cent interest on the investment. The average corn yield was approximately ten bushels per acre higher and the average wheat yield five bushels higher on the upper list farms than on those in the low income group, and the livestock returns per $100 invested and per $100 worth of feed were both nearly 50 per cent higher for the most profitable farms than for those in the least profitable group.

Western Records Good.

Thirteen farm records secured from Cheyenne, Morrill, Perkins, Deuel, Garden, and Scotts Bluff counties supplied the data for the western section. The average labor and management wage made by the thirteen farms whose records were used was $2,277. The five high-income farms returned an average of $3,658 for labor and management, while the five low-income farms returned an average labor and management wage of $1,152. The principal reasons for the difference in average earnings by the two groups are three, the high-income farms had an advantage of 4.4 bushels in average yield of corn and 6.2 bushels per acre in average yield of wheat, more live stock was kept on the farms in the most profitable group than on those in the least profitable group, and labor and machinery costs per acre were lower on the profitable farms.

The total investment per acre in southeast Nebraska, as gained from the records studied, is $202, in south central, $113, in northeast, $145 in central $77, and in western, $41. The net receipts per acre in the southeast are $11.65, south central, $6.25, northeast, $5.93, central, $2.65, and western, $5.43. The value of land and building per acre in the first named district is $172, the second, $94, the third, $115, the fourth, $64, and the fifth, $32.

The southeastern section leads in capital investment, with $38,021, according to the records observed. The northeast is second, with $35,644, and then, in order, south central, $29,530, central, $28,311, and western, $20,224. The receipts, as deduced, in the southeast were, $4,389, with expenses of $2,192, south central, $3,809, and expenditures of $2,177, northeast, $3,187, with ex- $2,177, northeast, receipts of $4,651 and expenses of $3,397. central expenses of $3,187, with expenditures of $2,219, and western, receipts of $4,560 and expenses of $4,856.

O. M. Smith Acquaints Nebraska Farmers With Marketing Plan

Wheat farmers throughout the state are being acquainted with plans of the national farm board for the orderly marketing of the wheat crop and the part that local co-operatives and elevators may play in the plans through a series of talks being given over the state by O. M. Smith, general manager of the Midwest Grain Marketing association, a non-stock co-operative wheat pool with headquarters in Lincoln.

Local cooperative elevators have been instrumental in improving the wheat farmers' situation, according to Mr. Smith but he does not believe they are alone capable of correcting the disorderly condition under which our grain is marketed. There are about 350 farmer owned and controlled elevators in the state at the present time.

Better Returns Probable.

Terminal facilities, also farmer-controlled are now necessary, the wheat pool manager feels. In an address at Kimball recently he said:

"If by magic over night in the middle of July the farmers of the nine large wheat producing states could have built or acquired terminal facilities in which to handle and store their wheat, they could have owned and paid for these facilities and received, in addition to this, a return on the investment over and above the price that was paid for their wheat on exchange floors of the Missouri river markets. I mean by this that wheat sold at a discount under the future sufficient to build and pay for the terminal storage, and over and above this, to return to the farmer in actual cash a larger portion of the intrinsic value of the wheat than he received for the wheat that was sold on the open market during the months of July and August."

Plans of the Farmers National Grain corporation created by the federal farm board the latter part of July have been explained in talks given by Mr. Smith. The corporation has a capital stock of ten million dollars, which will be owned on a pro rated basis by the co-operative engaged in grain marketing, proportioned to each individual branch on the basis of the average amount of grain handled during the past three years. The stock will be the property of the co-operative as a whole and not of the individual member. The National Grain corporation will be the central sales agency for all stockholding members.

Have Optional Selling.

Farmers, under the plan, will deliver grain to local elevators. They will ship to co-operative terminal elevators which in turn will turn the grain to the national corporation to be handled in one of three options named by the farmer.

According to Mr. Smith, he may have his grain sold immediately, receiving settlement in full on the basis of the day's market. He may deliver his wheat for storage to be sold at a future date named by himself at time of delivery. Settlement in full will be made at that time. He may place his grain in the seasonal pool to be marketed in an orderly way throughout the crop year in which case final settlement would be made on the basis of the average price obtained for the year.

Stockholders in the national corporation will receive 8 per cent dividends on thei rcapital stock. All over and above this amount will be pro rated back to the co-operative delivering grain to the corporation. The cost to the farmer is the actual cost of marketing his grain. He will receive back any revenue above the actual costs of operation. "I will say," Mr. Smith has commented in this regard, "that the mixing profits in the terminal elevators will, in a measure, liquidate the farmer's overhead marketing costs and this is a part of the profit in handling grain that the farmers of this community have never had an opportunity to participate in."

Planned For Farmer.

Farmers in the middle west should sign marketing contracts and refuse to sell wheat in the open market, at least on the present basis, the pool manager believes.

"The farm marketing act," Mr. Smith has said, "was passed for the farmer on the land and is set up all the way through to function in

NEBRASKA EXTENDS WELCOME TO THE 'CHRISTMAS MONTH'

DECEMBER—OF COURSE IT'S IMPORTANT HISTORICALLY BUT WHAT MATTERS IS WILL SANTA CLAUS GET HIS SHOPPING DONE?

This is December 1 on the calendar, but it's only the beginning of Christmas for the most of us.

We're already giving the goose a mental roasting, and frazzling our nerves over the cranberries. We may be reading of Aunt Agatha, Mrsr. Dalrymple, and Milly, with Mr. Littlepage as a sort of motor to keep their reactions of indivdual generations in motion, but we are wndering if there's enough lace to finish the handkerchief case, and the talkies are enlivened by ones own inward conversations on the merits of mince pie versus plum pudding.

December is probably the outstanding month of the year.

It is doubtlessly the busiest.

We've gained a couple of hurdles. Christmas is the remaining one for 1929, or of any other since the world has held any semblance to the sphere we know.

Football Behind Us.

Thursday for us of the middle west marked the end of the football season. We've no longer any reason to put off the Saturday shopping. The radio can no longer broadcast of fifty-yard passes and field-long runs. A tenor, afternoon nap stories, a pattering piano are its only amusements now on the seventh day of the week.

We haven't quite determined what we shall talk of, with twelve months before another gridiron fracas, but we do know we can go forth to purchase a few wisps of gifts for Christmas.

Thanksgiving we've only left behind. However, its pies and turkeys are still acute memories.

Today is December.

"And my dear, only yesterday it was the Fourth of July. Why, someone spoke of going south early in December, and I wondered why talk of things in the next incarnation.

Shopping Worries Begin.

"But it's here. Honestly, I haven't put last year's gifts away. Before we know it, it will be the Fourth of July again—and then another Christmas. And I've no idea what I'm going to get for my own family this Christmas, not to speak of all those hordes of Tm's relations that—well—at least are difficult when it comes to pleasing."

The greatest spiritual event of a material world has been dated as December 25. All the plans and thoughts of December are in memory.

On the other hand, it has happened that December has been noted for several events of history in Nebraska. The long tale of the territory and state has been told on each day and in each month of the year, but several dates of marked importance have been in December.

As long ago as December 30, 1812, Robert Stuart and his party, returning from the Astorian expedition, went into winter quarters in the present Scottsbluff county. Fearful of the snow-covered wastes of an all but unknown country, with bitter experiences behind them, they spent three months there, waiting for the spring.

Work On Railway Started.

It was on December 2, 1863, that the first shovel of dirt was turned in Omaha for the Union Pacific railroad. A. J. Poppleton made the main address of the day, and A. J. Hanscom of Omaha presided at the exercises. The shovels were managed by Alvin Saunders, Nebraska's governor, the mayor of Omaha, B. E. B. Kennedy, and George Francis Train, one of the sponsors of the railroad.

Nebraska as a territory held its first election December 12, 1854, when a congressional delegate and thirty-nine members of the first territorial legislature were chosen. Napoleon B. Giddings was elected as the first delegate. Thirtn of th thirty-nine members were selected for the senate, known as the council, and twnty-six for the house.

The second legislature convened at Omaha, December 18, 1855. At that time, the territory was being surveyed, and the governor stated that the foundation of the capitol building was completed. A bill was passed, providing for the organization of uninhabited portions of the territory into counties.

Two legislature in session marked the fourth legislative organization, which met December 8, 1857. Capitol removal was one of the main questions before the house in that day, but the minority prevented the bill favoring the change from coming to a vote. Majorities from both houses withdrew, reconvened at Florence, and went merrily on passing bills. However, since the validity of the acts was denied, the efforts meant no great change for Nebraska.

Anti-Slavery Bill Vetoed.

When the sixth territorial legislature met, the records were dated on the first day, December 5, 1859. Both houses passed a bill prohibiting slavery, but Governor Black vetoed it. The group enacted a bill to provide for an election in March to determine whether or not self-government was desired.

The first local mail route in Nebraska territory, operating between Nebraska City and Fort Calhoun, was opened in August of 1854. The first postoffice in Nebraska was established at Table Creek, later renamed as Nebraska City, December 20, 1853. John Boulware served as postmaster.

Nebraska's first capitol as a state was ready for occupancy in December, 1868.

December 5, 1866, during the first days of the twenty-ninth Congress, Senator Wade of Ohio introduced a bill for the admission of Nebraska as a state. January 9, the bill passed the senate to allow negro suffrage. Ten days later, the house adopted the bill by a very satisfactory majority, after adopting a similar amendment on suffrage. The next day the house concurred in the house amendment.

After another ten days, President Johnson vetoed the bill on the ground that the amendment was unconstitutional. Early in February, the bill was passed in the senate over the president's veto, and the next day it passed the house.

By this means, the bill by which Nebraska was admitted to the union had its beginnings among the December events.

Look To Future.

These events of major importance, many of them prominent in the formation of the territory and the state, and as many others of similar import, took place in December. Nebraska and its then present, and certainly its future, were vitally concerned in them.

Yet it is not of these things toward which people's minds are this day turning. They appreciate the greatness and the prosperity of the commonwealth, but there are more important things for consideration in this month that marks the dying year.

Our consciences tell us Christmas is coming. The gifts that are yet unbought, or, more probably even unknown yet. Those souls who have their Yuletide-wrapped packages in the lower bureau drawer by Hallowe'en are so rare that they are worthy of comment. We know that there are only twenty-four shopping days left till Christmas, and if we let our consciences be our guide, we know only too well what is just around the corner.

Antiquarian Love Ignored.

We can't be concerned with legislative enactments and legal phraseology and history so recent as sixty years ago when we can't decide what to get for Johnny, Mary, Aunt Sue, Betty, Polly, Frank, and Joe, who all have Queen Ann desires to go with our Mary Ann purses. It's small matter to us who or why or when determined to have a slice of country beyond the Missouri named Nebraska, when we gaze on our holiday list, and know that something that looks like $200 must be provided for around something like one one-hundredth of that sum.

December probably has a history rich in antiquarian lore. But we'll study our local and national history when there's nothing more exciting than April Fool's day in the calendar. There may be much that we should know of December, but there's only one thing we do know—that twenty assorted relatives must be squeezed about a board accommodating a half dozen pleasureably, and that Mary and Josie and Bob must all like the trimmings, even though Mary can't stand sage and Josie adores it, and Bob wants onions and the girls sniff disdainfully at the idea.

There might be any number of things on which we cogitate, this particular month.

There's really only one thing upon which we ponder.

How are we going to get ready for Christmas? And will there be any little ships come sailing home to me?

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. D'RISCOLL

CAPTAIN MARTEL, WHO HAMMERED HIS WAY TO THE TOP.

His name was something else, but he willingly took the name of Martel when he had earned it with his long-handled hammer. He was a common seaman aboard the British ship Restless ,trading in West Indian and South American ports about the year 1715. One night he killed the captain with a hammer, by way of starting a little mutiny, and appeared on deck all bloody, shouting, "I'm the captain here! who joins me to take all flags?"

There were a few dissenters, and these few the new captain insisted upon dispatching himself with his handy hammer.

So the mate, a scholarly chap named Dorgan, hailed the new captain as Charles Martel, in reference to the King of the Franks who so successfully wielded a hammer against the Arabs in the seventh century. Thenceforward, the bloody mutineer of the Restless was Captain Charles Martel, the pirate. He made a reputation for cruelty and ruthlessness at a time when there was real cut-throat competition in the cruelty and ruthlessness line.

Captain Martel always kept his long-handled hammer by him when there was trouble, as there very often was. Once, however, he incurred the unanimous condemnation of his crew when he tortured a sailor by sticking lighted matches between his fingers. The sailor was lashed to the mast, and was being disciplined for an infraction of discipline.

On that occasion, Captain Martel was unprepared for the swift movement of events. The mate faced him with a demand that he release the prisoner, and while Martel stared in astonishment at this impudence, three sailors grabbed him from behind, trussed him up, and cut the bonds of the man who was lashed to the mast.

Captain Martel was tried by a crew council on charges of undue cruelty, and was found guilty. He was bundled over the side into a rowboat, and his hands and feet freed. He was given a cask of water, some provisions, a brace of pistols, ammunition, and his beloved hammer.

This was in the Caribbean sea. Near Jamaica the lone boatman signalled his distress to a small fishing smack, and was taken abord. He promptly shot the captain of the smack, and induced the there members of the crew to obey his orders.

With the help of the three fishermen, Martel captured a small sloop, murdered the officers and most of the crew, and was once more fairly launched in the pirate business.

The Grayhound, a London merchantman, was one of Captain Martel's early prizes. She was bound from Africa to Jamaica with a cargo of forty slaves. But Captain John Evans, while carrying slaves for his owners, was doing a grand business for himself in ivory and gold dust. Evans was well acquainted along the Guinea coast, and knew how to round up handsome cargoes of elephants' tusks and gold. He had native runners who assisted in gathering the precious stuff during a year or more of waiting. He had established a system whereby whole communities might gain immunity from his slave raids by paying tribute in gold dust and elephants' tusks.

On this trip, Captain Evans had staked verything to make his personal fortune. He had neglected his owner's interest, and so had only forty negroes aboard for sale in America. But he had his greatest cargo of ivory and gold, which he had spent much time and energy collecting. He would retire after this trip, leaving his owners in pretty good shape and himself in luxury.

Evans fought to save his cargo. He was willing to fight to the last drop of his sailors' blood, but the sailors didn't seem quite so determined, and when the pirates boarded the Grayhound, the fenders threw down their arms and asked for jobs. Captain Evans, swearing and crying by turns, was turned adrift with four of his men in the ship's longboat.

Martel had the ship's crew lined up for inspection. He asked how many didn't want to be pirates. Six stepped forward, and Martel immediately dispatched them with his long-handled hammer.

"That's the way I handle disagreements," Martel explained to the rest of the Grayhound's crew. "Now, the rest of you lads are with me, I believe. We want to be all one happy family here, and when anybody isn't happy or doesn't agree with me, I want him to come right to me and speak up about it. Don't be afraid to speak out. I'll cure you, just like I cured these six boys. This little instrumen (patting his bloody hammer) is guaranteed to cure."

There wasn't much trouble about discipline from that moment. Martel kept the Grayhound and took command of it himself. His sloop he kept along with him, under command of different underlings each week. He didn't purpose to have any mutiny that would take one of his vessels from him. He kept shifting members of the crews from one ship to the other constantly, so that those who were not constantly under his eye could not have time to form a plot and execute a maneuver against him. Martel had had one taste of loneliness of an open boat on the high seas, and didn't like it.

Martel took his cargo of ivory and gold dust to Boston, where he had established a working agreement with a merchant prince who specialized in stolen goods. But Captain Martel did not place his trust wholly in brokers. He went to the banks with the merchant, swinging his trusty hammer like a swagger stick in his right hand, and personally observed the changing of the gold dust for minted gold. He checked the ivory transactions, and, when the broker announced that turning his merchandise into cash would necessitate a trip to New York, Martel did not hesitate to volunteer to go along as bodyguard and assistant.

Captain Martel took two of his own bullies with him, and the broker was constantly in fear of his life. But the deals were carried through quietly enough.

When Martel had his money in bags of gold coins, he rejoined his ship at Boston, handed out the men's shares, and took his two bodyguards on a short expedition. They set out in a small boat from Boston harbor on a foggy morning in October. The boat contained Captain Martel's share of the gold, estimated at about four hundred thousand dollars, in terms of today's American money. It contained also two spades, and Captain Martel's hammer.

The party was gone two days and nights. Then Martel returned. The two bullies were never seen again. If you ever chance upon Captain Martel's gold, somewhere in the vicinity of Boston Harbor, you may be able to identify it by the remains of two skeletons. I should imagine that the skulls might be broken, as if by a blunt instrument, as the police reporters used to say.

Captain Martel went back to the Caribbean to make one more haul. I confess that I am mystified by this action of his. He had just buried a fortune that much larger than most successful pirates ever carried with them into retirement. If he had been content to settle down in Boston with that gold in the bank he might have founded a family and become a noble tradition. But he deliberately chose to go back to sea under the black flag, with a noose always dangling over his head, on the chance that he might run across another shipload of elephants' tusks and gold dust. A modern, civilized man simply can't understand such behavior—unless he knows about the stock market and the adventurers who go back and back again, risking all on a chance as remote as that of capturing a shipload of elephants' tusks off the Virginia capes.

The foraging was not so good this time. Martel acquired one more slooo, and cruised with his little fleet, well armed, well manned, and able to fight or run away as the occasion seemed to demand.

With but little stuff of which to make prize money, the Martel fleet put into a lonely inlet on the coast of Santa Cruz. The Grayhound needed cleaning and repairing.

The inlet was long and deep. Tropical trees leaned out over the water. There was a heavily wooded little island that divided the channel, two hundred yards from the beach where the Grayhound was careened. Here, Captain Martel deicded, they would be safe from the British men-of-war that were reported to be in the Caribbean looking for him.

But Captain Martel did not take foolish risks. He swung one of his little sloops across one of the narrow channels formed by the island, and the other he anchored in the still narrower stream. He dismounted the guns of the Grayhound and set them up in a little fort that was built on a hill overlooking the beach.

The English sloop-of-war Scarborough, scouting the sea for Martel's fleet ,was at Bridgetown, when word was brought that suspicious vessels had been observed getting ready to careen in a small inlet in a certain latitude and longitude. The Scarborough was well armed and manned, and eager for battle. She put out, and within three days had found the inlet and verified the character of the vessels within.

Martel took all his men ashore, except a few who were left to man the guns on the blockading vessels. He opened fire on the Scarborough from the fort, and the Britisher stood well out and replied. The two sloops in the narrow channels were sunk by the Scarborough's fire.

The warship continued to pound away at the careened Grayhound, and at the fort, which was soon almost silenced. Then the English sailors landed, took what was left of the fort by storm, and put to flight the half dozen pirates who were left alive.

All were captured except Martel, who made good his escape into the interior. He found himself, at the age of forty, a fugitive pirate in a jungle, defeated, and in possession of nothing except the ragged clothes he wore. He had even lost his hammer, and he was a long way from Boston Harbor and the landmarks that might point the way to his treasure.

Three years later, Martel turned up at New Providence, the capital of piracy in the western world. He was no longer terrible. He was begging for a job as a gunner on any pirate ship that might be sailing soon, and he offered to work for nothing if his employer planned to make the port of Boston within the next year.

Unable to find work in his chosen field, Captain Martel became a worthless roustabout, and the butt of much ridicule. He died in a grogshop fight, without having time to tell anyone where to find his buried treasure.

Embryo Reporters Explore Liner Bremen Which Set New Atlantic Crossing Record

BY DOUGLAS TIMMERMAN.

Gaining entrance to the record-breaking Bremen liner over a water-line bridge after the ship had been closed to public inspection, we three curious reporters from Columbia school of journalism found our way barred by a blond steward.

One of our party knew a few words of German and so he and the steward tried to reach an understanding. Frequent headshakes seemed to forecast the end of our adventure but an English-speaking officer happened along just then and granted our request to inspect the blue pennant winner of the Atlantic.

Being far below the surface of the water for the first time was a queer feeling. We were on 'H' deck which, when one considers starting with 'A' deck, is pretty far down.

An investigation of the ship's swimming pool was our first adventure. However, all the water had been drained from it for cleaning purposes and we could only appreciate its design. Tile of an Egyptian design was used to enhance the beauty of the pool.

Ship's Bar Locked.

Intense heat from the engine rooms caused us to abandon our tour below 'E' deck. Here we came upon the ship's bar which was closed and locked, however. In response to questions, the red-faced bartender told us he had been "over to Hoboken to a beer party last night. It was fair beer but it cost too much."

We were led past mosaics and German modernistic art creations to 'C' deck. There in the lounge was an automatic 'range-finder.' Puzzled or lost passengers had only to press a button designating where they wished to go and an electric chart giving full directions flashed into view.

Paintings and warriors in brass armor occupied modernistic niches in the walls of the lounges. By paying extra fare, 600 passengers ate in a special dining room. High ceilings, potted plants and a jazz orchestra belied the fact that this was a "salt water" dining room.

Passengers who had paid the reg-

Baer Facts in Hollywood

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

A DAY WITH JOHN GILBERT.

The sudden blizzard, which submerged Minnesota and Wyoming under six feet of white, proved to be John Gilbert's fan mail.

Fan mail is the leading industry of Hollywood. It arrives by train, motor, Zeppelin, dogsled and on foot.

The letter carriers of Hollywood are bow-legged from carrying it to the million-dollar Gilbert postoffice.

John was delighted to welcome us to the exit of his home. It is built in the modernistic style with the windows in the chimney and the entrance in the attic.

It was breakfast time. We ate off postcards. Our serviettes were perfumed love letters.

The meal consisted of beautiful photographs scrambled with eggs.

"Listen to this one," John said, 'since that crash in Wall street I am afraid to read a letter that has a margin on the page.

"'Dear Mr. Gilbert, I saw you in that delightful picture, Blazing Patriarchs, and fell in love with you in the orchestra. My husband was with me at the time and almost fell out of the balcony.'

"'John, sweetheart, you are a very tasty dish. Will you please send me an autographed automobile?'

"'I have been married to my husband for sixty years, we have eleven children and a kitchenette. But my husband doesn't understand me.'

"'When you kissed Greta Garbola in that tropical fade-out, my heart changed like a traffic light. John, why don't you leave that last Hollywood life and marry me? I can slip the old man a powder with his gumdrops.'

"'There is nothing more beautiful than young love in an Old Folks' Home.'

"What do you think of that one?" John asked me. He knew I was an authority on the subject.

"Well, John," I told him, "opportunity knocks but once at every man's door."

"That's the reason we put burglar

THE GLORY OF A "FAILURE."

The civilized world rejoiced when out from the eerie stillness of the Antarctic came a message announcing the safe arrival at the base camp of Commander Richard E. Byrd, and his daring associates, after a historic airplane flight over the South Pole.

Millions of hearts were lightened through the knowledge that a brave and honorable man had fought his way through menacing dangers of bitter cold, and savage winds, and over awesome mountains of ice to the bottom of the earth, and then back again to that haven which is called "Little America." It was a superlative feat of skill and courage. To Byrd it brought recognition as the second man to visit both poles of the earth, and the first to fly over both in heavier than air machines. It gave him the distinction of contributing more to the scientific knowledge of the conditions in Antarctica than any other man in history, for while Byrd's plane was thundering across desolate stretches of ice and snow, and soaring above terrifying mountains, which shot their peaks 15,000 feet in the air, his movie camera was faithfully recording the record of the flight. More than that other scientific instruments were recording the altitude of the mountain chain, the velocity of the winds, and the temperature of the air.

The inquisitive soul of Richard Byrd has not been appeased. His program is far more pretentious than a flight over the South Pole, outstanding as that one feat is. Shortly he will be setting forth on another long flight to the east and likewise he plans to fly west from Little America to explore regions, which man has never seen. If he completes all of the work which he has projected, he will return from the Antarctic with the most complete knowledge of that region which any explorer has ever gathered of unknown, unglimpsed lands.

This is Byrd's hour of triumph. The man, who looks little more than a boy, has kindled a thrill of pride in every American heart—pride that the race has produced a man of such dauntless heart, and such scientific skill that he has been able to overcome such truly great obstacles in a fashion as to make it appear absurdly easy. Amundsen, doggedly and grimly following dogs and sled, required 147 days to reach the pole. Captain Scott, the only other man who attained the goal, required a slightly longer time, and perished in a howling blizzard when but 155 miles from his base camp. Byrd was but 18 hours in flying to the South Pole and back, including the hour which he spent at the foot of the mountains on his return trip, in refueling the plane.

What were the thoughts of those men, benumbed with cold, the roar of the great engines, and physical fatigue, as they tumbled from the cabin into the arms of the little party which had anxiously waited at the base camp? It furnishes an interesting reflection upon life, for the four, who had just completed the greatest adventure in aviation, were not thinking of fame and glory. They wanted only sleep.

Such is the anti-climax of a feat which stirred the imagination of hundreds of millions of people. They were trundled off to bed, and within a short time, were soundly sleeping, oblivous of the dangers through which they had passed, and unaware that back home their names were upon millions of lips. Fame and glory! What does it mean to a man, who in eighteen hours, lived the lives of a hundred gallant explorers, who perished in the snows and the cold of Antarctica? Back again safely, the body was deadly weary, and the spirit exhausted. The chap, who had succeeded in blazing new trails, became but a tired man to whom only the healing balm of rest appealed.

In accounts which Commander Byrd prepared after he had succeeded in flying over the North Pole, this confession appeared:

"Here I was—a young man—barred from the profession for which I had prepared myself—retired from the navy because of ill-health. I was a failure."

Nothing is more glamorous in connection with the life of Richard Byrd than the fact he came from "failure" to become the most distinguished explorer produced by the American nation. It is easy to understand the bitterness which filled his heart when he stood upon the dock in that hot, stuffy port in the Philippines, with the knowledge he had been retired as an active officer in Uncle Sam's navy because his frail constitution could not withstand the hardships. We wonder if he thought of that day when his youthful dreams were smashed as he glided down upon the snows at Spitzbergen after having circled over the North Pole. We wonder now if any of that boyish pain and misery of his first great disappointment washes back over him to sweeten and strengthen his pride in his amazing triumphs in exploration. From "failure" has come everlasting fame and glory. To us that is the most amazing fact connected with the career of a most glorious man.

"JUST ONE OF THE FOLKS."

Anyone who has been in a position to observe the course of political events over a period of two or three decades can appreciate the sentiment expressed by former Attorney General Spillman during a visit to Lincoln the other day, when he said that he found it a relief to be out of public office and "just one of the folks" again.

Mr. Spillman is a lawyer and finds more satisfaction in the practice of his profession than in chasing political rainbows. He had six years of experience as a state official, besides serving in the constitutional convention of 1920 and being at different times a candidate for congress in the third district and for United States senator. After going through the mill he has come to realize that the field of private effort is more alluring and offers more substantial rewards than the world of politics.

"In these jazzy times a public official never knows what is coming up next, and he has to spread out his efforts over a lot of territory," he declared.

That statement summarizes the reasons why a great many men who have the ability and character that would make them valuable public servants refuse to consider an officeholding career and choose to devote their talents to private affairs. Conversely, it explains why government is largely dominated by shifty politicians who are adept in "spreading out over a lot of territory." Small bore politicians often get the offices because better men won't compete with them.

This condition will probably continue until the great body of American voters becomes aroused to demand more conscientious administration by those whom they entrust with authority. Until the spoils system is abolished and a curb put upon the activities of special groups that seek to control government for their own selfish purposes, no radical change in the quality of officeholders or the results of their work can be expected.

Former Attorney General Spillman is not a pessimist. He has no "grouch." He was counted among the successful men in state politics, having always been a good vote-getter, and doubtless he could have continued to hold his state office for an indefinite time if he had been satisfied to remain in it. Therefore, his frank assertion that he finds more pleasure in being a private citizen—"just one of the folks"—may be taken as indicative of how he really feels.

Down in their hearts, a great many others who are occupying public positions must agree with Mr. Spillman. It was undoubtedly the wish to get out of the limelight and back into his home atmosphere which prompted Calvin Coolidge to refuse a renomination that would have come to him without asking. Senator Norris of Nebraska has several times voiced his inclination to quit public life; and though he is slated to be a candidate for another term the probability is he would much rather drop out at the expiration of his present one.

WAR COSTS.

From the records of the United States pensions office comes a very clear picture of war costs. The last three surviving veterans, out of the 70,000 men called to the colors by President Polk in 1846, died during the last year. The last Owen Edgar, was 98 years of age, when death came.

The last survivor of the revolutionary war died in 1869 while the last survivor of the war of 1812 died in 1905. Although the War of 1812 ended over 114 years ago there are still nine widows of veterans who participated in it receiving pensions.

At least another quarter century will elapse before the last survivors of the Civil war will pass, while widows of soldiers will still be drawing pensions when the century closes.

The facts set forth are not prepared in a critical frame of mind. They merely reflect the costs of war which are sometimes overlooked. Certainly a grateful nation should remember the men who volunteered to fight for it and particularly in declining years should see to it that those men and their wives do not want for comforts. That is the least compensation which a nation can make to those who risked their lives in defense of country.

The heavy obligations of war, however, are not the sums required for its immediate conduct. From 1917 to 1920 the United States accumulated a debt of approximately twenty-five billions of dollars. Half of that was advanced to Allied nations. The remainder was spent upon American armies and the navy. That will be but a small portion of the cost of the World war to the American people. Before this nation has rightfully discharged its duty toward those who served in France, or entered training camps in this country, another century will have passed. There will be a continuing responsibility there which will increase the ultimate expenses of the war several times the amount now computed. Civilization does pay a frightful price for the settlement of differences through resort to the sword.

CRIMES AGAINST CONFIDENCE.

Crime losses in the United States amount to five hundred millions of dollars annually, according to a statement which has just been given out by a New York authority, following an annual survey. It is stated that embezzlement accounts for 125 millions, burglary and theft 250 millions and forgery and fraud 125 millions.

These figures are more significant than they at first appear, for they show that only approximately one-half of the losses are due to the operations of professional criminals. Burglary and theft, it is stated, cost 250 millions of dollars, or half of the total; but not all thefts, especially of automobiles, are the work of professionals, though it is probable that most of the burglaries are.

The other half of the losses are from embezzlement, forgery and fraud. These are crimes which, as a rule, imply confidence in those by whom they are committed. To be sure this is not always the case when it comes to forgery, but the exception there will be offset in the matter of thefts, so that it can safely be considered that half the crime loss of the country can be charged to non-professionals and those who have been trusted by employers and society in general.

That is the most alarming phase of the whole situation and the one which requires the greatest amount of study and thought. Probably the only way to handle the professional is by increasing the police force and making it more efficient. The country now pays only 85 million dollars a year for policing, which is considered inadequate, especially in view of the fact that much of this goes for the enforcement of special laws.

The fact that one-fourth of all the crime cost in the United States is due to embezzlement seems to prove conclusively that large numbers of people are living beyond their incomes or are gambling with the funds of their employers. In fact this is known to be the case, for it is shown almost every time that an embezzler is apprehended. Perhaps the things that have come to pass within the past few weeks will have a salutary effect and there will be an immediate diminution in practices of this character.

To protect society against the professional criminal is merely a matter of employing a sufficient number of efficient policement. To save it from the depredations of those who want to "keep up with the Joneses" or get rich quick, is a far more complicated problem.

BEEF AND BRAWN.

The little man has come into his own on the gridiron in the season which has closed. Among the outstanding sensations was Albie Booth, the Yale star, who virtually single-handed won three games for his school.

Booth weighs but 147 and in spite of the disappointment in the Harvard game, he deserves recognition as one of the outstanding backfield stars of the year. With him, except for the closing contest, Yale played brilliant football. When he was on the sidelines the team was lifeless and slow.

Even more impressive was the showing of the diminutive Russell Dills of Missouri. Coach Henry had a wealth of material at Columbia, including backs of size and weight. At the start of the season the Missouri Mentor gave the preference to beef and brawn. Dills was held in reserve while men who weighed many pounds more got the call. Henry waited until the Kansas game to send Dills into the lineup. It was Dills who defeated the Jayhawkers by a dazzling run, after receiving a forward pass. Again in the Thanksgiving day game Dills won it by running for a touchdown from the kickoff, and scoring a second time after swinging around the end.

It is a fine thing for football that the little man with speed, courage and ability can hold his own against giants. There is something which pleases the crowds in the spectacle of a smaller chap successfully waging battle against men who are much larger than he is. Perhaps it is the American trait of sympathizing with the underdog but it does add to the variety of football.

It isn't necessary to be an aviation enthusiast to be air-minded.

Whooping It Up For Wall Street.

Restoring confidence is a big job.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. And I just have not had much time to read the papers lately on account as you know, that I have been trying my best to help Mr. Hoover and Wall Street "Restore Confidence." You take confidence, its one of the hardest things in the world to get restored once it gets out of bounds. I have helped restore a lot of things in my time, such as cattle back to the home range. Herded Folly girls toward the stage door near show time. Helped to revive interest in national political conventions. Even assisted the democrats in every forlorn pilgrimage, and a host of other worthy charities. But I tell you this "restoring confidence" is the toughest drive I ever assisted in. When I took up the work two or three weeks ago, confidence was at a mighty low ebb, that is so all the papers and speakers was saying.

Wall Street had gone into one tail spin after another. You would pick up a paper in the morning and read the stock report and you wouldent think there was that many "minus" signs in the world. Well the effect of it was just like going to Monte Carlo, and hearing that everybody was betting on the black, and the red had been coming up continually for two days. That would just simply demoralize southern France and the whole Riviera. Well thats what this market was doing here. It was just taking all the joy out of gambling. If it kept on like that it would discourage gambling, and that of course would be bad for the country. (Thats what they said.)

Paper Losses No Joke.

Course there was a lot of us dumb ones that couldent understand it. We said, "Well if somebody lost money there, why somebody else must have made it. You cant just lose money to nobody, unless you drop it somewhere and nobody ever finds it." Then they said a good deal of the money was "lost on paper." That is it was figures but it wasent real money. Well I had done that, I could remember every contract I would get for a seasons work on the stage or screen, my wife and I would sit down and figure out what all we would have by the end of that season. Well at the end of the season we had the figures but we couldent find the money. So Wall Street men had nothing on us. In fact I dont think it had anything on anybody, for we all can take a piece of paper and if you give us enough pencil we can figure ourselves out a pretty neat little fortune in no time, so when I heard that most of the money had been lost on "paper profits," why I felt right at home with them.

But then everybody said it would have a demoralizing effect on the country for so many to have their paper profits all rubbed out at once That it would have the effect of making people more careful with their money, and thereby make it bad for speculation. That if people dident trade in stocks why Wall Street couldent exist.

Will Is Generous.

So I says what can we do for em so they will keep on existing? "Why restore confidence." And thats what I been doing for weeks, writing and talking. Course I hav't been buying anything myself. I wanted to give all the other folks a chance to have confidence first. There is none of the greedy pig about me. This confidence was for sale and I wanted them to have the very first chance of buying it.

Course I never could understand what the price of the stock had to do with keeping the company working and turning out their product. For instance if "Consolidated Corn Salve" stock had all been sold, and the company had that money it had brought in and was operating on that, what difference did it make to them if the stock was selling at a thousand bucks, or if people was using the stock to kindle their fire with? Their business was still to keep after those corns. In other words they should be watching the corns instead of the market. If the shares had sold for 564 one day and $1.80 the next, what had happened during the night to the afflicted toes of the country? Well I couldent get that.

Course they explained it off someway. Said, "Trading was good for the country, and kept things a circulating." So I finally went over to their side. I really did it for vanity, for I could see all the big men over there, and I felt flattered when I saw that I was one to join in this great work of getting people back to contributing to Wall Street again. Course there is a lot of them that is going to take me time to get back. They not only lost confidence but they lost money, some of them all of their money. So we will have to wait till they get some money in some other business, perhaps in some business in which they really have no confidence. Then they will be able to get back into the market not only with new confidence but new money. Thats going to take time in some cases.

But I am telling them that the country as a whole is "sound," and that all those who's heads are solid are bound to get back into the market again. I tell em that this country is bigger than Wall Street, and if they dont believe it, I show em the map.

Mr. Hoover called all the railroad men in and they decided to do all they could to keep people from riding on busses. Then he had all the bankers there, and they announced what their annual jip would be for coming year. They agreed to be more careful in their loans, and see that the borrower dident buy a farm with it, as agriculture was so uncertain. Try and get them to invest in some business where he could read the paper in the morning and see what he had. But its a great work, and I am just crazy about it. Viva confidence.

All About Nests

(New York Herald Tribune.)

Chopsticks are awkward instruments for most of us, but vastly more convenient than the twin horns of a bird's beak. Yet, even with ten supple, jointed fingers instead of mere chopsticks, not one of us can weave so subtly as a red eyed vireo or an oriole.

The falling leaves bare many surprises—nests which had escaped detection through all the busy month of their use. Sometimes the secrecy is the accident of a bent limb; sometimes it seems the deliberate product of a master artist. Taught by some mysterious instinct, the tiny humming bird builds its nest in the suburban back yard, but weaves it so cunningly of milkweek down and veneers it is skillfully with green lichens that even in winter it may escape detection. The bold phoebe, building over the doorsill, seems stupid enough, but the moss that makes its nest so conspicuous there hides it perfectly when it is tucked where it belongs, on the mossy ledge of a natural cliff.

It is baffling to pull these nests gently apart and then try to recreate them. Our fingers, apparently adapted to subtler work than the inflexible tips of a bird's beak, cannot restore what they can destroy. An oriole's elm tree hammock will hang through three winters' storms; a robin's nest in the lilac, mud lined though it be, will survive the dissolving influence of winter's snows. The grasses and twigs are interwoven and cemented the softer lining is coiled and intercoiled; we can only coarsely lay the fibers together, and one night's wind destroys the human effort. We may have solved the mystery of flight, but the birds still have gifts which we do not understand.

Here and There

Vir Fortissimus.

(The Chicago Tribune.)

The character and career of the great Frenchman who has just gone to his modest grave in the Vendee should tempt Americans to some serious reflection at this time. The great war is more than ten years past and in that short perspective we are examining its phenomena and its consequences with unabated sense of their importance to ourselves and to mankind. In the forefront of our thought is the search for means to prevent a repetition of its errors and its great disaster; and we in America, optimistic in temperament and relatively disengaged from its complicated forces, are full of confidence in any showy measure to dismiss war forever from the human scene. Our intellectuals share this confidence and are inviting America to abjure patriotism as a virtue dubious and outworn and to embrace an international altruism which, so far as events reveal, is still in the high region of their own aspirations. We are informed, for example, by one doctor of political and social science that there are 137 organizations in the United States fighting war and that the idea is sweeping the world, and an editor who is a senator, publishes the news to his rural readers under the caption, "World Peace Now a Certainty."

These voices are conspicuous in America, but it is worth our while, if we propose to keep a footing for national policy and conduct in realities, to note that Europe obviously is not basing either upon these glowing expectations. For Europe has a memory of some thousands of years and does not forget either that war has been endemic since human life began or that its causes are not made by a malign machinery, but by the nature and circumstances of humanity.

If we are willing to consider this aspect of international relations for the moment, at least, we might ponder the life and service of Clemenceau. He was easily the most conspicuous patriot of the great conflict and unashamed to the end of placing the safety and welfare of France before all other considerations. Plausible criticisms of his judgment are readily made, but all men are fallible. What was infallible in Clemenceau was his soul. The ancients would have honored him above other men for his fortitude under the bludgeoning of fate, his unconquerable courage and devotion to country, which was virtue in their ethics in its highest manifestation.

In France, although the lassitude which its great effort brought and the preoccupations of restoration obscured for a moment the service of its protector. Clemenceau is immortal, but also he should be forever memorable to all men. For the soul of Clemenceau became the soul of his people and bore them on shining wings through the darkest hour of their history. The fortitude of Clemenceau became the fortitude of France and the invincible will. What gift could be more precious than this to any nation or to any individual? Those of us who amiably cherish the belief that after countless ages of the unending battle we call life we now stand on the threshold of the millennium, that the lion and the lamb are about to lie down together, and peace reign henceforth among peoples, will not highly esteem Clemenceau. But those who believe the nature and destiny of man are to be read in the realities of the past and of the present and are not to be transformed by magic formulas of the ideal will always hold him high among the heroes for his unalterable love of country and the unconquerable soul which inspired it to its salvation.

At Mint Sixty Years.

(Philadelphia Bulletin.)

To employes and persons having something more than casual business with the United States mint, in Philadelphia, the retirement of Jacob B. Eckfeldt from the post of assayer will take from the building a familiar aspect, as if the facade had been altered overnight, or the front of the structure swung around to face some other street since last they saw it. Sixty years is a span of time for a man to be employed in one institution. It gives the incumbent an appearance of permanency to his associates which, suddenly broken, demands of them the sort of mental readjustment to his absence that the disappearance from a landscape of an object that has always confronted passersby produces.

Such a continuity of work in one department of the government as the Eckfeldts, father to son, have had is probably unequaled by any other family in the employment of the government. The history of the Eckfeldts for the four generations they have been in Philadelphia, from the first of them to come to Philadelphia, in 1764, from old Nuremberg, in German, John Jacob by name, to the present head of the family, has been made fairly familiar to Philadelphians in articles in the newspaper as Jacob B. Eckfeldt's tenure of office as assayer at the mint began to be of imposing length.

Workers in metal, all of them, the descendants of the first John Jacob inherited their forebear's skill and craftsmanship. The later Eckfeldts

Everyday Questions Answered By
DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.
Washington.

Can you explain Jesus so that I can really understand Him?

I have heard many orthodox sermons about Him, but they do not remove my difficulty. Also kindly name a good book dealing with this question.

ANSWER.

Your confession that you are greatly interested in the Master, but cannot accept the orthodox accounts of His person is by no means singular. On the contrary, it is a striking aspect of the modern mind. He was never so fascinating to believers and non-believers as He is today.

Begin with the three synoptic gospels which show you how the doctrine of the incarnation was developed around the being of this Galilean peasant by those who knew Him best. Here you see Him as a real man, living at a given time, conditioned by its environments and laboring under its disadvantages. Yet in and through these Jesus so revealed the nature and character of God that His earliest disciples were convinced of His Messiahship.

The evangelists do not forget His humanity in their conviction of His divinity. In fact they know Him as one of themselves until His person and work evoke from them the unavoidable conclusion that He is other, far other, than themselves. Do not be afraid of asking questions about this transforming process. The first disciples were puzzled as you are. They asked questions such as yours and found the answers in Jesus Himself. So will you if you find them anywhere. He is His own sufficient explanation.

Realistic efforts to meet the historical and philosophical requirements of the revelation He made are not injurious. St. Paul and St. John, to whom I refer you, met those requirements and increased the human consciousness of the divine values of their Lord. But belief in Jesus is not the result of investigation alone. It arises from your sympathetic relations with His entire self-manifestation. Everything in it belongs to one who is exceptional in regard to purity, justice, love and compassion. His temptations, trials and triumphs are those of the most extraordinary personality in history. The truths He taught not only present themselves to the world as the sure and steadfast word of the father for all His children. They are also so embodied in Jesus that what He says is but the overflow of what He was.

It is a progressive experience, deeply affiliated with your own spiritual demands as a son of the infinite. Consider all the profound humility, the tremendous authority, the endless significance of Mary's son, who is also the Lord of men. Review His meanings for the human race during the last 2,000 years, I think you can then arrive at a reasoned judgment about Him which will be the primal source of your best life. I suggest that you read "Jesus of Nazareth," by Bishop Gore, and "Jesus Christ and the Human Quest," by Professor Edwin Lewis.

QUESTION.
New York City.

My wife has deserted me, partly because I do not believe in spiritualism, a cult in which she has immersed herself, and partly because of her affection for another man. She is training our 8-year-old daughter in these spiritualistic notions, so that the child, on waking in the night, asks whether the noises she may hear are spirits "communicating." This situation worries me extremely, since my wife at present has the custody of our daughter and is thus permitted to teach her these detrimental ideas.

ANSWER.

Quite apart from the merits or demerits of spiritualism, I think it is your obvious duty immediately to exercise your rights as a father. If your wife has no better excuse for deserting you than this letter alleges, recover, through necessary legal proceedings, at least the part custody of the child. Indeed, the court may give you entire control of your daughter, provided you can show that her interests are safest under your care.

A bullied wife excites one's pity, but a husband who submits to a bullying wife arouses a measure of contempt. Have you allowed your home to be left desolate because you lack courage and resolution? If so, henceforth play the man and face the consequences. I say this fully aware that the mother in the case frequently has the best of the legal situation. But do not let that deter you. The child is yours as well as her mother's, and unless the lat-

Radiograms.

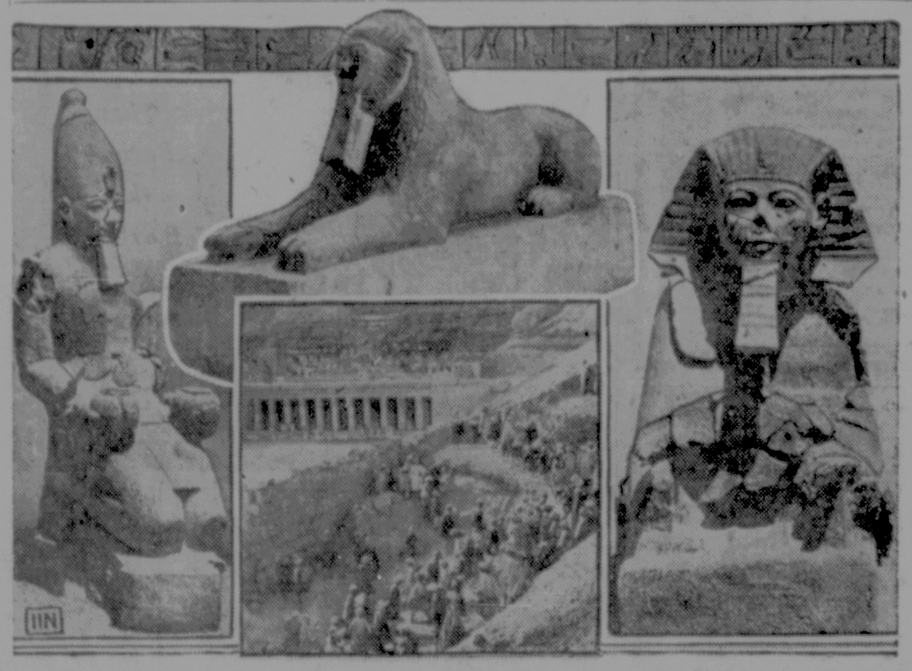
The radio is feared as spirit music by northern Alaska Eskimos.

France is equipping three of its principal express trains with radio receiving sets.

The latest radio statistics in the United States States show that Minnesota has the highest percentage, with 69 of every 100 homes provided with receiving apparatus, California is second, with 53, and Florida third, wth 43. The average for all the states s 20. New Mexico is lowest, with only six homes in 100 "listening in"

In an effort to help teachers of rural schools to keep pace with education progress and to improve their work, the Department of Public Education of Mexico is employing radio conferences. The department has its own high-powered broadcasting station. The government has purchased elaborate radio receiving sets and has thus far installed such apparatus in the rural schools of five Mexican states.

American Expedition to Egypt Discovers Priceless Treasures



(Metropolitan Museum of Art, from International Newsreel.)

The Egyptian expedition of the Metropolitan Museum of Art under the leadership of Herbert E. Winlock, has reported several discoveries among the ancient ruins, nearly 4,000 years old. Above illustration shows some of the important discoveries to date recorded at the Museum in New York. (Left) A striking limestone sphinx of Queen Hat-Shepset, whose rule historians set down as 2,000 B. C. (Upper center) This large kneeling statue, part of which through a previous expedition, graced the halls of the State Museum in Berlin. (Lower center) With the aid of native labor, the American expedition is uncovering the ancient temple of Deir El Bahri. (Right) This majestic granite sphinx of Queen Hat-Shepset is one of the priceless treasures discovered at Deir El Bahri. The gorgeous tomb of Queen Meryet-Amun, also unearthed, is said to rival in splendor and significance that of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

An empty coffin, fragments of a stone statue, a small granite sphinx, its expression of utter placidity belieing the fact that it is a likeness of Queen Hat-Shepsut who usurped the throne of Egypt nearly thirty-four centuries ago. Such are some of the treasures discovered by experts of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who are excavating in the tombs of Thebes, the burial ground of Egypt's kings. And there is drama and romance in every fragment of stone, in every faded garland of flowers, in every gilded face that decorates a coffin lid. For it is by these things that the story of Egypt's past glory is vividly revealed to us, for the tomb is the true chronicler of Egypt's royal and great.

One of the most dramatic and important results of the expedition has been the finding of the tomb and mummy of Queen Meryet-Amun, believed to be about three thousand years old, and rivaling in beauty and historic influence the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen. Dislodged brick-work that disclosed a small entrance gave the excavators but scant warning that they were on the threshold of a famous tomb, but a further investigation revealed that such was indeed the case. And what a story of hurried interment, of pillage and plunder did that tomb unfold. For it was apparent that the tomb had been walled up three separate times.

What happened in the depths of the cavernous tomb [illegible] that houses the mummy of Queen Meryet-Amun that she who was royal should have been so carelessly left in an unclosed inner coffin, with the outer coffins and their covers in different parts of the tomb? Were plunderers interrupted at their gruesome tasks? The excavators hope by their finding to reconstruct the true story of the burial of the queen, and the events that later transpired in the tomb, which it is believed was plundered in B. C. 1049. Whatever really happened it cannot heighten the drama of a figure of a slender little mummy simply wrapped and festooned with garlands, which Professor Winlock reports are still fresh enough to show what color they were three thousand years ago.

Tubes In Modern Receiver.

The modern receiving set may have anywhere from one to three audio stages and anywhere from one to five tubes in the audio circuits. It may employe one or two rectifier tubes for the B supply

Qualities of Good Receiver

Tone quality is the first factor considered by the average buyer of a modern receiving set In buying a set compare the various factors., such as tone, sharpness of tuning, lack of hum and distortion, volume, reliability of the manufacturer, ease of tuning, appearance, and price Good sets are built without screen-grid tubes and good sets are built with them.

Determining Battery Wires.

The best way to determine the positive and negative wires of a storage battery is to dissolve a teaspoonful of salt in a glass of water. Immerse the two leads to the battery in this solution. keeping them well separated. Bubbles will rise from each wire, but most bubbles from the negative one. Be sure to keep the hands dry and do not touch the bare wire, or a severe shock may be received.

Knowing "What It Is All About."

Every set owner and operator should have a working knowledge of how his receiver operates. The reason for this is the satisfaction that one has in knowing how things work and in the ability of spotting reception and correcting them by proper adjustments or replacements. The importance of correct hook-up and proper functioning of the various parts is, therefore, obvious, and the owner who has a sound knowledge of controlling principles will get the best result.

Value of Lightning Arrester.

Stray inductive charges resulting from the original lightning flash are generated in every conductor in a house if the flash is nearby, or within several miles. This happens also with the antenna wires. The function of the lightning arrester is to sidetrack this charge so it does no damage to the delicate windings or tubes of the receiver. Attachment by wire of the lightning arrester to a cold water pipe, whether inside or outside the house, is considered sufficient. This shunts the charge on the antenna around the receiver to a point nearer ground.

Recondition Set for Best Reception.

There are numerous little things that the set owner may do to improve his reception quality during these best months of radio receiving, so that his results will amply repay him for the few hours spent in this way. Checking vacuum tubes and batteries, replacing old "worn-outs," and a general cleaning is the usual first routine. if there is nothing radically wrong with the set, that is, if it receives and there's nothing wrong with its electrical circuits. Of course, in the latter case a reliable service man should be called in to eradicate the trouble, and he can do the necessary replacements at the same time.

For the Notebook.

A poor connection between a tube socket and a tube base will cause signals to waver.

The majority of new receving sets now use the dynamic type of loud-speaker.

A fine filter in the wires leading from the light socket to the set may sometimes stop an annoying hum.

As tubes grow older, it requires a longer time for the set to warm up and get under way

The average radio set uses two 245 tubes in push pull and a reasonable maximum signal voltage output of 150 to 200 volts can be obtained

Grandmother on Radio

"The Lady Who Sings With Her Fingers" is what southern radio fans have named Mrs. Julia Raine 73, a grandmother, who recently gave her first broadcast at Memphis. Telegrams of approval were so numerous she has been made a radio broadcasting fixture. She is the composer of "A Peerless Rose" and "In Tennessee," the latter the state centennial hymn, which was written while she was in Brooklyn, N. Y., "and lonesome and homesick for home."

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I hope you have room for one more fan in your columns. I have been a reader for several months, but decided I'd write once, to see if the letters that you publish are from really truly people, and I know that if I see mine in print that they are.

I was so sorry that I didn't get to hear Ramon Novarro sing in "The Pagan." I saw the picture, but it was silent, and I heard that there were some who saw it and Ramon sang aloud the songs that he seemed to sing to the girl. Do you supose he had a double for his voice, like Richard Barthelmess did in "Weary River?"

What is Richard's next picture? I liked him awfully well in "Weary River" even if he did have a double for his songs.

I read somewhere that Leatrice Joy was coming back to pictures again. Do you know if that is so, and what the name of her first picture will be. What company does she work for now? I always just loved Leatrice and have missed her from the screen. I have heard that she was once married to John Gilbert. Is this true?

Will Lon Chaney be out of pictures now that talking pictures are all the rage? I think it's a shame so many of the screen stars are being put out for stage stars. I much prefer my old favorites, even if they do have to have voice doubles.

Where is Harry Carey? I thought he was so good and we never see him any more, and now Tom Mix is not making pictures, and Buck Jones has quit. Seems like we have to get acquainted with a lot of new players.

This seems to be getting a little long for a first timer. Forgive me for being so inquisitive, and many thanks for your patience, JUST A BEGINNER.

And now do you believe that the Fans are real? We hope you will come often since you have become convinced.

It's too bad you missed the sound version of "The Pagan" because the actual singing of the theme song makes the picture so much more interesting. There would be no reason for Ramon to have a voice double since he has a marvellous voice of his own, and is considered good enough for grand opera.

Richard is winning favor now in "Young Nowheres." "Weary River" was so perfectly synchronized that the illusion was that Richard, himself, sang the songs, so the double did not in anyway interfere with my enjoyment of the film.

Leatrice Joy has made her talking picture debut in "A Most Immoral Lady" for First National. She seems to pivot between the vaudeville stage and the talking screen.

Leatrice was Mr. Gilbert's second wife, and preceded Ina Claire. They have a young daughter, past four.

Lon Chaney expects to continue with his screen work as soon as he takes a little rest in the mountains. "The Bugle Sounds" was to have been his next, but his illness forced him to retire from it. Mr. Chaney was on the stage before he started his film career, so his voice is trained.

Sound pictures will bring Harry Carey back to the screen. It has done that for a great many of the old time favorites, who had been on the stage before we saw them in pictures. Mr. Carey's stage experience, coupled with his screen triumphs, won him the title role in the screen version of the famous book, "Trader Horn." The company is now in Africa, where the scenes of the picture are being shot on the exact location described by the author in his book.

Dear Movie Editor—I can't see anything in this cry about Clara Bow's weight. Why don't they leave the poor girl alone for awhile and let her have enough to eat? What's the use of going to a movie and seeing something artificial, and if it isn't artificial to see an emaciated girl I don't know what is. Personally I prefer them a little plump and healthy looking and I think Miss Bow is just right as she is.

John Barrymore may be a wonderful actor, but he gives me a pain with his posing. He seems to be saying, "Gee, but I'm handsome, just look at me." And then he turns around and poses on the other side. By the way, what is his next picture? I thought he showed his conceit when he married a youngster like Dolores Costello. He's old enough to be her father.

How old is Davey Lee? He' a cute youngster as a supporting player to an artist like Al Jolson, but I don't just see the idea of of foisting any more kid pictures on a gullible public. What is Al Jolson's next picture? He got married recently, didn't he? Do you know who his wife was before she became Mrs. Jolson?

I could go on asking questions forever, but you'd probably enjoy hearing from me again more, if I closed now. Thanks a lot for answering my letter—JUST A MOVIE CRANK.

Clara will be glad to know there is one fa who does not want her to go on a water and hard boiled egg diet. This keeping the weight down is one of the most strenuous jobs assigned the screen stars, especially when they are well and healthy and have a tendency to put on weight.

"The Man From Blankney's" is the title of John Barrymore's next super-production.

Davey Lee is four. Al Jolson's latest feature has been titled, "Mammy." It will come to the screen after "Say It With Songs." Mrs. Jolson was formerly Ruby Keeler. She is famous for her tap dancing.

Dear Movie Editor—I haven't written to you since just before Christmas so I think it's about time for another bit of information concerning my favorites.

I don't like Buster Keaton so very well, but he can surely act dumb. Is he married and if so, to whom? What is his latest release? Who plays opposite him? Also, who who played with him in "College?"

Is Neil Hamilton married? Is his wife a movie actress? He is just handsome, I think. He looked a lot like Clive Brook in "The Dangerous Woman." Are they related? He was supposed to be a younger brother, and I though he looked enough like Clive to really be his younger brother.

I've heard that Billie Dove is the most beautiful star in Hollywood, but I don't think she is half as pretty as Norma Shearer. She looks like one of those beautiful but—, well not so interesting types.

Will you please give me the addresses of Gary Cooper, Nils Asther, Buster Keaton, Neil Hamilton and Clive Brook?—HOPEFUL, Fairbury, Neb.

Last Christmas is a long ways off. It's about time you were renewing your acquaintance with us.

Buster is married to Natalie Talmadge, a sister to the better known Norma and Constance. They have a couple of boys, too. "Spite Marriage" is the latest comedy Buster has released. Dorothy Sebastian played opposite him in it. Ann Cornwall was the leading lady in "College."

Mrs. Neil Hamilton is a non-professional. Neil isn't related to Clive, but there does eem to be a faint resemblance between the two. That's the reason Neil was chosen as the younger brother. In order to make pictures appear as realistic as possible, players are usually selected that resemble each other, when there is a relationship existing between them in the story.

It is generally conceded that Billie is more beautiful than Norma but of course that's just a matter of opinion. Norma has a more piquant personality than Billie.

You will find Nils Asther and Buster Keaton at home on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, Culver City, Calif. Gary Cooper, Neil Hamilton and Clive Brook all draw their salary checks from Paramount, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor —There must be something wrong with me, because I'm never able to do as the other fans do, and give you a list of my favorites. In fact, I have no favorites. I love them all. One time I think Ramon Novarro is the most wonderful actor I've ever seen. Then along comes Neil Hamilton or Clive Brook and I'm sure they are the best, and maybe the next day I'll see John Gilbert and I know he is the best. So there you are. I also love Richard Barthelmess, Charles Rogers, Dick Arlen and Gary Cooper, to say nothing about Nils Asther.

I am sorry to learn that Gary is going to marry Lupe Velez, because I don't think they will be congenial. She's a regular little wildcat, I should judge.

Gary was certainly wonderful with Colleen Moore in Lilac Time. Has he ever made a picture with Lupe, and if so what is the title of it?

I fell in love with Nils Asther in "Dream of Love." He is surely handsome. I though Joan Crawford was exceptionally good in that picture, too. What is Nils latest release and who plays opposite him?

I liked Richard Barthelmess in "Weary River," but was sorry to hear that he didn't sing all of it. He is a wonderful actor anyhow.

Who is the little boy that played with Tom Tyler in "The Trail of Horse Thieves?" He is really much better than Jackie Coogan, I think.

Why do we never see Leatrice Joy any more? I always liked her. I saw her once in a picture where she appeared as a homely girl and went out riding with a man and walked home. It was a scream. I must have been about seven years ago since I saw it. Could you by any chance tell me the name of it? Was it "Walking Home?"

I must move along now as I can feel the line back of me pushing to get in. Thanking you very much for your space, A MOVIE FAN.

You are a rather fickle young lady, but at least you have an interesting selection of "lovers."

Perhaps Gary likes taming wild cats. He's a Montana boy, you know. He played with Lupe in "Wolf Song." That's when the courtship began.

You probably saw Nils with Greta Garbo in "The Single Standard.

Frankie Darro in "The Trail of the Horse Thieves." Frankie, take your bow.

Leatrice has been enjoying a vaudeville tour, but she's returning to pictures for First National in a talking production called "A ost Immoral Lady." Leatrice is so fond of the vaudeville stage, however, that she has arranged her contract so that she will be granted three months out of every year for a vaudeville tour. I think "Winnie" is the picture in which you saw Leatrice as a comedienne.

Dear Movie Editor—I don't know whether you care to get letters that don't need answering or not, but I have no questions to ask because I find my answers in the letters written by other fans, but I do want to say a little in defense to the talking pictures. I have heard that some fans do not like them. I am an enthusiastic talkie fan. I am crippled and can't get around like other people, so shows are my main source of enjoyment. Of course I read a lot, but there are times when I crave other amusement, and instead of going to a cabaret or a dance as I log to do. I go to a movie and watch others dance, swim, ride and do the many other things that I yearn to do.

And now that talking pictures are here, I can hear the wonderful music of the musical comedies. I have always longed to go to New York and see a real musical comedy on the stage, but have never been able to do so. Of course I have seen silent versions of some of the musical comedies, but it's nothing like the sound version. I can hardly wait to see such wonderful pictures as "The Desert Song," "Sally," and the many other wonderful things that we have in store for us, according to the things I see in the paper.

And then, too, what a pleasure it is to hear the voices of our favorite stars. We feel so much better acquainted with them after hearing them talk. And the music is so good in the talking pictures, too, more appropriate than if played by an orchestra in a theatre, because it is usually written especially for the particular feature.

I would like to hear from some of the other fans on the talkies. Sincerely, HOPEFUL.

I a always glad to hear from fans, regardless of whether they have questions to ask. I would be glad to publish the opinions of the other fans on the talking pictures. Don't be bashful, either. If you like them, say so, and vice versa. It would be interesting to see just where Nebraska fans stand on the new screen entertainment.

Dear Movie Editor—I read your letters every Sunday, but this is the first time I've been able to get up enough courage to write to you.

I saw Betty Bronson again in "The Singing Fool" and she surely was good. Didn't she play in "Peter Pan?" Is she married and if so to whom? She isn't exactly pretty, but she has a lot of "class" to her.

D'd she play with William Haines in "Telling the World?" I thought it looked like her, but I didn't get to see the cast of the picture.

William Haines is another of my favorites. How old is he? Is he married and if so to whom? What is his address?

I saw Dorothy Mackaill in a picture a short time ago, with Milton Sills, but I didn't like her at all. I think it was called "The Barker." Milton surely was good in it, though. Is she a newcomer to the screen? Don't remember ever seeing her before.

Who played the part of "Jimmy Dugan" in "The Trial of Mary Dugan." He was a kneen actor. Norma Shearer was superb in that picture, and so was H. B. Warner. But I didn't like the part Lewis Stone took. He was sort of a villain, and I admire him so much I don't like to see him in roles like that. Is his hair really gray, or does he wear a wig?

This is quite a letter for the first

THE ROBBINS STUDIOS.

Arrangements are being made for another practice room for the use of part-time teachers or for students.

The First Presbyterian church boys' choir, under the direction of Mrs. Floyd Robbins, sang at the union Thanksgiving services Thursday forenoon. Their next appearance will be at the Candle Light services December 15, at the First Presbyterian church.

The annual Christmas program of the studios will occur Tuesday evening, December 17. The annual party and homecoming of preseot and former pupils will follow. All members of the studios are invited.

On account of the accident to Eva Phillips, who was to have sung the part of "Ruth" in the oratorio, the Bel Canto Oratorio society will postpone the rendition of the oratorio until January.

The Bel Canto Oratorio society has begun the study of the oratorio "Eli" by Costa. This choral masterpiece was composed for and dedicated to Queen Victoria. New voices will be enrolled for the work on this most interesting musical composition.

Several new vocal classes for two voices have been formed. One vacancy exists for a soprano voice.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Herbert Schmidt of the piano department will be heard in recital Wednesday evening at the Temple theater. All are invited to the performance which will consist of the following program.

Lincoln Symphony Notes

By ERNEST HERMINGHAUS.

The next concert is December 15, the third Sunday in December.

In the choice of program Mr. Seidl has been guided by the spirit of Christmas and has chosen such numbers as the Mother Goose suite of Ravel, the Sleeping Beauty waltz of Tschaikowsky and the Prelude and Love's Death from Tristan and Isolde of Wagner.

The program will be exceedingly bright throughout, starting off with Dvorak's Carnival Overture and ending with a Liszt Rhapsody. The very tuneful and brilliant G Minor Symphony of Mozart is the so-called heavy number, though it is a far brighter number than the Beethoven Third Symphony.

And then there is the Victor Herbert selection from "The Fortune Teller," completing a program that will be appreciated by all. It is such a one as would be called "popular" by the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The Junior Music club of Havelock met Saturday afternoon with Nila Spader at her home near Havelock. Eighteen were present. A program of piano and vocal numbers was given by Margaret Scofield, Betty Jane Lindholm, Arline Stastney, Dorothy Maxwell, June Barkey, Inez Tudor Nila Spader, Lucille May Maxwell, June Hawkins, Mary Tree, Mable Secund, and Bobbie Maxwell. The group sang favorite songs, directed by the organizer, Mrs. E. S. Luce, and the "Young Musicians' Code" was given. Mrs. C. A. Spader and daughters, Mae, Arline, and Margaret, served supper at two long tables. The next meeting will be with June Hawkins.

A group of members of the Matinee Musicale will appear in recital Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Temple theater. The accompanists will be Hilda Chowins, Frances Morley, and Fleda Graham Ziegenbein. The program follows:

Sarabande .....Rameau-Macdowell
Rhapsody Op. 79 No. 1.....Brahms
Intermezzo in E.....Brahms
Rhapsody in C.....Dohnanyi
Jeannette Olson Sidles

Night and the Curtains Drawn .....G. Serrati

Mrs. O. K. Bouwsma.

The Lincoln branch of the American Guild of Organists will hold a 12 o'clock luncheon at the chamber o fcommerce, Saturday, honoring Robert Elmore of Philadelphia, who will appear in recital at the First Presbyterian church December 9. The affair will be a Christmas party and the holiday motif will be carried out in the decorations and entertainment. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Robert Armstrong, Misses Alice Sexton, Margaret Mcgregor, and Harold Turner.

One of the Last.—Yes, Fans, Mary Brian has bobbed hair. Mary sacrificed her long brown hair for the sake of her art and you will see her bobbed in the part of Judy Wheater in her new Paramount picture, "The Marriage Playground." This is Mary's fifth talking picture.

Defendant in $100,000 Suit

Accused by Paul Weigand, former Ohio football star, of alienating wife's affections, beautiful Mrs. G. A. Rentschler, jr., former Joan Sawyer shown here, is named defendant in $10 0000 suit.

Screen Siftings

Norma Makes Another.—Norma Shearer made such a tremendous hit in "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have selected another Frederick Lonsdale play as her next feature. The new play, "The High Road," will offer an unusual opportunity for the display of Miss Shearer's comedy talents.

Paramount Studio Busy.—Paramount Studios will be a regular bee hive of activity in a few weeks with nine productions about ready to start shooting, five already under way, and eight in the cutting room. Paramount officials plan the biggest talking picture-making drive yet undertaken by any one company. Among the pictures which are about ready to release are "Darkened Rooms," with Evelyn Brent; "Half Way to Heaven," Charles Rogers' latest; "Pointed Heels," "The Marriage Playground," "Medals," "The Kibitzer" and "Behind the Makeup."

Plan New Revue.—Charles R. Reisner, who is starting work on a new revue for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, would like to have the public's opinion on the old songs they would like best to hear on the talking screen. Just mail any suggestions you may have to him at the studios in Culver City. Among the prominent players who will be featured in the new revue are Weber and Fields, Marie Dressler, Trixie Friganza, William Collier, DeWolf Hopper and Fay Templeton. Mr. Reisner was responsible for "The Hollywood Revue of 1929."

Johnny and Joan.—Admirers of Johnny Mack Brown will be glad to know that he is to play opposite Joan Crawford again in her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Montana." Mr. Brown was also seen with Joan in "Our Dancing Daughters." "Montana" is Miss Crawford's second talking picture. It is a western, and will present Cliff Edwards as a musical cowboy. The story is an original by Sylvia Thalberg and Frank Butler. Mal St. Clair occupies the director's chair.

Bessie Love to Wed.—An all star cast will surround Bessie Love when she stars in her greatest role to date, that of bride. Miss Love has confirmed her engagement to William Hawks, Los Angeles broker, and has announced that the wedding will take place shortly after the first of the year. Blanche Sweet will act as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Norma Shearer, Irene and Edith Mayer, Carmel Myers, Mary Astor and Bebe Daniels.

Daredevil Role.—Richard Arlen will be seen in the same type of role that made Wallace Reid famous in his next Paramount starring picture, "Burning Up." The picture shows Richard as a young daredevel of the speedways. Most of the action in the picture will be shot at one of Southern California's race tracks. Mary Brian plays opposite Mr. Arlen, and Tully Marshall, Francis McDonald and Charles Sellon are featured in the supporting cast. Harry Hartz, two-mile-a-minute race king, is technical advisor on the production.

Fill Two Roles.—Jeanette Loff and Stanley Smith are the two latest additions to the cast of "The King of Jazz Revue," starring Paul Whiteman and his orchestra. Miss Loff has had several important roles since she left her job as a theater organist to try her luck on the screen. She will sing in "The King of Jazz Revue." Mr. Smith will be featured with Miss Loff in her song numbers. He played on the New York legitimate stage opposite Lenore Ulrich in "Kiki," and also appeared in the original cast of "What Price Glory." George Chiles, who comes direct from the Biltmore, New York, is another new member of the stage headline who has been signed for this Universal superproduction.

Holiday Features.—Warner Bros. are preparing two Vitaphone Varieties for the holiday season. "Christmas Knight," a story of two families on Christmas night, features Bryant Washburn, Helen Jerome Eddy, Vivian Oakland, Niles Welch and Charles B. Middleton. "The Stand Up," a playlet which presents a dramatic incident of a New Year's Eve, is portrayed by Bobby Watson, Rudolph Cameron, Wilbur Mack and Marjorie Lane.

Climbed From Bottom.—William Wellman, the Paramount director who is noted for his work in bringing "Wings" to the screen, was not always at the top in his chosen profession. Mr. Wellman started his picture career as a messenger boy for Samuel Goldwyn at twelve dollars a week.

Opposite Maynard Again.—Kathryn Crawford, who played opposite Ken Maynard in "Senor Americano," will have that honor again in Mr. Maynard's new all-talking western, "Kettle Creek."

Answers To Movie Fans

time, so I'm going to close and thank you for the space and trouble. Sincerely, BILLIE.

I know that it isn't going to take so much effort for you to write again, and I hope you will soon. now that you have broken the ice.

Yes, it was in "Peter Pan" that Betty got her first big chance in the movies. She is still single. She's rather an elf-like little girl in real life, too. That was Anita Page, and not Betty in "Telling the World."

William Haines was born New Year's day, 1900. That makes it easy for you to remember his age. He is a young bachelor, and you may write him at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif.

Betty Compson is really an old-timer on the screen, but she has been enjoying private life since her marriage to James Cruze, until the past few months. She's been able to make a big comeback, now in talking pictures.

Raymond Hackett in "The Trial of Mary Dugan." He's a recruit from the speaking stage.

That's his own hair, and not a wig, that you see on Lewis Stone in pictures. It makes him more distinguished, doesn't it?

Screen Siftings

Italian Actor in Cast.—Henry Armetta, a noted Italian player, has been added to the cast of Vilma Banky's picture, "Sunkissed." Mr. Armetta takes the role of an Italian ranch foreman. Other players in support of Miss Banky are Robert Ames. Richard Carle, Lloyd Ingraham, Edward C. Robinson and Anderson Lawler. Victor Seastrom is directing.

Buster Tries a Talkie.—Buster Keaton is preparing to do his first talking comedy. It will be a satire on moving picture life, titled "On the Set." Marion Shilling, another newcomer to the screen, will be cast as a small town beauty contest winner opposite Mr. Keaton. Both Mr. Keaton and Miss Schilling will sing in the picture, which Edward Sedgwick will direct.

Pair of Stars.—When George Bancroft starts work on his new picture, "Ladies Love Brutes," he will have Ruth Chatterton, a star in her own right, as his leading lady. Miss Chatterton will take the role of Mimi Howell in the picture, which is adapted from Zoe Akin's play, "Pardon My Glove." Production on the picture will start as soon as Miss Chatterton completes her work on "Sarah and Son," and Mr. Bancroft returns from his vacation in Europe.

Carewe and Dolores Split.—Edwin Carewe will no longer be responsible for the career of his Mexican screen find, Dolores Del Rio. Mr. Carewe has sold his contract with Miss Del Rio to Feature Productions, Inc., a subsidiary of United Artists. The price is said to have been around $500,000. Just who Mr. Carewe will feature in his forthcoming film plays has not been announced.

Postpone Work.—"Fighting Caravans," the Zane Grey story which was scheduled for immediate production by Paramount, has been postponed until spring. It will be made as a special feature with Gary Cooper in the leading role.

Gets Important Part.—Julia Faye has been signed by Cecil B. De Mille for an important part in his new production, "Madam Satan." The only other member signed so far for the cast is Roland Young. Miss Faye appears regularly in the De Mille productions.

Talented Cast.—Kay Francis, the screen vamp, and William Austin, the eccentric comedian, appear as husband and wife in Paramount's new picture, "The Marriage Playground." Mary Brian and Fredric March supply the romance for the picture which Lothar Mendes is directing. Mr. Mendes is a former Ufa director.

Work on Dog Picture.—Jobyna Ralston and Lane Chandler are playing the romantic leads in Rin-Tin-Tin's second Warner Brothers Vitaphone production, "Rough Waters." The story is an original by James A. Starr and will be filmed mostly out of doors.

alarms on the door," John said.

"Listen to this one: 'Sweetheart, I saw you in Spontaneous Combustion. When you kissed Nita Gramboza, my pulse jumped so that my wrist watch exploded.'"

"That's a pretty good letter," I told John, "will you give me osme kissing lessons?"

"Heres another that ain't bad. 'Dear Johnnie Gilbert, your picture Blazing Whiskers is the most beautiful I ever saw. I paid a dollar for my seat and it was the first time I ever enjoyed the war tax. My boy friend got mad when I fainted when you kissed Alice Albino. Your lips clung to Alice's like a carpet sweeper hugs a Persian rug. Can you lend me ten thousand dollars until Wall Street becomes a philanthropic institution?'"

"That one starts as a love letter and winds up like a bill collecting agency. Got any more?"

"Here's a nice one," John remarked, taking a perfumed epistle out of the clam chowder. 'Dear John, every time you kissed Marie La Prune in your marvellous picture Smouldering Tonsils I thought I would choke. My sweetheart bought the seats but now I go stone. If I call up from Long Island can I reverse the charges? I love your pictures. Please send me three dozen with expensive frames.'

"Say, John," I said, "making a girl's wrist watch explode is pretty good. But once I knocked a grandfather's clock off a flight of steps."

"Here is one," John continued, 'John, dearest, I saw your picture Incandescent Lips, and when you kissed Moocha Blunkette, I got chills and fever.'

"'If you can't send me your love please send me some whiskey and quinine.'"

"John,' I said, "that girl needs help. If you have the whiskey and quinine Ill carry it personally."

"How many love letters do you get a day, Mr. Gilbert?"

"About ten thousand during my office hours from nine to three."

"Dou you answer them all?"

"No, my manager takes ten per cent, the letter carrier demands another ten per cent, and I mark the rest 'Opened By Mistake.'"

"John," I implored, "will you give me about a thousand of your love letters? I want to paste them on my windshield."

"Mr. Baer," John said in his most formal bathrobe, "I never saw the love letter I didn't want. I treat every one with respect and consideration. Do you know that there are a million aching hearts, a million lonely girls and a million Cinderellas dreaming of me?"

I knew I was up against a letter miser. So, like a million Cinderellas in crystal brogans, I left before the magic hour of midnight when the white horses change into mice and the beautiful carriage turns back into a pumpkin.

As I was stampeding down the avenue, I was clipped in back of the ear and knocked for a double loop.

Somebody had bopped me with my usual fan mail, a stale pie. It was an old Spanish custard.

Selecting Cast.—The part of "Muller," the young man who carried his text books into the trenches in Erich Maria Remarque's famous war story, "All Quiet on the Western Front," will be portrayed on the screen by Russell Gleason. Lewis Ayres has already been chosen by Universal for the role of Paul, and John Wray will be "Himmelstoss." Lewis Milestone is making a super picture out of the book, which everybody is reading.

GUTZMER STUDIOS.

Bernice Reed Mallat will sing a group of songs on the senior program of the Matinee Musical next Monday afternoon.

Mrs. H. A. McNerney was guest soloist at the Epworth Methodist church recently.

A number of singers from the studio appeared in solos and quartets at the home of Mrs. Harry M'Ginnis last Friday for a meeting of the P. E. O. Those taking part were Mrs. Hal Minor, Mrs. H. A. McNerney, Mrs. Arthur Pierson, Mrs. Kate Miller, William Stiverson, Lee Wilcox, and Karl Stermer, tenor, a student with Mrs. Kate Miller. Fleda Graham Ziegenhein played the accompaniments.

Mrs. Frank Henline of Kearney spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Lincoln. Mrs. Henline is preparing a program for the Kearney Womna's club, to be given on December 12.

MOTOR SIGNS AND MORALS. An Allegorical Fancy.

I have recently been reflecting on the deep underlying meaning that may be found in the highway warnings exhortations, advice, and allurement that accompany and guide the motorist that tell him to stop, to advance, or to recede; that warn him of danger or invite him to the languorous repose of a tourist's rest.

Musing thus, it seems to me that they present a curious and interesting parallel with the signs and warnings that mark our patch through life itself. I take as a first example, one of those best known to the moving motorist:

DRIVE SLOWLY
MEN AT WORK!

There is something in this gently whispered caution that ought to appeal to all that is best in us. Drive slowly! Men are actually at work here!

It almost suggests the same soft hush as the well-known lines:

"Tread lightly through the darkened room,
For a sick man lieth there."

Reflect on it! These men are actually at work! Hush, don't disturb them. The slightest thing might make them quit. Here they are, actually at work. Drive slowly, gently, sneak past them so quietly that perhaps they will never see us. Be careful! One seemed to lift his head for a minute. Don't give yourself away. Don't seem to know that he is at work. steady now, steady there! Safely past, and with a deep sigh of relief, we leap forward on the unencumbered highway. And the men, thank heaven, are still working.

We pass on with ease and speed the oily miles sliding away behind us—But, wait a minute, what is this:

LOOSE GRAVEL
BE CAREFUL!

Loose gravel! Ha! Ha! How like real life that is eh! Hitting the loose gravel! Youth will have its fling. There must be loose gravel in the path of every life! Hit it! Who cares? There's no one to see, no one to know. Let us taste the full joy of hitting the loose gravel while we are still young enough to hit it. Away we go in a flurry of flying gravel; unheeding, uncaring, taking a chance as in life itself. But hold! What is this, this solemn final warning—

How many a young man has...come home...with a mother-in-law on the back seat.

THROUGH HIGHWAY
STOP!

This has the same deep note of warning in it that the preacher's voice and unlifted hand convey, pointing out our final end. Even the most careless must pause, even the most reckless must stop. In the full speed of his career the awful warning sounds, STOP! And with panting breath (from his engine) and with a trembling (that shakes all his bearings) he stops, pauses a moment to think of his final end, and then, sad and chastened, slowly turns from the side current of his little life into the unending highway of eternity. . . .

The "through highway" sign is passed and we have recovered somewhat our equipoise, when lo! Another warning is staring at us from its white background, this time an exhortation that is, at the same time, a temptation, an allurement. . . .

BE CAREFUL
SOFT SHOULDERS

Ah! Careful indeed! Here, close to us as we sit, are soft shoulders. We almost touch them. But we must not press too close against them. That way lies ruin. We are like Ulysses, and the sirens with soft shoulders, are enticing us from our path.

How many a young man has disregarded this timely caution, has leaned a little too far towards the right from his steering-wheel, and has come home an engaged man, with a mother-in-law on the back seat.

Thank you, we are warned! Give us the granite pavement of the highway, the stern path of life, arduous though it may be, and let us turn from the allurement that may be out downfall.

* * *

Something of fatigue begins to be felt. The miles have clicked from decimals to tens, and from tens into the hundreds, and we are wearying. The evening is closing in. The daylight is dying in the woods and even on the western sky the light has almost gone. And, at that moment, broad across a gateway there beckons to us the invitation:

TOURIST'S REST

Was it not somewhere in a poem that we heard that before? Surely it was:

"Oh stay the maiden said and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast."

And look, the allurement is doubled with th further coaxing announcement:

HONEY
FRESH EGGS

Can we resist it—How sweet it were to lie at our laquid length upon the bench that we see beneath the elm In the twilight, a plate of honey beside our face and a fresh egg broken in our careless hand.

But no! The duty of the motorist is ever forward! On! Forget the honey! On with the lights, up with the power. Forward, if we die for it. And, see, we are already rewarded. Bright lights illuminate the road from side to side and stream in all directions with encouraging signs.

GASOLINE
AIR

That's right! Pour it in! Take it up and give us air! Air! Not even the dying Marmion needed it worse than we do.

And so, on for our final spurt, our real destination that we had hardly dared to aspire to reach that marks us 400 miles in a day! And, with a last throb and rush, we pass below the noble illumination that tells us:

THE BOOSTERS' CLUB WELCOMES YOU

Thank heaven for friends. Late as it is, dark as it is, these noble fellows are there—in electricity—to welcome us. Heaven bless their generous and unsleeping hearts. They welcome us.

And so, with a turn of the wheel we swing into the big garage, around us a perfect galaxy of brilliant signs—that speak of AIR, GAS, WELCOME, REST, REPAIRS—what can life ask more!

Graphic Outlines of History

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AS A YOUNG MAN

Franklin's early life was full of hardships and difficulties, as is commonly known. His first position was as a printer's helper, which was by no means lucrative, but it was the only business he was adapted to. Later he started a printing shop of his own and founded the Pennsylvania Gazette. The Saturday Evening Post of today was also founded by him.

Here and There

got more or less away from actual working in meals as they got the post of assayer of gold and silver brought to the mint for coining; but the pride of the old guildsman of Nudemberg in their trade was in their blood, and their work to them was not a task to be done as quickly as possible, but a creation of their minds and hands.

When the second Eckfeldt was made chief coiner of the Philadelphia mint by President Madison in 1814, he had been in subordinate positions there since the foundation of the institution. The third Eckfeldt entered the mint as a young man, and was made assayer by President Jackson in 1832. The present Eckfeldt, following in his fathers footsteps, took employment early in the mint, and became assayer in his turn in 1881, a post he held continuously from that time until his retirement the other day. Since the foundation of the mint, back in the eighth decade of the eighteenth century, there have been only six assayers, with the Eckfeldts holding the position for the greater part of the time.

"STUNT 5," CRIES THE CHEER LEADER

which are drawn on these charts, one to a chart.

Mr. Lewis takes his crayons and colors the squares, to form whatever is desired. For Thanksgiving he drew a turkey, among other things, on one of the charts, each square a color comparable to the color of the real bird. Whether it is an orange, a panther, or a word, he carefully colors it on his little drawing of squares.

A student comes in, and does his share of the labor on three-inch square stunt tags. On each tag, is printed: Row No. —— Seat No.——, with six rows, Stunt No. 1, Stunt No. 2, etc. He fills out these small cards from Mr. Lewis's drawing. For example, he fills in the row number as 20, the seat number as 14, and after each stunt he places a color, as opposite Stunt No. 1, red, Stunt No. 2, blue, the description suiting the color of the card the student will use in that particular stunts. The charts are arranged one below the other, with the same row for each one visible, so that each stunt card can be completely filled out at one time. The work of filling the cards takes about ten hours.

Cards Kept Under Seats.

Each stunt tag with its color hints is tacked to the corresponding seat by students secured for the purpose. The color cards are put in special receptacles under the seats, to be drawn forth at the proper moments. Formerly, they were distributed at the end of the half, but the newer method has been found more satisfactory. The students have been asked to put them back, but in the excitement of Nebraska's last touchdown at the end of the Pittsburgh game they threw them in the air, a very effective gesture, like a colored fountain.

The scarlet and cream cards are of the two colors, so that a stunt can be reversed merely by turning over the cards. It is generally necessary to purchase at least one new set of cards for each game, owing to the varied colors of the different schools.

Nebraska really has a seventh stunt, the huge scarlet and cream N. The colors for this permanent stunt are painted on the seat, so that it is unnecessary to provide a weekly tag.

When each seat holder finds his place, he discovers his stunt tag, telling the colors for each stunt, and the colored cards, about ten by twelve in size, in his seat. If there is to be motion in the stunt, as when the father and son shook hands or the tiger's tail was twisted, he finds a letter telling him he is motion and what he is to do. This egenrally involves card change of ten or a dozen students, and the change is made at a certain whistle.

Cheer Leaders Direct Stunts.

The head cheer leader, after the teams have gone into the locker rooms between halves, calls for Stunt No. 3, or some other number. Each student in the appointed section gazes at his stunt card, pulls out the proper color card, and becomes a part of the stunt so much appreciated by the spectators. If he is "motion," he listens for a special whistle, and movement began. When Nebraska peeled the Orange in its cheer section, the Orange changed to N, row by row, according to orders. The students remain seated, and hold the cards in front of their faces.

Among the outstanding performances of the Trojans this year was planned for the Trojan-Bear game. The southern school made the walls of Troy, with the battle flag flying high over the embattlements. For a second stunt, a Trojan warrior in his chariot was shown, with his steed galloping merrily on.

This form of entertainment is an evolutionary affair. The rain of this year has often blurred the directions of the stunt card and made them difficult to read. John Selleck, manager of the student activities, plans for another year to secure some sort of folded cards, to prevent ink blurring.

The pleasant idea is that any one in the proper seats can take part in this work, and, because the seats are all near the fifty yard line, it isn't difficult to find a holder for one or two that might be vacant one day, and, by being empty, spoil the effect. Any one can take part and be a performer in the great Saturday entertainment.

EMBRYO REPORTERS "EXPLORE" BREMEN

ular fare were accommodated on 'B' deck. Approximately 150 bakers and 85 chefs and helpers were needed to prepare food for this group of travelers.

Frankly admitting that he was tired of climbing steps and explaining "all those thingumbobs," our English-speaking officer introduced us to Radio Officer Entrup.

Complete Radio Equipment.

Officer Entrup, who lived in a Berlin suburb, told us that over 2,000 messages had been wirelessed from the Bremen during its trans-Atlantic journey. A little phone booth containing a radio-telephone interested the officer as much as it did our party. He explained it in great detail and proclaimed that it was "the greatest instrument invented, so far."

Numerous messages were sent concerning the condition of the wife of a well-known Boston physician, who was stricken with a severe appendicitis attack. Even at her enormous speed, the North German Lloyd ship kept an even keel and the operation was performed successfully.

The wireless room itself was as spick and span as the kitchen of a conscientious housewife. Shining instruments were patted affectionately as Officer Entrup explained their significance. From this technical words, we gathered that there were five sets varving as to killowat capacity. Beyond that, our comprehension was extremely vague.

Improved Life Boats.

Leading us to the "sonnen" or sun deck, Officer Entrup explained the construction of the 150 life "boots," as they were called in German. Each boat was propelled by a gasoline engine and, because of instruments generating pressure, was practically unsinkable.

One out of every three boats was a wooden boat which contained, in addition to food supplies for three boats for a week, a wireless set with a range approximating one hundred miles. "This wooden boat acts like a mother hen for the steel boats," Officer Entrup explained.

Conducting our party to the top deck, he showed us the catapult which enabled the Bremen mail plane "City of New York" to deliver letters to New York eight hours before the ship's arrival. Letters for downtown New York firms were delivered before the liner docked at her Brooklyn pier amid deafening roars of welcome.

Streamlined to the utmost, the smokestacks of the Bremen looked like giant falling raindrops. Windshield wipers for the pilot's roost were also a new addition to the nautical equipment.

Painted red a short distance above the waterline and black the rest of the way, the Bremen, at anchor, looked like a huge bobber waiting for a giant fish to come along and pull it beneath the waves of the harbor.

Italian Ace Loses American Bride

The marriage of General Piero R. Piccio, Italian Ace to Loranda Batchelder of New Orleans, which took place in New York in 1929, was annulled by the Rome Court of Appeals. The court held the marriage agreement was not spontaneous as there was an element of constraint.

ter is worthy you should enforce your claim.

Spiritualism which induces a woman to smile complacently on illicit love is not of God, but of the devil. Belief in his Satanic majesty is perpetuated by such instances as you relate. However, we need not discuss the spiritualistic cult or its creeds. But it is an infinite pity that an 8-year-old youngster should have it mentality disturbed by these ghostly notions. Your imperative duty is to rescue the child from them.

SMITH DISCUSSES MARKETING PLANS

his interest, and if the farmer, after having signed a marketing contract to deliver his grain at his local co-operative elevator is not satisfied with the returns received from the sale of his grain, he may withdraw after the delivery of one crop and he may withdraw each succeeding year until the expiration of his marketing contract. The effort put forth to administer the farm marketing act in the interest of the farmer himself, is a most gigantic move, and my experience in the grain business leads me to believe that agriculture as a whole, under the administration of the farm marketing act will be placed on a parity with other industrial enterprises of our nation."

Peru Normal

Miss Helen Kucera has been chosen as delegate from Kappa Delta Pi to the meeting of the National Educational association at Atlantic City.

Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. held a joint meeting November 20. Dr. P. A. Maxwell spoke on "Cultural Natural Science."

The Everett literary society presented the play "The Dead of Night" November 23.

Plans are being made by the men's club for the annual football banquet.

The W. A. A. sponsored a prom in the form of a kid party November 22. Delores Porr received first prize. Dick Williams' orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

The Peruvian staff is making every effort to produce the best Peruvian this year. Nearly all student photos have been taken.

Typing awards in the form of gold pins were received by Fern Schmidt and Lucy Anderson.

The Nebraska Educational Journal contained articles by three Peruvians—Waldo Wilhoft, Florence Tilton, S. L. Clements. The Rectangle contains three poems by Exha Akins, Grace Tear, and Esther Ann Clark.

SI, I'M WRITING AN ARTICLE FOR A SCIENCE MAGAZINE ON "HOW LONG CAN A MULE GO WITHOUT FOOD?" I WANT TO BORROW YOUR MULE TO TRY THE IDEA OUT!

HELP YOURSELF, COLONEL!

I'LL TAKE HER HOME AND GET THE FACTS FOR MY ARTICLE!

GOOD IDEA COLONEL!

I'LL LEAVE HER IN THERE FOR A WEEK, WITHOUT FOOD AND SEE HOW SHE STANDS IT!

YES, COLONEL, THIS IS SI. YES, THE MULE GOT HOME! SHE LOOKS AS IF SHE JUST HAD A GOOD MEAL! SORRY TO HEAR YOUR BARN AND FRONT DOOR GOT DAMAGED

THE PROFESSOR'S EXPERIMENT TO PROVE THAT THE HUMAN BODY NEEDS MORE SUN AND AIR DID NOT WORK WELL AT FIRST, BECAUSE HOOLIGAN WAS INTERFERED WITH BY LADIES AND ANTS! NOW THE PROFESSOR IS GOING TO TRY IT AGAIN.

SIT ON THAT ROCK AND STAY THERE TILL I TELL YOU TO LEAVE! GET LOTS OF SUN AND AIR!

COULDN'T YOUSE LET ME HAVE A CUSHION SO IT WON'T HOIT SO MUCH?

THAT'S HOOLIGAN! HE MUST HAVE GONE CRAZY!

WE BETTER GIVE THE ALARM! HE MAY BE DANGEROUS!

HAPPY HOOLIGAN IS DOWN THERE, SITTING ON A ROCK!

HE AIN'T GOT NO CLOTHES ON! HE LOOKS LOONY!

WE BETTER CAPTURE HIM!

HE MIGHT GET VIOLENT

WE MUST GET A ROPE!

HIS EYES HAD A WILD EXPRESSION

I WONDER IF HE'LL PUT UP A FIGHT!

MAYBE HIS MIND IS UNBALANCED!

WE MUST BE GENTLE WITH HIM!

BETTER COME QUIETLY!

WE WON'T HURT YOU!

HEAVENS!

WHAT HAPPENED?

GENTS, I'M POIFECTLY INNOCENT!

BE CALM, HAPPY!

WE ARE YOUR FRIENDS!

WHAT'S THE CHARGE AGIN THE PRISONER?

GOIN' AROUND WITHOUT ANY CLOTHES ON! HE OUGHT TO BE PUT IN SOME ASYLUM!

LET ME EXPLAIN JUDGE!

WAIT!

AS YOU SAY HE IS SANE I WILL DISCHARGE HIM, BUT IF HE DOES IT AGAIN I WILL GIVE HIM TEN YEARS!

THANKS, JUDGE!

MUCH OBLIGED!

LISTEN, HAPPY, I OWN THE SIDE SHOW IN THE CIRCUS! I'LL GIVE YOU A HUNDRED BUCKS TO EXHIBIT YOURSELF FOR A WEEK AS THE GREAT APOSTLE OF THE SUN-AND-AIR MOVEMENT!

ALL RIGHT, IF YOUSE WILL HIRE THE PROFESSOR TO GIVE A LECTURE AT EVERY PERFORMANCE!

SUITS ME!

SIGN UP, HAPPY!

10

HAPPY HOOLIGAN, APOSTLE OF THE BACK-TO--NATURE,-SUN-AND--AIR,- NO-CLOTHES, MOVEMENT! A THRILLING LECTURE AT EVERY PERFORMANCE!

11

DO YOU REALLY BELIEVE IN GOING WITHOUT CLOTHES?

IT'S POIFECTLY DELIGHTFUL WHEN YOUSE GET USED TO IT!

MR. HOOLIGAN WAS A PHYSICAL WRECK UNTIL HE BEGAN TO GO WITHOUT CLOTHES! TO DAY HE HAS THE FIGURE OF A GREEK STATUE! IT SHOWS THE BENEFICIAL EFFECT OF SUN AND AIR ON THE HUMAN BODY!

12

HOW DID THE PROFESSOR'S THEORY WORK?

DID YOU GET LOTS OF SUN AND AIR?

THE THEORY IS A BOID! I MADE A HUNDRED BUCKS OUT OF IT!

IT'S THE MOST SUCCESSFUL THEORY I EVER HAD!

THE PROFESSOR GOT FIFTY!

THE GUMPS.

HELLO - SANTA CLAUS - ANYTHING I CAN DO FOR YOU ?

NOPE — I'M JUST LOOKING AROUND IS ALL — MAKING A FEW NOTES —

THE LIST GOOD BOYS

JIMMY SMITH

I NEVER SAID ANYTHING OF THE KIND

LISTEN HERE ANDY GUMP — I JUST WANT TO GIVE YOU ONE WORD OF WARNING — I HAVE EARS — HEARD WHAT YOU SAID

WELL I KNOW WHAT I SAID — AND I DIDN'T SAY WHAT YOU SAID I SAID

YOU SAID THAT YOU WERE — NOW LET ME TELL YOU — I KNOW EXACTLY WHAT YOU SAID

SAY — I KNOW WHAT I SAID — I HAPPENED TO BE PRESENT WHEN I SAID IT — AND I WANT YOU TO QUIT SHAKING YOUR FINGER IN MY FACE TOO —

NOW JUST TAKE YOUR HAND OFF MY ARM AND I'LL TELL YOU THE EXACT WORDS YOU USED AND HOW YOU SAID THEM —

I WAS IN A HURRY TO BUY THOSE PRESENTS BEFORE THE CROWDS GOT IN THE STORES — AND ALL I SAID WAS — WILL YOU STOP RUNNING AROUND LIKE A NUT — AND LISTEN TO ME?

DON'T TRY TO EXPLAIN — I DON'T WANT TO HEAR IT

OH — WILL YOU QUIT BUTTING IN — AND GIVE ME A CHANCE TO SPEAK — SAY — WHAT ARE YOU TRYING TO DO ?

I'M TRYING HARD TO EXPLAIN SOMETHING TO A VERY ORDINARY AND RUDE PERSON WITH VERY UNSATISFACTORY RESULTS —

I SAID THAT YOU SAID — THAT'S RIGHT — COVER UP YOUR EARS — DO LIKE THE OSTRICH DOES — BURY YOUR HEAD IN THE SAND —

OH — I DON'T KNOW WHAT I SAID —

ARE YOU DONE? ARE YOU THROUGH SPEAKING? NOW CAN I TALK?

AND — AS I WAS TRYING TO SAY — BEFORE I WAS SO RUDELY INTERRUPTED —

SAY — I'M TRYING TO TELL YOU AND MAKE YOU UNDERSTAND WHAT I SAID —

AND I'M TRYING TO MAKE YOU UNDERSTAND THAT I HAVE EARS AND KNOW WHAT YOU SAID —

WILL YOU LISTEN TO ME — AND STOP YOUR INFERNAL INTERRUPTING?

DO YOU WANT ME TO TELL YOU WHAT HAPPENED OR NOT? YOU SAID —

AW — YOU'RE SIMPLY IMPOSSIBLE

OH — WHAT'S THE USE?

AND THEY WONDER WHY WE DON'T GET ALONG
